U.S. Rejects Reds' Bid to Join NATO, To Consult Allies

Britain Denies USSR Claim Geneva Meet Big 5 Affair

BY JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States planned today to consult promptly with Britain and France on her rejection of Russia's bid for what is regarded here as a back-door method of Western defences through a new "security" system.

Moscow offered to consider joining the North Atlantic Treaty Organization if the Western powers would join a Russian-sponsored European security plan from which Germany would be barred and scrap plans for the European Defence Community in which German troops would be rearmed.

Initial Western reaction showed some division, and officials said it is reasonable to assume there will be consultation with Britain and France on the nature of the formal replies to the Soviet note.

(Canada's external affairs minister, L. B. Pearson, said in Ottawa Wednesday night that the Russian note, which he described as a "surprise," is one of the proposals at the recent Berlin foreign ministers' conference, "a means of getting the United States to comment on.")

Some hours ago Foreign Minister Molotov handed his proposals to Western ambassadors in Moscow in a 10-page note. A French foreign office spokesman said the note would require careful study "as it represents a considerable modification" in Soviet proposals on the same subject at Berlin.

In Washington meanwhile, State Secretary Dulles said his advisers wound up a quick study of the Russian proposals with a statement categorically turning it down.

What Molotov proposed was that the U.S. should join a 32-country European security pact which he had first put forth at the Berlin meeting. He had suggested then that the U.S. and Canada should sit in merely as observers.

In the new note he said acceptance of this plan for European security would be the surest invitation to consider joining NATO. This organization was formed for the purpose of guarding Europe and building up the strength of the West against the threat of Russian power.

LONDON (AP)—Britain today rejected the Kremlin's claim that Red China will participate in the Geneva conference on an equal footing with Russia and the Western Big Three.

A foreign office spokesman said the decision taken at the recent foreign ministers' conference in Berlin called for Britain, the United States, France and Russia to be set at the Geneva meeting for the foreign ministers' parley on Korea and Indo-China. The conference begins April 26.

The spokesman specifically rejected as assertion made by the Soviet foreign ministry that the Geneva conference would be a five-power conference including Red China as a fifth member. The Russian declaration was made in reply to State Secretary Dulles' statement March 26 that the Geneva conference would not be considered a five-power conference giving Red China the same status as the Big Four.

Inquiry Opens Into School Blast That Killed Ten

CHEEKTOWAGA, N.Y. (AP)—Authorities have opened an inquiry into a fire that Wednesday snuffed out the lives of 10 sixth-grade pupils and burned to the ground the fence across one of the Cleveland Hill elementary school. Two girls were burned critically, and several children probably will be scarred for life.

Fear-crazed children boys died in the blaze. Their bodies, charred almost beyond recognition, were found pressed against the remains of a window wall of a room where they had been trapped in music class.

Two others fled away were a doorway and broken windows that led to safety.

Fourteen pupils, three teachers and the principal of the school were taken to hospitals with burns or injuries suffered in the blaze. Two of the pupils died in the building escaped without injury.

The toll would have been higher had the quickly of the pupils not been out for lunch.

FIRES AT MAY FROME

John Dwyer, Erie county district attorney, opened an investigation into the fire. There was no sign of any criminal liability on the part of anyone concerned, Dwyer said. He is also coroner for the New York state edufication department, flew here from Albany to begin a state inquiry, and the local board of education began its own investigation. The cause is still not known.

Three adults were in the room when the blaze started. It had started shortly before noon. All agreed to credit for the rescue of the children who escaped.

Hailed as one hero was Jane Ann Hauser of Buffalo, 20-year-old practice teacher. She was helping the regular teacher, Mrs. Melba Siebold, with the music class. The third adult was Miss Ann Wintern, a salesman who was checking on delivery of choir robes.

Motion to Appeal Conviction Of Balcombe Made

TORONTO (CP)—A motion of appeal of the conviction and sentence of 2nd Lieut. Peter Balcombe was to be argued today in the Supreme Court of Appeal by defence counsel J. P. Kelly, it was announced Wednesday.

Balcombe was convicted Feb. 27 and on Oct. 12 of slaying Corp. Anne Carriere, 21, of Blainville, Que., a sergeant in the women's army corps. He is under sentence to be hanged May 28.

One of the grounds for the appeal suggested that Miss Carriere "may have been murdered in Quebec, outside the jurisdiction of an Ontario court."

The grounds of appeal states: "The evidence does not substantiate nor establish the offence as committed within the province of Ontario."

Notice of the appeal was received by crown attorney R. P. Millman last Friday. He said Mr. Kelly is basing his appeal on three other points: That the trial judge misdirected the jury; that there was insufficient evidence for a conviction and that evidence about the case in three American crime magazines prior to the trial, was prejudicial to a fair trial.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: The weather is playing a rather crude April Fools' trick with wintry temperatures from 10 to 20 degrees below normal over most of the continent. This morning the mercury in the thermometer was about 5 below zero with record, northwest winds. Moreover, the outlook is that this joke is likely to last for the next few days.

The temperatures tonight will most likely be below freezing in most of Ontario, and in northern Ontario will fall to about 15 below. This drop is connected with a new outbreak of cold Arctic air which should edge into the Georgian Bay area during Friday. This cold air will however not be quite as severe as the minus temperatures in southern Ontario.

HYDROGEN LEAK CAUSES BLAST AT HYDRO PLANT

Damage Is $1,000,000 At Toronto Station

TORONTO (CP) — An explosion wrecked a generator today at the $67,000,000 Richard L. Hearn steam operated generating plant of the Ontario Hydro commission on the eastern Toronto waterfront. Officials estimated damage at upwards of $1,000,000.

The terrific blast, believed set off by a leak in the hydrogen cooling system, did an estimated $800,000 damage to one of the plant's four 157-ton generators and caused some damage to one of the others as well as cracking a brick wall and shattering all the windows out of the building.

First reports placed loss as high as $1,500,000 to $5,000,000. However commission chairman Robert Saunders said later:

"It was not as bad as we thought at first."

He said the plant will be turning out half of its potential power by Friday. A temporary arrangement has been made to buy 40,000 kilowatts of electricity from Detroit Edison.

NO SHORTAGE

"There will be no shortage of electricity, though the voltage may go down," said Mr. Saunders.

Seventy workmen were unhurt as the four-storey generator station rocked under the impact. The plant and grounds with pieces of metal ranging in size from that of metal hand to that of a small car. Workers said the chunks rained down like wartime shrapnel.

Workers William Costello and William Gillick, trapped in an elevator between the fourth and fifth floors, were rescued by firemen who climbed through barricades.

The huge plant, which went into operation in 1951 and now seven generators were installed, had a total capacity of 400,000 kilowatts. It was constructed, together with a slightly smaller plant in Windsor, at a time when Ontario faced a severe power shortage, and was designed along with other steam powered plants in the province, to take care of Ontario's power needs until the St. Lawrence seaway and its power project were constructed.

CONFERENCE AT PLANT

A spokesman for the Protestant magazine said the survey was reasonable and authentic.

Criticism of the survey came Wednesday from the Rev. Kenneth M. Burke, Religion editor of the Catholic weekly, The Register.

In an article, the priest said:

1. The survey by the Protestant International Council of Religious Education was inaccurate.

2. He challenged the survey's claim that the figure 181,000 as the total of American Protestant ministers from which a sampling was taken. The Yearbook of American Churches, compiled by the National Council of Churches, lists 163,369 pastors, Burke lists 183,899 pastors for 1953. Subtracting Catholic and Jewish clergy, he said the total should leave a total of only 165,369.

3. Father Burke said the 2,218 replies received in the survey were "apparently solicited by letter to scientifically established methods since the 25,000 questionnaires sent out yielded only 9 per cent.

ONLY URBAN PEOPLE

The priest said he found no indication that the survey included rural pastors and pastorates were represented. Richard Morford, conducted by Kenneth L. Wilson, managing editor of the Christian Herald.

Wilson insisted the 181,000 a "reasonable figure" since the national Protestant membership includes only 196 of the nation's more than 1,000 denominations.

Even if 150,000 were used as the total, Wilson said, the number of ministers reporting would still have been about 3,500,000. He said the magazine set the total somewhere between two and five million in allowing for possible error in the survey figures.

Wilson said replies came from "every Protestant area and a "definite attempt was made to be quite sure that everything was done to eliminate ins representative Catholic and Protestant areas."

Mau Mau Leader Killed in Battle

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters) — Security forces have killed at least 25 Mau Mau gangsters, including the audacious "General Cargo," in a two-day running battle in the Fort Hall reserve north of Nairobi, British army headquarters announced today.

The slain leader led a ruthless gang estimated at between 200 and 300 which terrorized the Kikuyu as the boldest and most skilful Mau Mau organization still active in Kenya since the capture of "General Cerian" in January.

Great Debate on Hydrogen Bomb Gathers Fury in British Papers

BY PHILIP CLARKE

LONDON (AP)—The great debate on the perils of the hydrogen bomb raged on in the British press today in what one newspaper called an atmosphere of "H-bomb hysteria."

Even both Conservative and opposition members girded for a full discussion in the House of Commons next Monday, newspapers teed with one another in the battle of words and facts to hammer home their views on the awesome weapon.

The pro-Labor Tabloid, the Daily Mirror, devoted Six entire front page columns to the problem.

The News Chronicle, Liberal, carried an interview with Carl Gustaf Russell in which the famed philosopher and mathematician said the American H-bomb tests "must be halted to persuade" Russia to agree on international atomic agreement.

Scare headlines blazoned forth in other newspapers over Wednesday's statement by Lewis Strauss, United States Atomic Energy Commission chairman, that a hydrogen bomb explosion "is likely" to put any city out of commission.

The Daily Herald, Labor, ran a headline "H-Bomb Can Wreck Any City," printed a picture of New York's skyline captioned: "This skyline could be shattered." It called editorially for Britain to demand a halt in further tests.

The Daily Telegraph, also of London," was the front-page headline in the Conservative tabloid, Daily Sketch. In a leading article the paper called for the West to "negotiate" on its nuclear tests to see if Russia might be willing to enter an atomic control agreement.

Lord Beaverbrook's Evening Standard said editorially that the H-bomb "does appear to have had a quite remarkable effect on the minds of many people—turning ordinarily sane men and women into hysterical and irrational beings.

Even Last Year's H-Bomb Replaced Isle With Crater Official Movie Discloses

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States government today disclosed details of the world's first hydrogen explosion—a searing and crushing fury that wiped out an island in the twinkling of an eye and spawned a gigantic fireball big enough to engulf the heart of New York City.

The explosion picture film of the thermonuclear test in November 1952 was released by the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission and defence department at Eniwetok atoll, was made public in excerpts what censored form, by the Federal Civil Defence administration.

Awesome as it was, the 1952 test has been described by President Eisenhower as only a first step in the U.S. hydrogen-weapons program.

"There have been two announced thermonuclear blasts in the Pacific proving ground since then, and both have been semi-officially described as much more powerful. One was set off March 1, the other Friday.

DESTROYS ISLAND

Here are some of the things the film of the 1952 test shows, in the official narration accompanying it disclosed:

1. The test device was exploded in a "sh," a small workship moored in the lagoon between the toneting gadgets, on the islet of Eniwetok, the northern rim of Eniwetok atoll.

2. The island, about half a mile long and a mile wide, was vaporized and protruding from the barrier reef of the atoll, vanished. In the place where it stood is a water-filled crater 175 feet deep and a mile in diameter. The yawning submarine crater, on the shelf of the reef where it drops off into 400 fathoms of ocean, is equal to the height of a 17-storey building.

3. Created was the largest fireball of the more than 40 atomic explosions set off until that time —5 miles in diameter. The heat at the core presumably shot to a momentary temperature like that of the sun.

The picture includes an impossible-to-forget view of the awful decline of Manhattan's skyline. It overwhelmed and was about one quarter that of Manhattan.

EFFECTS ESTIMATED

The official estimate was that the world's complete annihilation" extended outward in a threemile radius; that severe to moderate damage reached out to seven miles; light damage as far as 10. Two factors should be considered about this 1952 test and the theoretical application of them to big cities.

MORE POWERFUL DEVICE

1. The 1952 explosion of the "device," while the mightiest up to that time, was substantially smaller than the shattering detonation of March 1.

2. The 1952 blast was exploded at ground level, which probably would be the fate of most used in a wartime attack unless a specific, high-altitude burst was desired. Exploded in mid-air after being dropped from a plane, with the destructive force of many thousand feet up, he area of total destruction and severe damage would be increased by several multiples.

Roman Catholic Editor-Priest Challenges Accuracy of Survey

NEW YORK (AP)—A Roman Catholic editor-priest has challenged the accuracy and scientific standards of a recent Protestant magazine survey indicating that 4,144,366 Catholics were converted to Protestantism during the last 10 years.

The magazine said the survey was conducted by the U.S. Bureau of the Census.

Criticism of the survey came Wednesday from the Rev. Kenneth M. Burke, Religion editor of the Catholic weekly, The Register.

In an article, the priest said:

1. The survey by the Protestant International Council of Religious Education was inaccurate.

2. He challenged the survey's claim that the figure 181,000 as the total of American Protestant ministers from which a sampling was taken. Whacky Weather Catches Up With Lion-Lamb Fable

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The whacky weather has caught up with the lion-lamb fable of March.

The average person couldn't tell which end of March was the lamb or the lion as the month ended at midnight Wednesday. March came in like a lamb in some Canadian provinces. That meant it was supposed to go out like a lion.

But there was none of such a thing, for those who take any stock in fables. The weather man said he couldn't dish up a "blustery wind that one newspaper part of the country, let alone a storm.

It was cold in some parts of the country and chilly in others.

Some areas enjoyed high temperatures for March 31:

Calgary 15, Edmonton 13, Regina 24, Saskatoon 18, Winnipeg 18, Fort Arthur 24, Toronto 32, Montreal 31, Quebec 27 and Halifax 36.

Usually-mild Vancouver had a high of 45.

Russians Trail Canadian Troops In West Germany

SOEST, Germany (Reuters) — Canadian troops stationed in Germany have become "almost accustomed" to seeing Soviet officers in their exercise areas, one of the 1st Canadian infantry brigade said here Wednesday.

German civilians claim to have seen Russians taking photographs of Canadian troops.

Russians are forbidden to enter camps and barracks of Canadian troops. But the Russians have been seen frequently driving slowly by Canadian camps.

Each time they appear in the area, commanding officers of the British Rhine army are notified, the Canadian officers said.

PEARSON WANTS RENEWED EFFORTS TO CONTROL ATOM

Minister Makes Plea In House of Commons

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Pearson has called for renewed international efforts to control atomic weapons in the light of the hydrogen bomb's power.

All governments concerned, including Canada, should take a new look at United Nations efforts to prevent the use of atomic power for destruction, Mr. Pearson said Wednesday in the Commons.

"In the light of what has happened, we must approach this problem—all of us, all governments with a greater sense of urgency than possibly we have been showing in recent months."

The H-bomb's power, recently revealed in U.S. test blasts in the Pacific, brought a feeling of horror.

"The clouds that blwes arisen 18 or 19 miles above that Pacific atoll; the deep and jagged cave that was blown into the bed of the Pacific ocean, and the men and miles away suffered merely by contact with the effects of that explosion. . . surely impose on all of us the responsibility to take some kind of action that we can find it, to harness these forces for constructive ends."

INTERNATIONAL ACTION

The problem required action by the UN and by all governments, he action. It might mean a re-examination of the whole question of international ownership of atomic materials.

It merely emphasizes the desirability, indeed the necessity, of bringing about some form of genuine international control and inspection, without which the anxiety of the world will not be relieved."

Mr. Pearson, speaking at the close of a five-day foreign policy debate, turned to the question of recognition of the Chinese Communist government which was discussed Monday by Mr. Drew.

He said Canada has no intention of recognizing the Peiping regime at present circumstances. But it was only common sense to say Canada should review the question if circumstances change.

NO UMBRELLAS

Canada had to negotiate with Red China at the Korean peace conference now in session, but she was making no deal for recognition of that government.

"Those carrying an umbrella to Geneva, nor are we carrying a bomb," he said.

However, at Geneva "concessions or advances that may be necessary on both sides to reach a solution."

Wallace Nesbitt (PC—Oxford) said Canada could bridge the gap between the United States and Asia. As a country young politically, Canada could be "unaffected by the sinister colonist motives."

D. R. Michener (PC—Toronto Rosedale) said he returned recently from a visit to the Far East, said there was a great deal of confusion about the presence of France in Indo-China than the threat of communism.

The Indo-China war was seen by many Asians as a struggle for the nationalist movement against an imperialistic Western power.

About 200 employees are affected. The company said some have found employment elsewhere with CIL. Others have gone to other employers.

Crown Rests Case In Bell Hearing, Decision Deferred

Magistrate Wills Will Hear Counsel Argument April 9

A decision on a motion for committal for trial of Mary E. Bell, charged with murder in the poison-death of her husband, Percy W. Bell, was deferred by Magistrate T. Y. Wills at the conclusion of witness testimony at the preliminary hearing yesterday.

Alex. Hall, Q.C., special prosecutor, rested the crown's case in the afternoon after he had called 23 of 45 witnesses subpoenaed several of whom were newspaper reporters.

Magistrate Wills deferred his decision until April 9th when he will hear argument of defence counsel Ronald W. Cass. Mr. Cass indicated at the end of the preliminary hearing that he would not make a decision until Mr. Cass has presented argument.

The hearing will commence at 1.30 Friday, April 9, at a place to be designated by officials.

INSPECTORS TESTIFY

The crown concluded its case with the testimony of police inspectors Frank Kelly, OPP, Toronto and Clair Hayes of the Belleville police department.

The preliminary hearing of evidence was concluded after six and one-half-day of witness testimony. It differed distinctly wide interest with the county courtroom being packed to capacity for most of the proceedings.

The accused woman showed little emotion during the hearing. Sitting quietly in her chair, occasionally glancing around the room, Mrs. Bell appeared to be concerned when a witness testified regarding her husband's death and embalming of her husband.

Yesterday she showed marked interest when Inspector Kelly suggested that counsel set the hearing date for the morning of April 9th. She leaned over as if trying to listen to the conversation of counsel, Jack Lennox and Ron Cass.

CALLED AT HOME JAN. 22

Inspector Frank Kelly CID, OPP, Toronto, called in to assist in the investigation said he called at the home of Mrs. Bell on Jan. 23 with Inspector Clair Hayes and arrested the accused. She was later that day charged with the murder of her husband at the police station.

He testified he had also accused certain questions, while at the home he had received Mrs. Bell's answers. Later Inspector Hayes corroborated his testimony. Both police officers were cross-examined by defense counsel Ron Cass.

There was a vain dire on admissibility of these questions and answers but later Magistrate Wills admitted them as evidence. He denied giving her husband poison at the home on the night of his death and she showed police where a bottle of liver pills were kept in the bathroom.

On their way to the police station, the two inspectors said Mrs. Bell asked them: "Why don't you pick up Rusty Jenners? He knows more about it than I do." Inspector Kelly denied that she added the words "which is nothing."

Insp. Kelly said Mrs Bell told them that he husband could not take hot drinks because they "upsetted his stomach."

Questioned by counsel, Inspector Kelly described the exhumation of the body of Percy Bell. The suit Bell wore was found in the closet, pockets were torn, witness said.

DRENCHED WITH FLUID

The witness said he saw Dr. Hans Lucke during the subsequent post-mortem. Under cross-examination he testified the pullet was drenched with a dark brown fluid.

Mrs. Bell's financial speculations and bottles of embalming fluid, which he delivered to Dr. Ward Smith.

100,000 Moist-Eyed Onlookers Bid Royal Couple Fond Farewell

By GOMER JONES

ABOARD S. S. GOTHIC (Reuters)—Queen Elizabeth sailed away from Australia today in a shower of booming guns and farewell cheers from 100,000 moist-eyed onlookers.

An armada of small boats and launches escorted the royal liner out of Fremantle harbor as it set sail on the homeward voyage to Britain. Next stop will be the Cocos Islands, 1,600 miles northeast across the Indian ocean.

Soon after the big vessel pulled out, the Queen's broadcast farewell to Australia was heard by millions throughout the world, as she sat before a microphone in her sitting room for the broadcast.

Many of those who saw the Queen and Duke of Edinburgh off changed overnight on the dockside. Shouts of "come back soon" filled the air as the liner moved away from harbor craft. Squadrons of Australian jet fighters dipped over the royal vessel as it cleared the harbor.

The Queen's four-minute radio message was heard clearly all over Australia and was broadcast simultaneously throughout the world. It was broadcast from Government House, Perth.

TORONTO (CP)—A cabinet minister has predicted a further delay of about five months in construction of the St. Lawrence river power project.

Hon. George H. Challies, minister without portfolio and government representative on the Ontario hydro commission, Wednesday night said in the legislature Wednesday night that it would come from legal action now before the United States Supreme Court.

Despite the delay, it is possible construction can be started this year, Mr. Challies said.

Ontario Hydro is planning to use natural gas for power when the gas arrived from the West, he said. This would replace coal in steam plants. Atomic power, now being studied by Hydro, would be used as soon as available.

CANCER SOCIETY OPENS CAMPAIGN

On Jan. 18 he obtained 2 drams of strychnine sulphate from Doran's drug store, which also was given by Dr. Smith.

Inspector Kelly outlined various aspects of the investigation. In a front bedroom upstairs he found feminine apparel, also a new jar of vaseline and a partjar of petrolatum in a dresser drawer. In an adjoining room were three coats, one labelled Jenners, and a violin. In another room the pattern of the wall-paper appeared to be washed off. In the bathroom was a bottle of Nujol and in the cellar a bottle of lodine. He found letters from Mrs. Jenners in a piece of furniture against the wall. A copy of a chattel mortgage was found in a box at the top of a kitchen cabinet. Also articles of clothing.

Was there any evidence of any other woman being in the house except Mrs. Bell, asked the crown. "No".

Witness with other officers had searched the house and cellar and found no other persons. He gave specifics as to how there were some potatoes in a box. He did not think rats could get in the cellar. Later the place was re-checked for signs of rats and none was found.

BANK BOOKS IDENTIFIED

Inspector identified bank books, one of which was dated 1938 and which, on a joint account, Mrs. Bell, witness testified, had stated the joint account was in fact in the bank, but it was found with receipts and insurance documents in a secret box.

Cross-examined, Kelly said two of the bank books were in accused's purse, another in an insurance folder and the other two in a box on top of the kitchen cabinet pushed back.

The witness said he had seen nothing of articles for killing of mice or rats.

"Would you know a rat if you saw it?" "Yes."

"Have you seen rats and shot them in old barns."

SUGGESTED NOT EXPERT

Defence counsel suggested witness was not an expert on rats.

"I looked for rats and could find no sign of them," Kelly replied.

Questioned on pills, the witness said he did not know how many were in the liver pill box. There were five pills in the crumbled aspirin tablets in a paper container in the bathroom.

The pills were produced in court at the police suggestion, and identified by the witness.

Asked if he recalled sleeping tablets called "Bell" from Mead-Johnson which might be those named.

NO PATENT MEDICINE

Witness admitted he was in no position to state if there were other pills in the house. He found no patent medicines nor a named-nerve food.

"Did you find any sulphur?" "No."

"We searched the house thoroughly for cocoa and found none. Nor did we find any chocolate," the witness testified. He repeated they had looked particularly for cocoa, and chocolate, in any form, and were not successful.

"Have you done your duty as police officers in this investigation with regard to the arrest?" "I believe so," said the witness.

Defence counsel Cass checked the dates of statements given the police by various witnesses.

Neighbors, Friends Quickly Extinguish House Blaze

TRENTON (Special) — A frantic four-alarm sounded over a rural telephone system in Prince Edward County Wednesday night sent dozens of cars and trucks screaming down gravel roads and muddy highways heading for Bill McDougall's burning farmhouse on Wellington Street, 2½ miles south of here. Mountain View operator, Evelyn Ketchabaw, explained that she was just doing her job, when she learned that a telephone call relaying had caused more than 100 farmers, their wives and children to converge on the McDougall farm in a matter of minutes.

Fire did caught in the ceiling was breaking through the roof when a bucket brigade of men, women and children went into action. They had the fire under practically control by the time the Trenton fire engine arrived at the place in the record time of seven miles in five minutes. Meanwhile, the other half of the crowd cleared the farmhouse of every available piece of furniture and household belongings. Bill McDougalls hardly had time to think what was happening when the fire was out with the last stick of furniture was passing through the front door bound for the driveshed.

A lifelong resident of the village said afterwards that he never saw so many people and motor vehicles collect so quickly. Actual damage to the house was small, although the residents would certainly be in for some trouble without the help of their friends and neighbors.

LEGION WINS TITLE

A cribbage team, representing Legion Branch 110 here, won the league championship title at night by defeating a team playing under Quinte Cleaners sponsorship. The Legion team comprises: Albert Cunnell (captain), Rusty Forbes, Bert Gardiner, W. A. Donaldson, C. MacLean, E. Burrows, Alex. Campbell, Jack Stanley, William McTaw, Clark Hart, Art Hewton, Earl Kennedy.

The tournament last night wound up the regular playing season and the playdowns commence next week with the league's annual banquet coming up in May.

CAR HITS HYDRANT

Herman Luymes, 23, of Trenton, when the brakes of his car but the car went into skid and hit a hydrant on Front St. at Dexter's parking lot. The hydrant appeared none the worse after the accident but the operator will have to dig down for $30 to fix his damaged vehicle.

Dog Survives 27-Day Imprisonment In Cottage Without Food or Water

JACKSON'S POINT (CP)—After 27 days without food or water, Skippy, a small collie dog, has returned to his owners, Beatrice and Judy Thayer, 11 and nine years old.

The dog lost 12 pounds while locked in a summer cottage but today was able to play with the girls.

He apparently was accidentally left behind in the cottage on March 3 by M. J. Howden of Toronto. On Tuesday, Mr. Howden's daughter, Mrs. Charles Farrell, saw the dog peering through a window.

His owners had given him up for lost, Mrs. Farrell called Judy and Mrs. Thayer and the three ran to the cottage.

When we opened the door we saw Skippy lying on a chesterfield," said Mrs. Thayer. "He wagged his tail and staggered toward us. His was so thin we hardly knew him."

Broken Patches Of Pavement Being Repaired

City public works department employees were busy on Front Street today patching up the holes in the pavement which have developed during the winter months.

Motorists in Belleville as well as those passing through the city have been complaining loud and long about the condition of local streets, but the city public works officials decided there was little use in patching until weather conditions were suitable. They apparently have now decided conditions are right.

Broken patches of pavement were dug out and enlarged by workmen and hot asphalt mixed by the city's portable mixing machine is being placed in the holes.

Ice Break-Up 9 Days Later

The break-up" of ice in the Bay of Quinte was nine days later this year than last, according to officials at the city pump house west of the city.

Last year the break-up came on March 18th and this year the ice broke up on Sunday—March 28.

Wednesday afternoon the bay was practically clear of ice all the way from Trenton to Belleville, the only ice visible being along the shores and some distance out from the drive in Zwick's Island. Winds shift the ice around until it eventually vanishes.

East of the Bay Bridge the bay is clear as far as the eye can see.

POLLARD. — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Joseph Pollard, who passed away April 1st, 1953.
When evening shades are falling
And we sit in quiet, thinking
Of our hearts there comes a longing

And we talk about the weather
Our smiles hide all the while.

My sincere thanks to my friends for their kindness to me during my illness; grateful to Doctors Russell and J. H. Wallace and Nurses, also wishing to thank no one during my recent illness for their kindness and thoughtfulness.

Heath, Douglald Sanderson, Vaughah Glover and Arnold Jones.

There was a variety of floral emblems, testifying to the respect in which Mrs. Hartley was held.

She was born in Marmora 65 years ago, being a daughter of the late George Pinner and Mrs. Minna Pinner, now of Belleville, who March 18 last became a centenarian.

Before her marriage to George Hartley she was employed by the late Harry Clark in his jewelry store here until the latter moved to Tweed. In those years the village boasted a telegraph service and in addition to her other duties Miss Hartley was also a telegrapher. Her cheerful discharge of her duties made her many friends from the general public. Later, with her husband, she continued the jewelry business for a number of years, but this was given up a few years ago. For the most immediate past years, Mrs. Hartley was an invalid, eventually being forced to undergo the amputation of an arm, Belleville's general hospital her vision. Her condition becoming more acute she received hospitalization in Kingston for the last three weeks until her end came on Monday.

She was a member of St. Paul's Anglican Church and, possessing a fine, soprano voice, was an asset to its choir for many years during the rectories of the late Canon C. M. Harris and the Rev. P. Calger Watson, now of Galetta, Ont.

Besides her husband, she is survived by her aged mother, resident in Belleville, and is predeceased by one sister and two brothers.

Assault Charges Laid Against Hillcrest Men

Assault charges against Roy Polmanter, 24, and Bruce Wood, 17, both of Hillcrest, will be heard in county magistrate's court on April 13. The two men appeared today before Magistrate F. J. Ellis and their cases laid over until the above date.

Polmanter and Wood also face charges of joyriding.

Charges against the two men were laid by provincial police following complaints of Jack Holmes, 22, 4th Street, who is in Belleville hospital with a broken jaw, the result of alleged assault took place in the Shannonville area Saturday night. Following which Polmanter and Wood were alleged to have taken Holmes' car.

Polmanter is charged with assault causing actual bodily harm and has been released on $500 property bail. Wood is charged with common assault.

George Hall, Shannonville, has been charged with theft in connection with the incident. He has been released on $100 bail.

Ruling Final Echo of Toronto's Famous Mystery

TORONTO (CP)—There wasn't enough left of a $2,000,000 estate to settle $174,524 in debts when the estate of Theresa Small was wound up today.

Mrs. Small, who died in 1935, was the widow of Andrew J. Small, Toronto theatre magnate who vanished 33 years ago.

A judgment handed down by F. G. Cushing, master of the Ontario Supreme Court, brought an end to a long legal controversy over the missing millionaire's money. The ruling disposed of assets realized a total of $141,313.

The ruling was the final echo of Toronto's most famous mystery. On Dec. 3, 1919, Mr. Small left his office in the Grand Opera House to go home. He bought a newspaper and disappeared.

A few days before, he had sold his theatre chain for $1,000,000 in cash and a further $1,000,000 in annual payments.

Controversy between the widow and her husband's sisters led to legal proceedings that ended today. The will at one time was taken to the privy council in London.

Propose Hike In Allowances For Committees

TORONTO (CP)—An increase from $2 to $20 a day in allowances for members of the legislature sitting on committees between sessions was proposed Wednesday night by a select committee of the house. Committee chairman would be allowed $35 instead of the present $20.

The committee also recommended that the provincial government pay transportation and out-of-pocket expenses on trips to and from the place of meeting. The mileage allowance of 10 cents a mile on travelling time to and from the place of meeting would remain unchanged.

Currently, members receive free railway transportation, but W.J. Cummell (CCF—Cochrane South) said it was sometimes advantageous for committee men to travel by car.

Provincial Secretary Welsh, committee chairman, said the present $20 tax-free allowance is "inadequate."

E. E. Janes (PC—Lambton East) suggested the allowance be raised to $30 but the principle be reduced to five cents.

Mr. Cummell and Peter Mackley (L—Stormont) disagreed. Mr. Manley said the present mileage rate is "very fair."

Mr. Janes said committees are "costing a lot of money."

"If the members got $10 more than covers the mileage. I don't think we should try to bail the province too much."

Nature Lovers Enjoy Audubon Lecture

In spite of bad weather a fair and enthusiastic audience greeted Mr. Bert Harwell, lecturer, photographer and naturalist, in the collegiate auditorium, at the final and perhaps the most entertaining lecture in a series sponsored by the Quinte Field Naturalists. His summer was charming and the movies of the Canadian West were beautiful beyond description.

To those who love travel the mountains with their lacey waterfalls recalled happy memories.

To nature lovers the birds and animals were most enjoyed.

Perhaps the cleverest picture was of the pileated woodpecker's nest with her babies demanding their dinner. This little bird is found only on the west coast and in Europe. Likewise, its love of the water, particularly a waterfall makes the finding of a nest most unusual.

Among the enthusiastic youngsters members of the audience were 15 Cubs with their leaders. It was a program for young and old alike.

After the lecture, the members of the Quinte Field Naturalists were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Hinchcliffe where they had a chance to hear more of Mr. Harwell's whistling and bird calls as he accompanied himself on the piano. It was an evening long to be remembered.

COBALT BOMBS

LONDON (CP)—Britain's atomic industry now is producing radioactive cobalt for medical use, and cobalt bombs have been exported to the Netherlands for use in cancer treatment. Similar cobalt bombs have previously been produced in Canada.

FIRST COAL LOADED

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—Two Canada Steamship Lines freighters, the Burlington and the Osler, were loaded with coal here today, the first such shipments in 1954 from the Lake Erie ports to Canada. The Burlington is bound for Hamilton and the Osler for Toronto.

New Bargaining Rights Election Ordered by Govt.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government today ordered a new bargaining rights election between embattled rival New York longshoremen's unions. It ruled one of them off the ballot unless that union ends a present pier strike "forthwith."

The order was issued by the National Labor Relations Board. It directed that a date for new balloting be fixed within 3 days.

Board officials said this means the new election may be held at any time within the next six weeks.

At the same time the NLRB directed its regional office in New York to make arrangements within the next five days with New York state and municipal authorities "to assure reasonably adequate conditions for conduct of a new election."

SETS ASIDE DEC. VOTE

Today's order set aside an election held just before Christmas. That election apparently was won by the AFL-controlled International Longshoremen's Association. An NLRB trial examiner had recommended cancelling the prior election and holding a new poll. Officials of the contesting unions attributed to the ILA.

A new AFL longshoremen's union has been engaged in a fight with the old ILA for dockwater bargaining rights. The AFL outed the ILA and formed the new union after accusing the old group of harboring racketeers and hoodlums.

The old ILA is under orders to stop its strike if it is to be on the ballot in the new election.

Pope to Be Able To Bless World On Easter Sunday

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Pope, continuing to improve, is expected to be able to give his traditional blessing to the city of Rome and the world on Easter Sunday.

Vatican sources said the 78-year-old head of the Roman Catholic church might even resume his audiences shortly after that date.

New J-47 Jet Engine Whirls Debut at RMC

KINGSTON (CP) — Blasting out clouds of oily black smoke and rotating at something over 10,000 times a minute, the Royal Military College's new J-47 jet engine whirled its debut today.

After being officially presented to the college by Air Vice-Marshal C. R. Dunlap on behalf of the chief of the Royal Canadian Air Force, the engine, first of its kind at any college or university in Canada, was put through its paces by air force technicians.

Housed in a specially-constructed aluminum but behind ancient Fort Frederick on the RMC point, the jet will be used to give advanced instruction in thermodynamics and heat engines to final year students in mechanical, chemical and electrical engineering at the college.

In brief ceremonies, Brigadier-D. R. Agnew, RMC commandant, described the engine as "super coincidence," by which the installation of the jet coincides with the date the RCAF is celebrating its 30th birthday.

The J-47 engine, originally used in the Canadair-built Sabre, has been replaced by the more powerful Orenda engine.

Borrowed Car, Man Now Sought After Fatality

TORONTO (CP) — Police launched a province-wide search today for a man known as "Joe Lawrence," wanted in connection with a fatal accident in which the driver of a car failed to stop.

Fred Dorkard, 46, was killed Tuesday night in suburban Scarborough township when struck by a car registered under the name of Ruth May Hinchcliffe, an East York resident.

Mrs. Hinchcliffe's husband recognized his wife's car as the one sought by police and told police he had loaned it to a friend. The unreturned car was discovered parked on a downtown street, spattered with blood and its hood dented.

Police said neither Hinchcliffe nor his wife were considered as suspects.

Lawrence is reported to have fled his Toronto hotel Wednesday.

Claxton Denies Germans to Get Canadian Jets

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister Claxton today denied a Toronto newspaper report that Canadian-built Sabre jet fighter planes are destined for a reborn German air force.

"Neither the department of national defence nor any agency of the Canadian government has given even the most preliminary consideration to making any class or kind of equipment available for Germany," Mr. Claxton said in a statement.

Regarding the newspaper's report that "senior RAF officers frankly admit that they do not want Sabres, that they will be happy to see the last of them," Mr. Claxton said:

"Their (British) request for these (Sabres) was strongly pressed on the government by Sir Winston Churchill when he was in Ottawa in January, 1952."

NEWSPRINT

Mr. Claxton stated:

Locks and Keys

(New York Times).

Locks and keys are curious devices. To borrow a phrase from the locksmith's ad blurbs, they may be considered on many levels as necessary adjuncts to civilization, as ordinary mechanical devices, as mechanical genius or as a disease. The first locks were invented by the Egyptians; before that one can assume that everyone trusted everyone else, for no one possessed anything worth locking. Later the Romans manifested a very remarkable concept of locks, keys and domestic security. To lock their houses they simply tied a leather thong in intricate knots around the door handle. The only key needed was sufficient intellect and dexterity to undo the knots. The same principle is used today in shoe laces, which are hardly improvable to any attack short of scissors.

Early European locks were both practical and pretty. They were not intricate, but rather massive iron locks which open at a pre-set time when a pre-set combination is dialed by a private attendant, but in the sixteenth century burglary had not become a problem of science either, so the locks were practical. Practicality is now even more impressive. Locks were set in ornate brass faceplates, and the keys were works of art. Some even bore little escutcheons, figures and pictures, and occasionally precious stones. These trifles were carried through the eighteenth century, but little remains of them today. We do have a few large and impressive ornate keys, but these are usually for the sole purpose of presentation of visiting dignitaries, a "key to the city" being a far more practical gift than any civic itself. But these keys are not beautiful, they are simply large. And more significantly, they do not open anything. Even the presentation key is still bear decorations of sorts, but hardly the engraved, bejeweled sort. They are, rather, the stamped gestures toward distinction, or as one locksmith observes, bogus coat of arms emblazoned on a million other ignition keys.

The urge to lock things is not, in itself, particularly economical. Certainly there are thieves, and an unlocked door may very well swing in the breeze, only to be sheared off by a passing truck, but a key is easily withheld a lock would be no more fun than an overt cookie jar. But some, it seems, are more tempted than others. While many a home within five miles of Madison Square stands unlocked throughout the year, there are apartment dwellers who perform little ritualistic privates rituals with their front door every night. First the brass bolt on the chain must be fitted into the grooved wall plate before the lock above the doorknob must be snapped dramatically, until the main click signify complete fortification; then the knob itself must be shaken and turned, to double-check against mechanical failure; and last, the tiny corner of the peephole in the centre of the door must be swung into place, perfectly centred and presumably airtight. Once this is done, the tenant may sleep, blissfully unconcerned with the open bedroom window through which anyone more agile than four hundred pounds might climb. There is a popular notion that burglars are somehow on their honor to enter only through locked doors.

At the other extreme are those who ignore the grimmer realities of burglary, who renounce the mechanical. Real, fire damaged pieces of locksmiths have wrought. To them, a door must be a door, a box a box, excluding only cold weather and mosquitoes. To them, to lock is another amusing puzzle, a place to be lost or misplaced, not a thing completely unique to a fingerprint. Neither philosophy, however, can justify the tiny brass key. Well, it can justify it would take several days for the fracture to set, I replied. "Oh, I see," said the correspondent. "Thank you, Doctor". A GOOD HEART TONIC

Wherever I tell here what I believe to be the truth I get set for a reaction, which is sometimes direct or immediate, but more often delayed and roundabout. For example I may be several weeks after my statement that plain beer or cane sugar, for cos or c o r n syrup is as suitable for infant feeding as any fancy sugar at any price, when I have forgotten all about it, that the reaction catches me, off guard, and it hurts. Then, if or when I get my breath, I still maintain, despite the prohibited pronouncement of any trick specialist, that these inexpensive sugars are as desirable in every respect as any costly kind one can use.

Dr. Brady

Easily in practice I learned how futile, and from a business viewpoint how foolish it is to hold out against or not to go along with a well supported fashion. I patient with a broken thigh bone fixed up in Buck's extension by a familiar crude contraption of pulleys, weights, sandbags etc., dreamed in the 19th century (and still employed in some antique establishments). The good newspaper correspondent telephoned to ask for particulars. Had I "set" the fracture? Well, he said he would take several days for the fracture to set, I replied. "Oh, I see," said the correspondent. "Thank you, Doctor". In my simple mind "setting" is the term the heart would engage in some kind of physical activity, keeping the limb in relative quiet for the heart to do more work. Is this correct?

Aphasia, for instance. Back in the days of Buck's extension (the fracture). Yet it never again ventured to tell a reporter anything about his business, that is, in practice. I've had a newspaper people a few things about their business since I turned doctor.

RAWDON

Re-Opening of Carmel United Church a Memorable Event

RAWDON — On Sunday afternoon, Carmel United Church, situated on the Rawdon-Stirling-Tyendinaga, was filled to capacity for the re-opening services.

Despite a wet afternoon, worshippers gathered at the church a half hour before the time for service and many circuits were represented.

The renovated church was a picture of loveliness and "second to none" in country churches. The renovation was the Women's Association project and the work as a received congratulations from the many visitors. The old historic church has been given added beauty and will now be a memorial for future generations to rise up and carry the torch.

BEAUTIFUL FLOWERS.

The Pryear home, Mrs. Lorne Brooks, who has held this office for years, had arranged the lovely potted plants, flowering violets, and spring daffodils, also two large memorial baskets of various shaded 'mums and three dozen snapdragons in pastel shades. The baskets of bloom were in memory of Mr. Myron Bray, Rochester, whose funeral was held that week.

Carmel Women's Association provided a dozen snow white calla lilies and all this gave the edifice a breath of spring on a dreary wet day.

The pianist, Mrs. Arthur N. Pryear, who has served as pianist and choir leader for over 25 years, opened with an instrumental prelude and played appropriate music throughout the service. The full choir of 17 voices was seated across the front length choir loft which stretches from east to west. This is a big improvement over the old plan. This group sang two appropriate hymns, "Lift Your Heads", with Mr. Douglas Pryear taking the solo part, and their second selection was a new and very appealing arrangement of that old favorite, "Onward Christian Soldiers."

The Rev. A. E. Baker, pastor of the church, seated the guest ministers on the ministerial dais, and presided over the service, which was carried out with clockwork precision as he has a master mind of organizing ability.

Service opened with a call to worship in the form of gratitude to God for the beautiful church in which to worship. The large audience rendered the "Doxology" as a prayer and the "National Anthem" as a tribute of patriotism.

WELCOMES CLERGY.

The pastor then welcomed the clergy and expressed thanks to the near-by congregation of Mount Pleasant-Rawdon for cancelling their service that afternoon. He also welcomed warden Fred Mitchell and Mrs. Mitchell and Roscoe Hobson, M.P.P., and daughter, Barbara and all other guests from Belleville, Trenton, Hamilton, Peterborough, the stellar church at Stirling, and all nearby country points.

At this juncture a baptismal service was conducted by the pastor, when Dwayne Richard Pryear, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Pryear and grandson of Mr. Robson was baptized at the font.

The congregation sang a Scottish Psalter and Mr. Robson read various portions of Scripture as written in Isaiah and Revelation as found in "The Book of Common Order" for a service of this nature.

DEDICATION

The Rev. L. S. Thropp, B.A., B.D., chairman of Belleville Presbytery, conducted the dedication ceremony of a beautiful pulpit apron drape bearing the historic crest of the United Church of Canada, the gift of Mr. Wesley R. Steinhaver, of Carmel community, a loving memory of his father, Rev. Egerton Ryerson Steinhaver and grandson of the first Methodist missionary at Norway House, the Rev. Henry B. Steinhaver who served on Canada's pioneer mission fields (1850-1884). The donor is a war veteran and a member of Carmel choir.

The new pews, executed by Mr. Hector Eggleton, local craftsman, the floor covering of grey battleship linoleum; new doors at the south, with a lovely glass transom above with appropriate lettering engraved thereon; a new stove-oil-burner type—all the woodwork, choir loft with raised platform and adjoining pulpit.

All sang an appropriate hymn written by J. M. Neale, based on "The Church of God."

GREETINGS

Rev. R. R. Bonsteel, B.A., B.D., pastor of Rawdon circuit, brought greetings and paid tribute to the pioneers, who first held church meetings in settlers' homes and then in 1858 erected a wayside house.

Mr. Bonsteel then offered a prayer for blessing and guidance in future years.

The offering was gathered by Messrs. Ernest Carlisle and Ernest Grills, and well over $200 was placed on the plates and dedicated to the project of renovation.

Donations have also been made for the new pews by Messrs. R. A. Patterson and Harold Bird of Stirling.

GUEST SPEAKER

The Rev. L. S. Thropp congratulated Mr. Baker, officials, and congregation of Carmel on their enterprise and brought greetings from Presbytery.

He based his message on the theme "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God." He stressed that God is always ready to strengthen any work that folks undertake for His name and that each individual must strive to seek first God's kingdom and then all else will be added in harmony.

Supreme loyalty to Jesus Christ and His principles is not necessary today as never before as the world needs so close and ideals are doubly important now. The salvation of the whole world will not come from other countries, nor from Canada; rather it is the duty of each one to practise and present the teachings of Jesus. Christians everywhere are called to be clear and not ones who create the trends of proper living and pave the way for good citizenship.

The speaker outlined what the United Church of today is doing and told of various ways that they are helping the underprivileged people.

Mr. Thropp gave many inclidents to prove that good material is needed and referred to the heroic service of the pioneers who served this area a century ago.

He closed with that most appropriate poem, "The Bridge Builder" and challenged the large audience to build for future generations that the Christian church at Carmel may stand out as a beacon light across the land.

MEMBERSHIP

At this point, Mr. Baker, assisted by the other three clergymen and the elders of Stirling-Carmel circuit, welcomed into church membership at Carmel, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley R. Steinhaver, of Glen Ross, who were former members of Calgary United Church.

Mr. Thropp conducted a solemn and impressive communion service, assisted by Rev. W. S. Irwin. The elements were passed by Mr. Baker, Mr. Bonsteel, Messrs. Harry Brown and Joseph Grills.

The service closed with the hymn by Horatius Bonar and everyone felt that it had been good to have attended.

SERVICE OF THANKSGIVING

A special service of thanksgiving will be held Sunday evening, April 4, at 8 p.m., when Rev. Miriam E. Collins, B.A., assistant minister of Bridge Street United Church, Belleville, will give the message and St. Paul's senior choir will provide special music.

Carmel United Church was erected in 1875 and Silver Jubilee Hall in 1950. The congregation is planning a special centennial in September 1958, as it will then have 100 years of Christian work in this district to its credit and dates from the first Methodist services recorded, which were held in Union School Section No. 22, of Sidney and Rawdon in 1858.

Previous to that, services were held in settlers' homes of which there is no written record.

Mr. Baker, pastor, Mrs. Keiths Hubel, historian, Mrs. Arthur Pryear, organist and choir leader, are now busy searching various sources for valuable information which will assist in preparing for their centennial.

12,500 FLEE RED ZONE

BERLIN (AP)—The West Berlin refugee centre reported today that 12,494 East Germans asked asylum in West Germany in March to raise the total for the first three months to approximately 36,000. Of these, 22,000 already have been flown from this city to West Germany.

Father of Seven Held For Slaying Of Cattle Drover

DRESDEN (CP)—A 37-year-old father of seven children has been charged with murder in the shotgun killing of William (Dusk) Sands, 65, a cattle drover in nearby Dawn township.

Earl Clifford Saunders was arrested at his home near Dresden, shortly after he finished supper Wednesday night and was taken to jail in Sarnia, 25 miles north of here.

His arrest came a few hours after a police search turned up the bent barrel of a shotgun in a puddle of water beside a path leading from Sands' solitary home a few miles north of here.

Police believe it was the weapon used to shoot Sands in the back through a window of his home and later to batter him on the back of the head.

The body was discovered Tuesday morning by a neighbor who went to investigate the reason for Sands' car being left in the ditch. Found beside the body sprawled across a blood-soaked bed.

CAR ABANDONED

Police believe the killer tried to escape in the car after the attack but abandoned it and set out on foot across the snow-covered fields and through the woods.

Motive for the slaying was obscure. One neighbor said Sand normally carried large amounts of money with him for his cattle dealings but others said he seldom had more than $100.

His wallet was reported missing when he was found.

STOCKHOLM (CP)—Transfer of the Stockholm naval base from the harbor to islands in the Stockholm archipelago is expected to be completed in a few years. The shift will involve construction of bomb-proof "tunnels" for smaller vessels, and of underground workshops.

Newfoundland Life Changed Drastically Since Confederation

By STEWART MACLEOD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Newfoundland celebrates today its fifth anniversary as a Canadian province and the all-out installation on which she staked her future is still a family affair although her 365,000 people are far more prosperous.

The story of life has changed drastically since Newfoundland entered Confederation at 11:59 p. m. NZT March 31, 1949, and most of the change has occurred in the last three years when the economic development policies of Premier Joseph Smallwood hit their stride.

Wages climbed between 1951 and 1954 from $155,000,000 to $210,000,000 annually.

Fishing at the time of Confederation was second only to pulp and paper as the mainstay. It now has slipped to ninth and its place has been taken by family allowances.

The industrial trend has been away from small to big business. Thirteen small industries employing 1,000 persons have closed down because they could not match the prices of mass-producing firms on the mainland. In their stead about 1,000 employees have been absorbed through 14 companies which established Newfoundland branches after confederation.

PROBE MINERAL RICHES

Thirty-five alien companies have completed exploration parties to probe the metal and mineral riches of the interior or are about to despatch them. These keen-eyed prospectors already have poured uncounted millions into the province.

Confederation still has its critics but their numbers are dwindling steadily. Some say Premier Smallwood shot the works on industrialization when a more preliminary thought. They claim manufacturing plants are too far from sources of raw materials; that plants are too far from the markets they need to compete favorably with mainland interests.

But the decline in fishing is the biggest headache and cause for concern. Two-thirds of the 29,000 fishermen who lived in the tiny outports that dot the rocky coast have forsaken the sea and moved to the larger centres seeking—and getting — year-round employment instead of the seasonal pursuit of fish.

Fifteen new industries have been inaugurated in the last two years. Seven with a combined staff of 1,000 are actually producing and the rest will be producing before the end of the year.

France Fires Defence Head, Critic of EDC

PARIS (AP)—France's government today fired Marshal Alphonse Juin from the country's two highest military posts, and it appears likely that he also will leave his job as commander of land, sea and air forces in central Europe of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The cabinet ordered the outspoken marshal removed from his French military posts—adviser to the government on defence strategy and vice-president of the national superior council for armed forces—after he refused Premier Joseph Laniel's summons to explain his public criticism last week-end of the proposed European Defence Community.

Paris newspapers agreed that the government, which had won approval from the NATO Pact, now has no choice but to ask the NATO council to dismiss him.

Two Irish Designers Steal Show at Toronto

Miss Barbara Jean Redcar of Redmersville, one of four young persons from Ontario farms, who will sail May 19th for a tour of farms of England and Scotland. The trip is being made under the auspices of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. Miss Redcar, who now works at the Bank of Montreal in Belleville, has been active in junior farmer and 4-H club work and last year was a delegate to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago.

Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Two smart designers from Ireland stole the show Monday night at a preview of original designing by 21 of Eaton's top fashion creators. The collection of 104 garments was brought here by plane for the Canadian Apparel Fair which begins a three-day exhibit Wednesday.

New to the world of fashion, Sybil Connolly and Irene Gilbert of Ireland put a breath of blarney into their designs of daytime dresses and suits.

A Connolly suit of soft golf green had a look of casual, elegant ease. It was cut with roomy yet slim skirt and short, shirred jacket, dropped slightly in back. It had that sizzling-across-the-moors look.

FORMAL ADAPTATION

Irene Gilbert, in a more formal vein, adapted the loose-shirted full bloused costume of an Irish peasant girl for her gaudy evening skirt and blouse outfit. She combined a full, to-the-ankle swishing skirt of eggshell acetate fabric with a round-necked, puff-sleeved blouse of gold-patterned creating a soft shimmering effect.

Jacques Fath of Paris displayed his new "lady bug" silhouette in a dress he calls "beatitude blue." The silhouette starts off with the figure moulding the skirt around the hips with a folded ruffle in back. Worn over it was a full, recklessly-cut top coat of daffodil yellow, funnel-shaped with giant pockets.

The surgery of Spain was shown in Pedro Rodriguez' mantilla dress of honey brown. A cowl mantilla embroidered with brown lace fitted over the head, flaring to the shoulders in the "form-fitting" dress was slipped in below the knee. Italian design by name like Fabiani, Simonetta, Fontana and Giovanelli were all classic yet daring.

HARTNELL SHOWS GOWNS

English designer Hartnell, the Queen's dressmaker, had dresses in colors of cream or eggshell with simple pink or beige overskirts for relief.

French creations by Jacques Fath, Lanvin, Patou Desses, de Givenchy, Heim, Rouff and Paquin were all daring and spectacular. The neckline in the back was featured.

Everything in the show from sports clothes to evening wear was frankly feminine with ruffles, pleats and soft-clinging lines.

SMART TRIPS

Un-matched luggage gets a new spring coat with a gold luggage cover to fit all sizes. In addition to protecting cases, they make a matched set of any collection.

These can be embroidered or appliqued with monograms.

CHIN-DEEP IN FUR.

Girls' dresses wear rabbit fur collars this spring — as the juvenile facsimile of fashions mink trims.

High Bosom, Molded Midriff, Sleek Hips in New Foundations

Foundation garments for spring '54 aim for the "little middle" with longer bras, medium high-topped girdles and scoop-midriff corselets.

To underline the young schoolgirl look of fashion, foundations feature a high, rounded bust, smooth, taut midriff, and sleek, molded hips. Both strapless and regular brassieres are lifted high and cut low.

Backs are strapped closer to the waist for the new low-backed fashions. Shoulder straps slanted outward or widely spaced allow for scoop or bateau neck-lines. There are straps which can be converted to halter or shoulder-tip styles or removed completely.

Moderately high-topped girdles contribute to a natural look with easy control and supple lines. The idea is to whittle the middle as well as the hips in place at the boning, clever panelling and criss-cross design are used in satin elastic, power net and nylon. Seams studded with elastic tape give firmness and freedom.

Eyelet embroidery, dainty ruffles, tiny, flat bows or floral embossments appear on most styles.

EYE APPEAL

Big news in beachwear is visual appeal. It sparkles with bright colors and novelty patterns. New constructions provide action, nylon, rayon and linen with extra light weight. Many are quick drying.

ALL THAT GLITTERS

Latest fashion spark is the use of gold and other metallic threads woven into various fabrics (from ties to suitings). Glinting forth on the surface they emphasize design, give a subtle glow to weave.

Scents Answer Spring Call For Light Mood

In this season of many fashion moods, fragrances and cosmetics are most aptly used to capture and enhance the fealing of various costumes.

The light-hearted, youthful spirit, typical of daytime and casual sports wear, is heightened with clear-colored lipstick and rouge, blush-tinted powder base —best always with individual skin tones in mind.

Woodsy or spicy scents carry out the airy piquance of the fashions.

Ultra-femininity is news in dressy clothes. Big occasions call for subtle floral bouquet perfumes and colognes. One fashion trick is to choose a single floral scent that matches the predominant flower in a printed fabric.

When wearing a corsage or posey or artificial flowers, by all means repeat it in the fragrance. Soft, flower-fresh make-up follows the fashion lead.

Sophisticated loungewear has adopted a far-eastern look, and is extremely excitingly combined with haunting, oriental fragrances and lipstick with an orange or blush cast. Pale powder shades go best with the languid, oriental mood.

Available this spring are perfumes and colognes in liquid or solid form — slender sticks, little round patties. There are creamy skin sachets and scented-to-match cosmetics.

Even High Fashion Is Washable

More and more beautifully styled clothes are newly washable this spring. Coats, dresses and suits that are easy to wash, quick-drying and shape retentive are available in many new designs.

Pioneer Woman Politician Will Be Honored

OTTAWA (CP) — The career of Agnes Macphail, pioneer woman politician, will be commemorated in the House of Commons, probably with a bronze bust, it was learned today.

Since her death in Toronto last Feb. 13, women Senators and members of the Commons and others have taken steps to seek some suitable permanent memorial.

Miss Macphail was elected to the Commons in 1921 as United Farmers of Ontario member for Grey South East, later Grey Bruce, as the first woman member of Parliament. She held the seat until 1940, when defeated by the present Citizenship Minister Harris.

It is understood Rene Beaudoin, speaker of the Commons, has been approached by various women members and Senators and other women's groups, regarding a memorial and that the matter is being studied by the Commons board of internal economy. Mayor Charlotte Whitton of Ottawa also has expressed interest, suggesting a plaque at the Commons door.

It is known that a bust of Miss Macphail, probably in plaster, was sculped in 1936. The Speaker is trying to locate the bust for recasting in bronze. It is suggested the bust be placed in the Speaker's hall, near the door of the Commons.

Mr., Mrs. E.B. Adams Mark Their 31st Anniversary

Last evening a happy time was spent at the home of Mrs. Archie Grier, of 48 Everett Street, when a number of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Adams, when several friends and members of the family assembled to honor the parents' 31st wedding anniversary.

The evening was spent in games of cards, after which dancing was enjoyed.

A buffet luncheon of delectable confections rounded out a memorable event.

Mr. and Mrs. Adams received many useful gifts for which they graciously expressed their appreciation and thanks, as well as many lovely cards bearing a host of good wishes and congratulations.

Delicate Gloves Use Exciting Passementerie

Neat and delicate touches mark the glove of 1954 and contribute to an all-around young and feminine look. There is a great deal of fagoting, matching or contrasting hand stitching, French knots and colored embroidery. Dress gloves are artistically draped. Shorting wear cut-out designs.

While the hand looks slim and graceful, glove contours are rounded. Some end slightly before the wrist with tiny buttons or self flowers. Many of these "shorties" have elasticized sections for snug fit.

A smart new note in fabric gloves is eyelet embroidery over the whole glove or the wristband. Others have contrasting stitching down the sides.

Kid gloves look sprightly this spring in a bouquet of colors, some with simple glace finish. These are sleek fitting and take to many beautiful draping techniques. Some wear bows at the side; others are draped into sophisticated knots; others are attractively edged in a slim border of white.

For casual wear, pique gloves are refreshing. Pigskins are available in many new colors. And there are new, rich nylons that duplicate both.

Fashion Flashes

The soft accent of openwork marks many of the new gloves, both leather and fabric. A soft French glace kid glove in white or pastels has fagoted openwork running down the side and around the wrist, while many fabric gloves have over-all perforated patterns.

Right next to calf, it's patent for the the important Spring costume handbag. Great big patent leather or patent plastic bags, many done on big satchel lines or in the smart accordion style, are selling well, say the stores, as are bags composed of faille and patent.

The fluffy charm of white fox is at its best at night. And since it is a fur of soft flattery, it is having a whirl for itself at smart Florida resorts as well as on the West Coast, with the long, narrow stole having the edge over the wide stole, cape or jacket.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DON'T PIZE A SECOND MARITAL MISTAKE ON'A FIRST ONE

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a woman of 36 who has been married twice. The second husband never gives me any money so I have to work in a restaurant at night to earn the money to pay our bills. My husband tells me, though, that I only work so I can have a chance to be around other men.

I have two children by my first husband, and my present husband resents my love for them. He also walks out at the time and never says where he is going or tells me where he has been when he comes home.

What can I do about all this?

Mrs. B.E.

Dear Mrs. B.E.:

Whatever your reason for having broken up your first marriage, your experience evidently didn't teach you enough about choosing the right husband and a second time, did it? You have, by hasty and letting the second marriage follow the first into the discard too quickly. I suggest that you try to learn something from it that might help you.

Have you ever made any real effort to have your children take an affectionate interest in your new step-father? Perhaps if they were to be made more welcome, wanted and considerate toward him, he might in time change his cold attitude toward them. There are lots of little things children can do for their parents that mean a lot to a fond of them, and if you put your mind on it, I'm sure you could think of many ways in which yours might win this man over.

Again, his poor attitude toward your husband been all it might be, and have you really tried to make an attractive and happy home for him?

Perhaps, of course, you have done all that you can, without success. I have no way of knowing whether you have or not. But I suggest that you think the whole situation over very carefully and see if there may not be something of what I have just said.

If your husband is perfectly able to support you and your children, you certainly shouldn't have to work at night in order to help pay the bills. So if the situation doesn't improve, however hard you try to do your part and have the children do theirs, then I think you should consult your local family service organization and see if they can't do something to make your husband assume his proper responsibilities. But first look for ways in which you can try to make things happier yourself. It might really help.

LOOK CLOSER AT HAND FOR YOUR BOY FRIENDS

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I've gone out with quite a few boys, but none of them meant very much to me until I met Mickey, who is almost 17 to my 16.

I've known him for over six months now, but since he lives in the next town, it hardly ever see him. He has called me only twice to ask me out on a date, and I feel very bad about it. I'm quite stout, and I am wondering if that could have anything to do with it or whether it's just that he doesn't like me at all.

What do you think? — A.G.

Dear A.G.:

It would be pretty hard, on such very scanty information, to arrive at any theory to explain why your friendship with Mickey hasn't developed. All I can do is to say that it sounds to me as though he wasn't sufficiently interested in you to take the trouble to come to your town to see you.

I doubt very much that your stoutness has anything to do with the case. At the same time, if you really are overweight, it would be to your own interest to slim down. While popularity is more a matter of personality than looks, and while there are plenty of fat girls who have just as many friends as anyone else and are just as much sought after, it does help to attract the person a girl is meeting for the first time, if she is an smart-looking as possible. And a trim figure is part of the attractive picture. I'd advise you not to waste time thinking about Mickey, but to put your attention on making yourself as attractive and interesting as you can, so that the boys you meet at hand will want to give you a whirl.

Tough Meat Talk

By Mary Moore

For twenty-six years I've been swanging my pet harp. Theme: Eating for flavor and nutrition. The two are inseparable if you value good health.

I knew only too well why we have an April Fool's Day when I read Penny-Wise and Pound-Foolish's letter:

"I never miss your column and I'm sure I know you better than my own mother . . . Mary it costs me as much to feed four of us as it does my neighbor to feed six: . . . what is the best roast of beef for my money? How long per pound do I cook it, cover or no cover? My husband says to do all of the shopping . . . on Thursdays. I don't know the names of roasts so tell him to buy an expensive roast, red ink and nine out of ten we get a lemon or plenty of waste. I find cheaper roasts have little taste, and my husband's meat is spoiled if fit gets any fat or gristle, he doesn't eat lamb or veal. I find pork very greasy, then again we don't know how to cook it. We like meat well done, so I usually cook it until it is nearly falling apart, then it doesn't slice nicely. . . tell me about . . . buying by the buy, how you cook it and time. I love gravy . . . have you ever it if it is tasty. I trim every speck of fat off . . . we like a 6-lb. smoked shoulder. I boiled it then baked it in foil. It had a huge old bone and loads of fat, but the lean was the nicest I've ever toasted . . . have you a recipe close to — mayonnaise . . . it is expensive but the in- . . . I love it and I'm sure you'd like the difference between mayonnaise and salad dressing! . . . the Italian spaghetti made my mouth water. How do you keep a apple from turning brown in green salad? I know you will die of despair that there is any one as dumb as me in the world today. Thank you a million for any help and for just reading this.—Penny-Wise and Pound-Foolish."

I Pve the girl for her candor, but in this land of milk and honey why do folk limit their eating horizons? Why does her husband not eat fat? Its not a school system so remiss that he was taught nothing about nutrition! The complete digestion of meat hinges on the fat consumed with it. We must eat meat fat-prejudices coddled in childhood to the contrary.

I often speak - of Art (Perennial Boy Friend to Marjorie) in this column. He was a meat and potatoes boy, and it was a great joke when I'd say boiled meat or calves' liver or anything with which he was unfamiliar.

To my utter delight he told me on the eve of his departure for a 2-months' tour of Europe that he was going to eat everything that was set before him in every country he visited, and what's more he vowed he would enjoy it. He is going to relay to me by letter his food experiences in terms of life, southern European countries he eats his way through!

I implore Penny-Wise and Pound-Foolish to forgive my bluntness, for it is alien to me, but drastic steps have to be taken.

The element of surprise is gone when her husband buys the groceries every week. Let him mind the children and her buy the groceries every other week. He must be a good sport or he would not be so generous with time and money, so she should go a little further and ask his indulgence—by eating more conventionally. I have a feeling P-W and P-F is just as appetizing about every new things as her husband is obdurate in his food eating habits. This is an unhealthy situation in which to raise children, for they will tend to cram your prejudices and adopt them, then their husband in a state too.

The cheaper cuts of meat have just as much flavor as expensive cuts. All they lack is tenderness. The very finest of beef is judged by inspectors by the amount of fine fat marbling in the lean, which means roughly that they are not ranging cattle.

I am going to give you one foolproof dish that meets all P-W and P-F requirements—and mine too.

BOILED BEEF WITH NOODLES

Buy 2 lbs. shank beef, cover with 1 quart cold water, add 1 bay leaf, 1-4 teaspoon pepper and simmer covered, for 2 1-2 hours. Add 1 1-2 teaspoons salt and 4 or 5 oz. packaged noodles and 1-2 cup chopped parsley (or 1-4 cup chopped onion) and more water if needed to cover noodles, and boil gently until noodles are tender—about 20 minutes longer. Discard the bay leaf. Arrange meat in centre of hot platter, and make a border of the noodles. Garnish generously between noodles and meat with parsley sprigs, which be sure everyone eats.

I will send other material to P-W and P-F.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

HOW MARRIED WOMAN SIGNS HER NAME

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Several questions about signatures and name-forms have been bothering me for a long time and that your column has recently begun to be published in my newspaper, I am coming to you for help.

1. What is the correct signature on a check for a married woman?

2. What is the correct signature for a married woman to sign to a business letter?

3. And now about the correct form of a name of me to have printed on my "formal use" letterpaper, like this on which I'm writing to you. As you see, my letterpaper has name printed Margaret R. Baker, followed by my street-address, city, etc. Is the above correct, or should it read: Mrs. Margaret R. Baker, or perhaps Mrs. R.J. Baker? Whenever I sign Margaret R. Baker—which always assumed correct—I receive answers addressed to Miss Margaret R. Baker. Please advise me about this. — B.

(As you see, I have substituted another name for your name, but have kept the name-forms exactly as you wrote them. I never use "real" names in my column.)

1. A married woman correctly signs a check Margaret Rose Baker: that is, her first name, her maiden name, and her married surname. This is the customary form of signature, and makes good sense, for it shows at once her maiden name and her married surname. Other arrangements, but not so good, are, Margaret R. Baker; or (if she has retained her maiden name, instead of her maiden surname), Margaret Anita Baker.

2. Correct signature for married woman to business letter:

Very truly yours,
Margaret Ross Baker
for Margaret R. Baker) or Margaret A. Baker)
(Mrs. Robert J. Baker)

Note (a): Direct signature should be informal name.

Note (b): For information or identification write formal name (Mrs. Robert J. Baker) in parentheses.

3. A married woman's name printed on this kind of "general use" paper should be her formal name. . . yours should be Mrs. Robert James Baker or Mrs. Robert J. Baker. (it is not correct for you to use Margaret R. Baker printed on this paper, and definitely not correct also for you to have Margaret R. Baker printed on the flap of the envelopes.)

The signature of your business letters has heretofore been only half right (see answer to question 2) you signed correctly but you did not add your formal name in parenthesis. Naturally if you sign a business letter Margaret R. Baker and your name is printed on the paper and envelope Margaret R. Baker, the receiver-of-the-letter takes it for granted that the answer should be addressed to Miss Margaret R. Baker. But when you order your new supply of letter-paper printed correctly Mrs. Robert J. Baker, or Mrs. Robert James Baker, all will be well: you need not sign your formal name below your signature, for there will be your formal name printed at the top of the sheet; or you may, if you wish, sign your formal name (also (in parentheses) for double-information.

SPRING TONICS THE GROCERY BOY BRINGS THEM!

Those who are getting on in years are more than willing to acknowledge that the old days were not so good—especially when they remember the countless springtime when the combination of sulphur and molasses as a tonic was a "must." Now we know that a balanced diet will provide us with all the elements necessary for well-being. If we eat a variety of foods and enjoy normal health and vitality we don't even need to buy vitamins in bottles unless the doctor orders them.

There is our old friend vitamin C that helps cure scurvy and helps to guard against infection. When ordering groceries you must include now and then all the citrus fruits, tomatoes, cabbage. Vitamin C is also found in potatoes, berries and melons.

Children need calcium which is also said to be fine and dandy for jittery women who are conscious of the fact that they have nervous systems. Milk is the major source, but it is also found in turnip greens, cales, kerandish broccoli and especially in green beans.

Iron helps to carry oxygen to body cells. And it's easy to obtain. You get it in meat, enriched bread, sea foods and lima beans.

Practically all the leafy vegetables contain mineral salts. There is a wide choice—spinach, cabbage, beet tops, dandelion greens, chard, mustard tops. A raw vegetable should be included in at least one daily meal—carrot slivers, raw onions, tomatoes or celery. These are complexion beautifiers too, because of their favorable effect upon the digestive organs and blood streams. If you do not have your quota of fruit and vegetables your complexion will not retain youthful bloom.

Women with sallow skins will find that orange juice or grape fruit juice taken before breakfast will bring them a normal coloring to the complexion. Truly, what you put in your tummy has much—and more—to do with your skin than the cosmetics you put on your face.

HIGH QUALITY . . . WIDE SELECTION . . . LOW PRICES . . . MAKE THOUSANDS SAY

YES, A&P HAS THE MEAT BUYS!

COME SEE COME SAVE AT A&P!

It takes more than low prices to make good meat buys. Variety and quality are equally important. For if a skimpy selection forces you to settle for a sirloin steak when you prefer porterhouse or for lamb chops when you have your heart set on veal cutlets, you won't be completely satisfied with your purchase at ANY price. But suppose you're lucky enough to find the cut you want at a low price — you still won't get your money's worth in enjoyment from it if it's of inferior quality . . . tough, dry or tasteless.

That's why it pays to buy meats at A&P, where you have a tremendous choice of beef, lamb, veal and pork at money-saving low prices.

Polio Field Tests on Half Million Children Hold Answer

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP)—The polio virus could still have some ace up its sleeve against the brightly-hopeful polio vaccine.

Do antibodies against one strain protect against other strains in the tyre or family?

From limited tests, Dr. Jonas E. Salk finds evidence that they do. But planned field tests on half a million children hold the real answer.

Virus for the vaccine is grown upon monkey kidney tissue, then is harvested and the virus is killed with formaldehyde. The vaccine fluid can contain infinitesimal amounts of protein from monkey tissue. Some scientists question whether the human body may create antibodies against this protein, antibodies that might affect the human kidney.

Dr. Salk says there is no danger, since the vaccine fluid is treated and tested to remove almost all the protein. Even if antibodies against kidney were formed, they would be antibodies against monkey kidneys, not against human kidneys, he says.

"I would not give the vaccine if I had the slightest doubt about its safety," says the scientist, who has vaccinated his own children.

EFFECT MAY VARY

The problem is that human beings are not all alike. Even aspirin is bad for a few persons.

Some of the vaccinated children may, for some peculiar reason, fail to develop antibodies. It is possible that some children may get reactions of various kinds from the vaccine, though it works perfectly for all the test. The trials will tell whether there is such a possibility, whether it is significant.

Take any group of half a million children, and some are sure to die within the next six months from natural causes, whether of pneumonia, rheumatic fever or other diseases.

Health officers, doctors and the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis are counting on the good sense of parents and others not to jump to conclusions. The cause of deaths can be learned by autopsy.

Only the field tests can show the value or limitations of the vaccine.

READING OTHER VACCINES

If it doesn't measure up to hopes, active research is still being pushed on other types of vaccines. One uses virus killed by ultraviolet light. Others are based on developing viruses which have mutated or changed so they cannot cause polio, but being alive they can be powerful stimulants for forming antibodies. This type of vaccine could be injected or even used in tablet form.

The firm expectation is that children who take the vaccine will actually be protected against polio this summer.

Many people mistakenly believe that gamma globulin was found to be useless last summer.

It was pronounced ineffective for use in family contacts—giving it to brothers, sisters or playmates of children who came down with polio. By the time a child became regrudgingly ill, his close associates had already most probably been exposed to the virus, and it was too late for the shot of G.G. to do any good.

NOT FOUND USELESS

But G.G. was not pronounced useless in mass use. A committee of experts said it could not be demonstrated that G.G. had any beneficial effect. But this also means it could not be demonstrated that it did not have a good effect.

Evidence from carefully-controlled experiments in 1953 showed it could help prevent polio if given to children in time, and in the right dose.

This year there will be enough G.G. from the foundation and the American Red Cross to give shots to about 1,200,000 children.

Efforts will be made not to use G.G. in areas where the vaccine is being tested, since G.G. should be protecting some children, with no credit going to the vaccine, or vice versa.

At the best, G.G. is a temporary stop-gap, a kind of fireman jumping in to help extinguish the spread of polio.

The only practical answer for polio is a vaccine.

The field tests can mark the beginning of victory over polio—if it actually protects from natural exposure.

The big "if" will be answered by thousands of volunteering children, the rain and tragic victims of polio for too many years past.

Work-Hating Canadian Gets Several Offers of Employment

By RON EVANS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Funds ran low for the footloose Canadian with a flair for fun so he advertised:

"Young Canadian, undependable, heavy drinker, hates work, wants job. Highest offer gets him."

So Sgt. Bruce Lukes, 25-year-old self-exile from Climax, Sask., has received four offers of employment, five of friendship, one of philosophy and one of marriage.

The amorous proposal came from a girl in Ware, Hertfordshire:

"The only job I can offer is that of a husband—at 19 I feel sadly 'on the shelf.'"

Most of the correspondents said they were just curious about the anonymous adverser.

Not the six-foot, blonde actor-journalist.

HAD MANY JOBS

For the last five years, he has roamed London and Paris employed variously as law clerk, private detective, railway signalman, post man, television actor and royal gardener.

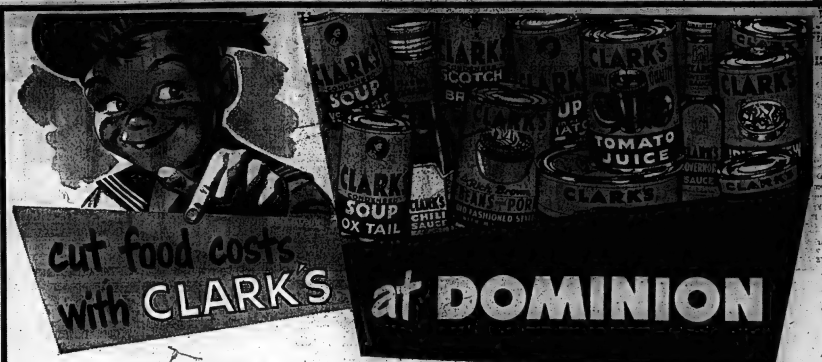
For two Christmases he delivered mail and for six weeks he helped tend the gardens at Buckingham Palace.

"I'd be raking leaves and Prince Charles would come down the path pushing a pram. He used to call out 'good morning.' Princess Anne used to like looking for worms."

Now he says he will follow up some of the replies, await the results of his audition and pursue his favorite hobby, reading.

"I'm not going home yet," he concluded. "I haven't got a suitcase."

MacKenzie King Boyhood Home Taken by Govt.



OTTAWA (CP) — The boyhood home of William Lyon Mackenzie King has been taken over by the federal government and will be developed as a historic park. It is located at Woodside, near Ottawa.

Prime Minister St. Laurent announced in the Commons that the ill-cere property has been donated to the government by the Mackenzie King Woodside Trust.

He said a group of citizens in 1942 undertook to restore the home and property of the former Liberal prime minister. The trust was established in 1950 and a campaign launched to obtain funds for the restoration; $90,000 was collected.

After the restoration of the home and property, it was offered to the government for development as a national historic park. The offer was considered by the historic sites and monuments board which recommended that the property be taken over and developed as a national park.

Policewoman Paid $3,000 To Adopt Baby

MONTREAL (CP) — A Montreal policewoman testified Wednesday that she and another policewoman from New York paid $3,000 to Louis Glazer, a Montreal lawyer, in arranging for the adoption of a baby on the alleged international baby-selling black market.

The policewoman, Hilda Beaucage, was appearing at Glazer's preliminary hearing on a charge of being party to false registration of a birth. A second Montreal lawyer, Herman Buller, faces a similar charge and is scheduled to appear for preliminary hearing April 9.

Miss Beaucage told the court she posed as a friend of New York policewoman Therese Bogato, who actually handed the money over to Glazer in his office. Both women faked names for the transaction.

An unmarried mother testified that Glazer ran hospital arrangements for her.

Glazer's preliminary hearing will continue April 7.

On request of the crown, Judge Gerald Almond ordered newspaper men not to publish names of certain witnesses, such as that of the unmarried mother.

NOT A COWBOY IN THE CROWD

Los Angeles became a bull-ring when four bulls, en route to the slaughter house, decided to make a break for it. The bulls, displaying unbovine intelligence, went in four directions, making it tougher for the small army of bullhunters that tried to round them up. Next manoeuvring by a number of auto corrals one of the bulls, who appears to be thinking: "What's the use of it all," and surrenders meekly enough. The others were captured and lied to trees until trucks were dispatched to remove them. (Central Press Canadian).

Folks Back Home Should Properly Wrap Packages

By JAC KRAYLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

IN KOREA — Lieut. Doug MacKenzie of Winnipeg, like everybody else in the 25th Canadian Brigade, likes to get letters from home. But when they're late he doesn't blame the postmaster. He is that much - maligned gent

Jack Brayley

He often works long hours with his crew making sure that 1st C mail reaches the forward positions and he patiently sorts through the mix-up of badly packaged parcels to see that the soldier doesn't miss anything from home.

"If there's one thing I wish you'd stress," he said, "it's the urgent need for the folks back home to make sure their packages are securely wrapped and tied. When they arrive here it's hard to do our best to see that all the bits get back in the right package but sometimes it's impossible."

REAL PUZZLE

Sgt. Harold Boland of Dauphin, Man., former civilian post office hand, even tries to figure out personalities when he's trying to regroup the contents of muffled packages.

"I say to myself, now would the guy who's getting that book also get this type of socks or candy or whatever it happens to be. Some how we get 'em back together and receive very few complaints."

Lieut. MacKenzie says he's convinced that Canadian soldiers in Korea are the most prolific letter-writers in the world. "Many of them write more than two letters a mail and we had one guy who often wrote his wife seven letters and one time 24. We have always wondered what in the world he can possibly say."

Mail from each unit is sorted at the brigade post office by cities and districts. It is then moved to Seoul where courier planes carry it to Tokyo for transfer by air-liner to Vancouver where it is distributed—with any luck—in 12 days or less as far east as St. John's, Nfld.

With incoming mail, clerks riding the courier trucks from Seoul, do the forward areas do the sorting as they travel the rough roads. The field post office handles an average of 8,000 letters a day. The air-mail service crosses the Pacific thrice weekly, providing there are no hitches.

In the six months ended Feb. 28, the little canvas post office under the shadow of a Korean mountain handled nearly 240,000 pounds of mail.

"You can always tell when we miss a flight," Lieut. MacKenzie said. "The brigade looks as gloomy as a funeral and the morale is really low. That's when they have me. But I'm low too because I haven't got my own mail."

U.S. Air Force Will Honor Women Who Saved 29 Jets

LONDON (AP) — A grateful United States air force is preparing the red-carpet treatment for three Scots village women whose radio signals during the Atlantic gale helped save the lives of 29 American jet pilots.

Honors due a general will be shown to postmistress Mary Cook and carpenter John MacGougan and his wife. All are from Shipsea, a village of 293 persons in Argyllshire.

Maj.-Gen. Francis H. Griswold, commander of the U.S. 3rd Air Force in Britain, is sending his personal plane to fly the three Scots from Prestwick to London Friday. Here they will be shown a "terrific time."

"Anything they want to do we will try to arrange," an air force spokesman said.

The rescue story goes back to last November, when 29 Sabre jet fighters, being flown from Iceland to England en route to NATO forces, ran into strong gales. They were an hour overdue.

BEACON INSTALLED

At lonely Skipness, 45 miles from Prestwick airport, the USAF had just installed a radio beacon for use in an emergency. MacGougan had the key to the radio shack and had promised the Americans he'd switch on the beam wherever they called Miss Cook, who had the village's only telephone.

The big hope for the 29 pilots was that they could be guided into Prestwick. Their fuel supplies had been dangerously depleted while battling the gale.

The American air control at Prestwick telephoned Miss Cook. Despite the gale, she rode her bicycle to MacGougan's house. There she found he had been called away to his sick mother.

But he remembered to leave the key with his wife and had taught her how to operate the beacon. Together the two women struggled through the bitter winds to the beacon site and turned on the vital radio signal—just in time.

"Thanks to them," said the air force spokesman, "the 29 jets managed to land without mishap. Not a fuel tank was dry."

Number of Men Save Big Chunk Of Army Pay

By JACK BRAYLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SEOUL IN KOREA (CP)—As the world's best-paid soldiers, the Canadians might be a bunch of free - wheeling spenders but, instead, a surprising number of men of the 25th Brigade save big chunks of the $300,000 total they receive twice a month.

"Some of them get us to send their money for extra insurance premiums, some have it deposited to banks and others just let it stack up so they'll have a nice little sum to take home," said Capt. Lloyd Mercer of Sussex, N.B.

The Army Pay Corps officer said many just let their pay accumulate until they leave Japan, and then they use it for entertainment and for a shopping spree for their families.

MANY SAFEGUARDS

He said the biggest account now held by a private amounts to more than $1,000. Up to the rank of corporal the men are allowed only $20 a pay. This is to remove the temptation to gamble or steal because there is no place in the Canadian area to spend money except in the canteens and the brigade gift shops.

"If they want any extra to buy gifts all they have to do is get a chit signed by their commanding officer, and we give them what every they need."

Various unit paymasters are present at the central Nazdi gift shop on certain days and the men can just assign part of their pay for their purchases. This does away with the necessity of carrying large sums of money.

Other services provided by the paymaster is flowers-by-wire. The Canadian soldier just has to give the paymaster the address and the message and his flowers are ordered and paid for through his paybook.

Step into Spring...

young in heart . . . young in fashion

Spring is pretty! Spring is a mood. Spring is the song you sing, the places you go and the clothes you wear. Your princess dress with its tiny waist and flowing skirt. Your empire suit with its high bosom and molded curves. Your gay sportswear, your dainty accessories, your flirty hats. Radiant in clear colors and crisp fabrics you're right in the mood for Spring.

Gently Fitted Suits, Subtly Flared Coats Promise a Feminine '54

Spring Coats Feature Tissue-Weight Drama

This is the spring of the important coat. Fashion has gone, literally, to all lengths to give women coats for all occasions, all temperatures and to harmonize with all wardrobes. Sleepy pastels are color leaders.

Newest way for a coat to look is outstanding — not only in silhouette, but in the dramatic use of fabric.

The dome silhouette is a favorite by far. Beautifully adaptable as part of a costume or a coat alone, it features rounded shoulders and cylindrical sleeves and circular fullness that starts just under the shoulder. Soft box pleating adds fluidity to newest coats.

The dome coat comes in big, three - quarter, seven - eighths and full lengths. It may be made to stand out by means of a stiff, shaped lining or the coat fabric itself.

Related to the dome and a preeminent fashion in the overright, is the shortie barrel coat. Cropped close to the waist, it is caught in the width of its flare and dramatizes any outfit with which it is worn. Fashion emphasizes the barrel shortie in white fleece, tweedy wools and a variety of feather-light coatings.

RETURN OF THE CAPE

Capleta are noteworthy spring additions to the coat scene. They, too, are newest when cropped at the waist and belled or rippled with fullness.

While the fitted coat has not passed completely out of the picture, new variations change its name. Most important is the tunic which is built out, the shoulders semi-fitted through the middle and softly flared below the waist. This tunic length is newest and a trend in many fashion categories. Another semi-fitted coat is favored in a 36-inch length.

The fitted princess retains new personality from crisp silks, sheers and blends, and some exciting brocade-like cottons and silks. This style may be worn with equal effectiveness as a coat dress or ensemble coat.

There is a new flare-coat that is slightly stiffened on the hem of a modified cupola. It appears in flecons and tweeds, as well as silks, linens and cottons. New straight coats have a rounded and tapered look from shoulder to hem. Many of these are available in two-thirds, three-quarter or full-lengths.

FITTED SHORTIES

Other shorties, cropped at the waist, are seen in fitted bellboy styles and somewhat tapered boxies. Short-shorties are little more than boleros.

Textures for coats are different this spring. Weaves are pattered to look like matelasses, brocades, tapestries and a host of rich silks . . . all with a substance that lends itself to excellent outstanding shaping.

Spring coats will feature a low-cut neckline whether or not they are collared. There are low-seamed rounded shoulders and interesting sleeve lengths, some bracelet and elbow-length. Many have white overcollars of kid leather or linen.

Spring's sheath dress in yarn dyed wool. White pique sparks the standup collar; button-defined tucking molds the waist. By Abe Schrader.

Prints Make Strong Comeback in Ties

Although woven designs will continue to occupy an important position in the neckwear line-up for spring, semi-bold prints, themed prints and really colorful screen work will figure prominently in the style sweepstakes. In some quarters, it is held that prints will come back so strongly they will once again overshadow woven goods.

One notable exception to the trend to prints is the continued great popularity of the reps. For spring, reps will find favor in fancy stripings as well as in the traditionals. "Spring" colors will be featured.

Accessory Blouses Made for Changes

Long sleeved classic sports blouses are available with Buttonholes above the elbow for the insertion of small scarves or large sports handkerchiefs.

Lacy Patterns Featured on Pale Jewelry

The lace with the delicate air steals the spring spotlight when it comes to fashion jewelry, Newest designs stress marble, lacy patterns and lively pastels, according to the Jewelry Industry Council.

Pale beads frequently combine with rhinestones or mock baroque pearls in strand necklaces or long ropes to knot at will. Opaque quartz, cabochon cut, is found in amethyst, pink and jade colors. Quartz beads are often combined with brightly colored stones and pearls and set in gold metal.

The spring trend toward lightly tinted opaque jewelry is reflected in new mother-of-pearl pieces. One style shows genuine mother-of-pearl disks, set with gold metal in earrings, necklaces, small pins and bracelets. Added elegance comes with the sparkling touch of rhinestones on smoky mother-of-pearl.

Flowers and flared petals of chalk-white enamel form dainty garland necklaces and bracelets. Milky beads with a faint rainbow sheen make matching chokers, bracelets and drop earrings.

Jewelry with a golden finish is fringed and filigreed for '54. There are versatile lariat necklaces with tassels ornamenting each end of a supple gold strand.

Devotees of the big earring will like golden filigreed flowers, larger than a silver dollar, suspended on a single link from the fastener. Lavish clusters of pearls are linked in gold and sometimes sprinkled with rhinestones. Smaller swaying earrings are mostly short and suggestive of oriental jewelry.

Formals Show Great Flare And Festivity

Bouffant is the by-word in new spring formal dresses. Whether full or cocktail-length, there is great buoyancy, much grace to this season's formals . . . arrived at by a combination of festive design and frothy fabric.

Organdies, chiffons, tissue taffetas and crisp, foamy cottons make lighthearted formals in pale pastels, white and clear "water" colors. Top interest appears as covered shoulders with a good deal of draping plus low, beautifully carved necklines.

The evening feeling is attained by artful waist moulding which starts under the bust and extends to a deep V or by dramatic wrapping of a wide, contrasting-colored cummerbund.

Skirts are swept back into poufs or bustles or huge bows. Others have lacy peplums that suggest the tunic silhouette. Others bell into wide circles for sweeping festivity.

SURPLICES CERTAINLY!

The surplice bodice, revived by junior dresses, is now a spring by-word in high fashion.

New Shoes Add Gay Footnote

There's plenty of excitement afoot this spring, reports the National Shoe Institute. With shorter skirts focusing added attention on the legs, the new in shoes is very new indeed. Fashion interest includes newly colored soft leathers, eye-catching fabrics, distinctive designs and novel trims in shoes for all occasions.

Daytime shoes, definitely slim and tapered, are closed at the toe and heel, wide open at the throat, which is often scalloped, squared or deep V. In other styles, cut-out designs and underlays add thread interest for a graceful, bare look.

Antilles dyed pale blonde tones, black suedes, gray felt and soft navy calfs are leaders along with glove-like kids in a gamut of clear pastel colors, according to the Leather Industries of America.

Linen shoes are spring highlights — in colors dyed-to-match a favorite costume or delicate all-over bud embroideries.

Typical of 1954 are white "lingerie touches" on the vamp and repeated atop the heel. Navy white kid collars a beige calf show lustrous white stripe trim the vamp of a straw weave pump. White caps the throat of a navy shoe while three tiny matching bows parade up the heel. Draped vamps are popular in kid pumps.

Heels are high, tapered, sometimes squared in back. Two-tone and two-textured styles are among daytime favorites, with the contrast running the length of the shoe on one side.

Biggest news in evening shoes is the wide open front—straight, curved or asymmetrical—leaving all five toes in evidence. Stiletto heels may be squared, triangular or completely round.

Certain evening heels reach a 3½ inch height; others are metal spirals on little. Opera pumps and velvped sole extensions that turn sandals are available in fabrics to up into a graceful point. They are match handbags, gloves — even particularly effective in flowing metallic leathers or colorful fabrics.

Leisure shoes take a turn at the rics, such as thin paisley cottons, too. The Turkish influence has de- striped denim or sailcloth.

Spring Fashions are Featuring the Youthful, New Empire Look

Shapely, High-Waisted Figure-Molded Lines Dominate the Trend

A new empire look — simple, shapely and young — rises to first place among fashions of spring 1954. An airy quality marks the latest high-boosted, fuller-skirted and curvaceous silhouettes. The high waist, molded to the figure, soft top interest and pretty new details introduce a sandbox-fresh theme in dresses, suits, separates and even active sportswear.

In addition there are four graceful spring shapes—two closely related and two bandeaued. Close to the empire, is the slim contour, held over from last season's popularity with graceful innovations. The princess silhouette, not far removed, continues its prominence with the slim bodice and flared skirt that have been great favorites with Juniors.

Very new and definitely trend-setting is the tunic supple through the midriff, longer in front, full shouldered to introduce a shirt-waist feeling in the bodice. High fashion features a suit coat-dress ensemble, two-piece dresses with a tunic top and eased sheath skirt. Tunic styling leans heavily upon a Far East influence that is making inroads on fabrics and designs.

Another import, the sweatsuit, represents a new direction in advance styling. Directly from Paris comes this feminine use of back fullness with the rear-ward drapling and soft pleat distribution. A huge bow or pouf, low on the back of a slim dress is the signature of the swan-tail movement.

New details, common to all categories of spring fashions, contribute to grace and fluidity. There is a definite "romantic" feeling as shown by fuller skirts, cylindrical sleeves, and curved collars and necklines.

Even the sheath skirt is eased by deep back pleating, all-round pleats or belling from some point below the hip. The new dome skirt is often self-stiffened or buoyed by its own petticoat. There is no question that skirts are shorter; they are. The most fashion-right length is about an inch above mid-calf.

Graceful sleeves are narrow, but rounded and built out from the shoulder. New cropping points appear, notably on suits, coats and dresses. Favorite lengths are just above or just below the elbow and a few inches above the wrist. Some puff sleeves make blouse news and many suits are newly sleeveless.

Forecasting a gay spring are the pretty, rounded necklines. Most important, the news brings flattering variations. There are shallow shoulder-to-shoulder bateaus, deeply tucked bateaus and cowled bateaus.

A tiny Peter Pan collar underscores the "schoolgirl" look that is a prominent spring feature. But necklines are newest when low with tab or france collars lying flat. There are oval scoops and horseshoe necklines — everything that adds interest to the bodice.

Over-collars join the spring parade in crisp linen or piqué, white predominating. Lingerie touches appear high on the bodice, again mostly white. This use of white, along with draping about the shoulder, achieves added top interest.

The lady of fashion will keep to the slimmer silhouettes for day, turning after five to the fuller and more dramatic styles. But at all times she will chose the youthful, the light-hearted and the feminine for the look of spring, 1954.

Sunny dress plus jacket for sunny afternoons. Here, in striped Sanforized cotton denim by Cone.

Fuller Skirts For Teens And Sub-teens

The key to spring news for teens and sub-teens is sprightly sophistication. Teen-agers, and their younger admirers of the 10 to 12 age group will have a wealth of clothes to choose from, representing all they want and need in young-figure design and grown-up fashion touches.

The princess look takes on added flavor in dresses of faille, satin rayon, paper taffeta and surah. Full skirted styles often wear their own attached crinoline petticoats. Checked gingham is newly sophisticated as are bivdwre pique fashions.

Black velvet accents bodice, collar and cuffs. Crisp cottons boast flocked stripes. Khaki-colored sportswear is cut for action and attractively printed. The young miss line-up shows daisy appliques, pink accessories, the high-rise waist of the empire silhouette.

There are full size handbags to match teen and subteen shoes. A favorite is a satchel bag, much like mother's, with a strap handle and handstitching, to go with matching casual shoes in polished calf. There are buckets and totes with throat-decorated shoes to match.

SHORT STORY

Walking shorts should be chosen with due consideration for the rest of the items in the ensemble. Usually the accompanying shirt should be in the short sleeve style with convertible collar. If the shorts are in a plain solid color, the shirt may be patterned, figured, checked or striped and vice versa.

Edwardian Look Stars For Girls

Two distinct and new "looks" vie for prominence in fashions for little and big girls this spring. The Edwardian or boy-tailored look leans toward prim simplicity, while the other camp emphasizes an airy femininity.

The Edwardian look is brand-new and stems from the man-tailored shirt styles so popular last fall with teen-agers — and therefore with their younger sisters. Typical of this little-boy look is neat tailoring with simple details.

Young coats and suits reflect the theme by means of high flap pockets, velvet-paved Chesterfield collars buttoned high, semi-fitted jackets with double back vents and rounded front closings.

Blouses and dresses with the Edwardian flavor wear round, stiffened collars on neckbands. The collars often are removable to show the neckband alone. Blouses have bow ties and French cuffs and are fashioned of boldly striped men's shirting. Frequently they wear contrast collar and cuffs in linen or white piqué. Tucked or pleated bosoms carry the theme further.

Full-skirted dresses are aimed at season's seeming to wear under coats during spring and soon through the summer. Tots' and toddlers' dresses are shorter and show off fancy can-can petties or petticoats beneath. Older girls continue their longer lengths for the grown-up look they love.

Spring '54 offers an abundance of related costume fashions for girls and teens. There are three-piece suits with boxy toppers, hip-length jackets with loose, straight lines to wear over slim sport skirts or full dress skirts. Suits are lined to match print blouses, and a variety of coat and dress ensembles is available.

Edwardian look fabrics are smooth and colors are classic.

YOUNG ADAPTATIONS

The "feminine" school of girlwear features adaptations of princess and empire styling in pretty pastel colors — particularly watermelon pink and sky blue. The bateau neckline is a leader in feminine styles with full, full skirts.

Top interest is accented in coats and dresses that stand up or stand-away collars or cowl and horseshoe necklines. Wool broadcloth and suede are smooth fabric favorites, while subtly textured materials include clipped boucles and lightly slubbed rayon or silk blends.

Dainty dress fabrics are cool and feather-weight. Very new are semi-sheer nylon organdies or batistes, tissue chambrays in cotton and cotton, and tissue taffetas and polished cottons.

Little Furs Mean Big Fashion In Important Styles and Colors.

Furs stand out conspicuously among new spring fashions in exciting treatments that are unmistakably 1954.

Interpretations of the stole, cape and jacket show a smooth, flat look in unfamiliar furs that lend themselves to exquisite shaping. Civet cat in boldly patterned black and white, skunk dyed to soft and gaie colors, natural lynx and Norwegian blue fox are among the unusual furs making a refreshing spring appearance.

Circular skins are let out to their full width to become flat and manageable without losing their softness. Flat pelts are treated to become softer and more easily draped. The results are distinctive designs — many that have never before appeared in furs.

Generally sleeves are rounded and without cuffs. Collars, if any, are flat-and-way from the neck. Silhouettes are curved, shaped to the body and bulkless.

Among the style leaders in little furs is a bellboy-type jacket, nipped at the waist, slim of sleeve and with a double cape collar. There is a bolero with a waist-hugging front and a bloused back. Both are especially adaptable to Persian lamb, karacul or broadtail.

Long-hair furs, appear becomingly in clutch capes and beautifully curved stoles — looking polished and sleek. Straight jackets of these furs tend to be built out at the shoulder and tapered to slimness at the cropping point. Others are shaped to barrel-like roundness.

Lightweight and light-colored furs are most fashionable. Pastel mink and blonde muskrat, blonde-dyed raccoon and silver fox rate high among cool night favorites.

KNIT SUITS

Cotton knits, formerly found only in T-shirt and rompers, are newly presented in active sportswear for adults as well as children. This spring, there are shapely skirts, dressy blouses and separate costumes made of 100 per cent cotton knit. Some are lined for greater shape retention.

Washable Fabrics Tops in Toppers

Fleecy synthetic blends, particularly feather-weight orlon, make style-wise toppers that are washable as hankies.

This spring, they are available in new, brighter colors and have taken style lessons from high-fashion shorty coats. Some have skirts to match. Very popular are the bolero adaptions that come with high-rising slim skirts.

THE PEASANT IS PRESENT

Lace bodices, typical of peasant costumes are "in" for '54.

New Empire Dresses Softened By Pretty Detail, Shaping

With 1954 comes the one-piece town dress that shows impeccable styling and detail. The important dress is the shapely dress, often bolstered, sometimes belted, but always smooth-fitting over the hip.

Interest is kept high by newsy fashion devices, such as "lingerie touches — a bow at the shoulder, an intricate neckline, an attention-getting flat collar, and sprinklings of white. Tabs, appliques, piping and soft backing carry the eye upward and add the shoulder look necessary for the "look" of this spring.

There are one-piece tunic dresses that look like two-piece dressy suits. There are two-piece button dresses that look like one-piece empire dresses. Beautiful "little" dresses appear beneath an assortment of attractive cover-ups.

Cocktail dresses emphasize an open neckline contrast tocovered shoulders that is unusually pretty. Sleeves, trims and skirt widths are available in a wide variety, all proclaiming a light-hearted feeling.

And although the sheath skirt is still the favorite, there are many advance styles that rate the attention of fashion-wise women.

The "bird" look, prominent in crepes and chiffons, moves a backward sweep and important unpressed pleating. The "dome" look, shown to best advantage in taffetas and polished cottons, features the full, circular skirt.

Shirtwaist styles appear in linens, piques and many synthetic blends. And the princess is present everywhere, in a complete selection of crisp fabrics.

Darker Shades Set Style Pace in Hats

Darker shades in lighter weight felts will set the style pace for hats, this spring. This reversal of the traditional trend to light shades for the vernal season will see dark gray, blues and browns stealing the spotlight.

The swing to the "small hat" will continue. The popularity of the low crown in varying degrees of taper has had the effect of reducing the over-all shapes of the new hats. Many of the new numbers have been inspired by foreign hats. These range from the homburg and off-the-face models to sports shapes, particularly those of the Tyrolean and semi-Tyrolean type.

TOP INTEREST.

Feminine accents find important stage in the low-necktine styles of 1954. Chiffons, fine silks and novelty knit scarves and ascots make attractive "stuffers" to fill in the neckline.

Slips Cut To Spring Silhouettes

Tres to the spring fashion form, slips have adopted all the new silhouettes. In frilly and tailored styles, there are gored princesses, high-waisted empires, figure-hugging sheaths and even dome and bubbled silhouettes.

Generally, there is an unusual emphasis on slip styling. Molded midriffs, high bosoms and luxurious embroideries mark sporting designs in nylon crepe, nylon tricot, pliases, polished cottons, nylon taffeta and rayon blends. There is a new nylon and Dacron mixture which makes a more opaque tricot. Fabrics are softer and more supple.

Half slips show a wider use of shadow panels to offset translucent fabrics. Circle slips are often paneled from the bustline down. Petticoats have front and back or all 'round panels.

Lingerie is newly colored in bright pastels or widely spaced prints. Lined bodices appear on camisole slips and nightgowns. Fabric underlays on sheer slips and hem ruffles make them completely opaque.

Slips and petticoats to enhance bouffant skirts have stiffened taffeta underskirts, tiered ruffling and flouncing above the hem. One princess style slip has a nylon tricot torso and full gored nylon taffeta skirt. Others are sheathed for a molded hipline and flounce just above the hem for a bell effect.

To keep the hipline bulkless, new panties keep their trim as flat as possible. Lace edging is slim and light. For the most part eyelet embroidery inserted on each side and low relief all-over embroidery have replaced ruffling. Exceptions are can-can panties, preferred under bouffant skirts, featuring tiers of ruffles in back.

Nightgowns, pajamas and shorties come in cool, comfortable fabrics.

NEW HEADLINER

Interesting new development in hat styles is the casual homburg, designed to appeal to those who favor a brim-up style mating the formality of the conventional homburg.

"Tote" Bag Takes '54 In Hand

Leading candidate for spring handbag favorite is the long, oval "tote" bag, interesting stiff handles of bright metal, colored casing or highly polished wood make these shop bags of great surface interest.

Totes are presented both in open backed and black-closed types. A gay feeling is brought about by a variety of rich colors and materials. There are colored patent leathers, tapestry fabrics, straws, cordes, linens and tweedy raffias.

A rich variety of tote and other shapely bags match shoes and hats in gay, colorful prints.

SPRING SPARKLE.

One plastic patent tote has a gold-and-patent bracelet handle. Another in a gold-shot pastel pattern carries out its oriental feeling with elongated bamboo handles. Straw totes are available in a variety of gay treatments—with bright flower clusters tacked on, lavish fringing and patent leather piping.

A charming new assortment of pouch styles also rules high this spring. Shantung has entered the handbag picture with great promise. Sparkling with rhinestone or bead trimming, shantung takes well to supple pouch draping.

There are elongated linen pouches, aniline-dyed calfskin pouches, wonderful drawstring styles in linen and strawcloth.

Embroidery, appliqué, leather trim and two-tone weaves decorate spring-through-summer handbags. Many are "conversation pieces" by dint of their clever ornamentation.

Evening bags are miniature. Here, boxes, vanities and tiny pouches vie for popularity in a wealth of glittering styles. There are brocades, beaded tapestries and velvets — a-sparkle with sequins and "jewels".

From France comes a gold-cloth that has been adapted into several party models. It is made of gold mesh, pliable and slightly translucent. It makes a lovely clutch envelope or a dazzling pouch, when combined with a gold-colored frame.

Handbag colors, range from blissful and beige tones to perennial navy and red to gay "water colors." The best shapes are rounded, yet slender, to harmonize with the shapely fashions of spring.

COLORED "JEWELS".

Set against warm-weather white are the colored necklaces, bracelets and earrings with well-cut stones that closely resemble sapphires, rubies, amethysts and emeralds.

Young Miss Becomes Princess

The junior figure figures prominently in fashion trends this spring. The "schoolgirl" look with its high bosom, little waist and gay, feminine tone is a leader and particularly well adapted to juniors.

In the 9 to 15 size range (and often running to 7 and 17) is a wide choice of dresses, suits coats and separates that are no longer specifically "junior" styles, but are now "fashion" at its spring height.

Leading silhouette is the unbroken princess line, fitted through shoulder and waist and buoyant of skirt. This allows the junior to indulge her penchant for petticoats. There are also stiffened linings to bolster full skirts this season.

Printed silk taffeta with a tissue paper texture makes a smart junior princess dress. Other important fabrics are silk and worsted blends, silky polished cottons and feather-light wools.

For parties, the junior princess appears in schiffli-embroidered cotton satin, dramatic brocade cottons and rich, stiffened silks. Small prints in exotic colorings and patterns are popular for day and date, pastels on black or navy a cocktail favorite.

"JOSEPHINE" SILHOUETTE

The "Josephine" silhouette is important in junior fashions. It combines the high waist and full shoulders of the empire with a sheath skirt, and takes well to linens, wool crepes and supple silks, such as foulard and surah. Sometimes the sheath skirt is drawn back to a soft box pleat for easy movement and fashionable "back interest."

Junior offerings include the tunic dress, especially new with a detachable peplum. There are jumper dresses with separate "baby doll" blouses and there are shirtwaist styles with both narrow and full skirts.

Throughout the junior fashion lineup this spring are similar styles in full or narrow skirts. Date styles are almost all full. And because of a "covered up" look for evening, many daytime styles in dress-up fabrics can double as date wear.

Costumes have joined suits in spring popularity. The spencer jacket is particularly well-suited to the junior figure and comes with a variety of dress and skirt partners. Often the spencer is in cloud-weight wool fleece or washable orlon. There are costumes that include cashmere sweaters with pretty beadwork and encrustations. Others have loose linen coats over "little" linen dresses.

EMBROIDERED LINENS

Linen costumes are newly decorated with beadwork and embroidery and are now safely crease-resistant. There is a silk-linen worth junior attention, especially in full-length costume coats.

Pretty details make junior styles additionally exciting. White cuffs and over-collars, pastel leather touches, tiny bows here and there . . . all enhance the "young" feeling that is, in fact, a natural for juniors.

Puritan collars, small collars with tubing, jewel band necklines are important on tailored styles. Crescent shaped sleeves conform to natural lines and suggest top width with deeper armholes.

Black is crisped with white navy takes to pastel trimming, striped trims make news. In all, the "ingenue" — always a junior specialty — is spring fashion.

Introduce Happy, New Colors For Little Boys' Fashions

Little boys are sure to be as well as bear this spring in happy togs that are newly colorful.

The introduction of bright colors for little boys is apparent in playwear, school clothes and dress-up suits. Colorful applique and embroidery appear on shirts, sweaters and jackets. There is a great deal of plaids, bold stripes on white grounds and many red touches.

Middy shirts in skipper blue or vivid red top striped shorts. Denim, poplin and sailcloth are fabric leaders in boys' sportswear.

For dress-up, there are clear-colored Eton jackets with blazer shorts in contrast stripes. There are knit separates, featuring printed cardigan shirts and bright solid or striped shorts. Leather or leather-like jackets wear ribknit trims.

Boys will have ensembles too. There are jacket, vest and short sets, coat and suit sets. Eton suits with knit shirt patterned to match the suit trim.

Gay Prints Abound in Variety

New in the 1954 print picture is color — vivid background colors and effective color-on-color. Gay prints predominate in most collections.

"Varied patterns include florals, marbleized effects, tweeds and fur reptile prints," reports the Silk and Rayon Print Institute. Visual textures — rather than deep "rough" textures—and etched patterns appear in happy assortment.

Floral prints look very 1954 in four distinct variations. The real-looking group of field flowers, violet clusters, lilacs and roses — all seem fresh-picked from the garden. In realistic colors and designs, they appear to be alive and fragrant.

NEW NASTURTIUMS.

There is an all-over floral effect of color on color. Nasturtiums in a yellow-to-red color gamut are tumbled closely together on a yellow ground. Giant sweet pea combine pale pinks and deep reds tone on tone and color on color.

A modernistic look takes some licence with color and keeps basic shapes etched on neutral ground colors. This group includes an occasional oversize flower splashed on a pale fabric.

Finally come the "wallpaper" designs, using flower heads symmetrically to form striped, stripe or small-spaced sprays. These are new and fresh and especially important in junior lines.

THE "WATERED" LOOK.

The "marbleized" look rates high this spring, bringing the striated effects of real marble into a new fashion fluidity. There are "watered" designs that resemble moire and prints with a wonderful "warped" feeling. Even some polka dots and geometric motifs have interesting funny outlines.

Distinctive markings of crocodiles, cobras and tortoises have been faithfully reproduced in print designs for a rich "reptile" look on tailored clothes. And fur prints continue with some fascinating new variations such as civet cat, leopard and zebra.

Tweedy or textured designs are carefully etched on smooth fabrics to resemble herringbones, windowpane checks, donegal tweeds and even glen plaids. Most have tiny shots of bright color worked in. Other all-over designs give the effect of steel engravings — usually in black or gray on color.

Hats Look Forward To Spring

Light - hearted, light - headed spring hats get the accent on femininity this spring. Newest hats are dainty miniatures that dip over the brow and balance slim, back-swept clothes. Forward-looking brims, trims and colours lend new feeling to conservatively level-headed shapes.

The profile hat is still a favorite, the irregular shapes tilting more gently this spring. Often a profile is worn straight on the hairline but suggests a provocative angle via clever twisting of the brim or pert extensions. Sometimes a flower or bow tucked under the edge gives asymmetric balance.

There are little rounded bretons, caps and down-curving mushroom cloches.There are narrow poke bonnets and boat shaped toques. Back interest is provided by flowers, bows, streamers and unique clamp devices, which are pretty as well as practical.

Larger brims with shallow crowns are attractively worn level or tilted forward. Sometimes their crowns are so shallow that they sink beneath the brim in head-hugging bandeaux.

BACK INTEREST.

Newsy hats are frequently cut out at the back or around the edges — in deep scallops, points and curves that frame the coiffure. Even forward-dipping toy-size hats have graceful tabs or extensions to grip the head prettily. Sometimes veil endings are tied softly behind with pretty flowers or velvet tabs.

Surface Interest, both in straws and fabrics, gives even the tiniest hat a rich importance. The individual use of jewelled embroidery, flower appliques and tiny beads in all-over patterns adds drama.

Shimmering satin and pearlized effects are new. Rough straws have a spun-sugar glow and fine braids are sewn in ombre shadings that give an iridescent appearance. Straw-cloths and fabrics in a fascinating variety of patterns show all manner of flower textures from smooth and satin-y to hazy and tweedy, achieved by blends of angora or metallic yarns.

FLOWERS FOR '54.

Flowers, both for trimmings and entire hats, are infinite in assortment. Tiny blossoms are sewn bead-like all over a straw hat. A single small bud with a leaf stands tallone on another. Velvet ribbon reappears as contrast against shiny, smooth straws or as accent for a flower cluster.

Sheer veilings lend flattering softness; sequins, lustrous pearls and even large "diamonds" add sparkle to both day and evening hats. Tailored suit hats wear lace, embroidery and garnishings of silk or metallic passementerie.

Millinery colors run the spring gamut — both in monotone and multi-color combinations. Shining jet, relieved only by contrasting textures in braid or beads, looks brand-new. White hats are flashed with color.

Topaz, amber and sunny yellows are particularly effective with spring neutrals. Pale pinks, soft limes, powder blues, turquoises and lilac tones are flower-fresh. Bright red, flaming orange and vivid green-blue prove distinctive against quiet color schemes.

FORMAL NOTE

The lightweight, single-breasted tuxedo in charcoal gray tropical worsted will be popular this spring and summer.

Spring Brides Look Young

A brand new and different air, "ingenue" theme makes bridal gowns young, uncluttered and very beautiful this spring. A new shortwaist look is topped with a tiny Peter Pan collar, features big sleeves and blends into skirts that are airy and bouffant.

The simple silhouette, minus jackets and sheer yokes, is perfect for the very young bride and equally becoming for the bride-over-twenty. Instead of the strapless gown, there are lovely sweetheart, scoop and sculptured necklines. Second to the Peter Pan collar, is the big, flouncy collar that offers its own form of youthfulness.

The newest bridal gowns take their cue from popular Junior silhouettes . . . the empire being most popular. Short lengths are prevalent, a mid-calf stopping point for day and cocktail wedding, and the ballerina for evening. Trains have lost none of their importance, but they are shorter and fuller — look more bouffant than ever and are easier to manage.

Traditional nylon tulles and nets, silk and cotton organdies are abundant. But new fabrics, such as embroidered pique and slubbed linens make are apperaring in lovely styles. Lace play a larger role this spring, particularly in the very young gowns.

Satin and taffeta make important underskirts and there are some crinolines. Ribbon and bow trims add to the "ingenue" feeling, while dainty tuckings, shirrings and appliques or delicate lace inserts are favored details.

Leather Leaders Are Smooth

Goatskin, capeskin and kidskin lead in smooth leather fashions this season because of their fluency, affinity to color and easy-cleaning qualities.

Noteworthy, too, is a new plastic that looks like leather and takes well to new colors and combinations. It can be wiped clean with a damp cloth.

SHEER PRETTINESS

Sheer hankies show new lightness and fluidity of design.

'54 Fabrics Go Smooth And Light

The spring fabric story is lightly told in a smooth and polished manner. The look will be gay and feminine in crisp fabrics that are smooth and glossy or subtly textured.

Cottons, having proved themselves equal to all occasions, take on a rich aspect in lustrous and colorful tapestry weaves, damasks, and chunky piques. Cottons appear in the guise of shining satins and failles, straw-like textures and luxurious brocades.

Cotton laces and chiffons, polished broadcloth and chambrays and embossed cottons are news for spring-through-summer, along with metallicized plaids and ribbon-striped sheers.

Active sportswear cottons are important for their washability, sturdiness and adherity to bright color. Separates are shown in poplin, twill, denim and sailcloth. Noteworthy, also, in this day of travel, are the wrinkle-resistant suitings, and the lively knits, cords and seersuckers. All feature washability and comfort; all are adaptable to soft and feminine styling. Cotton coats appear in a sumptuous variety of weaves and textures.

Dress fabrics in the newer synthetic fibres offer an unusually broad choice. Sheers, tricots, ervahs, and packers afford airy appearance and easy care. Nylon takes on a fresh look, combining texture interest with print for a rich, dimensional effect.

SYNTHETIC VARIATIONS.

Orlon, nylon and dacron sheers come in both woven and tricot types — ranging from smooth surfaces to almost barklike textures. There is a new nylon chiffon, notable for its draping qualities and interesting mat finish. Baby cords are new in sheers, and flocked or printed fabrics in frosty effects promise to be popular.

Particularly important are synthetic twills, tweeds and surahs, many in blends of orlon and silk. Watery surfaces are leaders among them. There is an airy, crepable batiste and a sturdy basket-weave that combine cotton with dacron. Orlon and cotton make make a lustrous chambray in woven stripes and a heavier fabric that resembles fine denim. Orlon and rayon blend into a lightweight knit for suiting with a hand-loomed look. Another rayon, acetate and nylon blend is a velvety knit that feels like cashmere. All-dacron makes a linen-like fabric for a variety of sports and dressy styles.

SILK PROMINENT.

For dress wear, it is definitely a silk spring. Surahs and crepes are most promising. And a large assortment of silk and wool blends make lightweight suits and ensemble coats that are a "must" this season.

Feather-light and smooth-textured wools conform to graceful silhouettes. Worsted alpaca is a leader for suits, dresses and ensembles. Soft tweeds, many of which are tended with rabbit hair, make a big fashion play.

Wool crepe returns as an important coat and suit fabric, again in lightest weights. Cloud-soft, washable orlon fleece coats increase in popularity. Dramatic fur-faced coats in silk-linen and silk-wool rate spring plaudits.

BIG BROTHER LOOK

Man-tailored clothes make little boys happiest. And although they admire dad, they prefer to dress more in the fashion of their casual, style - conscious big brothers.

Introduce Flattering Roundness

Dressmaker touches, shapely fitting and lightweight fabrics make good news in suits for spring. Jacket and skirt lengths are shorter; the feeling is rounded and feminine; the all-over effect is soft, fresh and most appropriate for the balmy days ahead.

A low-necked collar marks the 1954 suit. Whether the collar is a tiny Peter Pan or a wide cape-effect, it is usually flat, often topped with white linen, pique or leather. Top interest is further established with lingerie touches, such as add soft bulk about the shoulders and high on the bodice.

The empire suit shows its colors with under-bust seaming or detail and almost always uses a high-rising, waist-molded skirt. Skirts may be slim or flared . . . with a happy medium slated for widest popularity.

Slim skirts are eased for walking in large box pleats to the rear. Place skirts most often feature pleats and rarely keep a well-molded hipline. Many skirts are slim in front and drawn to back fullness which is controlled by deep, unpressed box pleats. The new length is about an inch above mid-calf and open to modification according to wearer's taste.

ABBREVIATED SLEEVES.

There is a delightful new importance in sleeves — also credited to the "top interest" theme. A great many suit jackets wear short sleeves that stop somewhere above the elbow. Some have wide, edging peeping from beneath the sleeves; these short sleeves may be removable—either buttoned on, or sleeveless, to match the bells. The sleeveless suit is a definite "new" for spring.

Elbow and bracelet-length sleeves are prominent. There are basket cuffs, opening upwards, lantern, funnels and bells — all pretty and feminine. All sleeves, whether cropped or copventional, show a tendency to bulkiness in roundness.

SHAPELY JACKETS.

Jackets may be shrugs, bolero, waist-length "bellboys" or padded to curve to the hip. But they are definitely shorter than last year, and much more curvaceous. The cupola line jacket is a leader for standing, wied and most frequently bolero styled or hip-length and curved in with a band at the hip.

Pockets are generally contoured to the shape of the jacket and prettily edged. Top width is further emphasized with padded pockets, high on the jacket.

The shawl is the thing in suits this spring, and this theme is carried even into the semi-box suit and the sports suit. Both have taken on fitted ways and more dressy variety. The sailor suit is a happy outgrowth of the box, with its wide tar collar and easy-swinging pleated skirt. Other boxies feature horseshoe collars and bracelet sleeves, or stand-away collars that are filled in with white dickies or loop-twisted scarves.

TISSUE-WEIGHT FABRICS.

Fabric interest remains a primary feature of spring suits. Con-

Ensembles Take To the Empire

Among the new ensembles this spring are tunic coats and dresses in a wealth of polished and subtly textured fabrics. Often the tunic bells out over an eased sheath skirt. Representing the empire look are tiny boleros, wide through the shoulder and cropped just below the bust. They are worn with dresses of the high-rise waist variety and are notably present in lightweight wool crepes and silk-al-pacca blends. Other empire ensembles appear in silk and rayon crepes, newly supple; and in delicately ribbed silks, such as barathea and foulard.

Rounded, cut-away jackets give an Edwardian look to jacket-blouse-skirt ensembles. Feminine interest in summer is usually printed to match the jacket lining.

Lush, full-length coats in a rich silk-linen or fluid shantung set wear swashbuckling sleeves and a box-pleated sweep that contrast with the simplicity of the dress beneath. Striped or printed coat linings match the ensemble dress or pick up its predominant color.

The shrug, the cupola, the dome are forms which ensemble jackets take. There are big-collared capelets and collarless cardigans. There are jackets and coats that match dresses and skirts, or contrast with them in fabric or color.

The stole ensemble is heightened in importance and drama via greater wrap-ability in the stole, which is longer and wider. Sometimes it is deeply fringed or fur-trimmed.

Cut on the cooling system, the empire dress above features a little, draped bodice and a full-swinging skirt. In Sacony's washable Cielia jersey.

Hosiery Shades Complement Dress Colors

Stockings are right in step with fashion this spring. New styles and colors have been introduced to correspond with the latest in shoes and point up a one-color look for 1954.

A slim, tapered heel stocking goes with tapered pumps. Seamless sandalfoot stocking with no reinforcement are preferred with heavy bare sandals and wide-open toed shades.

Legs can see the spring world through rose-colored stockings, pale tints to blend with pastels. Finally, hosiery is dyed in glowing hues to match the nasturtium range, expected to reach a poppy-hued peak this year in kid shoes as well as costumes.

Fabrics Are The Season's Big News

The trend to lighter weights and lighter construction accelerates, as the new clothes for Spring bow in. In everything you'll wear, from top to toe, the keynote of the new season is "light and easy."

Suits and topcoats are cooler on the shoulders. Hats are zephyr-weight. Shoes are lighter. Shirts, ties, and your wearables are streamlightened.

This spring and summer, fashion will have an easy-to-wear aspect that is right on the target of the average man's inclinations.

Fabrics take precedence over silhouette this Spring for the first time in many years. The variety of colors, textures and weights is the big news interest. Science and nature, together and separately, have been utilized to create new suits, topcoats and sports jackets that give greater wearing comfort and are easier to maintain than anything produced heretofore.

FABRICS THE BIG NEWS.

In the spotlight are crisp tropical worsteds, frequently with springy mohair fibre added. Blends of Dacron polyester fibre and worsted are a popular fabric category, along with Orlon and worsted combinations. Such blends as Vicara and wool and dynel and wool will also make an increased bid for favor this Spring.

In summer clothing, tweedy effect silks are high fashion news. Cords are expected to grow in popularity, with the increase in colors ranging from dark to light in both cotton and a variety of man-made blends.

Men's wear designers have chosen both cool-looking light shades traditional for warm climates and variations of the new black which was introduced in men's clothes last Fall, together with gray.

Compound colors with the subby-touch will remain important fashion factors in the light shades, textured surfaces being given way somewhat to the illusion of flatness.

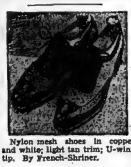
Pattern interest in such established favorites as glenardons and tropicals centers in check, slub and sub effects in contrasting colors to the ground shade.

FASHION TRENDS.

Fashion changes are evolutionary rather than revolutionary. Currently, the single-breasted suit that is flattering to most male figures.

In sports coats, the new black, introduced last Fall in the cold weather version, becomes more of a background than a solid color in Spring appearance. Light charcoal black, deep gray and light grey are used in the pattern, with the black serving as background for the lighter shades. The popularity of darker grays, unprecedented for warm weather, has made them running mates to black.

For active sports, men will find a wide variety of sweaters, jackets, shirts and outer ..... good-looking togs bidding for their attention.



Mr. Do-It-Yourself will find an excellent selection of comfortable durable wearables, specially designed for his "alter hours" work about the house and grounds.

The "new black" is slanted for Spring in this rich porous-weave sports coat with overall slub pattern in white. Suggested by Wool Bureau.

Distinguished by an unusually soft and luxurious feel is this new Spring model, in a blend of "Orlon" and lambs wool. Fabric by Warren Woolen. Suit by Phoenix Inc.

NEW IN SHOEBAGS.

Shoe bags do double duty with removable boney comb sections.

Shirts Lighter In Weight, Color

Light is the word for spring and summer shirts, in both color and weight. Air weaves are in the list and will number one in the warm weather season in correct style and cool comfort.

Pique is back for a second run by popular demand and chambray will also play a return engagement.

Skipdents, lenos, batistes, lawns voiles and a new batiste oxford are present in every conceivable manner; not only in the staple models but in the style collars as well. Half-sleeved business shirts will also be increasingly popular this season.

The return of the pastel-colored shirt is an important development on the style scene. The colors most in demand will be blue, gray, yellow and pink, with the latter two bidding for top position among the style shades.

However, any color a man can wear, he's almost sure to find in a shirt this spring — from subtle muted shaded right up the spectrum to bright, rich tones. Solids will continue popular and slim stripes will be as much a part of the spring scene as dependable white.

Comfort combines with fashion in the neat, soft-fitting collar styles that come in gently rounded or mildly sharp point, and a man can call his own shots when it comes to the button-down, pin-down eyelet or plain short spread collar style.

The popularity of feather-weight fabrics is also reflected in the sports shirts picture. With the exception of some of the staple gabardines, most of the casual shirts are featuring light or ventilated cloths.

The New Topcoats for Spring Rest Lightly on the Shoulders

"Warmth without weight" is the keynote of the new topcoats for spring, in tune with the trend to the "light and easy" in everything that a man wears.

Easier on the back and shoulders, the new topcoats will still give you snug warmth on the chilly days and nights of spring and fall; in fact, will be worn with comfort during a large part of the year in most areas.

The popular demand for outer garments that are "light but warm" has spurred the advent of the jersey topcoat — the first basic change in men's overcoats in many years. It comes in a knit fabric so closely constructed that it appears to be a woven cloth. Visually, the jersey topcoat contains all the pattern and color associated with conventional woolens.

Tweeds, nubby effects, as well as herringbones in set-in sleeves and raglan models are present in the new fabric. Durability is another advantage, and the remarkable resilience inherent in jersey reduces wrinkling to a minimum.

Another newcomer on the topcoat fabrics scene with a brilliant future is Lodenbury cloth, a fleece type that has been extremely popular in Europe, now making its American debut.

Tweeds, shetlands and cheviots will again be prominent in the spring topcoat picture, with gabardine still holding its position as the top favorite of many men.

Stylewise, the Chesterfield and Raglan models will continue to be the two most favored models, the choice between them, a matter of personal preference between the fitted and the loosely garment.

Teepees, Facing Elimination, Whip St. Michaels in 'Desperation' Hockey

TORONTO (CP)—St. Catharines TeePees, facing elimination from the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A playoffs, defeated Toronto St. Michael's College 5-4 before 6,311 fans here Wednesday night.

The loss for the Collegians, who haven't been beaten on St. Catharines ice in the six-playoff games so far, was the second on Toronto ice. The Majors still lead the best-of-seven series with a one-game lead. A tie in the next game at St. Catharines Friday will eliminate the TeePees, pre-series favorites to win the OHA junior title.

Should an eighth game be necessary, it will be played in Toronto Sunday.

TeePees scored four goals in the second period and added another three in the third for their victory. Four minor penalties in the second period broke a 3-3 first-period deadlock. The Majors opened up with three consecutive goals in the third period to narrow the TeePee lead to 5-4 but that was as close as they got.

St. Catharines finished the scoring with the final three markers. Brian Cullen scored two goals and picked up an assist to lead the St. Catharines marksmen. Bob Cleeks counted another two goals and singles went to Barry Cullen, Geo Hoskstra, Jim McLean and Chas Warchol.

Paul Knox counted two goals and assisted on another one for the Irish. The pair of markers brought his total for the six games to seven goals, a tie with linemate Jim Logan. His second goal brought the Irish to within one goal of St. Catharines' lead in the third period. It came on a penalty shot awarded when Elmer Vasko of the Irish de the St. Catharines goal crease.

Bill Colvin and Logan fired the other markers for the Majors.

Sixteen penalties were handed out, including a major for fighting and one misconduct. St. Michael's got four minors and two majors. TeePees were tagged with seven minors, two majors and the misconduct.

SPORT IN BRIEF

KROL MAY TRY COMEBACK

TORONTO (CP)—Old pro Joe Krol says he may return to football, either for British Columbia Lions or Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

Krol, who retired last season from Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four after playing on five Grey Cup teams, said in an interview Wednesday he is considering an offer made last week-end by coach Annis Stukus of Lions.

The Western Interprovincial Football Union coach has been scouting in the east for players.

"I thought I was all through," said Krol. "But if Vancouver offers enough money to make the jump to the coast worthwhile, I might try a comeback."

The star halfback retired after two serious knee injuries kept him out of all except 10 minutes of Argonaut games last year. He was hardest pressed early in when Argos played their final game against Montreal Alouettes.

The Lions' coach said a few days Krol is reported to have received and the only one he has seriously considered, Calgary and Kitchener-Waterloo earlier were said to have made verbal bids for the services.

Krol said his knee, following a cartilage operation in December "feels strong enough to give me the old football itch."

PONIES START AT NY

NEW YORK (AP)—Racing's big wheel begins another 126-day spin in New York state today when a crowd of some 40,000 is expected to hail baseball's out of winter storage and go to work on the parimutuel machines at Jamaica.

The fashion first day attraction is the $25,000-added Paumonok Handicap, traditional Jamaica curtain-raiser which was inaugurated in 1936. Ten sprinters headed by William C. Wickham's White Skies are entered for the ¾-mile dash.

Racing shifts to Belmont Park April 26 after 21 days at Jamaica. At Belmont the emphasis will be on three-year-olds getting ready for the Kentucky Derby and other sophomore classics.

B.C. BIDS FOR CUP

VANCOUVER (CP)—A bid to have the 1955 Grey Cup held here will be made at the annual Canadian Rugby Union meetings here next March.

Don Mackenzie, president of the British Columbia Lions of the Western Interprovincial Football Union, made the statement here Wednesday in commenting on reports that Winnipeg is seeking the football spectacle for next year.

Canada's largest stadium, a 25,-327-seat horseshoe, is being built here for the British Empire Games. It will have an ultimate capacity of 35,000.

BOMBERS SIGN TRIO

ANNOUNCE TITLE FIGHT

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Canadian Boxing Federation has named Vancouver's Louis Lawrence No. 1 contender for the vacant Canadian middleweight title and sanctioned a fight for the crown here, promoter Earle Kalani said Wednesday.

"Bill Brennan will meet Lawrence for the title," Kalani said. Date for the fight would be set later.

Kalani said the CBA advised him Lawrence rated the No. 1 contender spot because New Brunswick's Yvon Durelle and Bill Pfield of Toronto have "outgrown the division."

Ski-Mountaineers Are Delayed By Bad Weather

JASPER, Alta. (CP)—Seven Ontario ski-mountaineers and a guide planned to leave today on a 200-mile journey over Rocky Mountain foothills although only one of five food caches has been dropped by plane along the route.

The three-week expedition was originally set to start Monday but was delayed by bad weather which prevented a small plane from dropping food along the projected route.

Unless the weather clears to allow the plane to complete its food-dropping mission within the next eight days, the expedition could be a failure.

The route, which follows the western border of Alberta and ends near Hector, B.C., includes eight icefields, four of which have never before been crossed on skis.

Temperatures around the zero mark faced the party and the weatherman expected colder air to move into the area. Snow conditions were reported good.

Each member of the party will carry 50-pound packs and will live on a daily diet of 1,400 calories. About 3,000 calories is the normal daily diet for a working man.

NO NORMAL CONTACTS

The expedition will be without normal contacts with the outside although a plane will keep tab on its whereabouts. The party has been told of telephone locations nearest their route.

Party leader is Peter Bennett of Oakville who has climbed the Rockies for two years. The guide is Swiss alpine trooper Tony Kletti of Jasper.

Other members are Peter Austin of Leaside; his wife, Peggy; Pat Boswell, 30, Ted Pope, 26, Dr. Allan Bruce-Robertson, 32, and Murray Snively, 30, all of Toronto.

HUNGRY DEER

OSLO (CP) — Excessive snows blanketing southern Norway deprived large numbers of deer of their regular food. A recent count showed that 130 deer, young and old, had been given sanctuary and food in farm barns.

Irish Trainer Draws Suspension

DUBLIN (AP)—Vincent O'Brien, trainer of the Grand National winner, Royal Tan, said Wednesday night he had been suspended for three months following an inquiry by the National Hunt committee.

O'Brien, one of Ireland's top racehorse trainers, said the suspension arose out of the "alleged discrepancy between the English and Irish form" of some of his horses.

"I was asked to explain the inconsistent running of four horses trained by me—Royal Tan, Lucky Dome, Early Mist and Knock Hard," O'Brien explained.

"The stewards said they could not accept my explanation and withdrew my licence to train for three months from April 1."

O'Brien had entered Knock Hard in the Belmont International Steeplechase in New York next May.

O'Brien said the ban also would affect his planned entries for the Irish Grand National—Royal Tan and Square Timber.

First railway in the Maritime provinces was built in 1839 between New Glasgow, N.S., and the Albion coal mines, five miles distant.

Chief Prosecutor Gives Opinion On Lotteries

OTTAWA (CP)—Ontario's chief prosecutor showed mixed feelings about gambling Wednesday as he opposed lotteries but offered some support to games of chance at agricultural fairs.

W. B. Common said he opposes lotteries because they are uneconomical, undignified and the experience of France and Mexico shows that the results fall far below expectations.

However, he told D. G. Blair, counsel for the Commons-Senate committee on lotteries, that he would not suggest outlawing gambling at fairs.

"I would be the last person to want to deprive the people from the carnival spirit they have at fairs where they can play the wheel of fortune or some other game," he said.

Mr. Common suggested at previous sittings of the committee that no change be made to the code concerning capital and corporal punishment.

He said Ontario considered unacceptable a suggestion that the provinces be permitted to license lotteries for charitable purposes.

Some of Whoopee Has Gone Out Of Miami, Fla.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Some of the whoopee has gone out of the sand pit of pleasure.

The crowds are still here, but they're watching their pennies.

Tourists are crowding the race tracks, it's true, in greater numbers than at this time last year. But night clubs are moaning. Taxi drivers say people are here all right, but they're not going out so much.

Merchants say tourists are buying less expensive souvenirs than in recent years. They eat in cafeterias and not so much in hotel dining rooms. They place smaller bets on the nags. They watch television in their hotel rooms, rather than spending time and money at the night clubs.

Maybe it's a shift in habits, a trend back to home life. Or maybe, it's just that free and easy money isn't flowing as it once did.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

WHAT GOES ON!

We're back to the sports grind again, pre-tax, breathing the cool, pure air of a newspaper office and this corner in particular, after being exposed to the strychnine-murder-charged atmosphere of a "dingy" courtroom, as some newspapers had it, one in particular, which was not even represented but parroted a metropolitan sheet.

Since we're through, temporarily, with the Kelly's (the inspector type, that is), the Hayes (Ellis), "You Can, with a lean and hungry look" (with apologies to Bill, the blindfold Bard), homicides, white-wings, the lads dealing in pellet, pencils, papers, word-hungry teletypes, and suddenly new-found friends who whispered confidentially, "What scent on Monday?" we have settled down to calmly lean on the plate, dine easy, instead of munching them between slices of bread.

Deadlines, data, dashes downtown, desperate drives for "dope", (written or verbal, that is), are replaced by the comparative quiet of a now-specialized corner in the editorial room of a newspaper office.

Our sincere apologies are offered to genial Dr Diamantides, physical director of the YMCA, and Lieut. Harry MacKenzie, officer commanding the RCASC "Dukies", for not being able to attend their various functions. We sincerely appreciate the courteous gesture of Dr. D. and also the forsight of Harry, ever absent-minded, in having the commercial business was such that when the shades of evening fell and a hungry typewriter awaited the official "clacks", there was nothing much to do about it except work.

"MR. BOWLING"

Ron Saylor, 'Belleville's "Mr. Bowling" for the past two years, will defend his title against all who respond to be a strong field when the annual tournament gets under way at the Bowl-O-Drome on Saturday, May 8.

The title will be established that night, for under new arrangements the tourney will be a one-day affair. It is a ten-game total pinfall tournament with five games being played at 2 p.m. and the other five at 7 o'clock.

Several entries have been submitted and all indications point to the tournament being the best since its inception. Potential entrees should file their applications with Bill Matson at the Bowl-O-Drome as soon as possible.

HEY, ANGLERS!

Gord Duval, spin and fly-casting champion, will make a personal appearance at the Belleville Trade Fair in Bridge St. Armouries tonight. You Wallons with a flair for the sport should not miss Duval's performance. They say he is a treasure with the rod and fishing. On Friday and Saturday Jack Sutter and C. Smith will give spin casting demonstrations. Sutter is the man who introduced spin casting to Canada.

NOW, THE FINALS

Point Anne and Marmora will go to the hockey mat for the championship of the Trent Valley League and the honor of playing the Ox Fotsters Bala Trophy representative for the coming year. The Ox Fotsters whacked out a win over the fighting fly-boys from Station Trenton RCAF before a large, enthusiastic crowd in Memorial Arena last night, winning the best-of-five series by the odd victory.

The final series should be thrillers. Both teams are well-balanced with plenty of scoring punch and stubborn defensive tactics. The Millionaires eliminated Havelock in the northern section and are, we understand, still battling in the OHA Intermediate "C" playdowns. The Ox Pointers got a lot of kinks out of their systems in the Flyers series after a lay-off of two weeks, and should be in good shape for the "crosstalk" series.

Nearly 1200 roaring fans saw the Flyers eliminated in that tough struggle last night. And to Billy Strachan goes the key to the village for three times whence. The teams will alternate the games between Marmora and Belleville with the first game slated for Memorial Arena either Friday or Saturday night. If it is Friday, we'll see about having the Gavilan-Olson fight laid over.

History Won't Repeat Itself If 'Jolly Jawn' Can Help It; Leafs Confident of Outcome

By JOE FALLS

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Red Wings, who apparently learn their lessons well, won't be fooled on April Fool's Day by overconfidence. They've learned the hard last season to let it happen again.

The Red Wings meet Toronto Maple Leafs in Olympia Stadium tonight and are favored to win and move into the finals of the Stanley Cup playoffs against Montreal Canadiens.

With a 3-1 stranglehold on the best-of-seven series, the Wings are determined to lock up before the home folks. But if they don't, it won't be through overconfidence, General manager Jack Adams saw to that.

When the Red Wings won the opener from Toronto in a 5-0 breeze, Adams warned against overconfidence. He told his players that Toronto will be tougher in the remaining games.

When the Maple Leafs upset Detroit 3-2 in the second game Adams had all the opening he needed. He blasted his players for being too complacent, saying "there'll be no more loafing on this team."

NO LOAFING NOW

And there wasn't in the two games at home, won by the Red Wings 3-1 and 2-1. Detroit had to play at the top of its form both nights.

Last season it was a different story. Detroit trounced Boston in the opening game, just like this and sailed through the next two with the second game just like this year. Adams said nothing.

The slide had started. Before Detroit could get straightened out, Boston had won the next three and eventually eliminated the Red Wings in the semi-finals.

This year Adams stepped in before anything like that could happen. He needled his players at the right time, and they responded with near-perfect play.

'Watch it, Ivan' Here Come Those Tigers

MIDLAND (CP) — Hamilton Tigers of the Ontario Hockey Association senior series may represent Canada at the 1955 world amateur hockey championships. A mail vote of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association will be taken immediately to decide the issue.

George Dudley of Midland, secretary-manager of the CAHA, disclosed the plans in a statement issued here Wednesday night. Dudley said Ken Mosdell, owner of the Tigers, recently told the CAHA he is willing to withdraw his team from league play next season and to strengthen the club by acquisition of outstanding players.

Tigers will ask the OHA council executives in the group for one season. They finished third this year.

"We are satisfied that it represents a genuine offer to provide for Canada's need for next year and propose to recommend to the CAHA executive committee the acceptance of the offer," Dudley said. "Inasmuch as Mr. Sobile wishes to start rebuilding his club immediately it is felt that the matter must be dealt with at once at the CAHA annual meeting in May and a mail vote will be taken at once."

Dudley said that George Redding, coach of the Tigers, was a coach in England for four years and is familiar with the European style of play.

REGAIN PRESTIGE

Sobile's offer was prompted by Canada's loss to Russia in the world championship at Stockholm last month.

Sobile suggested that the Tigers could play exhibition games before leaving for Europe. The games would help defray the expenses of the team's trip. Any loss incurred by the tour would be shared by Sobile and the CAHA, Dudley said, but the maximum loss to Sobile would be $5,000.

Earlier, Canada and the United States had agreed to be represented at the championships in alternate years. It appeared now, however, that Canada is determined to regain her hockey prestige and wishes to play in the 1955 tournament.

Hershey Bears Whip Hornets; Enter Finals

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP)—Hershey defeated Pittsburgh 3-2 in a sudden death second overtime period here Wednesday night to send the Bears into the finals of the American Hockey League playoffs against Cleveland.

Murry Costello pushed across the winning goal in 10:38 of the sudden death period after the regulation game and the first overtime period ended in a 2-2 tie. It was Hershey's third straight victory in the best-of-five series after the Hornets won the first two games. Ernie Gallman and Norm Corcoran scored for Hershey in the second period and Earl Balfour added for the losers. The other Hornet goal was by Bob Hassard. The Bears meet Cleveland on Saturday night in the opening tilt of the best-of-seven Cleveland and won the playoffs last year and eliminated Buffalo in three straight games

Wolves Whitewash Mercurys In Second Straight Victory

SUDBURY (CP) — Sudbury mink. The Sudbury captain, standWolves, beaten in the all-Ontario Senior hockey final in seven games last year, are showing no mercy towards the southern Ontario champions this year.

The Wolves, winners of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association, whitewashed Owen Sound Mercurys 4-0 here Wednesday night to take a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven final. The third game is scheduled here Friday night in Owen Sound, home of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A seven-team loop champions.

Sudbury has scored eight goals to Owen Sound's one in the two games, allowing the Mercurys but one. Wednesday night's game, watched by 4,078 partisan fans, emphasized the strong defence and offence of the Wolves.

All Sudbury lines were in on the scoring. The Wolves took a 1-0 lead in the first period and added a 3-0 in the second. Scoring chores were shared by Nick Tyrchak, Bob Beaudry, George Defelice and Len Spock.

TEAM EARLY LEAD

A Sudbury power play while Jay-dee McArthur of the Mercurys was off for elbowing gave the Wolves their first lead. Flori Goegan faked a long shot from the Owen Sound blue line but passed instead to Tyrchak who beat goalie Ken Mills for the opening goal at the left side of the net fired it past netminder Bobby Gibson.

Before the second period was 2½ minutes old the Wolves had a 3-0 lead. Beaudry notched the second goal on a backhand shot after rushing in from right wing. The Mercurys' puck bounced in off the goal post.

A minute later Defelice grabbed a loose puck from a scramble in front of the Owen Sound goal and caromed it into the goal off defenceman John Sheddon's leg.

Following their third goal the Wolves changed to a defensive game. Al Millar was great in goal for Sudbury, despite a deep cut he suffered on the chin by a flying puck in the second period.

The Wolves wrapped up the scoring at 16:16 of the last period after trapping the Mercurys in the Owen Sound zone. Spock drove the puck in from the right side with Flynn providing a screen in front of Gibson.

Sudbury received a scare near the end of the game when Andy Mills, of the Wolves tangled with Herb Carlisle along the boards. Mills fell and it appeared that he sprained his ankle. Later, however, it was learned he had suffered a skate cut, which required three stitches.

Fort William Nips St. Boniface In Overtime

WINNIPEG (CP)—Fort William Canadiens whipped in three unanswered goals in overtime to defeat St. Boniface Saints 7-6 Wednesday night and take a 3-1 lead in their best-of-seven series for Canada Memorial Cup semi-final series.

Stan Baluk paced the Canadiens with two goals. Paddy Murry, Dennie Olson, Max McNabb, Walter Bradley and Peter Gvora scored a single each.

Gerry Wilson counted twice for St. Boniface with Bill Short and Bill Sutherland getting one each.

The series now switches to Fort William for all remaining games.

'Bobo' Olson Is 3-2 Favorite Over Gavilan in Title Fight

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

CHICAGO (AP)—An outbreak of rumors that Carl (Bobo) Olson has a head cold and that Kid Gavilan has a sore right hand failed today to affect the odds on their championship brawl at Chicago Stadium Friday night.

Olson, middleweight king making his first title defence since clinching the crown with a 15-round decision over Randy Turpin last October, is a 3-to-2 favorite.

A week ago he was a 9-to-5 choice. The slide in odds followed several more and should be 6 to 5, take your pick, by ring time. As a money-a ton-up, and getting behind a favorite is one of the hardest jobs boxing experts have had in years.

Despite the rumors, the champ like Olson posed somewhat of a mystery on the eve of his biggest battle. The baldish, tatooed 160-pound champion, son of a narcotics investigator in Honolulu, has fled to a secret hideout.

Before doing so, Olson was observed blowing his nose, after trotting around in the snow for his routine four miles of road work. So word got around that he had a cold.

REAL STORY

But now it can be told that Olson, weighing 160 pounds and confidence he officially will hit about 158 Friday, is in his hideout pursuing his favorite pastime—reading detective stories.

Meanwhile, welterweight champion Gavilan is his old, gay self.

The report that the Cuban hawk had a sore right hand came out when he was seen dunking the mitt in a bucket of water. Also, Gavilan was observed dealing the cards in a poker game with his left hand.

"He always soaks both hands in brine to toughen them up," said his manager, Frank Lopez. "He can deal cards and shake hands with either his left or right, who cares?"

Olson figures to draw $129,000, win or lose, and Gavilan $90,000.

The fight will be televised nationally with Chalmers and a 10-mile surrounding area blacked out.

Point Anne Defeats Trenton Flyers, Wins TVL Southern Section Title

(By GARRY ALEXANDER).

The Point Anne Canoemen won the southern section TVL title in Memorial Arena last night with a 5-4 victory over the RCAF Flyers in the fifth game of the best-of-five series, taking the set three games to Trenton's two.

Billy Strahan, Point Anne hero with the winning goal at 13.03 after the Flyers had fought an uphill battle from the first period on, finally tying the score at the eight minute mark of the third period.

Big John Green, who played an outstanding game on defence for the winners, set the pace off play when he laid the puck on Pat Gilmour's stick at centre ice. Gilmour cut ahead along the boards behind the Trenton net, passed out front to Strahan who fired it into the open side of the cage before DuPaul was able to slide over.

Rolly Hockson had set Len Beato up for the tying goal earlier in the period when he brought the puck into Point Anne territory and passed right on Beatch's stick in front of the net. Playing-coach Frank Scriver, who had pulled out of the net with twenty seconds left and had also been on the ice inside the Pointers blue line but they were unable to deal the deciding blow. Beatch, Rochon, Parnell, Vezina and Boucher were working hard to score when the puck was sent up ice with Gilmour in the clear after it. Vezina reached it first but by the time he went around his net to start back, down the ice it sounded to end the evenly fought battle.

At one time in the game, it appeared that a one-sided victory would result as Trenton rolled to Point Anne with Trenton behind 4-1. Leo Goyer opened the scoring at 8.02 on Bob Vezina's perfect pass with Rochon getting that one back for the Flyers a minute later, banging home Beatch's rebound.

Earle Anderson's crew past DuPaul with Gilmour getting one and George Jacklin a pair. Harold Stewart out that lead at 17.23 with Parnell and Gingras scoring up the play as the period ended with a 6 score.

Both teams played hockey for the first half of the middle stanza with Trenton's passing plays giving them a slight edge in territorial play. Pat Gilmour drew the only penalty of the period at the 12 minute mark but Boucher's efforts were unable to take advantage.

Chris Bowman made it 4-3 at 18.06 on a neat solo effort which he brought the disc into the Ontario Pointers' worked in close and fired a hard drive over Don Bate's right shoulder that the netminder had no chance on.

The largest crowd of the series, 1,177, were treated to a clean sixty minutes of hockey with only three penalties called. Trenton had one in the first and another in the last period while Point Anne got the only one of the second stanza.

Pat Gilmour was top scorer of the night with a goal and two assists while Jacklin had two goals, Strahan one assist to match the goal, and John Green a brace of assists. Rochon and Beatch each scored once and set up the other goal in a losing cause.

After the final bell both teams mingled on the ice shaking hands and the losers offered their congratulations.

Lyle Cary of Trenton, first vice president of the league presented team captain Pat Gilmour with the Frank Fellowes trophy, a cup that annually goes to the southern section champs.

Point Anne will now meet the Marmora Millionaires in a best-of-seven series for the league championship and the Thomas Bata trophy. The first game will be played in Belleville with the date announced elsewhere in this paper.

The teams:

RCAF — DuPaul, Vezina, Boucher, Rochon, Beatch, Parnell, Bowman, Cowick, R. Stewart, Gingras, Grace, Dalgle, Adams, Singleton, Tardiff.

FIRST GET FREE BEER

HAMILTON (CP)—There probably are a lot of drouth folk wobbling around in Hamilton bay, say McMaster University officials. Twenty thousand gallons of beer were dumped into the bay after a brewery changed ownership and was cleared out for production of a new brand. Professor David Dale still said there is no doubt the fish were "uncomfortable." Probably they were "very jittery," he said.

U. OF T. GETS GRANT

TORONTO (CP)—Board of Control Wednesday approved payment of $1,000,000 to the University of Toronto for a building program. The money is part of a $2,000,000 grant authorized by city council. Metropolitan council plans to issue debentures this year for the other $1,000,000.

U.K. HAS SURPLUS

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain ended her financial year Wednesday night with a surplus of £83,538,000 instead of the estimated deficit of £116,612,000, the treasury announced here. This was a increase of more than £5,500,000 on last year's surplus of £28,123,548.

Persley Scores Clean Verdict Over Savoie

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Free-swinging Arthur Persley outpunched Armand Savoie of Montreal through most of 10 rounds Wednesday night, scoring a unanimous decision in their lightweight event.

Both fighters weighed 138 for the nationally televised bout.

The two judges and referee Bob Ingham saw it pretty much alike in the scoring—each dividing 10 points a round between the fighters under Missouri rules.

Judge Al Graff had it 57-43 for Persley, Red Cross, La Negro; Judge Gene Farrell, 56-44; and Ingham, 53-45.

There were no knockdowns but a couple of times Savoie, off balance, went to one knee. The Montreal fighter showed he could take anything Persley could offer which at times seemed to be a lot.

Persley, ranked No. 8 among lightweights, a notch above his opponent, went on the attack right from the start and left little doubt of his superiority. He spanked Savoie's face red with a constantly jabbing right which he crossed occasionally with a left to the body. A crowd of 1,831 paid $3,919.50 to see the affair.

Detroit Tigers Reduce Prices

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP)—A reduction in baseball ticket prices announced by Detroit Tigers Wednesday after the federal excise tax was cut from 20 to 10 per cent. Walter O. Briggs, president of the Tigers, said box seats would sell for $2.20; reserved grandstand seats for $1.65; unreserved grandstand seats for $1.15 and bleacher seats for 65 cents. The previous scale was $2.50, $1.75, $1.25 and 75 cents.

Cubs, Marlies Battle to 3-3 Draw; Goalie Presented With Pinkney Cup

HAMILTON (CP)—Dennis Riggin of the Hamilton Cubs was presented with the Pinkney Trophy here Wednesday night for being the best netminder in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series during the 1953-54 season. It was a fitting night for the netminder to receive the trophy.

Riggin turned aside 54 shots as the Cubs and Toronto Marlboros fought to a 3-3 overtime tie in the second game of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A playoffs. Marlboros lead the best-of-five semi-final 1-0 with one game tied.

Watched by a full house of 4,000 fans, Marlboros took a 1-0 lead in the first period but had to fight the rest of the way for the tie. The Cubs tied the score at 8:29 of the second but fell behind 2-1 before the period ended.

Two consecutive goals by the Hamilton team in the third gave the Cubs a 3-3 lead that held up until 12:48 when the Marlboros tied the score for good.

REARGUARD PROMINENT

Defencemen played a large part in the Toronto side of the tie. Jack Bionda and Bob Bean each counted on blueline shots. Rightwinger Wally Maxwell, captain of the Dukes, fired the other Marlboro goal.

Marlin McAlendin, Bob Robinson and Jerry Sullivan were the Hamilton snipers.

Riggin was outstanding for the Cubs, who were outshot in every period but the third. Each netminder stopped nine shots in the third period. The Hamilton netminder turned aside more than twice as many drives as did John Albani in the Marlboro net. Albani stopped 24 shots.

Robinson, who tied the game for Hamilton the second time, had been benched by Hamilton coach Jimmy Skinner during the end of the season and at the beginning of the playoffs. Sullivan, who got another of the Hamilton goals, is a junior B player who has been with the Cubs only two weeks.

The third game of the series will be played in Toronto Friday with the fourth back in Hamilton Saturday.

Meanwhile, Quebec Aces hold a 3-1 lead over Chicoutimi Sagueneens in their best-of-seven semi-final. The teams play their fifth game in Chicoutimi Thursday.

In Ottawa, Valleyfield's Andre Corriveau paced the winners with a pair of goals while Klondy Beaucette, Larry Kwong and Jack Irvine tallied one each.

Johnny Arundel, Bep Guidolin and Dusty Blair counted for the Senators.

Guelph Wins Over Sarnia

SARNIA (CP)—Guelph Heffernans Wednesday night defeated Sarnia Imperials 67-61 in an Ontario Amateur Basketball Association intermediate B game here. The return match on the points-to-count series will be played in Guelph Saturday with the winner advancing against the best of a Peterborough-Toronto series.

Sarnia's Fatakey was high scorer with 28 points. Donald and McRae of Guelph had 24 and 20 points.

Training Camp Notes

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP)—An orthopaedic specialist told Boston Red Sox Wednesday that slugging star Ted Williams will not be able to take part in baseball workouts until after April 15.

It had been hoped that Williams, who fractured his left collarbone in a fall March 1, would be able to travel north with the team and possibly appear in the April 22 game with the Chicago White Sox.

However, Dr. Herbert Virgin told general manager Joe Cronin that Williams' shoulder is progressing favorably, he doesn't want him "running or doing anything that might jar" the injury, which was wired in a March 8 operation in Boston.

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP)—Detroit Tigers have released catcher John Bucha and Buddy Hicks, rookie infielder, to their Buffalo farm club of the International League.

Bucha appeared in 60 games for the Tigers last season, hitting .222. Hicks played with Buffalo and batted .295.

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — New York Giants released five players from their roster.

Secretary Eddie Brannan announced that infielder Bill Klaus and righthanded pitcher Charley Fowler have been optioned to the Minneapolis farm club in the American Association, while Modica, 21-year-old righthander, was returned to Nashville in the Southern Association.

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Cleveland Indians have optioned four players and sold two others to farm clubs to reduce their roster to 34 players.

Pitchers Harlan Murrzewski and Howard Rodemoyer and infielder Bob Prentice were optioned to Cleveland's Indianapolis club of the American Association while outfielder Jim Lemon was optioned to Richmond's new entry in the International League.

Infielder Owen Friend was sold outright to Indianapolis and pitcher Don Franchia was sold to Tulsa of the Texas League.

AT THE BELLE—Alec Guinness and Yvonne De Carlo cut a neat rug in "The Captain's Paradise", starring Guinness, as the captain, turns the singular trick of having two wives, one of whom is Miss De Carlo. A multiple-reel Technicolor Travel Tour of Edinburgh, and a funny Tom and Jerry cartoon, precede the feature attraction.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The jumps in your bridge system are not inoherent spasms or uncontrollable urges. Each type of a jump has its own particular meaning and its own definite purpose.

An immediate one-jump response to a opening one bid tells of values that will help make a game. At the same time it permits two sure tricks that will help make a slam if partner has extras.

But suppose you have help for a game without two sure tricks to back up your other values? Should you avoid a jump of any kind? This depends on what else you are able to do.

If able to force partner to bid again, you use such a signal. Then when he bids again you can jump on the next round. In this way you have not promised him two sure tricks.

What kind of a signal could you give him as a force? Simply take-out to a new suit, a biddable suit of your own. This is a forcing bid—a signal that forces partner to keep the bidding open for one round.

What if you have no biddable suit for a takeout? You can still jump on the first round. But not with a jump of only one. Make it a jump of more than one; like four spades over one spade.

Thus do you get the distinction of two jumps. Immediate one-jump promises two sure among other things; a later one-jump does not promise two sures. Neither does an immediate high jump.

Your south partner opens with a heart when you have this north hand:

♠A 6
♥K J 9 5 4
♣Q 7

With heart support and five tricks you can see game in hearts for your pair. Because his opening shows five you thus see ten.

Lacking two sures, do not one-jump at this point. Takeout suit for a force, you fear a simple assist may be passed. Double and jump to four hearts. It will say you see game without two sures.

SEOUL (Reuters)—Police halted traffic and kept civilians off the streets Wed., during a three-minute air raid alert here. Sabre jet fighters were immediately sent up, but the radar track failed before a contact was traced.

Duchess of Kent Has Not Accepted Bid to Open CNE

TORONTO (CP)—The Duchess of Kent—has been invited to open the 1954 Canadian National Exhibition but her acceptance has not yet been received, Robert H. Saunders, president of the CNE, said Wednesday.

The duchess and her daughter, Alexandra, will visit Canada this summer, it was learned.

Mr. Saunders said he hoped reports that the duchess has already accepted the invitation to open the CNE are accurate.

AT THE ODEON McCARTHY

"The Glenn Miller Story," Universal-International's Technicolor production of the great bandleader's life-story now playing at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre, is one of the most factual biographies ever filmed.

Of the top 27 speaking roles in the picture only three are fictional —a pawn-shop operator, a girl singer and an Army officer. Producer Aaron Rosenberg, who pioneered together almost all of the actual personalities who shared in the 20 last years of Miller's career, says:

"We used three fictional characters only because we couldn't run down the identification of these people. Actually, they do represent reallife persons."

Those three were the pawn shop owner where Miller actually hocked his trombone before getting his first big chance with Ben Pollack's band in 1925; a girl singer whose backadaisical style spoiled the public debut of Miller's celebrated "Moonlight Serenade"; and the officer in the Army dispatcher's office at Ory Field, France, who first revealed that Major Glenn Miller was missing on that ill-fated military flight across the English Channel in December, 1944.

James Stewart, the popular choice of Miller fans for the title role, plays Glenn Miller, with June Allyson re-starring as his wife, Helen. Charles Drake portrays Don Haynes, Miller's manager, and Henry Morgan acts the role of Chummy MacGregor, Miller's clarinet-playing pal. The reallife Haynes assisted as technical adviser, Ben Pollack, the band-leader, Gene Krupa, Louis Armstrong, Frances Langford, The Archie Savage Dancers and The Modernaires make appearances in the picture as themselves.

Reallife Glenn Miller effects used in "The Glenn Miller Story" include an exact copy of Miller's rimless eyeglasses, the maestro's own trombone and the Miller Orchestra music stands.

A Nice Guy Named Pete Smith Retires From Picture Business

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Next week a guy named Pete Smith will clean out his desk, pack a carload of Oscars and other awards, tour some of his old haunts on the MGM lot and then check out of the studio for the last time.

Thus will end—temporarily perhaps—the short-show-business career. The last half of it has been spent providing laughs for movie fans via the Pete Smith shorts. For this, he was given a special Academy award last Thursday night.

Pete is 61, and though he doesn't look it he says he has been in ill health during the last year. Since the MGM retirement plan has gone into effect, he can live comfortably.

"For years, I fell back on the old cliche, believing I would die with my boots on," he said. "But then I decided to rely on another cliche and quit while I'm ahead."

TWO TO FINISH

Before leaving, he must wade through a flood of correspondence and finish up his last two shorts. One is called "Sports Tricks," and shows champions in their greatest feats. The other is "The Man Around the House," a typical laugh-getter with Smith's fall guy, laughgetter with Smith's fall guy, Dave O'Brien.

"My retirement doesn't mean the end of the Pete Smith shorts," he emphasized. "I have enough releases to last until the end of 1955. And the life of a short is three years, so my pictures will be in circulation for a long time."

Smith will be the last to vacate the once-bustling shorts building at MG. The place at one time was jumping with such creators as John Nesbitt, Jack Cherlok, James Fitzpatrick, Carey Wilson and the "Our Gang" and "Crime Doesn't Pay" units. Now the only shorts being made are cartoons and orchestra overtures.

OYSTER CHAMP

SYDNEY, Australia (CP)—New South Wales, which produces a large quantity of oysters, is proud of its new oyster eating champion. Charles Derwent won the title by swallowing 312 oysters in 30 minutes.

'Misery' Martin Dies in England

TUNBRIDGE WELLS, England (Reuters)—A churchman known as "Misery" Martin because of his life-long campaign against Sunday merry-making died at his home here Tuesday night.

Herbert Henry Martin, 72, was former secretary of the Lord's Day Observance Society — dedicated to fight Sunday sport, movies, politics, trading or any kind of work on the Sabbath. For 26 years he led the society's campaigns.

He cherished the nickname "Misery," saying it was worth thousands to the society in publicity value.

Martin gloried in his claims as a non-smoker and non-drinker, a puritan who lived an austere, rigorous life pledged to observe the sabbath. He looked upon theatres and movies as "worldly allurements."

Your Individual Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR FRIDAY, APRIL 2, 1954

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — This should be a splendid day for fundamental work, study, teaching, clerical, scientific interests, and especially brings for new projects and the manufacture of useful and needed items. Unessentials must wait.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Benefic Sun and Mercury aspects sponsor advancement in employment, bettering the quality of your work, gathering worthwhile knowledge, conferring with superiors, officials.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Waste no time this promising day on things that have no significance. Network for the future by starting up some "extras"—good will for instance. Be careful in travel, too.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Matters may try to change your ideas, lead you on the wrong course. Be wary, and don't allow it. Carelessness causes reverses, setbacks, anxiety. Direct attention to home affairs.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Let your better self have the upper hand in mapping tactics this day. It may test your diplomacy with tact and pressure from unexpected sources, and in financial undertakings.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — We cannot stress too great the importance of not letting circumstances beyond your control annoy you or sway your better judgment in business and personal affairs. Take time in making decisions.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Some intriguing aspects now, which may challenge your authority, ability to manoeuvre. Review things, don't give up easily; objectors may be wrong. Confidence in yourself needed.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Your status is same as Libra's now, and the more dexterity and ambition you show, the surer, greater your achievement. We normally get only what we earn or deserve.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—If things seem aggravating during the early hours, don't let it worry you. P.M. aspects brighter. Just a difficult enough day to put you on your toes—where you do your best job.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—You will advance but, perhaps, slower than you wish. Take the situation calmly, be alert, ready to move at a faster pace when opportunity affords.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Watch those who know and are doing top jobs. We all can learn by astute observation. Try to keep ahead of things, don't lag or lose interest.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Your outlook on the upgrade for worthwhile endeavors in creativity; merchandising, banking, certain types of real estate, creation of new ideas for the masses, writing, legal matters.

YOU BORN TODAY are farseeing individuals, with plenty of grit and creative power. You are not afraid to try the new or to tackle hard chores and follow through to success. You are usually humorous, fond of music and good fun; enjoy harmony, may over emphasize luxury; can become brilliant conversationalists, since you say things at the right time. You may be impetuous; at times extravagant. Avoid momentary displays of jealousy, selfishness; they are not like the best you. Birthdate of: Charlemagne, Emperor of the West, king of the Franks; Hans Christian Anderson, Danish fabulist, poet.

2,000 Vietminh Troops Killed In 24-Hour Battle

By LARS TALLEN

HANOI, Indo-China (AP) — The French high command announced today that the Communist-led Vietminh have slackened their humanwave assaults on Dien Bien Phu but are still losing close to 2,000 men in 24 hours of furious battle.

The French Union defenders held firmly to the northeast Indo-China plain despite the onslaught of rebel forces in their second major bid to seize Dien Bien Phu at any matter what cost.

A French spokesman here said the Vietminh were "taking time out" today while they rushed up more ammunition in preparation for a possible renewed infantry charge tonight.

CASUALTIES HEAVY

The spokesman said in addition to the 1,500 Vietminh reported killed Wednesday in hand-to-hand fighting at the barbed-wire barricades of air command HQ, certains of artillery fire and recoilless rifle aerial attacks, the enemy had gathered up several hundred more bodies from the battlefield by today.

The forces of Moscow-schooled Ho Chi Minh were estimated in number about 30,000 regulars, three divisions strong, trained and advised by China, and possibly another 10,000 guerrilla and regional fighters brought in for the crucial battle of the seven-year-old Indo-China war.

RCAF OFFICERS PROMOTED

OTTAWA (CP) — Promotion of two senior RCAF officers to the rank of air commodore was announced Wednesday. They are Group Capt. Charles H. Greenway, 39, of Lloydminster, Sask., senior personnel staff officer at training command headquarters, Trenton; and Group Capt. R. A. Cameron, 41, of Oak Lake, Man., director of organization and establishment at RCAF headquarters here.

Soviet Elections Are Something Like A Picnic

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW (CP) — Russian elections are something like a picnic. Everybody's dressed up, eating a lot and enjoying very, very mild officials are courteous in handling foreigners' questions.

In the March 14 elections, the "supreme" with 1,131 registered candidates, the only ones whose names appeared on the ballots, was a certainty. The people clearly believed they were voting secretly in free elections.

The foreign office had suggested three polling booths where foreign reporters might witness the proceedings. These proved to be equipped with strong lights and dozens of photographers.

The booths were set up in hotel lobbies, restaurants closed for the day, offices of factories and clubs.

MUSIC, FLOWERS

Each was the balloting centre for about 2,300 voters of both sexes, 18 years old and upwards, in charge of a presiding election commission headed by a chairman, and never exceeded.

The registrars, two to a table, sat in fenced-in pseudo-Greek booths facing off lists as the voters presented themselves. Music played, flowers were banked, bands played.

The walls were lined with pictures of leading Soviet personalities. Asked about the absence of Malenkov's in one stable, the officials said:

"It came down last night. The rules are that there is to be 'agitation' (electioneering) on election day but there is suppose to be no agitation."

Cars were stalked to the station of leading Soviet guests. One whose too sick two members of the commission took small ballot boxes to the voter's residence.

ONE CANDIDATE

In my ward the six-by-eight inch ballots bore the name of Marshal Bulganin, minister of defence. In Leningrad it was said they carried Premier Malenkov's.

Beneath the candidate's name was an open square. You were told they could write the name of any other person they preferred if they did not care for the candidate they had.

The voting cells were heavily curtained off. But some voters simply took their ballots folded in two and dropped it in the box.

Invariably there was music. One station had a three-piece band in the hall. Some had soloists who had been drafted from the local theatre, opera or cafe. In another hall was a trio playing classical pieces.

Voters' broods basic along to give him the thrill of putting the ballot in a vase. Photographers took much of each scene, and of a wonderful old gent with a mane of white hair and a full wavy beard.

People went out early to vote. Those working that Sunday formed up outside stations as early as 4 a.m. The polls opened at 6 a.m. and closed at midnight.

EVERYBODY VOTES

As acquaintance had a job at 12:30 p.m. how it was going.

"Everyone has voted."

"Suppose someone hadn't voted. or didn't want to, What would you do?"

"Oh, that never happens. But if it did I'd send someone around to find out his reasons."

"But suppose he still didn't want to?"

"Oh, that just never happens. Everybody votes"

LAWYERS SAY CLIENTS INJURED AFTER ARREST

Magistrate Orders Probe Of Hamilton Charges

HAMILTON (CP) — Magistrate Beamer W. Hopkins this morning ordered an investigation into charges by two lawyers that their clients, James Maxwell, 24, and Joseph Whitehead, 30, had received injuries after being taken into custody to face trial on attempted armed robbery.

The lawyers, John White, defending Maxwell, and Victor Cassano, defending Whitehead, made the charges in magistrate's court this morning.

Magistrate Hopkins said he would order police chief Leonard Lawrence to make a complete investigation into the matter.

The two men, along with Howard Vernon Smith, were arrested last Thursday night. Police say that a search of their cars revealed a loaded revolver and three masks.

In court this morning Mr. White asked that Constable Ernest Hopkins be called to testify. The case was held over until April 21.

CHIEF READY TO ACT

Chief Lawrence later said just before noon today that he had not yet been officially notified by the lawyers that their clients' trial had been ordered. "But I certainly do not hesitate any under force being used at any time," he said.

Mr. Cassano said Whitehead had asked for medical treatment. Friday after his arrest. "It was Wednesday before anything was done," he claimed.

According to Mr. Cassano, his man received injuries to his eye muscles and was unable to wear glasses.

He also alleged that rubber hoses were used on the two men.

Mr. White said his client was "severely bruised and beaten."

Magistrate Hopkins said, in ordering the probe, that the two looked "quite all right" to him.

Detective Lawrence testified that the three detectives who arrested the three accused, said that he knew nothing whatsoever of the allegations.

He said that there had been no kind of scuffle at all.

Vote of Taxpayers Required To Purchase Foley Lot Ruling of Municipal Board

Application of Belleville city council to proceed with the purchase of the Foley property and development of an off-street parking lot without a vote of the taxpayers was turned down today by members of the Ontario Municipal Board at a special hearing at the city hall.

Municipal Board members C. W. Yates, Q.C., and R. L. Kennedy, stated at the conclusion of the hearing that the application of the city's application had come largely from merchants and business people and on the whole there had been no evidence of an emergency of an extraordinary nature to warrant dispensation by the O.M.B. The application was accordingly dismissed.

The city's case was presented by R.A. Pringle, Q.C., city solicitor, while R. Hall, Q.C., represented certain ratepayers opposing the application.

OUTLINES PROPOSAL

Alderman Art Keegan as chairman of the planning committee, outlined briefly the proposal for the Foley property on Front St. and to develop it into a parking lot for the accommodation of approximately 100 autos.

He said the cost of the property would be $40,000, with an additional $36,000 for the cost of development. Capital cost and operation of the parking lot for a period of 10 years was estimated at $118,885.

He stated that parking meters would be installed and there would be an anticipated revenue of approximately $10,000 per year. He estimated the lot would pay for itself in about 12 years. He noted the city had an extension of their option on the Foley property to April 15th.

Mr. Arnott questioned the estimated $40,000 for the purchase price from the proposed parking lot and asked on what this estimate was based.

He was told the estimate was on the basis of the purchase from the best parking meters in the municipality which generated from $90 to $100 per year.

Mr. Pringle emphasized that the Municipal Board was the only available site for a parking lot in the downtown area. Mr. Hall for Mr. Keegan stressed the present traffic problem in the city and maintained that Belleville merchants were losing business because of the lack of parking facilities.

Freeman Burrows as president of the Chamber of Commerce noted that the Chamber for several years had been advocating action to alleviate the city traffic problem.

"The only way to do this is to provide parking space," he said.

He referred to a poll taken of Chamber members on whether or not they favored purchase of the Foley property as a parking lot. Of 240 enquiries sent out 132 had replies with 83 of these being for purchasing the Foley property.

Mr. Arnott claimed information on the questionnaire indicated the cost was to be $40,000, and he suggested that members did not vote on the true picture.

Wording of the questionnaire was asked by board members and when given by Mr. Burrows, Mr. Yates replied: "Rather a shotgun question, the answer expected by the Chamber was indicated clearly."

Harper DeVuyt, local restaurant operator, pointed out that the decision to send out the questionnaire was made by directors of the Chamber or by a committee and not by the retail merchants' section and not by the entire chamber.

Mr. Treasurer Drury S. Denyes noted that gross income from 450 parking meters in the city last year had been $22,711.04. Meters in the Front street group including Victoria park, Pinnacle, Campbell and Victoria Ave. had grossed $13,000 and the Bridge street parking meter maintenance man said 330 meters were in this grouping.

Mayor Wills, representing the retail merchants referred to a better revenue from parking and felt parking space was inadequate. Forty-one per cent of those questioned by used cars for shopping.

Mr. Wills stated that if more parking facilities was available more people would use cars for shopping.

ASKS FOR REFUSAL

Mr. Arnott pointed to the present 20-mill tax rate and called on City Treasurer Denyes to list approved expenditures which would increase further the tax rate.

Howard Hunter, a board member of the Chamber of Commerce and with 427 replies received, 90.1 per cent were in favor of purchase. He

CLU President Makes Official Visit in City

The president of the Canadian Life Underwriters' Association, P. H. Hughes paused in his Canada-wide tour of the association's branches to address members of the Quinte Life Underwriters' Association yesterday afternoon in The Golden Acre Inn. The topic of Mr. Hughes' address was, "If Work Bothers You, Play It."

He told a gathering of city and district life insurance salesmen and branch managers, "Insurance is a virtue, as a matter of fact it is one of the world's oldest virtues." Mr. Hughes pointed out that the invention of the wheel, centuries ago, was motivated through laziness. Before the wheel, burdens were either dragged or carried the points of decision. However, with the discovery of the wheel, "large loads" found a way of cutting down on much labor.

"Everything in inventive genius from the wheel on up has goone toward making it easier for man in his never-ending search for more and more labor-saving devices", he quoted Declared, "On the other hand," he added, "to possess the many labor-saving devices, man has discovered he must work for the means of purchasing them."

Mr. Hughes also discussed in some detail a folder presently on sale through the association and available to life insurance salesmen as a time planning guide. He also noted that as statistics show, the life insurance industry is receiving much improved public acceptance. The president advised salesmen to get to know the competitor. "If you know your competitor, you are a better competitor yourself."

The speaker was introduced by the president, Stan Wiggins and the expression of appreciation was given by Charles Lindy.

Business and commercial properties owners in the downtown section paid about 50 per cent of the city taxes, he said.

Alderman Doug Moxam said parking in the city was a serious problem. He said that the purchase of the Foley property was not only for civic parking facilities, but would also provide an outlet for a riverside drive. If the corporation had purchased this property was passed up no other site was available, he said.

Alderman John Bradford said that lack of parking space in the Bridge Street area would "sound the death knell" for business in that area. He believed that business was being driven to outlying areas where parking space was available.

Ex-Alderman Bruce Lattimer, a past member of the traffic committee, stated that the proposed parking lot would not cost the taxpayer a penny as costs would be paid out of revenue only a period of 10 years. Provision of off-street parking was common by many municipalities in the province.

BUS SCHEDULES UPSET

Fred Rawson, local bus operator, said that the company was preventing him from providing proper service to his customers. Bus schedules were being interrupted by cars on Front Street striking parking meters.

Harold Seldon, Front Street drug store proprietor, he did not think the taxpayers as a whole were concerned too much with the tax rate. Indication of this was that all aldermen up for re-election last year were returned to office.

"It shows the people were pretty well satisfied with council and what they are doing with the city's money," he said.

A second point made by Mr. Seldon was that the local property owners' association was no longer operating. If property owners were dissatisfied, there should be an association formed to represent them.

In support of the city's application for dispensation of a vote by the ratepayers, Mayor Fitzsimmons said there was no dispute regarding the land in question.

He noted that if the proposal was now approved by the board, the parking lot could be in operation for the summer. Otherwise it would be delayed until the fall election.

Mayor Yates intercupted to note that this was not necessarily the case as council had the right to call a vote at any time.

British Papers See U.S. Reaction As Too Hasty

LONDON (AP) — Two leading British newspapers criticized the United States state department today for haste in rebuffing Russia before consulting the Western Allies on the proposed Far East conjoin up with NATO.

The editorial comments followed debate in Parliament Thursday in which Foreign Secretary Eden declared he is "no rejection of the Soviet offer and Labor member Herbert Morrison said he believed the Western Allies get together in the future before making decisions on Russian offers affecting them jointly.

The Times agreed that the Russian bid, contained in identical notes Foreign Minister Molotov handed in Moscow to envoys of the U. S., Britain and France Wednesday, was a further attempt to wreck the proposed European Defence Community.

But the independent paper added: "The automatic rejection which Mr. Molotov's note fired from the state department is no substitute for consultation among all governments concerned. In his more temperate comment yesterday in the House of Commons Mr. Eden showed such consultations were expected."

Foxboro District Co-Op Association Had Good Year

The most successful year since its formation 10 years ago was reported Thursday night for the Foxboro District Co-operative Association. The annual meeting was held in the Thurlow township hall at Cannifton.

With a membership of approximately 300, a dividend of five per cent was allocated, this to be paid back to member according to the ratio of their purchases. This is the highest dividend paid to members in the co-operative.

Sales for the year amounted to $198,581, with net savings for the year of $5,302.

Speaker for the annual meeting which attracted an attendance of close to 75 members was H. McLeod, production manager of the United Co-operators.

Mr. McLeod referred to the surplus of Canadian grain stating that in his opinion this would look after itself in a short time. Interested residents would consume more grain. Shipment of millions of bushels of oats to the drought areas of the United States would relieve the surplus oft situation, he said.

Reginald Hessey, from the grain department of the United Co-operators, former resident of the Trenton district, also spoke briefly.

Joseph Walsh of Tyendinaga reported on behalf of the co-operative following a two-year term. He was replaced on the executive by Archie Johnson. Directors elected are Sherry Detlille and John Milligan. Tyendinaga; Norman Huffman, Percy Rav and Earl Sayers, Thurlow, and Harley Hamilton, Douglas Hotchkiss and Fred Heaman, Sidney. They got home about 2 a. m. said Mr. Dool and the boys were sitting around in the kitchen. It got late and was hardly worth going to bed, and, they dropped off to sleep where they were.

Person's Risk Greater With Tonsillectomy

CHICAGO (AP)—The Journal of the American Medical Association says there is growing evidence that the mere absence of tonsils and adenoids increases a person's risk of developing bulbular, rather than spinal forms of poliomyelitis.

Citing one of several independent studies of the question, the Journal says in an editorial:

"Of 85 patients in whom bulbar poliomyelitis developed, 85.9 per cent had previously been subjected to tonsillectomy; of those in whom tonsils were still present, bulbar poliomyelitis developed in only 14.1 per cent.

"A similar relationship was observed in the case of patients attacked by bulbospinal poliomyelitis, the disease occurring about five times more frequently in patients subjected to tonsillectomy than in patients with tonsils still intact."

The Journal comments:

"Once again is there ample demonstration of the need for asking 'Is this operation really necessary?' before the tonsils or adenoids are removed."

Police Recover Part of Stolen Bolts of Cloth

TRENTON (Special) — Police have recovered nine bolts of cloth of a total of 18 bolts stolen early in March from the Trenton Dyeing and Finishing Co. plant on Flim Avenue here.

Mrs. 'Rose Beaver, 32, of 10 Slayner Avenue, Toronto, has been taken into custody and charged with retaining stolen goods. Toronto detectives, making a routine check in connection with another matter, discovered five ends of cloth in her home.

It has not been disclosed where the nine bolts of cloth were recovered. They had been cut into suit lengths. In addition to these nine bolts, eight pieces of the stolen cloth are also reported to have been recovered. The stolen bolts were worth a total of $5,000.

The theft occurred some time during the week-end of March 5 to March 8, but the fact that the cloth had been stolen was not discovered until seven days later. The thieves jimmied a window to gain entrance to the shipping room of the plant.

Chief Constable W. J. Taylor of Trenton said the Toronto officer describing the stolen bolts. It was as a result of the circular that Toronto police became suspicious when they discovered five ends of cloth in Mrs. Beaver's home. The investigation in Toronto was in charge of Det.-sgt. Detectives William Moulton and Detective Kenneth Harris. They were assisted by Chief Taylor and Detective, who went to Toronto with Fred Parker, a member of the Trenton Dyeing and Finishing Co., to assist in identification of the recovered cloth.

Two Stage-Struck Girls Join Circus for Night as Clowns

NEW YORK (AP) — Two stage-struck girls accomplished what used to be every red-blooded kid's ambition—they joined the circus for a night as clowns.

No one was the wiser until today, when Kay Mundell of Salt Lake City and Bri Murphy of Duncan, Wyo., told how they slipped into Madison Square Garden for Wednesday's opening performance and cavorted on the tanbark in home made clown suits.

The girls have been haunting casting offices for stage and television jobs for months, skimping on food and living mainly on hope.

Naturally, they applied for clown jobs when Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey circus hit town.

Fat Valde, the performance manager turned them down flat.

MADE OWN SUITS

That merely stiffened their determination. They scraped up $2.40, bought six yards of blue and orange cloth and fashioned baggy pantaloon suits.

On Wednesday night they painted their faces with white clown 'makeup, big red grinning mouths, and wiggled three blocks across broadway to the performer's entrance of the garden.

Hearts pounding, they slipped in without a hitch and for the next four hours they capered, tumbled and cavorted under the dancing spotlights as thousands of paying customers laughed and cheered.

The deception may have been helped along a bit by the fact that dozens of celebrities also joined the circus for the night as amateur clowns on behalf of the united cerebral palsy fund.

5,540 Persons Out of Work In Sudbury

SUDBURY (CP)—A union official said last night 5,540 persons are out of work in this district and that, of these, 2,471 are in this northern Ontario nickel-mining city.

Nils Thibault of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.) asked city council to organize a delegation to Queen's Park to seek a solution. Council turned the suggestion over to its special committee on community services and welfare.

The council approved a Fort William resolution urging that air-brake check patrols be set up throughout Ontario. Supporters of the resolution said such checks would eliminate air-brake failure as an excuse for truck accidents which might have actually been due to exhaustion of drivers on long hauls.

A report from the Sudbury and District Chamber of Commerce to council said there is hope of getting a new industry established here, to make work clothes.

World's Youngest Air Force Marks Third Birthday

By ALLAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP) — Allied Air Forces, Central Europe, the world's youngest air force, celebrated its third birthday today. The occasion was marked with a parade and a fly-past at its headquarters in Fontainebleau, France.

AAFCE, commonly known as Afcent, is the air arm of one of the chief commands of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. It is the one to which Canada makes her full overseas air commitment of four Sabre jet wings, three of which are already operational in France and Germany. The fourth wing is based in England awaiting orders to move to the continent.

Afcent's strength consists of two tactical air forces.

Under the new strategy of giving priority to air weapons, the U. S. forces have been given extra punch with the arrival recently of part of a pilotless-bomber squadron equipped with Martin B-61 Matadors expandable rocket-launched missiles.

Canada's forces have been strengthened by the first Mark V Sabre jets, powered by the Orenda engine which will make them the fastest fighter planes in NATO. All the jets in the squadrons are to be re-quipped.

NATO as a whole has some 8,000 aircraft, and by the end of this year there will be about 160 airfields in Western Europe, all built to NATO specifications. The NATO jet-fuel pipeline system when completed, will send a 12-inch ribbon of steel snaking through 1,875 miles of nine West.-n European countries.

STAY STILL TO STAY WARM

The quick brown fox which jumped over the lazy dog's back may have evaded the canine maws but he probably froze to death.

That, at least, is the conclusion to which we are forced by some recent discoveries by the National Research Council Division of Biology.

It seems that the way to keep warm in winter is to do nothing. Of course one might expect that a tax-supported body like the National Research Council would produce a bombshell like this just when spring is around the corner. The Kremlin will not have any difficulty convincing us that said Research Council is a tool of the bosses. Otherwise why did we not get the news when the mercury was hitting with zero?

But let us get back to the lazy dog, or rather to the lazy rabbit for that is the animal on whose actions the Research Council largely based its findings. It seems that the rabbit, if it rests, can endure short exposures to temperatures as low as 65 degrees below zero. But if it is compelled to exercise it can freeze at temperatures even as low as 65 degrees below zero. But if it is compelled to exercise it can freeze at temperatures even as low as 65 degrees below zero. But if it is forty degrees higher.

The Research Council has an explanation for this situation. Heat produced by work simply is not available for maintaining body temperature in a cold environment, it for maintaining body temperature in a cold environment, it says.

We always had a very low opinion of heat produced by work and the highest authority in the land now confirms our suspicions that work is bad for us.

Unfortunately, however, it will be six months, at least, before we shall get a real opportunity to see how the boss takes to this theory. Meanwhile we live in dread of the Research Council discovering that, while the way to keep warm in winter is to rest, the way to keep cool in summer is to get a move on. The habit of shivering in summer is a very good habit rather than bad habit. It is only during the warmer months of the year, lends weight to this dismal theory.

THE WRONG WAY TO FINANCE HOSPITALS

Two Protestant church groups have presented briefs to a Commons-Senate committee in which they have voiced opposition to state lotteries.

Such lotteries are most frequently advocated as a method of financing hospitals.

The Protestant church groups regard lotteries as immoral. But even those who do not share this view may regard the use of lotteries for financing hospitals as undesirable.

The care of the sick ought to be one of our first obligations. To make the discharge of this obligation dependent upon the financial success of a lottery ought to be repugnant to our sense of duty.

There are those who see in such lotteries a simple and relatively painless method of raising additional money for hospital and other welfare services. The United Church, the Canadian Social Council of Canada and the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church of Canada, oppose such lotteries on principle. Others may differ—and they have a right to do so. But advocates of lotteries do their cause no good when they propose earmarking lottery profits for hospitals.

The provision of care for our aged and our sick should surely have a prior claim on our purses. This claim cannot be satisfied merely by granting hospitals a portion of our gambling outlays. Lottery profits should be used to the assist hospitals, if these lottery profits first went into the general fund with other government revenues. But to earmark such profits for hospitals is either meaningless, if we suppose that these profits will be forthcoming as necessary; or is making the extent of our hospital facilities dependent upon the height of our gambling fever.

A MOVE IN THE WRONG DIRECTION

More and more, licences are being required before an individual can engage in certain activities.

As the number of activities for which licences are required multiply, the powers of the individuals or boards which issue these licences are increased.

Such increases in power inevitably carry with them the possibility of an abuse of power.

One would imagine that, under these circumstances, our legislators would be concerned with increasing the safeguards against such possible abuses.

But the Ontario Legislature's committees on municipal law has approved a bill which will take away the right of appeal to a Supreme Court judge from any decision of a police commission refusing a licence.

Instead of increasing safeguards against the abuse of power by licensing authorities, the Legislature committee proposes in this instance to reduce them.

Is not this a move in the wrong direction?

What harm can come from permitting the citizen to appeal to a higher authority? If curtailment of the right of appeal becomes the fashion, who can say where such curtailment will stop?

THE CUT-DOWN TROUSERS

When father couldn't wear them,
They were cut along the waist line, with the opening straight and wide,
And there wasn't any limit to what you could get inside.
They would hold a peck of marbles, and a knife and top and string,
And snakes and frogs and turtles
there was room for

Then our fortune changed a little, and my mother said

Wouldn't bother any longer

But the store clothes didn't please me; there were times they made me sad,
For I missed those good, old

Summer Sky Sights

(By EARL UBEL, Science Editor, in New York Herald Tribune).

There will be two rare and beautiful astronomical displays this summer which appear in a month; the planet Mars will make its closest approach to it has been since 1939 and a total eclipse of the sun by the moon will sweep across the top of the world.

Both events (the eclipse on June 30, the appearance of Mars during the whole month of June and part of July) will provide a field day for both the professional and amateur astronomer.

The professionals are taking advantage of the shortened distance between Mars and Earth (about forty million miles on July 2) to try to find out if there is any life on that dismal planet.

Utilizing the travel speed of the rocket-ship in the solar eclipse, they will measure accurately the distances between points on the earth's surface. The shadow, arising at dawn, 5:07 a.m., in Nott
Antarctica, will plunge at a speed of 2,000 miles an hour toward Pakistan.

What will the amateur see?

In New York's wide open telescopes, he will have a chance to get a good look at Mars long ing low in the southern sky like a dull red fireball. It will be in the constellation Sagittarius, which looks like a teacup.

If the observer on successive nights, the amateur will be able to see Mars float eastward among the stars, change course to the west and then go east again. This retrograde motion of Mars puzzled the ancient observers, who settle the canal question.

Is Conformity Growing?

ers the wonderful process of thought and finds that he is capable of making decisions he is —perhaps until some point late in life—between the desire to conform and the urge to be different—he individualist. Toward the end of his life he may find that he can be an individual or nonconformist as he chooses, as long as he does not interfere with his neighbor's peace, but until he attains that pinnacle he will spend many hours wrestling with two forces pulling him in opposing directions.

A thoughtful gentleman who keeps an eye on young people's habits and fads observes that youngsters (male) in many high schools these days all wear the same garb—black leather packets and blue jeans—which are turned up at the bottom. He wants to know whether this is a sign of a new conformity and, if so, what or it is good. He says that to him this garb has a menacing appearance that is vaguely disturbing, unlike certain other clothing fads, for example, that an era when high school boys wore knickerbockers and "belong" a lad just had to have at least one pair. The thing just then was, he says, that the trousers were obtainable in outfitting stores, and hence ever though a boy conformed to custom and wore corduroys he was held, in their way, to a wide latitude through which to express his individuality. Today's fashion ity conspicuously lacking in the black packet-blue jeans brigade.
Just then was, he says, that to know—does the packet-and-jeans outfit express individuality in thought and action? Are today's youngsters less "individual" than the youngsters of a generation ago? Do they tend more to conform to "group" patterns?

Fair questions—and who's to answer them? How does one measure the degree of individuali-ality present in one generation as compared to another? Did the conformity apparent in the raccoon-skin coat era extend beyond college days and, if so, was it harmful? (Probably "no" to both, but how does one know for sure?) Has not each generation of youngsters had some so-called or obnoxious fad, some outlandish common appearance suggesting mass uniformity?
Probably. And yet isn't it possible that young people are passing less irrational as a result of adults' emphasis in recent years on the well-adjusted personality?

Dr. Peter Viereck, Pulitzer Prize-winning poet and Associate Professor of History at Mount Holyoke College, the other day had some provocative thoughts on this question of adjustment. A increasing number of scholarship recommendation blanks to be filled out by teachers, he observed, contained questions such as "Is your student well adjusted? A good mixer? Is effect, a regular guy?" This, Dr.
Viereck suggests, represents the "menace of the well-adjusted man" the "mass man," and he sees as the "new hero" of the day "the unadjusted man," the one who is not adjusting to "current ephemeral fads." How typical do these well-adjusted" students, these "regular fellows," pledge that phenomenal success that they may mistake for the permanent and the real?

Harvard's president, Dr. Nathan
M. Pusey, has observed that "the business of liberal education is greatness." If that is so—and it's worth pondering—then even at the high-school level should be aimed at developing greatness some sometimes from the "well-adjusted" and the "regular fellow." It is not often from the student who has the de-terminedness and courage to stand against patterns around him that mean, in essence, mediocrity

He needs to be encouraged, but many places he finds himself being urged to become "better adjusted,"

Should Ban Skean-Dhus

(Windsor Star).

During the session of the Criminal Code, consideration is being given to dangerous pons. But, thus far, we haven't heard it suggested the skean-dhu be outlawed.

The skean-dhu is a sharp, dick-like instrument, the use of which by many varied purposes in its long history, from carving up the roasted ox to the cutting up and ing of cans. Strangely enough, it also is worn as something of a ful refreshment.

The skean-dhu never has had much vogue as a weapon on this continent, but its potentials are obvious. Many persons who call them have them in a handy spot.
All they have to do is to slip it out of the skean-dhu out of their sock.

It is regarded as an offensive weapon, even in Scotland. One George Green, a Scottish trooper, was fined in Aberdeen for having it and indicating a desire to use it for a violent purpose.
He took a dislike to a couple of cops, and drawing, pointing his skean-dhu at them the while.
The magistrate held that this peaceable fellow, being carried without lawful authority or reasonable excuse, was guilty under the Civil Code should take similar cognizance of the weapon.

The skean-dhu is part of the dagger carried by those full-blooded Scots who, in part of the kilt suit as the sporran and the kilt. It is thought that it may be available in quick need. Less Scots in Canada be tempted to lawed, we might observe the dirk

Casual Visits Best

(Minneapolis Tribune)

A neighbor of ours wondered out loud, the other evening, why the old-fashioned custom of visiting friends, without benefit of invitation, had gone into limbo.

He bemoaned the fact that it was no longer cricket to barge in on the family for a call or so of chit-chat unless invited—usually by way of a telephone call.
Mrs. Smith time to slick up the house and whip up something in the way of refreshments.

This, complained our neighbor, robbed the custom of spontaneity, easy informality, and charm.
When one goes anywhere nowadays, he said, it is for a formal affair, with a planned entertainment, or for a meal by invitation and by ceremony that required a week-in-advance billing.

We don't know much more of this sort of thing, he said. It's too bad that people get so engrossed in their own affairs caught with their hair down and their shoes off and sitting down on the plank and papers on the floor.

We told him that we agreed and that we'd break the ice, would make an informal call soon.
Before we got into his eye and he asked, with a poor show of nonchalance, when it might be. He looked pained, mumbled, like to give Alice a bit of warning.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

When we older people were being taught to spell, we learned that club-sh-luh spelled cat, and that duh-awg-guh spelled dog. As we grew more advanced in our academic struggles, we came on words that didn't make sense at all; but after a few experiences we learned that the word "yacht" was not to be read as we would have to watch out for.

The modern child is spared all the pitfalls of phonetic spelling, and is taught to spell words by the "look-and-say" method. Greatness to recognize words by their appearance, just as he learns a face from a cat, or a dog. The system is a move in the direction of the Chinese. Words are made up combinations of letters, but are symbols of a certain thing. It is easy to see that the art of spelling has not suffered, and that better results today than in the champions than they used to in my day.

But the game of scrabble is revealing a startling number of people who don't know how to spell.

This game is a sort of reverse cross-word puzzle. You have given a checkerboard. And if there is anything funnier than two fellows who can't spell playing scrabble, I would like to hear of it. I was called in recently to settle a dispute. My lady who opened had the word had among the counters dealt her and I got the word. The other lady, with a glad cry, put down boldly.

"What's that?" I checked.

"Bullet," said the player.

"That's not right," I laughed.

"What's the matter with it?" demanded the opponent, suspicious-
ly. "That spells bullet."

It is not how it sets them go.
Before the game ended, we had anger, adversary, frailo, revele, sneer, adversary, frailo, revele,
Teacher and Pleche!"

"Fleche!" I could stand it no longer. "What's fleche?"

"It's a kind of bird," said the lady who played it.

And the both of them knew of a bird named fleche. I figured scrabble was a wonderful game.
Everybody can play it.

Further Plans to Beautify Victoria Park Discussed

A combined meeting of the city council planning committee, the city parks board and representatives from the Belleville Yacht Club, met Wednesday evening to discuss plans for this year's development program for Victoria Park.

The necessity of joint development of the park if its facilities were to be utilized to the best advantage to all was stressed at the meeting.

During the past two years the local yacht club have rebuilt the old dressing rooms on the park into a modern club room, while docking facilities have been constructed on the inner harbor to accommodate pleasure craft of all kinds.

Commodore Jack Sills of the yacht club, referred to the development which has already taken place, while Dr. Jack Marshall told the committee of the work done already this year in securing fill for the park.

WILL STOP ON TOUR.

He said the National Yacht Club would stop this year at Belleville during their July tour. For many years Belleville had been passed up on the annual tour due to improved yachting facilities this city would once again be included on the tour.

Discussion centered mainly on this year's development program for the park. It was planned to install lights on the new dock with outlets to provide electricity for visiting yachts, while docked at Belleville. Lights will also be placed along the roadway to the club house. Plans were also made for further road improvements to the park.

200 LOADS SECURED.

Alderman Keegan reported that approximately 300 loads of heavy fill had been secured from the excavation at Bean's Flats and Chip store. This had been placed on the park and levelled.

Long term plans for the future development of the park were also discussed, this to be carried out under the direction of the planning committee of council.

Alderman Keegan as chairman of the planning committee, expressed his appreciation to persons taking an active part in the development of the park and noted that through joint efforts of the planning committee, the parks board and the yachting club, Victoria Park in a few years would become one of the finest parks in the province.

He noted that the park's new yachting facilities had already received favorable publicity in the March edition of "Boating" magazine, a publication with wide circulation on the continent.

The article includes a fine aerial picture of Victoria Park and the inner harbor.

Attending the meeting were Alderman Keegan and Ald. Bruce Smith; parks board members Max Matthews and Harry Smith, and yacht club members Col. F. H. Wills, Jack Sills, Jack Tulbam and Dr. Jack Marshall.

Progress Made on Mediation Between Chamber and Board

TRENTON (Special) — The Trenton Chamber has accomplished the first part of its proposal to mediate between the parks board and the town council locked in disagreement about a piece of land north of the Fraser Park retaining wall on the waterfront. At a meeting of the board of parks management yesterday the majority agreed to consider a letter from the Chamber.

The letter read: Mr. O. G. Alves, Secretary, Trenton Parks Board, Trenton. Dear Mr. Alves: In reference to the present controversy re the property situated north of the stone wall adjacent to Senator Fraser Park.

We, the directors of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce, are of the opinion that if the Parks Board will agree to the following suggestions, Council may reconsider their stand on the above disputed property.

Following are the proposed suggestions to the Board: 1. That the present roadway leading from Albert St. to the Government dock along the north side of Senator Fraser Park, council and will not be closed to traffic by the Parks Board. 2. That orderly parking will always be allowed by the Board in the area north of the roadway leading from Albert Street to the Government dock.

Trusting you will bring this matter before the Board for their earnest consideration, we remain, yours very truly, H. B. Smith, Secretary, Trenton Chamber of Commerce.

Supported by a motion moved by board member K. J. Couch and seconded by board member Miss Helen Sutcliffe, the following piece of correspondence was directed to the secretary of the Chamber of Commerce from the secretary of the parks board. Mr. H. B. Smith, Trenton Chamber of Commerce, Trenton. Dear Sir: With further reference to your letter of March 25, I am instructed by the Board of Parks Management to reply as follows: Your suggestion No. 1 is approved "in entirety" by this board.

Your suggestion No. 2 is approved, with the exception of the word "always" which is to be deleted. Yours truly, O. Alves, Secretary, Trenton Parks Board.

Parks Board members felt that they had no right to determine the policy of future Boards by authorizing the same suggestion with the word "always" included.

Voice of People Will Not Be Heard This Year

TRENTON (Special) — The voice of the people who gave the 1954 council authority to spend $500,000 on a sewage treatment plant and a portion of the carry-off system will not be heard this year according to Mayor Ross Burtt.

The Board of Health has a different view on the subject. Recently the Board urged council to go ahead with the project. Other interests in town have been waiting for council to announce its intention.

Since then, however, council's budget figures indicated that town fathers decided to drop the treatment scheme and proceed with another plan. The budget showed that $25,000 had been earmarked for sewage installations. Mayor Burtt reports that a new septic tank will be constructed down by the waterfront replacing one of the ancient receptacles. There is also provision made for additions to the present sewage liner.

When the taxpayers sanctioned the treatment plant expenditure the majority in favor was large enough to expel any doubt as to the feelings of the citizens who pays the bills.

Says White House Seaway Attitude Proves Puzzling

WASHINGTON (AP) — Representative John A. Blatnik (Dem., Minn.) said today that he is "puzzled" at the White House attitude in connection with delay in consideration by the United States House of Representatives of the St. Lawrence seaway proposal.

That House rules committee, after morning and afternoon hearings Thursday, again postponed a vote on whether to clear the bill for floor action.

"I am puzzled at the White House attitude," Blatnik said in an interview. "The White House seems more reluctant to press the rules committee for action than it was to press the House public works committee. Apparently it is trying to keep the rules committee in line on other legislation it wants."

Blatnik is a member of the public works committee which earlier approved the measure by a surprising 23 to six.

WILL BE FITTED IN—IKE

President Eisenhower was asked a week ago if he was asking the House leadership to push the seaway. Eisenhower replied that he had assurance that it would be fitted into the program and he did not want to ask the leadership to upset the program.

"All we are asking is that the issue be allowed to go to the House floor for a vote. The members then can vote it up or down. It is a simple issue," Blatnik said.

"All the arguments as to whether it would harm this or that port mean nothing, as Canada will build it along if we do not."

Blatnik said he believes most of the Republican leaders in the House are favorable to the seaway and are willing to let it stay.

ACTRESS GOES HELPING

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actress Penny Edwards says she's quitting the screen "to do the Lord's work in whatever way He wills." The 23-year-old former New York stage actress Thursday night said she and her husband, Ralph Wisbert, a television casting director, plan to join the Foursquare Gospel Church. She retired from 20th Century-Fox last year to await the birth of her daughter.

Pearson Sees Little Assurance Of Peace in H-Bomb Possession

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Pearson sees little assurance of peace in the fact that both the United States and Russia have the hydrogen bomb.

One way to keep the bomb from being used, he said Thursday in Senate debate, is to avoid provoking an aggressor into using it.

Mr. Pearson, leading a foreign policy debate, disagreed with an earlier statement by Opposition Leader Drew that lasting peace is closer because the new weapons are so powerful that no one will dare to use them.

"Can anyone get any real comfort or assurance of security, or that we are really nearing lasting peace, from the prospect of two admittedly hostile power groups facing each other in fear and anxiety with their hydrogen bombs ready?

Mr. Pearson disputed Mr. Drew's comparison of hydrogen bombs with poison gas, which both sides had refrained from using in the last war.

"The situation is not the same now," he said. Military experts had said poison gas, and bacteriological warfare were not used because they gave no chance of ending the war in a quick, devastating blow.

Mr. Pearson also gave Canada's view on Russia's new proposal for a new European security pact and Russian membership in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The proposal, he warned, may be a propaganda trap designed to delay ratification of the European Defence Community treaty in Western Europe.

Mr. Pearson suggested that Russia use the United Nations if it wants to assure peace.

COMPANY 7—GIRL GUIDES

Last evening a delightful "Mother and Daughter" banquet was held in St. Andrew's Sunday School rooms under the convenorship of Guide mother, Mrs. G. Kennedy, and her assistants.

The tables were most attractive with their decorations of blue and gold, the Guide colors, while the head table had a centerpiece centre of yellow daffodils with the blue lettering, "C.G.G.", dominated by the 1st Belleville Guides. The side tables were equally as pretty with their yellow daffodils and blue irises, flanked by blue and yellow candles.

The banquet opened with the Guide prayer. The toast to The Queen was given by Mrs. Brown, president of the local association. Guide Judy Lang presided at the piano.

The toast to the mothers and guests was proposed by Company leader Sheila Shier, and to the Guides by Mrs. J. Rosevear.

BADGES PRESENTED

District Captain, Mrs. Amos, presented second class badges to the following Guides: Beth Clarke, Joan Colwill, Donna Belsanger, Jean Belair and Arlene Cox.

Proficiency badges were won by, Beverly Samuels; pioneer, by Jean Belair also music lover and minstrel.

Eleanor Clarke, on behalf of the Guide Company, presented Mrs. F. D. Ashley with a gift. Mrs. Ashley is Akela of the 2nd Cub Pack, and Cadet superintendent of St. John Ambulance corps. She also instructs the Guides in first aid.

GOLD CORDS

District Commissioner, Mrs. R. D. Arnott, assisted by Captain Samuels, presented gold cords to Guides Eleanor Clarke and Sheila Shier. This is the highest award which may be won by a Guide, requiring approximately five years of diligent effort, great ability and determination for this goal.

The knowledge gained by Guides achieving this honor will be of inestimable value in their adult life.

Captain Mrs. H. Samuels is to be congratulated on having these Guides reach this goal.

In thirty-two years of Guiding in Belleville, only four other girls have been awarded gold cords.

The Guides entertained their mothers with several Guide songs.

Women's Auxiliary Fashion And Variety Show Delights Large Audience on 1st Night

All the charm and rhythm of spring in Gay Paree captivated a large audience of more than 1,000 Thursday night, during the first of a two-night performance of the RCAF Trenton Women's Auxiliary fashion and variety show "Comet Flight to Paris".

A cast of eighty-five amateur performers from in and around Middleton Park appeared on stage during this two hour show. The talent-filled program opened with its first scene in adjoining hotel rooms and ended its destination at the Moulin Rouge Theatre, Paris.

Four of Middleton Park's finest amateur actors and actresses set the stage for the colorful story. Mr. and Mrs. Jones played by Mrs. F. H. Wallis and F/O D. L. Jones, and Mr. and Mrs. Brown, played by F/L R. F. Herbert and Mrs. R. G. Boorman inject considerable humor into the start of the show.

As the curtain comes down on the foursome, voices of twenty-five passengers anticipate the "charm of spring" in Paris with their singing of the tune "April in Paris." The chorus, formed only two months ago under the direction of H. Frudens includes: F/Lt. J. Bangs, Mrs. W. P. Casey, Mrs. R. Cockrane, B. Coker, Mrs. J. H. Dempster, G. D. Dwyer, Mrs. F. D. Forman, Mrs. M. M. Gordon, D. Lee, S/L G. C. MacDonald, B. McMorris, H. Prudens, Mrs. R. J. Reynolds, Mrs. C. Wood, R. Bouchard, Mrs. S. J. Cairns, Mrs. P. Clark, Mrs. B. Coker, S/L. R. L. Davis, Mrs W. G. Dever, Mrs. D. J. Fisher, Mrs. A. H. Galbraith, W/C J. A. Gordon, Miss B. Lilly, Mrs. J. G. McCormack, Mrs. C. E. Maitland, Mrs. H. Prudens, Mrs. R. S. Thorne, D. Campbell, and Mrs. H. Gourlay.

MODELS DISPLAY FASHIONS.

In the second scene, the Browns and Jones meet in Madame Fabian Salon, where Mrs. A. K. Ogilvie, Salon Madam, presents twelve lovely models wearing the latest in spring fashions from the stores of local merchants. Lil Lorraine King, the Royal Canadian Air Force's cover girl, and LAW Sophie Kirkpatrick, set aside their uniforms for two evenings to appear in fashion's newest creations. Gowns, suits, bathing costumes, afternoon and cocktail dresses, sportswear, coats, furs and shoes are displayed by the models, including Mrs. H. K. Baird, Mrs. C. G. Campbell, Mrs. W. G. Massiah, Mrs. T. H. Wright, Mrs. D. J. Smith, Mrs. J. A. Gordon, Mrs. R. F. Herbert, Mrs. L. Londsbury, Mrs. E. E. Pallis, and Mrs. J. A. Robertson. Fashion enthusiasts welcomed the wide array of apparel as the models displayed their twenty-seven complete ensembles.

Madam's Fashion Salon was the setting for a delightful chorus line routine by Mrs. J. A. Jolley, Mrs. P. Kennedy, Mrs. L. J. Hill, Mrs. W. J. Flavin, Mrs. R. L. Davis, and Mrs. L. A. Dawes. The six French maids trip lightly to the rhythm of the "Syncopated Clock." In contrast to their colorful duets, they appeared for their early morning duties in black and brown brief costumes. While Frilly aprons and dusting caps completed their attractive outfits done by Mrs. T. P. O'Bryne and committee.

The Air Terminal Waiting Room was the scene of a lively and colorful "Sullcar Dance" by Mrs. R. R. McDowell, Mrs. R. Harrison, Mrs. T. H. Dumarsq, Mrs. T. D. Macauley, and Mrs. H. Knight. The choral group singing "Neapolitan Nights" formed a background for the dancing travellers.

STEER BUMPY COURSE

Act II finds the merry crew of the Comet steering a bumpy course to Paris and the Moulin Rogue. Pilot F/L W. H. Ingram, co-pilot W/C W. G. Dever, navigator F/O J. T. Seamadi, engineer F/S. R. J. Lechler, and hostess Mrs. R. C. Diamond use the "Comet's" ultra-modern navigation equipment to draw plenty of laughs from the audience.

The passenger section of the aircraft is the setting for a practise session by the troupe headed for the Moulin Rouge. S/L I. F. Murray, master of ceremonies introduces a variety of solo artists. Commedienne Law Lee Villiers does an excellent impersonation of the famous songstress Kay Starr and others.

Mezzo-soprano Mrs. W. G. Dever, star of "S. S. Quinte" Coronation Cruise returns to the stage to add variety to "Comet Flight to Paris" with her rendition of "Your Eyes Have Told Me So."

Jive fans applauded the jitterbugging of AW2 Callie Mayes and LAC Lee Bazlen. The two "Be-Bop" artists jumped and twirled their way through a number, both lively and colorful. LAC Barton's rout suit of pink, trousers and jacket with white numbers lapels contrasted with his partner's pink polka-dot skirt and plain pink blouse.

Miss Agnes Ward pantomimed her way through a "Good Man Is Now-a-Days is Hard to Find." Sgt Thomas McGee left his position with the Training Command band to appear on stage singing "Don Young," LAC Jack Wallace, harmonica virtuoso and well-known to Trenton audiences drew "Ruby" for his number aboard the "Comet."

TAPS WAY THROUGH DANCE.

A second pantomime featured Miss Pat Kellet in "C'est Ci Bon." Mrs. E. R. McDowell, choreographer, who appeared before the title Queen Mary during a command performance, tapped her way through "Bye Bye Blues." The Trentonaires, a string ensemble, including Ken Hood, Doug Hyland and Ray Tonks completed the practice session. The inebriate was F/O J. M. Spencer.

Lively Can-Can dancers highlight the final scene in the Moulin Rouge Theatre, with the most flawless number by some of Middleton Park's fine dancers drew a loud round of applause from an appreciative audience. Can Can lovelies were Mrs. J. E. Mellischer, Mrs. M. E. Cook, Mrs. D. F. Woolin, Mrs. P. A. Dognaux, Mrs. M. M. Gordon, Mrs. A. B. Higginson, Mrs. W. M. McMorran, Mrs. B. H. Powell.

Moulin Rouge Theatre-goers were treated to a delightful combination of choral singing and ballroom dancing when F/L and Mrs. H. M. Lepard shared the stage with the Choral Group.

Elaborate costuming also adds reality to the Parisienne theatre scene when Miss Agnes Ward returns to the stage for her second number. Mrs. Ward, gowned in silver and adorned with jewels, gives an authentic presentation of her vocal number "Diamonds are a Girl's Best Friend."

Rev. G.H. King Addresses Baptist W.M.C. on 'Mission to Lepers'

The March meeting of the Women's Mission Circle of Victoria Avenue Baptist church, was held in the S.S. auditorium on Tuesday evening.

The president, Miss Ethel Nurse, presided and extended a gracious welcome to everyone present which included not only circle members but also representatives from various other organizations in the church and friends from some of the other churches in the city.

During the opening worship service, a beautiful solo was sung by the Rev. L. K. Daniel, and an impressive meditation was given by Mrs. A. E. Berry, who centred her remarks on the beatitude, "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God." She said in part—"How do we see God? Through a knowledge of Jesus Christ. If we do not see Him the fault is in our own lives. To talk about a pure heart is one thing, to possess it and keep it is another. But Jesus said 'Be of good cheer. I have overcome the world.' We too can overcome the world and get our relationships and behavior right. Then we can see God."

SPECIAL SPEAKER

The special speakey of the evening was the Rev. G. H. King, of Toronto, Canadian secretary to the Mission to Lepers. In introducing the speaker, Miss Nurse mentioned that his wife is the former Marie Grafton, whose father used to be on the Belleville Collegiate staff.

Mr. King gave an interesting address about the work of the "Mission to Lepers", which is an international and interdenominational organization working in co-operation with forty different Protestant Mission Societies, trying to gather in every known sufferer and do all in its power to transform that person, physically and spiritually.

When Christ sent out His disciples, one of His commands was "Cleanse the lepers"—Matthew 10:8. The mission has been in operation for 79 years, but of the two million known cases of leprosy less than two per cent have as yet had anything done for them, either medicinally or spiritually. The mission has established a policy of operation with four main purposes: 1. To undertake to reach all the lepers with a knowledge of Christ and His saving grace; 2. To provide shelter, food, clothing and medical supplies to all who can be admitted into the leper homes; 3. To rescue and care for the unlabelled children born to parents with leprosy, in order to prevent them from contracting the disease; 4. By careful research to try to find a way to eventually destroy the disease forever. They still don't know how it is transmitted. No animal has ever been known to have leprosy.

Doctors, who volunteered to act as human guinea pigs, were injected with the germ and did not develop the disease. The sulfane drugs are proving most helpful in curing it.

The denominations are asked to provide the personnel and the mission undertakes to raise the money for operating the homes. Mr. King has travelled in India, China and Africa and was impressed everywhere by the cleanliness of the homes and the spirit of joy and fellowship among the lepers.

Following his address, Mr. King showed a movie, "The Healing of Moses Mvondo," which showed vividly the true story of a little African boy, who was shunned and separated from all his companions because he had the dread disease, then was taken to one of the Mission Leper Homes.

After three years of tender care, treatment, and teaching, Mvondo was returned to his own family and village, completely cured. This work is a great challenge to all the Protestant denominations, because there is a great need for the extension of this Christ-like ministry—a need for Christian doctors, nurses, teachers and missionaries—a need for financial support, and a need for earnest prayer.

Mrs. W. Neal thanked Mr. King for his splendid message, and a substantial offering was received for him for the great cause which he had so ably presented.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DO YOU TRIED THE "Y" NEW FRIENDS, GOOD TIMES?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I think that there are many letters in your column written by high boys and girls who find it difficult to make new friends, so I thought I would like to tell those young people about my experience with the YMCA, you have mentioned in your column many times that I joined the "Y" in October 1953, and life has never been so wonderful as it has been since. The age group I have joined is from 20 to 30 and over. Since I'm 21, I fit in perfectly.

On Tuesday evenings, the "Y" holds a dancing class from 8:15 to 9:30 and every third week a new dance is taught. From 9 to midnight, they have social dancing. And in order to make sure that everyone joins in the fun, we do many "mix-up" dances. Every Tuesday night, there is social from 9 to 12:30.

You can't imagine what wonderful people one can meet at the "Y". I have quite a few young men with whom I have had many dates, and I have been invited to parties through people I have met there. I have also learned of other places where young people meet to enjoy themselves. The cost is small, being only $1.50 to join and a penny time you go thereafter.

Here's hoping that other young people may be helped through this letter. — Gina F.

Dear Gina:

It was very thoughtful indeed of you to write to me, and I'm sure that young people who read it will appreciate it as much as I do.

While the social program of every "Y" may not be exactly the same as the one you have joined, since the YMCA opened its membership to girls as well as to most of them do have many social events of the type you describe, and it is certainly worthwhile for young people to investigate their local "Y".

What you say about being invited to parties by young people you met at the "Y" and learning about other opportunities for young people through them is just what I mean when I write in my column that, once a person has joined an organization where they can make new friends, their social life at once begins to broaden.

I'm very glad indeed to hear about your experience, and I'm sure it will be helpful to many readers of this column.

MORE PLEASE!

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 60 years old and have been a widow for five years.

I have worked for a living since several years before my husband died while working. I met a man of 70 with whom I became great friends. Some time ago we had some difficulty, and broke up our close friendship, although we are still friends.

I would like to know what I can do to get him back. — L.J.M.

Dear L.J.M.:

I'm afraid I can't give you any satisfactory answer without knowing a great deal more about both you and this man. If you had even told me what the trouble was that came between you, it would have given me at least a little something on which to base an opinion. As it is, I couldn't possibly venture one.

Perhaps you would like to write me again and tell me in more detail about your friendship with this man. In that case, I might be able to advise you whether it would be worth while to try and revive your friendship, or whether you had better just accept it for what it is now.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

TAKE A BACKWARD LOOK

Illustrated by Kay Parker

The Beauty Routine Should Include Care Of The Arms, Shoulders And Back.

Plunging necklines and strapless evening gowns are old stuff—no longer exciting. Now, when the formal is worn, feminine backs are naked and unashamed. While skirts are billowy, requiring yards of fabric, the amount of material used in a bodice wouldn't make a decent doll's dress. Which means that the beauty routine must include attention to the arms, shoulders and back.

It is surprising how many skin defects the back can collect and carry. It can be oily or color, due to irritation produced by sweaters and coarse fabrics. It can take on a coarse texture, and little nubby bumps along the line of the spinal column may be present because of poor posture. There may be a slight roll of flesh just youth of the nape line, due to too many cream puffs and other sweets.

With frocks practically backless, beauty shops are making a specialty of back treatments.

These treatments consist of molding, bleaching, skin-refining and muscle-toning. Localized fat can be kneaded away, though it takes a strong-armed Amazon to accomplish that presto-change act. Still it can be done and the so-called "dowager's hump" is often dissolved in just a few treatments.

The customer is placed face downward on a long table. Chest, arms, shoulders and back are given a goin, over with a thin oil. Steaming hot towels are applied to complete the cleansing process.

A heavy massage cream is worked into the flesh that is picked up in folds, smoothed and ironed out. Rotary movements are used along the spinal column. At that point the subject often goes to sleep. This relaxation alone is worth the investment.

Borated talcum is sprinkled over the back, combining with the cream to form a pack. Hot, moist applications are applied again. When the pack is removed an astringent is patted on with cotton balls.

Readers' Friday Column

As Conducted by Mary Moore

QUESTION:

I am planning on being married in the near future and would like some information on several things. We are having a white church wedding but the reception will only be for our relatives. . . . I have no uncle to be present so wonder if the minister could propose the toast. Who buys all the flowers, including corsages for both mothers? I was also wondering about the church reservation, engaging the minister and those details. In a double ring ceremony who carries both rings. I would greatly appreciate any other details you could send me.—Lillian D.

ANSWER:

If your minister knows you well you may ask him to propose the toast, but usually at one of the bride—not necessarily an uncle. The bride's family orders and pays for the bridesmaid's bouquets. The groom pays for the bride's bouquet and corsage to wear going away and for the corsages for his own and the bride's mother and for boutonnieres for the best man and usher, and for himself and his and the bride's father. The bride's family reserves the church, engages the minister and looks after all arrangements and expenses connected with the wedding itself. In a double ring ceremony the bride chooses and pays for a similar wedding ring to hers for the groom. The ring is carried by the maid or matron of honor and is placed on the minister's Bible right after the best man has placed the bride's ring on it. The minister of course should be informed that yours is to be a double-ring ceremony.

QUESTION:

I do hope you can help me. I would like a recipe on how to mix hamburg steak to serve hamburgs on the bun to at least 25 to 30 people in an economical but tasty way. Also a more or less soupy mixture for pork barbecues and chicken barbecues, and recipe for good chili con carne—all this to serve to the same amount of people. Also a hint on how to make good silex coffee.—Mrs. K.

ANSWER:

HAMBURG PATTIES

(For thirty people.)

Seven and one-half lbs. minced beef, 2 cups finely chopped onion, 3 tablespoons fat, 4 1-2 cups dry fine breadcrumbs, 3 2-3 tablespoons salt, 1 teaspoon pepper, 3 cups tomato juice or meat stock or milk or water, 1 teaspoon MSG (Accent). Saute onions in the fat until transparent but not brown, then mix all ingredients.

BARBECUE SAUCE (For 30)

This sauce will serve for pork or chicken.

Three cups catsup, 3 tablespoons salt, 1 1-3 teaspoons tabasco sauce, 3-4 teaspoon chili powder, 6 cups water, 1 tablespoon dry mustard, 1-3 cup brown sugar. Heat all of these ingredients together or pour cold over pork or chicken when it is raw, and bake it in and baste it with this sauce. Also good for spareribs.

CHILI CON CARNE (For 25)

Four and one-half lbs. ground beef, 1 lb. ground pork, 3-4 cup chopped onions, 1-3 cup drippings or shortening, 6 cups cooked kidney beans (or 3 cups dried kidney beans soaked overnight and cooked until nearly tender), 10 cups canned or fresh cut-up tomatoes, 1 1-4 tablespoons chili powder, 2 1-2 tablespoons salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper, 1 1-2 tablespoons sugar. Brown meat and onions in the fat in large frying pan or in pan in oven at 425 deg. Fahr. Add tomatoes and seasonings to meat and simmer on top of stove or in oven of 350 deg. Fahr. for an hour. If not thick enough thicken with flour and water paste. If homecooked beans are used add when you add tomatoes. If canned beans are used just long enough before serving to heat them through.

For vacuum type coffee maker use pulverized grind (fine as powder). I use 6 tablespoons of this grind for each 4 cups boiling water in my drip coffee maker.

Another method: For 46 cups of coffee mix 1 egg, shell and all, into 1 1-4 lbs. fine grind coffee. Add 1 cup cold water. Tie this in cheesecloth bag large enough to allow room for swelling. Measure 7 1-2 quarts cold water. Immerse coffee bag in it and bring to boil. Remove from heat. Leave bag in for 4 minutes, then remove. Keep hot over "simmer" burner.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

SHOULD SHE CONTINUE TO SERVE HER MORE AMPLE MENU?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We have entertained my husband's boss and his wife at dinner on several occasions. Our dinner menu always consisted of appetizer or soup; main course; salad; dessert and beverage. They reciprocated, entertaining us at dinner and serving a main course; dessert and beverage. Now we have again extended our dinner invitation to them, and I am wondering about our menu. Since their financial status is on a much higher lever than ours, we wonder if we should change our menus to the size of theirs to spare them possible embarrassment, or do you think we should continue to serve our customary number of courses.

A.

No real reason why you should change the general plan of your menu. . . and if I were you, I wouldn't change it. Just have fun serving them a well-planned and well-cooked dinner! However, since the difference-in-number-of-courses is (1) in having a first course, and (2) in serving a salad, you may, if you still make your more comfortable about the "difference," serve a simple consommé as the first course, and serve a simple green salad as an accompaniment of the main course. (Aside to you, from me. . . I'm sure they've heartily enjoyed heretofore and will continue to enjoy your more ample menu!)

MOTHER MUST WRITE TO DEAN

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I need your help so very much. I have to go to school in Europe and our way of expressing ourselves is a wee bit different from here. Now I have a most important letter to answer, a letter I have just received from the Dean of a college my daughter attends. It seems that her first semester was very hard for her, and she just made passing grades. I know that about fifty percent of the parents of this Freshman class received these letters. However, I do want to write, and I am always very sensitive about my grammar. I would appreciate your help about the letter.

Sincerely,

Yes, this letter should be answered. Your reply might read something like this:

My dear Dean Hill,

I have received your letter concerning the first semester grades of my daughter, Elizabeth Ward. I appreciate your sending me this information about her marks, and I am truly sorry, as I know she is that she did not achieve better grades. She found the first semester work extremely difficult, but she has very seriously promised me that she will put her full effort on doing better work this next semester. I believe you will find that she will.

Thank you for courtesy.

Sincerely yours,

Mary Allen Ward

LOBSTER FOR THE CONNOISSEUR

Ed Gebistorf, head chef at Halifax's largest hotel, says a Western senator's claim that Nova Scotians can't cook fish is "hooey". Senator Arthur Beaubien from Manitoba told the Senate tourist committee recently that Nova Scotians aren't so hot at cooking fish. Ed is shown here starting work on a lobster which, he says, would make the senator's mouth water. Gebistorf, a member of a Swiss family, has been a restaurant chef in Canada since 1933. (CP Photo)

Ed Gebistorf, Nova Scotian Chef, Is Good Lobster Cook

By RAE CORELLI
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HALIFAX (CP) — "You," remarked Mr. Gebistorf, slicing homarus americanus neatly down the middle, "are about to see and taste something that would even make Mr. Beaubien's mouth water."

Mr. Gebistorf, also known as Ed, is a hotel chef. Arthur L. Beaubien is the Manitoba senator who a while ago told the Senate tourist committee that Nova Scotians aren't so hot at cooking fish.

Homarus americanus is the lobster. After three years at the Nova Scotian hotel here, Mr. Gebistorf figures he qualifies as the Nova Scotian who allegedly can't prepare homarus americanus for the connoisseur.

POINTED QUESTION

In fact, Mr. Beaubien even asked the committee if the Canadian Restaurant Association is teaching members on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts how to cook fish.

Because, said the senator, if they weren't, they should be.

"Ha," said Mr. Gebistorf. "As you say, 'hooey.'"

He scooped a chunk of something out of the lobster's head. He explained: "Inedible."

Then he filled the cavity with seasoned cracker crumbs, paprika, salt and pepper.

The claws were cracked. Homarus americanus was laid on his quivering back in a broiling rack and thrust over a bed of red-hot charcoal.

Mr. Gebistorf said:

"This will take 15 minutes.

"This lobster cooking is quite a science. We serve eight main varieties at the hotel, like boiled, broiled, baked and so on. Then there are many sub-varieties; a thermidor is one.

NO COMPLAINTS

"At the peak of the season we serve about 60 pounds a day. I have been a restaurant chef in Canada since 1933. Complaints, ha. None. No.

"The ideal size for the tastiest lobster is 1¼ pounds. Bigger, too tough. Some demand big ones. Ha. Then they wonder why they aren't tender.

"The most popular with us is broiled live lobster. But the price, I think, is the determining factor—not the quality of the preparation.

"Even here in Nova Scotia, we must charge from $2.50 to $2.80 for a lobster. No good. The price is why they're not often sold by smaller restaurants. Only the big ones where the clientele can afford the price."

He looked at his watch and at homarus americanus. The lobster had acquired a deep red color and gave off a delicious steam.

"Fifteen minutes. Ha," said Mr. Gebistorf. He grabbed the broiling rack, swept it majestically to a side-table.

He speared a chunk of the meat and held it forward.

"Bite!" he grinned.

It was hot.

Mr. Beaubien, you're outvoted.

Vancouver Province Prints Unqualified Apology For Article on Recent Trial

JUIN FIRED

Marshall Alphonse Juin has been fired from his post as vice-president of the French superior council for the armed forces, the highest authority in the military organization of France. His outspoken criticism of the European Defence Community plans were the cause of his dismissal. (Central Press Canadian.)

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Vancouver Province Thursday printed an "unqualified apology for any reflection cast" upon Judge and jury in a recent murder trial by a column it published March 30.

The column, by Eric Nicol, dealt with capital punishment. It appeared after William Wakefield Gash, 19, was convicted and sentenced to be hanged June 22 for the golf-course murder of Frank Pitsch last Dec. 30.

The newspaper, publisher A. W. Moscarella, editor H. H. C. Anderson, and columnist Nicol were ordered by Mr. Justice J. V. Clyne to appear in court today to show why they should not be cited for contempt of court.

TEXT OF APOLOGY

The Province in a front-page story said:

"The column made reference to the judge and jury in the Gash case. The language used has been construed by the court to cast reflection on the judge, the jury and the administration of justice in this province.

"The Province, its publisher, its editor and Mr. Nicol had no intention whatsoever to reflect upon the judge, the jury or the administration of justice in any respect that the column was capable of being so interpreted.

"The object of the column by Mr. Nicol was to stimulate public discussion and interest in capital punishment, and to express Mr. Nicol's opposition to execution by hanging.

"To dramatize his subject Mr. Nicol mentioned the Gash murder case. In explaining the spirit in which he wrote this column, and its object, Mr. Nicol says:

"The purpose of the column was to stimulate discussion of capital punishment, in particular capital punishment by hanging, and to express my own horror of putting a fellow human to death in this way.

"The means I adopted was to create a dramatic situation, namely that of having died and having been tried at the court of divine judgment.

"I have been tried by God and found guilty of the crime of breaking the fifth commandment: Thou shalt not kill.

"The circumstances are intended to rise above man's law and to point out the conflict between man-made law and divine law. No name or slander of the participants in the Gash case or any other specific case was intended.

"The Province published the column in the spirit in which it was written.

"The Province, the publisher, the editor and Mr. Nicol tender the judge, the jury and others concerned in the Gash case an unqualified apology for any reflection cast upon them by the column."

'Chicken Game' Deplored By Oxford Member

OTTAWA (CP)—Deadly "parlor games" youthful pulp-owners play on the highways were cited Thursday in the Commons as possible reasons for increasing the minimum age of drivers.

Wallace Nesbitt (PC — Oxford) described two of the games to back up his statement that some 16-year-olds are more unstable than older persons. The minimum age of motorists in Ontario is 16.

The "chicken game" called for two drivers to run their jalopies at top speed at each other. The driver who swerved first to avoid a collision was "chicken."

Another game called for three persons to sit in the front seat and three in the back seat. The driver climbed to the back and the next man moved behind the wheel.

Mr. Nesbitt said he has been told that the rules of the game call for a speed of 60 miles an hour.

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP) — The New York Central Railroad has announced the reopening of its east Buffalo car shops April 12. About 350 of nearly 700 employees laid off March 8 will return to their jobs. Rules Committee Delays Action On Seaway Bill

By JAMES C. MUNN

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House of Representatives rules committee has put off until this month at least a decision on whether to send St. Lawrence seaway legislation to the House for final action.

Chairman Leo Allen (Rep. Ill.), after a lengthy afternoon hearing, announced the committee would not consider the bill further until after the Easter recess of the House which ends April 26.

Representative George Dondero (Rep. Mich.), chairman of the House public works committee that sent the seaway measure to the rules committee, said that inasmuch as his committee had completed action on the bill Feb. 3 "I had hoped to have this matter on the floor before Easter."

Dondero, who made no effort to hide his irritation, snapped:

"This matter should be expedited and disposed of—by the House—before the Easter recess."

"With regard to that," Allen said "I don't think it can be done."

The measure, approved by the Senate in January, would authorize the United States to join with Canada in building and administering the 2,000-mile Atlantic to the Great Lakes waterway.

CANADA PATIENT

Representative Tom Steed (Dem. Okla.), a member of the public works committee and an opponent of the bill, urged the rules committee to send the measure to the floor.

"Canada has been patient in cooperating with our government in this matter," Steed said, "and we owe it to the Canadian government to decide the issue at this session of Congress."

Asserting he thought the bill could be defeated in the House, Steed nevertheless said it would be "unfair" to give Canada "less than a full answer at this session."

Canada has officially told the United States that should Congress again reject the seaway proposal this year it will wait no longer for U.S. participation.

Instead, the Canadians have said they will build it themselves on their own side of the river. U.S. cost of the seaway is estimated at $105,000,000.

The U.S. work would be in the International Rapids section of the St. Lawrence and in canals at Ogdensburg, N.Y., on which New York state and Ontario will construct a $600,000,000 hydro-electric project.

Teacher Shortage in Alberta Draws Plenty of Attention

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The teacher shortage in Alberta drew plenty of attention in the provincial legislature Thursday.

The subject and the Social Credit government's proposals to alleviate the shortage has turned out to be the main topic of discussion at the legislature's current session.

A Social Credit backbencher joined in opposition criticism. Lee Leavitt, member for Banff-Cochrane and a teacher, said the government's proposal to let "student teachers take charge of classrooms after six weeks' training, postpones, if not removes, the solution of the real problem."

The criticism came on proposed second reading of the government's bill to provide emergency teacher training.

In Victoria, opposition leader Arnold Webster called on the British Columbia legislature to use its influence to help stop tests of the hydrogen bomb.

Members of the legislature thumped their desks in approval.

In Saskatchewan House, Canada's railways were asked to complete gaps in rail lines and extend service on existing lines in the province. The request was made in the form of a resolution approved unanimously by the legislature.

Dick Zipchen, CCF member for Redberry, said there are well-established communities in northeast Saskatchewan that are isolated because of inadequate rail service. Frank Powell, Progressive Conservative member for St. John's East, said in the Newfoundland House that apart from social benefits, there has been little improvement in the province since Confederation five years ago.

He said all costs have increased since Confederation, along with federal and provincial taxes, despite assurance by the Liberal government there would be no increase.

The measure, approved by the Senate in January, would authorize the United States to join with Canada in building and administering the deep Atlantic to the Great Lakes waterway.

CANADA PATIENT

Representative Tom Steed (Dem., Okla.), a member of the public works committee and an opponent of the bill, urged the rules committee to send the measure to the floor.

"Canada has been patient in cooperating with our government in this matter," Steed said, "and we owe it to the Canadian government to decide the issue at this session of congress."

Asserting he thought the bill would be defeated in the House, Steed nevertheless said it would be "unfair" to give Canada this "less than a full answer at this session."

Canada has officially told the United States that should Congress again reject the seaway proposal this year it will wait no longer for U.S. participation.

Instead, the Canadians have said they will build it themselves on their own side of the river. U.S. backers of the seaway estimate at $103,000,000.

The U.S. work would be in the International Rapids section of the St. Lawrence river—the same site which Ontario Hydro and Ontario will construct a $600,000,000 hydro-electric project.

Stiffer Fines for Crime Comics Publishers Sought by Members

OTTAWA (CP)—An opposition member who helped convince Parliament of the need for a ban on crime comics now wants stiffer penalties against their publishers, and against publishers of obscene material.

David Fulton, Progressive Conservative member for Kamloops, Thursday night proposed in the Commons a maximum $25,000 fine for corporations which publish crime comics, or a five-year term if the publisher is an individual.

The present maximum penalty of two years applies to both publishers and distributors and Mr. Fulton's proposed amendment said this should be continued for wholesalers and retailers.

He made his proposal as an amendment to the Criminal Code which is now before the Commons for revision.

Justice Minister Garson opposed the amendment on grounds that the law now provides an unlimited fine for corporations.

Mr. Fulton replied that a $25,000 fine has never been imposed.

The minister agreed, but said it is up to the courts to decide the amount of the fine. Provincial attorneys-general could appeal the sentence if they thought it insufficient.

Mr. Garson said it must be remembered that the federal government does not enforce the law. That was up to the provinces.

The amendment was supported by Rev. E. G. Hansell (SC—Macleod) in the ensuing debate, which continues today.

Mr. Fulton was instrumental in having Parliament in 1949 ban the sale and distribution of crime comics. They are defined as publications devoting all or most of their space to crime pictures.

Publishers often could not do an adequate job of censoring the material that passed through their hands, he said, but they should not be relieved of responsibility.

He said the 1949 law resulted in crime comics disappearing from newsstands for a time. But they now had returned. An estimated 15,000,000 a month were distributed.

Their effect was "child prostitution of the youngest and the lowest paid kind." They degraded those who read them and were a real threat to the country's welfare.

Insufficient enforcement of the present law was the chief reason for the wide circulation of crime comics, and Parliament could do nothing about that, Mr. Fulton said. But it could make the punishment fit the crime and a $25,000 fine was "not a penny too much."

Printers and publishers could laugh at the present court fines because of their enormous profits.

Administrator Gives Reason For Deportation

SARNIA (CP)—F. W. Holloway, Sarnia's welfare administrator, says John Watt was deported to Britain because he would never make a good Canadian citizen and not because he criticized this country's immigration system.

Mr. Holloway, a Briton himself, said Thursday night he recommended the deportation of the 37-year-old instrument fitter for various reasons, but mainly on the grounds that Watt was not a fit statement before leaving Britain.

Watt said in London that he was branded a pyromaniac, "victimized" and deported because he wrote a critical letter to The Canadian Observer in Sarnia.

Mr. Holloway said the letter had nothing to do with the deportation and that Watt was ordered out of the country after he repeatedly failed to establish himself.

WAR JOBS

Watt contended that he was offered unsuitable laboring work. Mr. Holloway said he stated Watt on a trip to Edmonton where Watt made $164 a week. However, Watt left the job for no reason after two weeks, the welfare administrator added.

Mr. Holloway said deportation was requested in December, 1953, and the order came through last November.

British Teachers To Be Recruited For Shortage

TORONTO (CP) — Education Minister Dunlop said Thursday the province will recruit 500 teachers from Britain to relieve a teacher shortage this fall.

The minister said the department will send C. A. Mustard, assistant supervisor of professional training, to London to review qualifications of candidates and arrange employment here before the teachers leave Britain.

School boards will be asked to submit their needs as soon as possible.

The teachers will come here on a one-year contract. After a year the arrangement may be discontinued by either party.

F. S. Rivers, director of professional training, said the province will need about 1,000 more teachers this September.

Now Canadian Section In Debrett's Peerage

LONDON (CP)—Debrett's peerage, well-known reference work on Britain's leading families dating to Oliver Cromwell's day, contains a Canadian section for the first time in its 1954 edition, published Thursday.

The gilt-and-red volume, with a record 3,664 pages, lists more than 100,000 persons. Added since the 1953 edition are eight new peers, 14 privy councillors, nine baronets, 255 knights, two members of the Order of Merit, six Companions of Honor and 650 baronetages.

The Canadian section is introduced by a historical survey of Canada's evolution as a sovereign state. Members of the government, general's household, the Canadian cabinet and the 10 provincial ministries are listed. In addition the main reference sections contain the names of hundreds of Canadians, relatives of titled families or themselves recipients of honors. Australian, New Zealand and South African sections are planned for 1955.

Waterfront Commissioners Refuse Amnesty for Dockers As Price for End of Strike

COLLARED

Michael Murphy, 1, of Detroit, is in something of an panic because his brother, Allen, 3, slipped an angel food cake pan over his head and he can't get it off. Neighbor could his mother, Mrs. Ida Murphy, who finally called the police and they managed to cut off the big tin collar. (Central Press Canadian).

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York-New Jersey waterfront commission has given a curt "No" to a bid by the striking independent longshoremen's union to end its walkout in exchange for amnesty for about 65 blacklisted dockers.

Patrick J. Connolly, executive vice-president of the International Longshoremen's Association, said Thursday night that ILA leaders were willing to recommend that the strikers return to work if the waterfront commission would return the work passes picked up since the strike started March 25 in defiance of a federal court injunction.

The permits to work on the piers—required under recent legislation of the two states—were lifted presumably for violence or other offences.

The ILA, locked in a bitter struggle with the non-striking AFL union of the same name for control of waterfront labor, charged that some work permits were taken away for no valid reason.

NO COMPROMISE

Connolly said the ILA men would not return to work until the lifted passes were restored. But Lawrence E. Walsh, executive director of the waterfront commission, said he would make no compromise with lawlessness."

Le Gette V. Bradley, ILA president, pledged "every effort" to persuade the ILA council to get the strikers back to work.

Bradley, speaking on a television program, said Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York and Governor Robert B. Meyner of New Jersey—governors of the waterfront commission—"have no right to take away a man's right to work."

The strike is an outgrowth of the contest between the ILA and the AFL-ILA for certification by the National Labor Relations Board as bargaining agent for the harbor's 24,000 waterfront workers.

Banks' Inner Reserves Will Not Be Quoted

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliamentarians attempted Thursday to break down one of the government's most guarded secrets, the value of charter banks' inner reserve reserve, core of bank credit strength.

But Bank of Canada inspector-general of banks, said to make these figures public—something which no other country does—would be "unwise" and "dangerous."

"If the total reserve figure were published when the amount was very low, it might be read out on behalf of the public," he told the Commons banking committee.

"If disclosed when the amount was relatively large, it would certainly lead to a belief in uninformed quarters that it was too high."

The secret inner reserves are deducted from bank profits, set aside to cover estimated and unforeseen investment losses. They don't appear in Finance Minister Abbott considers they are not necessary.

Oliver Objects To Answer Given By Premier Frost

TORONTO (CP) — Opposition leader Oliver Thursday objected to an answer to a question tabled in the legislature by Premier Frost.

The premier, in tabling the answer in reply to a query by Mr. Oliver regarding logging taxes collected by the Manitoba Contracting Limited and its affiliated companies, referred to the revised statutes of Ontario which, stated that revealing of certain information was illegal and subject to a $200 fine.

"That is not the answer at all," said Mr. Oliver. "The statute has no relation to a member of the legislature."

Mr. Frost said the legislature "in its wisdom, imposed secrecy bars in the giving out of information relative to taxpayers. . . This information, if given by way of question and answer, would be available to the public."

The premier said it would be similar to revealing how much a person's income was derive. He said he was "quite prepared" to table Mr. Oliver the information in confidence.

Mr. Oliver had asked what logging taxes had been collected by Manitoba Contracting Company Limited, Manitoba Contracting Company, Manitoba Loggers Registered, Manitoba Jones Contracting Company, and what corporation taxes were collected from the incorporated company from 1951-53.

Special Home Care for Elderly Persons Planned by Ontario

TORONTO (CP)—A program of special home care for elderly persons is planned by Ontario, says Welfare Minister Goodfellow.

Speaking in the legislature Thursday night Mr. Goodfellow said under the plan the province will share costs of caring for the aged in selected private homes on a 50-50 basis with the municipality. A municipality up to a total maximum of $60 a month.

"It is evident that many individuals who would qualify for admission to a home for the aged might receive adequate care and attention in a private dwelling if financial assistance could be made available for that purpose."

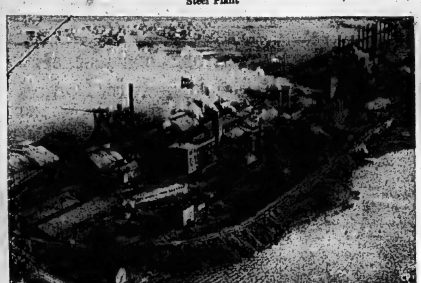
Persons who may qualify for this special type of care would be the same persons who would qualify for care in a home for the aged.

Under the scheme aged persons would apply for special home care at a central intake which would actually be an adjunct of the nearest home for the aged. Provided the applicant was acceptable for admission to a home for the aged, consideration might then be given to replacing the applicant in a special home. Coupled with the intake section, would be home-finding service.

Mr. Goodfellow said the service would be optional and at the discretion of the home for the aged and the municipality concerned.

The minister said that for the aged have walking lists of persons who desire admission, and I feel certain that many of these persons might be quite willing to accept a private dwelling. . . Undoubtedly there are many people who would be willing to accept elderly persons for care on a room-and-board basis."

The key point of the whole scheme would be a carefully developed home-finding service. The elderly persons placed in these private quarters would have medical services made available to them in the same manner as if they were actually residents of the home for the aged.



The House later approved the welfare department's estimates of $26,782,000 in ordinary expenditures and $5,903,000 in capital payments.

Steel Plant

Manufacturing has grown in Nova Scotia in the last 10 years until now it produces more of the province's wealth than fishing, mining, agriculture and forestry combined. Most of the manufacturing is done in small plants but the Sydney steel mill, shown in this picture, is one of the province's biggest single industries. This view shows Dominion Steel coke furnaces in the foreground. Most of the homes in the background house steel workers' families.—(CP Photo.)

Fishing Important

Always one of Nova Scotia's basic industries, fishing provides jobs for 20,000 of the province's people and its products have a great value of $21,000,000 a year. Big sea-going draggers catch much of Nova Scotia's fish but small craft like these two tied up in Halifax harbor play an important part in the inshore fishery. — (CP Photo).

Industrial Revolution Makes Manufacturing Biggest Factor In Nova Scotia's Economy

By IRVING C. WHYNOT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HALIFAX (CP)—A post-war industrial revolution has made manufacturing the biggest factor in Nova Scotia's economy. Exciting changes have been made in the old primary industries, traditionally the main source of Nova Scotia's wealth.

But, as in the other Maritime provinces, the volume of opportunity is not great enough to absorb fully its output of youth.

Many Nova Scotians say their province's chief export still is brains.

BIG INCREASE

New industries have been encouraged and old ones expanded. This year the value of manufactured goods—mostly from small factories—will be more than three times what it was in 1939. Some of the province's new industries include an electronics factory, washing-machine assembly plant and an aircraft repair and maintenance centre.

Ten years ago fishing, mining, agriculture and forestry produced more wealth than factories. Now manufacturing yields more than the other four combined. The 1954 estimates: Manufacturing $118,500,000; mining $47,000,000; agriculture $38,300,000; fishing $21,400,000; forestry $10,000,000.

There was talk at one time that the Maritimes might become another Lancashire, an industrial leviathan fed on Labrador's iron-ore wealth. Today, few in Nova Scotia see that far ahead, if that is what lies ahead, and the drain of manpower continues.

From 1941 to 1951, the number of Maritimers working in other provinces increased to 90,000 from 13,000. The figure does not include those who went to the United States.

Nova Scotia by the 1951 census, had a population of 642,500, 4½ per cent of the Canadian total. In 1951 Nova Scotia had 459,500 people, 4½ per cent of Canada's total.

UNSOLVED PROBLEM

Nova Scotia has been seeking an answer to the migration question for years, but expanding the provincial economy to provide opportunities for Nova Scotia's youth still is an unsolved problem.

Dr. M. M. Coady, leader of the co-operative movement in the Maritimes, says Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island are in the midst of a recession amounting almost to a depression.

Nova Scotia's Liberal government presents a different picture. It says unemployment is lower than the national average. It reports a 13-per-cent increase in public and private investment in 1953, along with the most intensive mineral search in Nova Scotia history. Weekly wages, volume of building permits and consumption of electricity all are shown higher.

"Much of the public money went into such heavy projects as the $23,000,000 causeway linking the Nova Scotia mainland with Industrial Cape Breton, and the $11,000,000 bridge being built across Halifax harbor to link Halifax and Dartmouth.

Private investment went into a wide range of industries. One of the big projects was the new blooming mill at Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation's Sydney steel plant.

SPECIALIZED TREATMENT

"Nova Scotia's industrial expansion problems are peculiar to Nova Scotia," says Industries Minister W. T. Dauphinee. "A specialized treatment of these problems is necessary if we are to continue our progress." One important difficulty is geographical isolation from markets.

One factor that has complicated Nova Scotia's economy has been the British dollar shortage. This closing of traditional markets was reflected in the Maritime provinces perhaps to greater degree than in the rest of Canada.

The government has appointed a firm of technical and economic advisers to survey the province's resources and make recommendations on industrial development.

Behind the economic difficulties of the Maritimes generally is what the dominion bureau of statistics has called a "long history of adverse . . . conditions, small-scale and near-subsistence farming, vulnerability of specialized industries like Nova Scotia, relative lack of urbanization and of accumulated wealth."

CHANGES IN ECONOMY

These are samples of the changes so far made in the traditional phases of Nova Scotia's economy:

Apple growing: Always tailored to British tastes, the industry found itself without a market when the United Kingdom ran short of dollars. Growers in the beautiful Annapolis valley had to pull out trees by thousands and plant new varieties that can be sold in Canada. The apple crop has been halved—and many farmers have turned to other crops.

Mining: Coal accounts for about three-quarters of Nova Scotia's yearly mineral production. The coal-mining industry, which employs 10,000 men, is in the doldrums. Hope for future prosperity lies mainly in a new mechanical miner which can dig 800 tons in eight hours and thus may reduce pit-head coal costs.

Fishing: The Nova Scotia fisheries have been modernized and shore processing facilities have been more than doubled since 1946. The fishing schooners made famous by the racing champion Bluenose, have almost disappeared. More than 125 modern trawlers and draggers have replaced them on the banks. The glamor of sail has gone but the value of fish caught has multiplied. New processing methods now let Nova Scotia deliver fresh fish as far west as Winnipeg.

NATO Celebrates 5th Birthday Officers Both Proud, Worried

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

PARIS (CP)—NATO celebrates its fifth birthday this month, and ranking officers are both proud and worried.

They are proud because they feel that NATO—North Atlantic Treaty Organization — has built military forces beyond most expectations The international alliance is a going concern

They are worried because they feel NATO forces are still not strong enough, and because they fear public interest may be on the wane

NATO, to a considerable extent a Canadian concept—Prime Minister St. Laurent has been credited as one of the chief founding fathers—came into being April 4, 1949 Twelve countries signed the original treaty in Washington. Turkey and Greece joined in February, 1952.

WIDE INTERESTS

The alliance has grown into a unique, many-sided organization representing 400,000,000 persons. Its cooperation extends to such non-military matters as reducing from 3,000 to 300 the list of radio tubes approved for use in NATO countries.

As a defensive unit, it is concerned primarily with the 4,000-mile line from the northern cape of Norway to Mount Ararat in Turkey.

Nobody in NATO contends that the defensive screen as now constituted would stop an all-out attack from Russia. The most that can be hoped is that forces available more than three times stronger than in 1951—will deter aggression or, if aggression comes, hold long enough to enable massive power reserves to be shoved against power to come into play.

On the eve of its fifth anniversary, NATO has at its disposal some 5,000 aircraft. Airfields in Western Europe are being completed at the rate of one a week. And by year's end there will be ready to use. Some 125 are already completed.

MANPOWER QUESTION

Military sources refrain from talking in terms of army divisions, and it probably is safe guess that quantity rather than quality is the most disturbing factor. Officers count on German manpower but admit this is a tricky political problem.

Principal Canadian contributions to NATO are three wings of Sabre jet fighters stationed in France and Germany and the 5,00-strong 1st Canadian Infantry Brigade Group in Germany. A fourth Canadian wing is to be transferred to France this summer. NATO's total defence expenditure in 1953 was roughly $21,500,000,000. C a n a d a contributing about $2,149,000,000.

Canadians are also sprinkled through various NATO structures. They are on the 600 member headquarters staff at the Palais de Chaillot in Paris. There are about 70 at Fontainebleau headquarters of Allied Forces Central Europe, and about half that number at Marly, home of Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers in Europe (Shape).

Group Capt. R. F. Miller of Marshall, Sask., is Canadian instructor at the NATO Defence College in Paris. Other Canadians there are Lt.-Col. R. L. Houston, Arnprior, Ont.; Cmdr. T. S. Peacock, Quebec City; Wing Cmdr. E. E. Christmas, Montreal; and E. H. Smith, taxation expert from the finance department in Ottawa.

CALL FOR SUPPORT

On a recent tour of NATO commands, newspaper men found military and civilian officers harping on one fundamental need for public support.

"We simply must have the interest of thinking people in all NATO countries," said a source close to Supreme commander Gen. Alfred Gruenther. "Now that the danger of attack seems less imminent, our big worry is that people will forget about us."

One difficulty is that the name NATO in itself means nothing. A top soldier at the defence college said it should be changed to Atlantic alliance. Confusion arises because the initials NATO become OTAN in French. And many people make no distinction between NATO and Shape, one of NATO's commands.

Despite such frustrations, the internationally minded men in NATO remain hopeful. They appear sincere in their belief that a miracle has already been achieved in the present smooth functioning of an unprecedented peacetime alliance. NATO Secretary - General Lord Ismay says he has never known NATO countries to reject anything that was important to NATO.

A symbol of solidarity is that Lord Ismay and Gen. Gruenther call each other Al and Pug—Lord Ismay's nickname—and vie in exchange facetiously rude notes.

PILOT WALKS UNHARMED FROM INFERNO

In what seemed a miraculous escape from inferno, a pilot crawled unhurt from his Banshee plane after it crashed and burned on the deck of the U.S. aircraft carrier Oriskany. The plane was photographed by a navy man, as its tail struck the deck when coming in for a landing and, above, as its fuel tanks exploded and flared. Pilot F. J. Repp stepped out of the blazing cockpit apparently unconcerned. (Central Press Canadian).

63rd Birthday Celebrated By Harry C Nixon

TORONTO (CP)—Harry Corwin Nixon, who holds records for longest continuous membership in the Ontario legislature and for the shortest term as the province's premier, suggested today on his 63rd birthday that young people shouldn't hesitate to get into politics.

First elected to the legislature nearly 35 years ago at the age of 29, Mr Nixon remarked that "my greatest embarrassment in my first years in the House was my age but now I'm long past the point where that is any worry."

"No young person should hesitate on account of age to enter a life of public service You never can tell what the electors will do."

FARMER CANDIDATE

Harry Nixon himself entered public life against the advice of his father. He was nominated by the United Farmers of Ontario to contest Brant North in the Oct. 20, 1919, Ontario general election. His father said: "You're crazy, where will you get the vote? Just tell me where you'll get one vote."

The budding politician had a ready answer. "Well, dad, I'll get my wife's vote, I'm sure you'll vote for me and I intend to vote for myself—that makes three for a start."

Harry Nixon got 3,570 votes and won the seat over Liberal and Conservative opponents. He became provincial secretary in E. C. Drury's UFO government, youngest man ever to become an Ontario cabinet minister.

Since then he has won nine more elections in his home riding. He was re-elected in Brant North in 1922. Then the riding became Brant through redistribution and he contested it in 1926, 1929, 1934, 1937, 1943, 1945, 1948 and 1951, running in turn as a UFO, Progressive and Liberal candidate.

He was provincial secretary for 12 years. He served from 1919 to 1923 under Mr. Drury and from 1934 to 1942 in the late Mitchell Hepburn's Liberal administration. He was premier from May 18 to Aug. 17, 1943, after a convention elected him Ontario Liberal leader.

"I have no regrets," he said of his long term of continuous public service. "I have had a good life. I have made many friends. And I have had a wonderful chance to be of service to the people of my constituency and of the province."

One of his sons, Jackson, also born April 1, Jackson was killed Sept. 3, 1941, as an RCAF pilot in an air raid on Germany, acre farm at St. George, near Brantford.

Another son, Robert, a teacher at Humberside Collegiate in Toronto, is giving up his teaching career at the end of the present term to take over his father's 30-

Lumley's Magnificent Performance Fails To Save Leafs In Cup Thriller

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

WHO WOULDN'T?

Let's see: 45 into 120,000 goes 2666 and one-third times. Divide that by ten and you have 266.6. In case you are interested and puzzled, it means that Carl "Bobo" Olson will collect $266.66 per punch in his titular battle with Kid Gavilan tonight.

Olson will receive $120,000 as his share of the purse. Providing the fight goes the entire 15 rounds, which is 45 minutes of fighting, "Bobo" will rather $2,666.33 per minute. Presuming he tosses ten solid punches in that time, and there you have it.

Meantime the "Kood" will collect $60,000 for his share. Who wouldn't stand up there and have his beak busted for money like that? Personally we would settle for the income tax.

The gate is expected to gross $360,000, which means a net of $300,000, according to the experts. "Bobo" collects 25 per cent with the Kid picking up 25 per cent. Then there is $180,000 in television proceeds.

The Kood is a cocky cabellero. He disdains the heavier breed of boxtighters to the extent that he has picked none other than Rocky Marciano as his next victim. The Cuban Hawk is merely inviting disaster there, Si, senor?

The Caribbean Canquistador will be fighting in an environment that has been extremely kind to him. If you remember it was in Chicago that Gerardo Gonzales, that's Gavilan for Spaniards, brought thirty million boxers to within an inch of television screens when he made the then sensational Chuck Davey look like a rank amateur.

It was in dear old Chicago, too, that he gave Johnny Bratton a lesson in the manly art of cauliflower ear production last November so the breeze of Lake Michigan will have a familiar tang to the "Kood."

Gavilan will give away weight and years to the Hawaiian-Swede whom, he figures, will be warbling Aloha. On to Manchuria, Illinois, Bobo, about eleven miles from The Kid is as cocky as a young rooster with his first set of spurs. If he wins he must vassie his welterweight title and give "Bobo" a return bout within 90 days.

Dan (New York Mirror) Parker says the fight brings up the old question of whether "a good big man always beat a good little one" and "youth must be served." You are right, Daniel, but youth might be served a heavy portion of leather dessert.

From what we have seen of Olson via the TV screens, he is not a fighter who rocks the faithful with work of a sensational nature. On the other hand the "Kood", more for show, we believe, throws his now famous, or is it infamous "bolo" punch. We may have missed a lot of fights, in which this punch has been thrown, but we have yet to hear of it sending an opponent bye-bye. It could happen. But Gavilan is a beautiful boxer with a burning yen to keep up with the beak-busting Jones'.

Yankees Picked To Capture Sixth Straight World's Title

By JOE REICHLER

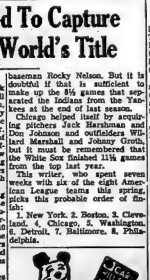
NEW YORK (AP)—New York Yankees, weakened world baseball champions, are ready to be taken, but there doesn't appear to be any club in the American League strong enough to do it this year.

Largely because of the failure of the other clubs to improve sufficiently and because of New York's knack of always coming up with replacements, the Yankees are picked to capture their sixth straight championship.

The Yankees are not as strong as last year's outfit that became the first team to win five consecutive pennants and world series. They figure to be at least 10 per cent weaker because of the loss of such key 1953 performers as Billy Martin, Vic Raschi and John Mize and the uncertain status of Mickey Mantle.

But the talent-laden Yankees pulled a smart winter trade and have called up brilliant newcomers to retain the winning combination.

RED SOX SECOND



Unlike last year the season promises to be a tense, bitterly fought four-team race right down to the wire. The Yankees' chief trouble may come from Boston Red Sox, probably the most improved club in the league. If Ted Williams hadn't broken his collar bone the Red Sox might have been the choice.

Cleveland has improved somewhat by the acquisition of outfielder Dave Philley and first-baseman Rocky Nelson. But it is doubtful if that is sufficient to make up the 8½ games that separated the Indians from the Yankees at the end of last season.

Chicago helped itself by acquiring pitchers Jack Harshman and Don Johnson and outfielders Willard Marshall and Johnny Groth, but it must be remembered that the White Sox finished 11½ games from the top last year.

This writer, who spent seven weeks with six of the eight American League teams this spring, picks this probable order of finish:

1. New York, 2. Boston, 3. Cleveland, 4. Chicago, 5. Washington, 6. Detroit, 7. Baltimore, 8. Philadelphia.

Ted Lindsay Fires Winner In Second Overtime Session; Howe Sets New Scoring Mark

By JOE FALLS

DETROIT (AP)—Goalie Harry Lumley fought—but lost—a great battle against Detroit Red Wings as the Wings knocked Toronto Maple Leafs out of the Stanley Cup playoffs 4-3.

Detroit won the "sudden death" thriller which ended early this morning to win the semi-final series four games to one, but Lumley's magnificent work in goal almost forced a sixth game.

As it was, however, Detroit took the series when captain Ted Lindsay fired the game-winning goal at 1.01 of a second "sudden death" overtime session. It gave the Wings the 3-2 victory and sent them into the final round against the defending champion Montreal Canadiens. The opening game of the finals will be held in Olympia Stadium tomorrow night.

LUM BEATS JITTERS

Lumley, Vezina Trophy winner, was the key jittery in the opening playoff game here, which Toronto lost by the one-sided margin of 5-1. And it was then that the apple-cheeked netminder couldn't be blamed for the score. But Lumley disproved such talk by responding with one brilliant performance after another, capping it with his magnificent performance in the finale.

The veteran goalie had been beaten by Detroit's fourth game at Toronto by a fluke goal. That could have discouraged him, but it didn't. He came back with a shutout in the first period Thursday night, two by Gord Howe, one by Glen Skov, and Toronto was on the short end of a 3-1 score.

HOWE SETS RECORD

Howe's first goal set a Stanley Cup playoff record as he beat Toronto goalie Lumley after the game started. He broke the mark of 10 seconds set only a week ago by Montreal's Dickie Moore in the semi-final against Boston Bruins, which the Canadiens won four straight. Toronto's goal in the first period was scored by Ted Kennedy on Rudy Migay. Then Lum took over.

Detroit Secretary Connelvale shot at him, but he wouldn't yield. He had the crowd of 13,927 buzzing with his acrobatics, diving, lunging and making one game-saving stick save after another.

He stopped 26 of Detroit's first 26 shots. But he couldn't cope with No. 27. It was Lindsay's winning thrust.

Matane Takes Three-Game Lead

MATANE, Que. (CP)—Jim Bartlett pumped home three goals Thursday night as Matane Red Rocks blanked Fredericton Capitals 5-0 to take a 3-0 lead in the best-of-seven eastern Canada Allan Cup semi-finals.

It was the second shutout of the series for Matane netminder Marcel Paille, who handled only 15 shots to Andy Halverson's 27 in the Capitals' net.

Raymond Leduc assisted on all of Barbara goals and Jacques Nadon on two of them.

Lindsay Glad 'It Is Over'

DETROIT (AP)—"I would have played until 3:30 in the morning rather than go back to Toronto."

Ted Lindsay, who redeemed himself, was happy but tired as he sat in Detroit Red Wings' dressing room early today after firing the winning goal which sent the Wings into the Stanley Cup finals.

His goal at 1:01 of the second sudden death overtime ended the post-midnight match and gave the Red Wings a 4-3 victory over Toronto Maple Leafs. It was Detroit's fourth victory against one defeat in the best-of-seven semi-final series and sent the Wings into the championship round against Montreal Canadiens.

"It was a tense, exhausting game," said Lindsay. "I'm glad it's over—and I'm glad we don't have to go back to Toronto for that sixth game."

Lindsay's goal climaxed a pulsating match which saw the gritty Maple Leafs overcome a 3-1 deficit and force the game into overtime.

Arthur Ross Bruin's Genius 'Hangs Up Hat'

BOSTON (AP)—General manager Art Ross, guiding genius of Boston Bruins since they entered the National Hockey League 30 years ago, announced his retirement Thursday night

Ross, one of Canada's outstanding players in the early 1900s and later an official, was brought here by the late Charles F Adams when he organized the team.

Ross said he will remain with the Bruins until next October in an advisory capacity

The retirement, announced at the team's annual "break-up" dinner, came as no surprise. It followed a long-range plan established by Ross himself.

Coach Lynn Patrick will take over the general managership next season but will continue to coach. Captain Milt Schmidt, 38-year-old veteran, will play again next season and also serve as part-time coach.

FRAMES TEAM

Ross served as coach or manager as the Bruins gained 24 post-season playoffs and three Stanley Cup titles.

Ross praised this year's team, which was knocked out of the Stanley Cup series in the semi-final round by Montreal in four straight games.

"This team made a record I hope never to be equalled when two players (Bill Quackenbush and Red Cheverfils) suffered broken legs on the same night. They were players impossible to replace, and Lynn did a remarkable job in keeping a skeleton team alive."

Patrick, 42, said: "I'm delighted to get the opportunity but I'm sorry Mr. Ross is retiring. I've had the advantage of the game's two greatest teachers in my father, Lester, and Mr. Ross. I hope I prove an apt pupil."

'Bobo' Olson Is 2-1 Favorite In Title Fight With Gavilan

By JERRY LISKA

CHICAGO (AP)—Two world boxing champions, Carl (Bobo) Olson of San Francisco and Kid Gavilan of Cuba, will battle 15 rounds or less for Olson's five - month - old middleweight crown at Chicago stadium tonight.

TV fans, except in blacked-out Chicago and a 100-mile surrounding area, will watch the favored Olson, 25, make his first title defence against welterweight champion Gavilan, 28, beginning at 10 p.m. EST.

There also will be a radio broadcast of this first bout between two reigning champions since the now-retired middleweight king, Sugar Ray Robinson, failed to dethrone the then light-heavy champ, Joe Maxim, in New York, June 25, 1952

OLSON FAVORED

Odds hovered around 2 to 1 in Olson's favor before the noon weigh-in at which Bobo was expected to outweigh Gavilan by six pounds, 159 to 153.

The International Boxing Club admitted it would take a last-minute rush at the box office to reach a goal of $360,000 gross for a capacity 19,460 paid. It appeared likely that the fight would lure about 17,500 paying some $320,000 sweetened by $100,000 from the TV rights.

Olson gets 35 per cent of the net gate and TV money, about $119,000, against Gavilan's 25 per cent for around 185,000.

ACTION EXPECTED

A torrid pace is expected in the meeting of the hitchin, tattooed Olson against the cocky Cuban, who has had almost twice as many pro fights as Bobo—115 to 60. It'll be Olson, a busy, flailing crowder, against a crafty, skinny-legged slasher.

Olson won the middleweight title vacated by Robinson when he whipped England's Randy Turpin at New York last Oct. 21. He since has had one fight, knocking out Joe Hindman in San Francisco Jan. 23 in a non-title bout.

Gavilan has held the welter title since he won a 15-round decision over Johnny Bratton after the confusion in the 147-pound ranks which followed Robinson's climb to 160-pound champion when he stopped Jake LaMotta in Chicago Feb. 14, 1951. Gavilan will have to give up his 147-pound crown if he wins Friday night.

Plante's 'Revolutionary Goalkeeping' National Hockey League Sensation

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — Jacques Plante, pridefully hailed by coach Dick Irvin as the netminder who has revolutionized goal tending, wouldn't be with Montreal Canadiens today if he hadn't goaltended on a wrist operation.

The gangling goalie has been a sensation since he was recalled to Canadiens in February from Buffalo of the American Hockey League to replace the injured Gerry McNeil.

A year and a half ago the 25-year-old Plante was on the verge of giving up hockey. A wrist injury in childhood left him unable to turn his left palm outward.

"I knew I couldn't hope to be a top goalie," Plante said in an interview. "I couldn't catch the puck with my left hand or block it or knock it down. I used my body or thigh to try to block it, but that meant a rebound."

Plante had an operation. Part of a bone at the wrist was removed and he could move his hand freely.

One example of his "revolutionary goalkeeping" style: An opposing right- winger deliberately fires the puck around the net so it can be picked up by the left-winger in the left-hand corner. Before he is checked the left-winger passes the puck out in front of the net as the right-winger and centre break. The centre darts behind the net, traps the puck and feeds it to one of his teammates or leaves it there to be picked up by them. The left-winger is then stranded in the corner and the centre and right-winger have been drawn in.

The opposition, getting wise, began to vary the play. The left-winger would cut for the side of the net or directly across the front of it, hoping to nail Plante sailing behind the net and get the puck out in front of the open net.

Plante got wise, too. Now if the winger cuts across, Plante lets the puck go. If the winger goes for the corner, Plante scrambles behind the net and traps the puck. According to the play, his defencemen and forwards know exactly what he will do and act accordingly.

Plante might have a bad night like all goalies, but he has fast reflexes and good judgment.

In 21 games this year his goals-against average is 1.48.

Canadiens Set New Hockey Mark

MONTREAL (CP) — A hockey record by Montreal Canadiens, finalists in the Stanley Cup series, came to light Thursday. The records show Canadiens are the only National Hockey League club ever to enter the cup final four years in a row.

The record is a modern mark. Four straight entries into the finals were achieved by Vancouver Millionaires 30 years ago, but the Millionaires were an NHL team. The Stanley Cup playoffs in those days were between the NHL and the Pacific Coast Hockey League winners.

The PCHL disbanded after the 1926 season and the cup then came into exclusive possession of the NHL, which was organized in 1917.

In the last three years Canadiens lost in the final to Toronto and Detroit and won over Boston Bruins. In this year's final they again meet Detroit.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Most of us have a secret yen to write songs, but we seldom do anything about it. Peggy Lee is the exception.

The blonde songstress has stepped in and succeeded in what is virtually a man's world—the song-writing field. You can count the successful gal song writers on a hand or two and have some fingers left over. But Peggy is turning out lyrics with top composers and is off to a good start.

"Eventually I'd like to give up singing, except on records," she says. "I'd like to devote most of my time to writing songs."

That time may not be far away. When she was married to guitarist Dave Barbour, she turned out a number of hits like "Manana" and "It's a good day."

Recently she finished the prize assignment of penning words for Sonny Burke's songs in the forthcoming Walt Disney cartoon feature, "The Lady and the Tramp." She also enacts the voices of a human, two cats and a somewhat racy poodle named Peg—in her honor.

REJECTS 'FROTHY' MOVIES

Peggy hopes to resume her movie career, but only if she can find a good story. "I don't want to do one of the light, frothy musicals with nonsense to it," she says. "I wouldn't know how to act."

She did a guest appearance in Bing Crosby's "Mr. Music" and then was signed to appear opposite Danny Thomas in a remake of "The Jazz Singer." Somehow the picture didn't click, although Peggy was in personal success.

Some of the gossipers tried to whip up a feud between her and Doris Day. It didn't pan out.

"There was no reason for us to feud," Peggy says. "We are completely different, and there's plenty of room for all kinds of singers."

AT THE McCARTHY— Rita Hayworth turns it loose in Columbia Pictures' "Miss Sadie Thompson," filmed in color by Technicolor at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre tomorrow. Miss Hayworth co-stars with Jose Ferrer in the tropic island romantic drama. Aldo Ray, behind and to the left of Rita in the scene above, is featured. The film is based on W. Somerset Maugham's famous story.

Your Individual Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

SATURDAY, APRIL 3, 1954

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Present indications make it advisable to guard financial and business properties, to use extra care in any type of expansion. Keep an eye on children. Avoid useless speculation. Commonsense!

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Your stars are friendly, smile benevolently on worthwhile activities. Late afternoon and evening hours particularly favor heart and artistic affairs.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — You born before June 10th: family and pleasant associations should bring happiness. All Geminians: Seek the new and improved. Not abreast of the times. Cultivate patience.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Favorable now to consult those who know if you have doubts as to how to shape or solve problems. Review, take the sure—even if slower—way. But don't ever give up. You can accomplish much.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Meet obligations, don't hesitate, do your best, and ask God's help always. Leolies can do a grand job when they make up their minds. No time like the present!

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo) — Opportunities knock at your door: investigate, and don't reject even the smallest, if worthwhile. Many things that were difficult yesterday can be solved today. Have spirit.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — You may have to draw on past experiences to find solutions now. Be discriminating; don't waste time or energy, and you can surprise yourself with gains.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — A fine opportunity to show appreciable headway. Perhaps, some delicate situations to bridge. Astuteness, sincerity and charm will help to right things—and keep them right.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Be careful not to collide needlessly with others. Verbal explosions cause trouble, do no one any good. Be tactful.

December 22 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Stars in an inspiring position for the keen, alert and conscientious. Your capacity to accomplish when you really try is mighty handy. Be smartly individual; heed intuition.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — Anxiety and impulsiveness may be tendencies now. Words or ideas loosed about carelessly are a hindrance to progress. Stop! Listen, then act.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — Some uncertainties. Don't let them confuse you. Remember your pioneer forebears, the scientists and inventors and the privations they endured. Keep going.

YOU BORN TODAY are usually idealistic, often dynamic, energetic; at times self-assertive and aggressive. Try to achieve a happy medium; temper enthusiasm with commonsense and you will be better able to follow through with good ideas, plans. Do not be influenced by smooth salestalks, by flatterers. Check your own goals, ideals occasionally. You may tend to argue when a smile would be better. Many noted musicians, artists, business managers, renowned writers and editors in your Sign. You like fun and can become an interesting entertainer. Birthdate of: Washington Irving, noted man of letters; John Burroughs, poet, naturalist.

BLASTED OPERATING STATION

Smoke rises from the roof of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission generating station on the Toronto waterfront, damaged by an explosion. Hydro officials estimated damage at more than $1,000,000. The blast was in a station stationary part of a generator. No one was hurt. (CP Photo).

Scelba Cabinet Moves to Ratify European Army

ROME (AP) — Premier Mario Scelba's emullion cabinet today approved and forwarded to parliament a bill to ratify the European army treaty.

A spokesman said the long-delayed bill will go before parliament early next week. But the action, fulfilling Scelba's vow to try, to hasten enactment of the top-priority treaty, does not mean that Italy will ratify it quickly.

It is understood that Scelba may stake his middle-of-the-road government's life on the issue by pissing a vote of confidence to the bill.

The bill will go first to a committee. It cannot be reported out sooner than one month from its introduction.

Priest 50 Years

TIMMINS (CP)— Bishop Louis Rheaume, spiritual leader of more than 90,000 Roman Catholics in the Diocese of Timmiss, celebrates his 50th anniversary as a priest today.

The 80-year-old prelate, a native of Levis, Que., is well known throughout the north for his building of cathedrals, churches, a college, schools and hospitals. He will mark the anniversary quietly at his home in Haileybury, about 100 miles southeast of here.

WOLF HUNT ORGANIZED

THEDFORD (CP) — District farmers, concerned about the number of sheep being killed by wolf packs, organized a wolf hunt. The day's bag was two killed—4 male and a female—worth $25 bounty each. The hunters say there are at least two more wolves running loose.

HOUSE COLLAPSES

TORONTO (CP)—One man was slightly injured but another five escaped when a two-storey frame house collapsed in west-end Toronto Thursday, Vito Rubino, 24, was taken to hospital with head cuts and fractured left ribs. He was working under the house which was jacked up to permit the workmen to dig a basement.

Longshoremen Streaming Back To New York Jobs

Union Orders Strike's End After Month of Strife

NEW YORK. (AP) — Longshoremen swarmed back to work today, ending a 29-day strike that cost the port of New York an estimated $500,000,000.

Hiring bosses stepped in front of the piers and knew their jobs whistles at the traditional time of 7.55 a.m. The men, without pay for almost a month, eagerly formed in half circles to be hired.

The tension and bitterness of recent days was absent as the men responded to shape-up calls in front of the piers.

Under pressure from the government and their own negative members, the independent International Longshoremen's Association Friday night ordered acceptance of the multi-million-dollar walkout. ILA president William V. Bradley, after conferring with harassed and weary strike leaders, announced:

"The strike is over . . . we bow to the mandate of our government and order an immediate return to work."

ILA officials estimated 10,000 men would turn out on the first day back at work. This is half the normal 20,000 employed on the docks of the world's greatest city's piers. It would be well above the full gangs plus extra workers are expected to work on the backlog of $650,000,000 worth of cargo tied up by the strike.

The ILA signed a contract directly with the AFL for control of dock labor, and a strong demand it would not end the strike until the National Labor Relations Board ruled against the bargaining agent for longshoremen.

The night before the strike ended the union was still trying to bargain with the New York-New Jersey waterfront commission. It offered to end the strike if the commission would agree to a system that permits lifted from 65 ILA members.

The commission answered that there could be no "compromise with lawlessness."

The ILA was under heavy pressure from the AFL to end the strike "forthwith." The board Thursday ordered a new election and threatened to rule the ILA off the ballot unless the strike was stopped.

Bradley's announcement called the strike "unprecedented and illegal threat," but said it was the main factor behind the decision to call off the strike.

Truckers' Head Says Industry Facing Chaos

Amherst, N.S. (CP)—A Privy Council decision on highway transport has plunged Canada's trucking industry into chaos, the industry's chief spokesman said today.

G. M. Parke of Toronto, president of Canadian Trucking Associations, said his organization has drafted model legislation with a few to filling a "void" in interprovincial and interprovincial highway jurisdiction left by the decision.

Mr. Parke spoke in an address prepared for delivery to the annual convention of the Maritime Motor Transport Association. This is a branch of the CTA, main voice of Canada's 30,000 truckers.

Mr. Parke said the CTA's model legislation is being submitted to provincial governments in the hope it will be presented to a federal-provincial conference on highway transport to be held at Ottawa starting April 26.

The conference was called by Transport Minister Lapointe after the Privy Council in February upheld a federal contention that the central government has control over the interprovincial and international operations of commercial highway operators.

GIVE TO PROVINCES

The federal government promptly said it would be "reluctant" to use this power, and would like to give it to the provinces if a common understanding could be reached.

The object of the conference" Mr. Parke said today, "is certainly not to perpetuate the chaos into which the Privy Council's decision has plunged our industry . . . it is not too much to say that the whole country generally does not know whether it is coming or going at the present time."

Mr. Parke urged agreement on the principles of control embodied in the model act:

1. That licences be granted by a regulatory board after public hearings, only on the basis of public convenience and necessity.

2. That the regulatory board require trucking companies to open all its rates for public inspection.

Police said the youth and the girl were eastbound in one car from St. Thomas for their homes in the Aylmer district. Humphrey and Lilley were in the other car.

Investigators said the road was slippery in places from a thin coating of sleet and snow that fell during a severe snowstorm at the base of the New Sarum hill on Highway 3 about seven miles east of here.

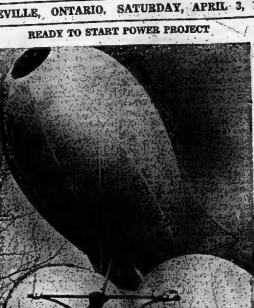
OXFORD DEFEATS CAMBRIDGE CREW IN ROUGH WATER

Dark Blue Crew Leads By Over Four Lengths

LONDON (Reuters) — Oxford University beat Cambridge rowing in the 100th boat race rowed over a 4¼-mile course on the Thames river.



Oxford sprinted through rough water at the Ealt-way mark, took a two-length lead and rowed on to an upset victory.

Today's winner was Oxford's 45th. Cambridge has won 54 times, and one race was a dead heat.

The Thames, over most of the route, was only slightly choppy, but near the half-way mark the water roughed up and began tossing the thin shells around.

Oxford held a lead of about two oars' length at this point. Cambridge almost caught a crab just as Oxford went into a sprint and swept ahead. The blue Cambridge apparently helped Oxford skim over the rough water, and by the time Surrey bend was astern, Oxford held a two-length lead.

The light Oxford crew was ahead by 4½ lengths at the finish. Time was 20-25, was far off the record of 17 minutes, 50 seconds set by Cambridge in 1948.

Sea of Arctic Air Covers Canada Making Coldest April 3 in Century

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

A vast sea of Arctic air today covered most of this country from the Rockies east to Newfoundland.

Temperatures ranging from spring warmth, silvered in temperatures that throughout the Prairie Provinces and in northern sections of Ontario and Quebec were well below zero. No early warm-up was in sight.

Toronto's overnight low of 11 was four degrees lower than the temperature for any other April 3 in 112 years of observation. Outlook for the week-end was for continued cold, with a number with a Sunday high of 32 degrees.

Montreal, with seven above overnight, had a temperature close to the Christmas Day normal—with a fresh blanket of snow thrown in.

LAW NOW ADEQUATE

Justice Minister Garson said the existing law was adequate, and if it was wanted to, could impose a fine of $2,000,000 in cases of combines and conspiracy against a corporation.

Enforcement of the law was up to the provinces and could bring about the desired result of stamping out the crime comics and obscene literature. If Mr. Fulton wanted to make greater efforts to eliminate crime comics he should speak to the provincial attorneys-general and urge them to enforce the law to a greater extent.

A second motion proposed by Fred S. Zaplitny (CCF—Dauphin) to eliminate a section in the Code under which ignorance of the possession of crime comics and obscene literature is not a defence also was defeated.

Mr. Garson said the section was required to make the law against crime comics and obscene literature enforceable. Without the section an accused could tell a court he did not know he was distributing offensive material.

Psychiatrist Will Examine Accused Man

WINDSOR. (CP) — Police said Friday John Paul Garthwaite, 46, charged with murder in connection with the shotgun slaying of his wife Monday, will be examined by a psychiatrist before he appears for a preliminary hearing April 8.

Police said the man has been under arrest since the house all day before the incident and had been questioned by Crown Attorney Reese Hopkins. Mrs. Garthwaite, 46, was found dead in a pool of blood in the bedroom of their home. Police took a heavy toll and hammered them back.

The attackers used every device and weapon they had in Friday's heavy-pronged drive from the north-west and southeast. First came their heavy artillery ranging from 105 millimetre shells. Then infantrymen rushed the French barricades and hurled grenades and bottle containers of high explosives in attempts to set the buildings on the backs of — wire mazes. They opened up with machine-gun fire and then they got to the yielded long knives and sharp bamboo spears in fanatical hand-to-hand fighting.

WILL NOT RAISE PENALTIES FOR CRIME COMICS

House Defeats Move To Impose 5-Year Term

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons has defeated an attempt to impose stiffer penalties on publishers of crime comics and obscene literature.

An amendment to the revised Criminal Code propobed by Davie Fulton (PC — Kamloops) to make publishers of crime comics and obscene literature liable to a maximum prison term of five years, if he is an individual, and to a minimum fine of $10,000 if the publisher is a corporation. Mr. Fulton originally proposed a fine of $25,000 but reduced the figure.

The law as it presently provides a maximum prison term of two years for publishers and distributors of crime comics and obscene literature if they are individuals and no unlimited fine in the case of corporations.

Mr. Fulton's amendment was opposed by Liberals and three members of the Social Credit party — F. D. Shaw, Fred Deer, A. B. Patterson, Fraser Valley, and George McLeod, Okanagan — Revelstoke. It was supported by all other opposition members.

Will Implement Prison Reforms During This Year

TORONTO. (CP) — The Ontario government plans to implement this year the recommendations of the legislature's select committee on reform institutions, says Reform-Minister Foote.

The committee proposed a house-cleaning of the present administrative practices of the department of reform institutions and called for the establishment of a reception centre to screen new prisoners, jails and reformatories, greater medical treatment and expansion of parole services.

Mr. Foote said Friday the government proposes "progressive augmentation" of the recommendations.

He also revealed that G. M. Dix, chairman of the Ontario parole board, resigned last January, Mr. Dix was criticized by the "reforms committee which suggested he be replaced. The minister said the board has not been reconstituted.

'NO WEAKNESS'

The reforms department intends to implement the recommendations in provincial reformatories and jails by "discipline and control without sentimentality and weakness."

"No person has ever reformed anybody," he said. People are reformed by the grace of God and their own determination to change their ways of life. We will be as fair and constructive as we can."

In reply to a question put by A. H. Cowling, (PC-Toronto High Park), Mr. Foote, said his department had not considered using inmates of reformatories and jails on conservation projects as the government wished to remain out of competitive labor.

Find Victims of Bad Heart Ailment Live for Many Active Happy Years

CHICAGO (AP)—Good news for sufferers from one of the worst forms of "heart attack" was released today by the annual meeting of the American Heart Association.

Dr. Leonard Katz of Michael Reese Hospital, Chicago, reported evidence that the expectancy of people who survive in initial attack of "myocardial infraction" is many years longer than has been previously been believed, even though such people have subsequent attacks."

Myocardial infraction involves the "death" of an area of heart muscle as a result of loss of blood supply. The loss of blood supply is, in turn, due to a clot in the blood vessels feeding the heart.

The doctor also said that a study by himself and two associates showed that among "the group of patients they studied, almost two of three who survived an initial attack were able to return to moderate or complete activity, at least for a time.

Mr. Katz said records were studied on 460 patients who suffered their first heart attack during 1932-1942. Among these, 285 survived. Most of these 285 whose records studies were done on these 285 until death, or until the end of the survivors, until 1952 when the study ended.

Of the 285, two-thirds were found to have lived more than five years, two-fifths more than 10 years and one-tenth more than 15 years. At the end of the study, 75 of the 285 were still alive, and they had lived 14 years on the average. Two-thirds of the deaths were due to heart disease.

French Still Hold Heart of Fort But Danger Grave

Outer Defences Wrecked By Vietminh Artillery

PARIS (AP) — Invading Vietminh regulars captured two cities in northeastern Cambodia in Indo-China and were striking southward today toward the Mekong river city of Stung Treng, an Agence France-Presse dispatch said.

The Communist-led rebels swept down from the plateaus of Laos and crossed the frontier into Cambodia Friday in the first invasion of the little Indo-Chinese kingdom by Moscow-trained Ho Chi Minh's regulars, the agency reported. Vietminh regional troops have been reported operating on a small scale in Cambodia for some time.

Cambodian reinforcements are being flown to Stung Treng, 80 miles southwest of fallen Voenne Sai in the northeastern corner of Cambodia, today's dispatch said. The other captured city is Siem Pang, 30 miles northeast of Voenne Sai.

King Norodom Sihanouk of Cambodia left his capital of Phnom Penh for Stung Treng. He was for the extent of the invasion and to determine whether it is serious enough to call for an international decision, the dispatch reported.

Mother of Four Still Unable To Find Home

TORONTO. (CP) — A 25-year-old mother of four young children, who said she wants only a home to keep her family together, appeared in court all at the mayor's office late Friday but said she'll be back if nothing happens.

Mrs. Margaret Lavercock began her brief visit to Mayor Allan Lamport's office Thursday. He was too busy to see her but she was taken from city hall by two police-men and sent home in a police car.

But she was back Friday and told Mr. Lamport on his birthday—talked to her for 10 minutes and promised to do the best he could to find her a house for the family's means. He had lunch brought in for her in his office and gave her newspapers to scan for prospective homes.

Mrs. Lavercock, expecting a fifth child in September, said the family is desperately moving three homes in the city. She had tried without success to get accommodation within the means of her $65-a-week design draftsman husband.

Landlords either don't want children or don't want too much money, she said. The best welfare authorities could offer here was temporary shelter and help with the qualification that she could not be separated from her children—Susan, 7, Paul, 5, Peter, 4, and Yvonne, 15 months.

Stove Explodes But Nobody Hurt, They Were Abed

TRENTON (Special)—A Trenton mother and her two small daughters possibly owe their lives to the fact that Saturday is a school holiday and they take advantage to catch an extra hour's sleep.

This morning, while they were still asleep in their bedrooms, the kitchen stove blew up and showered broken cast iron around, almost completely wrecking the room. The explosion occurred at the home of Fred St. Hilaire, 324 North Byron Street.

Mr. St. Hilaire had got up at the usual time and had a fire in the wood-burning kitchen range before leaving for work at the paper mill. The circulating pipes of the hot water front in the stove had apparently frozen during the night and a short time after the father had left the stove blew up. Plaster was gouged from the walls and ceiling, windows in the kitchen and bedroom were smashed.

Hearing the family's pet dog escaped injury in the blast, although he was in the kitchen at the time. The mother and daughters Karen, 11, and Diane, 6, were awakened by the blast.

Toronto Resident May be Deported

TORONTO (CP) — Shouting "this isn't Russia," Mrs. Shirley Taylor Brent, 22-year-old former Buffalo, N.Y., resident, was arrested in her home on deportation orders Friday but was later released on orders of immigration officials in Ottawa.

Her husband, Barry Brent of Toronto, whom she married two months ago, charged immigration authorities with attempting to "hijack" and "spirit" his wife on to a train headed for the United States.

Officials here said her difficulty stems from a previous marriage in the United States. On coming to Canada, they said, she had not presented proof of the nullification of the U.S. marriage and had never been legally "landed" as an immigrant in Canada.

Her case is under study.

Marionette Show Big Attraction At Trade Fair

Maulnee and evening performances of Marjorie's Marionettes are the feature attractions on today's program as the Belleville branch of the Canadian Legion concludes its three-day Trade Fair in the Armouries.

The Marionettes in a show designed, produced and staged by Marjorie Naylor, a former Belleville girl now living in Thorold, Ontario.

The show, which should prove to be a special treat for children, is fascinating for adults as well. Colorful costumes, smart stage sets, and a complete recorded musical background, provide a fully-rounded environment for the antics of the marionettes which are one-quarter life size.

Doors open for the matinee at 2.00 p.m. and in the evening at 7.00 p.m.

DIVING BIRDS

Cormorants found on many coasts are web-footed birds which dive deep in the water to catch fish.

Belle Haven Club Plans Auction

Next Thursday the Belle Haven club for disabled and handicapped persons is holding an auction sale at the Orange Hall on Church street. Proceeds are to be used to finance the club's work.

Organized during the winter, with Howard Ackerman as president, the club has ambitious plans. The officers hope to see the day when the club possesses a home of its own, a building which will not only offer recreational facilities but which may also provide space for a workshop where members can put their talents to profitable use.

Articles to be auctioned off have been donated by merchants of the city and district. The selection is wide, ranging from groceries to garden seeds, from cosmetics to electric appliances.

Special evening events will also feature entertainment.

A Lift for Living

Values

By DR RALPH W. SOCKMAN

If we want to know what value we put on our lives, we must weigh what we do rather than what we say.

When a person talks about what he would give his life for, we tend to discount him.

When, for instance, a husband glibly tells his wife that he would willingly die for her, we well may wonder how sacrificially he is living for her.

When a man shouts that he would give his life for his country, we are inclined to call it heroics rather than heroism.

The reason we revere Nathan Hale for saying, "I only regret that I have but one life to lose for my country" is that Hale said it when he was at the point of death. If those words had been broadcast by some Fourth of July orator they would leave us cold.

The thing to be noted is not what men say they would give their lives for, but what they are spending their lives for.

FRESH VIGOR

What do we see men spending their lives for? Over there is a man who came to a big city in the fresh vigor and unspoiled frankness of his young manhood. At that time he entered wholeheartedly into his church associations and other social contacts. He was wholesome, whole-souled and a joy to have around.

Now after 25 years he is starched and stiff with conventions. He sees everything from that perspective of what he thinks of as his social position.

He is narrowed by class prejudice. His thinking is ringed around with reservations. He has bartered away part of his soul for something called social standing.

Yonder is a man rose to political preeminence. He seemed headed for still higher office. Then suddenly I heard that he had not stood for re-election.

The explanation given to me was that he had secretly squared operations on land adjacent to a proposed works project which he was instrumental in getting the government to develop.

MORTGAGED HIS SOUL

His deal was discovered by his political enemies, and when it came time for re-nomination he was quietly told to withdraw or his manipulations would be publicized. They had the goods on him. He had mortgaged his soul for money.

I think of one who has lived on the principle of Omar Khayyam, the principle of Omar Khayyam, the cynical Omar who laughed to scorn the serious purposes which men pursue, saying:

"Some for the glories of this world; and some Sigh for the Prophet's Paradise to come;
Ah, take the cash, and let the credit go,
Nor heed the rumble of a distant drum."

But when a person takes the cash and lets the credit go, where he lives only the pleasure of the moment, the end is spiritual if not financial poverty.

He exhausts the healthy thrills of normal youth, and in his later years perhaps tries to revive them in a silly second childhood. Missing the glow of godly living, he keeps trying to get a "kick" out of life. Thus men barter their souls for pleasure.

GOLDEN SPURS

When Lowell pictures Sir Launcelot setting out for the Holy Grail, he makes the Knight say, "My golden spurs now bring to or me." For the great journeys of living we must have no cheap spurs. Only the things of lasting value should goad us on.

There is nothing sadder than to struggle toward something only to find it worthless when you reach it.

Coming to New York as a young man just before World War I, I frequently visited Ellis Island to see the incoming tide of immigrants, their faces alight with hope. But sad it was to see those who lured across the Atlantic by greedy agents only to find their passports no good, they had come within sight of the Statue of Liberty but they could not enter the land of their dreams.

Wise and blessed is the man who makes sure of life's values at the start of his career.

FPP LEADER RESTRICTED

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (Reuters)—Security officers Thursday night told Cheddi Jagan, deposed prime minister and leader of the ruling People's Progressive Party, that he must not leave Georgetown without permission. A similar notice was served on his American-born wife, Janet, 18 weeks ago.

CRANE COLLAPSE KILLS TWO

BARBERTON, Ohio (AP) — A portion of a crane lowering a two-ton tank collapsed at the Columbia-Southern Chemical Corp. Thursday, killing two men and critically injuring a third. A plant official said the boom of the crane collapsed and the falling 35 section struck the men.

For Parents Only

How to Treat A Shy Child

"John if such a shy child! He is not at ease with other children and he positively dreads being left alone with a strange group-up! I wish I knew how to help him. But the more I urge him to be friendly, the less he seems to want to mix with others!"

The shy child is usually one who has lacked plenty of opportunity to play with other youngsters and to get to know adults outside his immediate family circle. Sometimes he has been subjected to too repressive and strict discipline. More often his parents are too fearful of harm befalling him and they have adopted a too protective attitude to all he does.

"Don't climb so high, you may fall."

"Be careful or you'll hurt yourself."

ADMONITIONS

These are the type of admonitions he is constantly receiving from his mother. Much of the need for change lies in the parent's treatment of the shy young child, rather than the child himself.

The shy child should have the chance to play regularly with other children, even if this demands special planning. In a city or town, the small fry in the same block or "tort down" together and have good times in each other's yards.

The Community play centres are a great help to children who are inclined to be shy. There they can enjoy the play-equipment and gradually get to know the other boys and girls who spend time there. But for a child in an isolated district or a farm home, a mother can arrange a "Visitor's Day" once in a while for a neighbour's child around the same age.

BABY SITTER

The habit of arranging for a "baby sitter" occasionally in the daytime, an older girl or woman who likes children and knows how to play with them is a help to a child of a retiring nature. Friendly relatives, aunts or a grand-mother also strengthen a child's liking for other grown-ups beside his parents, whom he can trust whose company he enjoys. The mother who prides herself on never leaving her child with anyone else, is not really preparing him to grow beyond the earliest dependant stage of childhood.

As a child gets older, if he is entrusted with small errands, such as going to the store for a loaf of bread, this builds up his self-confidence. He needs praise and re-assurance for these ex-curions by himself, or for them when he has made a real effort to be friendly to caller.

APPRECIATE VISITORS

Parents appreciate visitors who get along happily with every member of the family, even a shy child! His bashfulness should never be remarked on. But a grown-up who likes and understands children can often make a comment which pleases the child. If possible this should be a remark to which he does not have to answer. Admiring a toy or an article of his clothing is usually a good idea!

Feeling at home with even one new stranger builds up a child's confidence in the friendliness of people. It is this faith in others which eventually will supplant his uncertainty over being made welcome. Then in time he will outgrow his self-consciousness and will no longer be "such a shy child!"

AFRICANS WIN A VICTORY

The Christian Science Monitor reports another victory in the fight against racial discrimination in Africa.

It is somewhat startling to learn that this triumph was won by the pickets and the boycott, two weapons which can hardly be considered distinctly African.

Some may also find it discouraging to learn that what angered thousands of Africans in Northern Rhodesia was not any failure to give them a voice in determining their country's laws but the habit of butchers of wrapping their meat in newspapers and serving white customers first, when Africans also objected to being served outside shops, through a hatch, to being "corralled" by barriers inside shops and to not being able to inspect their purchases. Indians, as well as Europeans, were offenders.

The victory against these discriminatory practices was not easily won. Pickets gathered and were dispersed by tear gas. African families went without meat, bread, fruit, either through choice in support of the boycott or because African women were often forced away from the shops by the pickets or had their parcels snatched from them and thrown in the gutter.

But the boycott finally won the battle. It is evident that the abstention from purchases must have been largely voluntary, since no small group of pickets could have produced such a marked decline in sales. Here and there a shopkeeper capitulated. The Africans had won another victory in the war against discrimination. It may not appear an important one. But to the African housewife, now assured of equal treatment when faring forth to purchase food for her family, it probably means more than success in any battle for the ballot.

WELL, WORLD IS STILL WITH US

On March 1st the United States Atomic Energy Commission set off a hydrogen bomb detonation in the Marshall Islands. Three weeks later Japanese fishermen, blistered by radio-active coral ash at a distance of nearly 80 miles from the target site, brought the first news of the hydrogen explosion to the attention of the world. The thin edge of panic quickly spilt the peoples of the world from many of their personal problems as they contemplated the awesome possibility of an explosive man-made end to all the world's problems.

Public concern mounted in all parts of the world. Leading newspapers in Britain and on the continent called for an immediate cessation of thermonuclear tests until the effects of the March 1st blast could be properly assessed. Great concern was expressed over the revelation that scientists were astonished at the violence of the blast.

However, the Atomic Energy Commission, like the rider who climbs back on the bucking bronco before he loses his nerve, counterpunched with another hydrogen bomb last week-end. The world, we are happy to report, is still with us. Radio-active tuna in the Japanese fish market and radio-active snow in Hamilton notwithstanding, we are also glad to report that a touch of color has returned to our cheeks to replace the sickly green pallor present since the first awful news sent us scurrying under the bed at every air raid.

The hue and cry about the failure of scientists to calculate exactly the extent of the explosion seemed more like a petty bickering between rival scientists once we ascertained that all arms and legs were still visible.

Had the scientists overestimated the possible effects of the explosion and then been confronted with only 300 instead of 400 times as fierce as the Hiroshima explosion, the general public would have felt cheated somehow that atomic research was falling behind its timetable. Since no one, including the scientists, had any reason to expect it seems somewhat puzzling that people should be alarmed because an explosion of unknown dimensions proved to be larger than the most expert guess.

Of course, there is a certain degree of apprehension generated when one considers that an explosion, any old explosion, can have a radius of danger of 450 miles and that the possibility exists that a nuclear explosion with a chain reaction could atomize the world. But there is one consolation in all this. An explosion that will devastate the world is probably the only thing left that we can think of yet that will give everybody an equal chance to keep in step with the Joneses.

COLOR TELEVISION

A $500 big-screen color television receiver is three to five years away.

That's the view of J. B. Elliott, executive vice-president in charge of consumer products for the Radio Corp. of America. Mr. Elliott made the prediction as RCA's first color TV receivers started rolling out of the firm's plant in the United States at Bloomington, Indiana.

—they have small 12½-inch screens—will go on sale the middle of next month for $1,000 apiece. (Wall Street Journal).

The London Sunday Express tells the story of a plumber who, in seven years, trimmed 420,000 matchsticks with a razor and plane, and then glued the remaining slivers together to make a standard lamp, an occasional table, a tea tray, coffee table, cabinet, and a clock. He is giving these articles to his daughter for a wedding present. Obviously this is another case in which you can't match the output of a man who sticks to his work and carves himself a place in history.

A thief who squeezed through the bars on a window into a tavern in Anderson, Scotland, imprisoned himself reports the London News Chronicle, when he found he couldn't squeeze his way out. This isn't the first time a man has found himself in dire straits with respect to squeezings.

PRAISE

Youth is hungry for a word
Of encouragement and praise.
How he'd labor if he heard
Your approval of his ways.
There's no height he wouldn't dare,
Nothing that he wouldn't do,
If he had to cheer him there
Just a kindly word from you.

Better than the gold you pay
Is a word or two to show
That you like the loyal way
He is serving. Let him know
That his toil is not in vain,
Strengthen him for sterner days.
Do not trust him with disdain,
Let him have a word of praise.

THE PACKSACK
By GREGORY CLARK

It is a good many years since a large, plain book on American wildflowers has been published. In 1869, Agnes FitzGibbon Catherine Parr Traill joined forces to present a large folio with paintings by Mary Vaux Walcott, in the Smithsonian Institution, some being by Dorothy Falcon Platt, another noted flower painter. The cost of this book is not much more than we would pay for a basket of Easter flowers or a potted plant. It is so nice for carrying in the pocket, but all one of those volumes to be poured over as much for the artistic delight of it as for purposes of reference and identification for which, of course, it is perfect.

Traill was that, one generation after 1869, the young ladies of the house, seeking the beautiful big hand-colored plates, tore them out and had them framed to hang in their bedrooms and parlors. That is why the old book is so rare today.

To escape this fate, the Walcott and Platt book has made two selections of separate plates, twenty-five eastern or twenty-five western wild flowers, which can be bought separately for a reproducible sum, and since the interest and passion is aroused in those who receive the book.

The volume has made a very shrewd selection of the well-known and most beautiful wild flowers of the east, the prairies, the mountains and the Pacific slope. To gift into four hundred plates the vast range afforded by the whole continent has not been easy. But one of the greatest pleasures afforded by it is, for easterners, to see something of the wild splendors of the west; and for westerners to have before them paintings of the flowers celebrated in the literature of the other part of the country. It is a classic for Easter.

Europe's Crack Trains
By THOMAS J. DEEGAN, Jr., in "Railway Progress".

Eight years ago, just after V-E day, much of the continent of Europe was ruins. Across Europe 20,000 bridges had been destroyed, more than half the railroad classification yards had been reduced to twisted steel and rubble, and close to 40,000 miles of track had been destroyed or dismantled.

Yet today, the railroads of Europe are on the upbeat, leading in first class job. Some of the newest trains in the world are to be found there: In Italy, the Martian; in France, the rubber tire train; in ermany, the monorail and in Spain, the Talgo.

To an American railroad executive it is rather discouraging to realize that there is so much which can be done in improving railroad service, as illustrated in Europe, and yet the movement to bring this about in America progresses at a snail's pace. The Europeans have the "know how."

For all our vast investment of 25 billion dollars in the American railroad plant, the use of ear oil, glycerling and operational genius, are still almost unknown luxuries. Every European railroad man lets the passenger know that he is glad to have him aboard. Too often this is not apparent in the attitude of American railroad men toward the customers.

Perhaps the most exciting of the newest trains is the Italian Martian, which operates between Naples and Milan, a distance of 500 miles, making the run over in eight hours and 55 minutes, including a stop of seven. I was aboard of 101 miles per hour.

One of the most unusual features of the train is the forward observation lounge, where passengers actually sit in front of the engineer, who controls the train from an elevated vista dome-type cab.

Other features of the seven-car train are spacious seating rooms for the passengers, observation lounges at each end (the train is bi-directional), a restaurant car, a bar lounge, a souvenir shop and newsstand, and a shower.

The Martian, which seats 160 passengers, is 80 feet in length, nine feet wide, weight 334 tons in service and has a normal running speed of 93 miles per hour. The structure of the train consists of three units (2-3-2) of articulated coaches. The splitting of the three groups for maintenance and repair is easy, as there are special detachable rubber hoods between each group, and because coupling is effected by a special semi-automatic device.

In France there are two important trains. One is the rubber-tire train — or Michelin — which now operates between Paris and Basle, Switzerland, and the other is the new all-aluminum Paris-Lyon-Mediterranean operating between Paris and Strasbourg.

The rubber tire train interiors are done with a good deal of imagination and color. The seats are covered in a Scotch plaid plastic fabric, and the windows with wide windows have attractive matching draperies. The walls are done in simulated pine paneling. There is a bar car and a splendid dining car. The kitchen is modern in New York side street French restaurant.

But perhaps the most desirable part of the train is the ride. It is smooth and quiet ride. Each car is carried by two trucks, each with 10 rubber tires on each.

Should a blow-out occur, the train is equipped with a light in the vestibule of each car shows a red light which is spotted by the trainman, who comes walking through. At the next stop the trainman will see to it that when you change the tire on your automobile, because there are 20 tires on each car, the puncturing of one causes no danger or change in the ride.

In counterpart train, the new all-aluminum train between Paris and Strasbourg, has beautiful modern appointments and the ride is smooth as that of the rubber train, after which it was patterned, except that it does have rubber tires. Both of these trains are streamlined and have streamlined coal burning steam engines [pune-drove-i]

Pedlars Once Roamed Land
(Windsor Star)

Modern roads, motors and fine roads have eliminated the need for a type of small business man once prevalent in rural districts. A tribute to the pedlars who roamed the highways and byways, hawks, selling a wide variety of small articles to farm housewives.

Usually these pedlars belonged to the group we now call "New Canadians," and spread almost English very well. But they were shrewd salesmen and worked at a hard work. It was hard work, indeed, traveling along dusty rural roads with a heavy pack on the back. Some would have an old nag to pull a buggy, but the majority cart, but most were on foot.

Ald. W. J. Carter has returned home after a business trip to the Old Country.

Mr. W. Hudson is home from Montreal to spend the Easter vacation with his family.

Mr. John Hungerford of the Bank of Montreal, Toronto, was home to spend Easter with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Hungerford.

Mules Build Character
(Christian Science Monitor).

Mules have been sending mules to Turkey. A shipment of 606 which just went from Texas to Istanbul is the last of 3,100 which have been turned over to the Turkish Army by the United States to pack animals pursuant to the military aid program.

Were the beneficiary and country other than Turkey, this mass importation of mules would probably be revolutionary.

Mules have always ingrained conviction among folk in the valley of the Mark Twain country that all domesticated animals subtly mould the personality of their owners. Mules have a rare temper at this master-moulding business. They are reputed to be more superior to any of his human associates and an intelligence far equal to a high sense of humor, remarkable fortitude, a versatile wit, and a moral code he can't be bullied.

Mules are those who believe that to such proximity to the mule can be credited many of the best qualities of Mark Twain, J. Pershing Omar Bradley, and Harry Truman, to name only the worst of Jesse James.

It is plain, therefore, that no nation can expect to absorb a sizeable quantity of these formidable creatures without impunity. Something is likely to happen to the nation's character and the good people may wake up some fine morning to find that they aren't quite the same as ever more.

From what we hear about them, the Turks aren't worrying. The mules will merely, shall we say, influence their national character. Now we're beginning to wonder about the mules.

Conservation Briefs

A series of little known facts about conservation, under the heading of "Conservation Briefs" will occupy this space weekly. These briefs are being written by Moira River Conservation Authority to tell you, the people, know what your Conservation Authority stands for.

Did you know that in order to implement an overall conservation program for the Moira Watershed the Moira River Conservation Authority has divided its fields of endeavor into five different aspects of conservation activities, although divided for administrative purposes, are closely integrated in the furtherance of our overall objective—through sound conservation measures to increase the overall productivity of the Moira River Valley. These five aspects of effective conservation are as follows:

(1) Soil Conservation
(2) Water Conservation and Flood Control
(3) Reforestation
(4) Wildlife Conservation

Personal Health Talks
By DR. WM. BRADY

THREE COUNTS IN THE HYDROPHOBIA MATTER

Many "leading" physicians and health officers have vehemently if not violently upheld the barbaric practice of cauterizing dog-bite with, "tumbling nitric acid or other destructive agent. No doubt many do so now.

Dr. Brady

But a doctor who applies such "treatment" today is in my opinion guilty of malpractice.

In the eighteenth century, before Pasteur, Lister, Semmelweiss, Morton and Long, the doctors knew no better.

In the nineteenth century antiseptics and germicides were added to the doctor's armamentarium, but there were pretty darned newfangled ways of doing things doctors refused to adopt them in place of cautery, amputation, etc.

Early in the twentieth century surgery, anesthesia, skill, gentleness and conservatism became the accepted principles of surgery and obstetrics, although a somewhat forward step was at first resented and resisted by the old guard.

Two or three years ago R. T. Winnacker sent a questionnaire to physicians and hospitals in reference to the treatment of dogbite. He reported in Postgraduate Medicine that many doctors and hospitals still used the cautery method because, no kidding, they thought the law required them to! This is just another indication of the absurdity of the attitude of many health officers today.

Dr. Vinnard evidently believes rabies occurs in dogs without being maintained that a dogbite should be treated as an ordinary wound, by washing out the wound with soap and water, cutting away dead tissue, and stitching up the wound, and if necessary, the muscles, and then, if necessary, treatment.

If the wound is made by animal teeth or claws or bird beak or talons, farm or garden implements, or if it is possibly contaminated by street dirt or soil polluted by animal droppings or doubt, the patient should be given an immediate injection of tetanus antitoxin or toxoid, and a second such injection 5 to 7 days later, as routine, not subject to whim or guess.

I don't know any more about rabies than any other doctor knows or should know, but I suspect that most deaths ascribed to "hydrophobia" are actually caused by unsuspected, untreated tetanus.

Consult any standard medical textbook published before medicine became a business and you will find a perplexing similarity between the description of tetanus and that of "rabies."

Further I believe the quick prompt, preventive dogbites favors the development of tetanus, because of their bacilli being by the cautery covers up tetanus germs, if any of the bacilli, and keeps them the pabulum or medium to grow on.

The Clostridium (germ) of tetanus is a normal or natural inhabitant of the intestine of domestic and wild animals and sometimes that of man. Because of their habits dogs are likely to carry tetanus germs on their teeth.

In view of these facts I would indict a doctor or health officer for malpractice on any of these counts;

1) For cauterizing a fresh wound.
2) For giving a patient God knows when under the name of "Pasteur treatment."
3) For failing to give tetanus antitoxin or toxoid to every patient treated for dogbite.

TODAY'S TALK
By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

LET'S HAVE LUNCH TOGETHER

Eating for me is not so much a thing of bodily nourishment as a mental and spiritual essential—which explains why I detest lunching with a friend. Without a friend it is hardly either! It's an event of the highest importance when I receive my phone and hear at the other end these words: "Let's have lunch together."

Many years ago in New York, this invitation was offered me by Christopher Morley, and I said: "Where'll we go?" "Let's go," he said, "where George Gissing used to go." And so we did—to Christabel's place, at that time a small garden inn where a few choice spirits had immense chats over food and in peace and with good talk. To day that restaurant has attained almost worldwide fame, and would be altogether too expensive for poor George Gissing.

But it is at that delightful eating place that Morley and I, as well as scores of other congenial spirits, have long loved to dine. As a rule, I like to get lunching out of the way over with quickly—but not if I have delightful companion. Lunching should be a time for thought and relaxation, quite as much as for bodily food and satisfying hunger.

"Let's have lunch together" always means, to me, to have a friendly talk about people, books, this invitation as I received one by Christopher Morley, and I said: "Where'll we go?" "Let's go," he said, "where George Gissing used to go." And so we did—to Christabel's place, at that time a small garden inn where a few choice spirits had immense chats over food and in peace and with good talk. LIFE'S FULFILLMENT

A great deal of cynical ridicule has been poured upon the "bucket list. The "sawdust trail" has become an object of contempt in religious circles. Evangelists we are, are reborn sons and daughters of God. The spirit must grow according as does the body. It is a great calamity when people do not attain full and normal physical growth; it is an even greater calamity when they do not attain normal or full spiritual growth. We have planted a plan whereby the spirit of man is the most important matter with which any human being ever deals. This is why the Church has been so insistent in pressing its claims of salvation.

NATO Business Is Discussed In Informal, Chummy Way

By ALAN HARMER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

PARIS (CP) — The time: Any Wednesday afternoon.

The place: A lofty, cream-colored room on the Avenue Foch in Paris, street of diplomats and millionaires.

The people: Fourteen members of a sort of international cabinet, meeting in a cigars-and-brandy atmosphere to talk about things affecting the daily life of 400,000,000 persons in the Western world.

"What it really amounts to," said an Allied official, "is the extension of diplomatic procedure to embrace an international organization."

INFORMALITY KEYNOTE

He was referring to the chummy, informal way in which the permanent representatives of the 14 countries in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization do their weekly work. Instead of gathering in a cold, official chamber, they meet in the balconied drawing room of the Avenue Foch mansion, home of NATO Secretary-General Lord Ismay.

The diplomats split up into small groups, discussing such hard-core problems as how Canada should pay for installations on a French airfield or whether it is possible to simplify the methods of coupling a hose used, say, in Greece or Turkey. The talks carry a lot of weight, because each representative has ambassadorial rank, and is in effect the deputy or external, finance and defence ministers in the home government.

Canada's representative since August, 1953, has been Dana Wilgress, a veteran diplomat who entered government service in the First World War.

The ambassadors make up what is called the NATO council, and are in permanent session in Paris. The ministers meet only periodically.

FRANK DISCUSSIONS

The permanent representatives talk freely and frankly at their Wednesday meetings. It is a proud boast of NATO officers that practical decisions are taken with a minimum of formalities.

"Nothing is moved and nothing is seconded," said one NATO spokesman. "If a country, through her representative, takes exception to a certain proposal, it merely reserves its position. Nothing is ever voted and personally, I have never heard a voice raised in anger."

For all that, there can be some touchy moments at these and other NATO gatherings. Money matters, particularly the question of economic burden-sharing among the 14 countries, provide one big problem. Here little Luxembourg can sit round a table and criticize, for example, the mighty United States.

NATO officers say Canada is possibly the most "sensitive" of all countries. She is regarded as a rich, booming country and it is sometimes hard to explain why she is the only one of the 14 NATO powers which has no conscription law.

To take one example, Canada pays 7.13 per cent toward the cost of NATO's long-term infrastructure program, covering installations and facilities at NATO bases. The United States pays 42.86, France 13.75, Britain 11.45. It is understood there was considerable discussion over the odd .13 per cent in Canada's case.

COMPLICATED PROCESS

How the economic burden shall be shared is worked out in various stages through a complicated process called the annual review, involving replies to questionnaires by individual countries and a calculation of the gross national product of each member.

Asked whether he felt NATO burden-sharing now is completely fair, a top-ranking economist at Paris headquarters said:

"Ideallistically, perhaps not. In a sense the problem is insoluble; how can you compare the contribution of an oil millionaire in Alberta with that of a peasant in Turkey? But there is a practical burden-sharing, and it's amazing, even phenomenal, the extent to which member countries have accepted it."

Another difficulty is standardization of military and civilian equipment. Progress is being made but the problems were clearly shown in the drive, led by Canada, to obtain a standard round of ammunition and a standard rifle. Canada was particularly interested because it would be hard to imagine a war in which Canadian soldiers at one time or another would not be fighting alongside British and American troops. Hence the desire for a standard round, accepted so far by nine of five countries. Defence Minister Claxton of Canada brought up the subject so often at NATO gatherings he was christened "One-Round Claxton."

Proof of the fact that the purchase of Easter Seals aids crippled kiddies in Belleville and district is shown in the above photo. Polio victim Larry Seams is proud as punch of the new wheel chair just presented to him by the Rotary Club of Belleville. Also in the picture are Dr. Van Blakelee, Mrs. H. F. Seams, Fred Adsett, president-elect of Rotary, and Harold Mott, Rotary president. The Rotary Club is now staging its annual Easter Seal Campaign.

Soldier Reaches Children's Bedside

PEMBROKE (CP)—Sgt. W. E. Hunter of the 3rd Battalion of the Royal Canadian Regiment has reached the bedside of his two young daughters after a 5,000-mile air trip from Korea.

Heather and Holly Hunter, aged one and two years respectively, were brought to hospital here March 22 and suffering from pneumonia and measles. When their condition was reported critical last Saturday, the army issued orders to have Sgt. Hunter flown home.

Hospital authorities had good news when he arrived Thursday. The children are out of danger and are expected to be released from hospital soon.

Sgt. Hunter had completed his tour of duty in Korea and was aboard a Canada-bound transport 12 miles from the port of Inchon when the report was received. He was flown to Ottawa, and rushed to Pembroke by automobile.

TOURIST PEAK

Tourists from other countries spent a record $302,000,000 in Canada in 1953.

MORE JAM

Production of jam in Canada reached 80,383,000 pounds in 1953, or 91 per cent more than 1952.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

THE WATER QUESTION

Living things require water. Without water in some form or other, birds could not survive. We may not recognize this fact, especially when we see a pair nesting far from any lake, pond, river, or stream. They do not seem to drink, but when moisture is not otherwise available get water by eating foods rich in water content.

Rain is made good use of, not only when falling, but later too. Birds can often be seen drinking from leaves, and even from little puddles on our city streets. Dew is of course, another form of water, frequently to be found at the end of an extremely hot day. In winter, watchers often report that birds have been seen eating (or should we say drinking?) snow.

Many seed eaters feed their nestlings on insects. In this way giving them food and drink at the same time. How else would a young bird in the nest obtain water if not from a food containing a large amount of it? We can well understand, then, why robins like to feed their babies juicy worms.

HIGH WATER CONTENT

Because fat has a high water content, this is one reason why Nature sees to it that before migration birds acquire a large amount of fat on their bodies.

Here is another argument in favor of feeding fat (for instance putting out containers of suet) to birds in winter. Sugar is also good, as it is something like half water.

Bird enthusiasts have various plans for giving their small friends water in winter, especially if there is little or no snow. One lady fills a walnut shell. A man puts out pans of warm water and says sparrows, blue jays, and robins both drink from them and take baths; but surely this is not in Canada's coldest weather, or the warm water would soon be ice.

BATHS IMPORTANT

Birds like to take baths at all times of year. As it is especially important in summer, people are urged to construct bird baths. However, the little feathered folk shake rain and dew from leaves, thus getting shower baths, flutter in every little summer puddle, and even in winter snow.

The old expression "as water off a duck's back" is based on fact. Nature has supplied oil for feathers, which comes in a tiny preening gland under the tail. The bird spreads it over the plumage so that water is shed. We need never be alarmed about a bird getting wet; the moisture seen on the surface does not penetrate.

Is Your WILL Up to Date?

Many people review their Will from time to time. Your executor may have moved away or become ill or become unable to give sufficient time and attention to administer your estate. In view of the considerable changes in dollar values your Estate has probably changed in value.

You may have given too many legacies, or too large in amount, under your Will and have deprived your wife and children of sufficient to provide for their care and keep. You may have to adjust some of the shares going to beneficiaries. Birth, marriages and deaths in your family may have made your estate plans obsolete. Increased succession duties and income taxes may affect the estate plans made by you for your family.

Your Will is one of the most important documents you will ever be called upon to sign. If you have a Will, we suggest that you review it now —and if not, make your Will now and appoint Victoria and Grey Trust Company as Executor.

Weddings

McGLASHAN—RUSS.

Tall candelabra and ferns interspersed with pink and white snapdragons formed a lovely background in Bridge Street United Church, on Saturday, March 27th at 2.30 p.m. when Lois Irene Ross, of Rossmore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Ross, became the bride of Sgt. Hugh McGlashan, Jr., R.C.A.F., North Carolina, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McGlashan, of Rochester, N.Y. The pastor of the church, the Reverend Duncan McTavish officiated.

The wedding music was provided by Mr. S. Alec Gordon, church organist, who accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Morley Davidson, who rendered "The Lord's Prayer" and "Because."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in bridal gown featuring a quaint, old fashioned sit-almost skirt and finger-tip veil of tulle illusion caught with a coronet of orange blossoms and seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of white roses.

Miss Shirley Mallett, of Belleville, attended the bride as maid of honor, and Miss Beverley McGlashon, of Rochester, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Joan Henderson, of Oshawa, acted as bridesmaids. They wore gowns of periwinkle blue nylon net with headdresses of flowers tinted to match the gowns, and carried bouquets of white and blue carnations backed by satin leaves.

Mr. James Lloyd McGlashan, of Belleville, attended the bridegroom, and Mr. Douglas Souls, and Mr. Jay Ross, brother of the bride, both of Belleville, were ushers.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where, the bride's mother, attired in navy dress with navy accessories, received the guests. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who was gowned in mauve lace with white accessories. Both wore corsages of spring flowers.

The bride's table was prettily appointed with a lace cloth, centred by a three-tiered wedding cake, flanked by silver candlebra and tall white tapers, enhanced by the attendants bouquets of spring flowers.

For the wedding trip to Toronto, Rochester, New York and North Carolina, the bride chose a gold colored suit with brown accessories, a mauve and gold tweed topcoat, with gold costume jewellery. Mr. and Mrs. McGlashan will reside at Cherry Point, North Carolina.

Charming Indian Play 'Nushka Onaway' Staged by OSD Pupils

Last evening the students of the Ontario School for the Deaf presented to a deeply interested audience of parents, teachers, friends and former students, the premiere showing of "Nushka Onaway," a charming Indian story, skillfully compiled from authentic tribal customs and ceremonials of various tribes: Hurron, Vancouver, Lightfoot, Omahaw, and Sioux. The play which was written and directed by S. Alec Gordon, was also highlighted by incidental Indian music delightfully rendered by the ladies' choir of Bridge Street United Church.

Mrs. J. G. Demeza, superintendent of the school, in his opening remarks, extended a hearty welcome to all, and in a brief historical outline of the boys and girls taking part in the play, stating that 85 students of the school were involved in the presentation, and that all were profoundly deaf. Most of the students came to the school without words, which have since been learned by watching and feeling. Its speech is the result of much effort on the part of both teachers and pupils. As they cannot hear speech, the usual voice intonations are absent.

SPECIAL APPRECIATION

Mr. Demeza also extended special appreciative thanks to Mr. Gordon for the play and the accompanying music and to all those responsible for the costumes worn, with particular thanks to the ladies of Bridge St. Church choir for the musical background.

In the preparation of "Nushka Onaway," which being interpreted means "Walking Away," or "Let Us Rejoice," Mr. Gordon spent two days at the Victoria Museum, Ottawa, gathering factual data for the play, as well as consulting reference books on the subject. Some of the costumes were on loan from the museum, but for the most part, they had been made in the workrooms of the school.

The play itself was preceded by the Canadian pantomime, titled "Washday Blues," which elicited many chuckles from the audience. This depicted the trials of a busy housewife, Mrs. Henpeck (Joan Cullen), bringing out her basket of freshly washed clothes to be hung on the line, to which task her sleeping spouse, Mr. Henpeck (Wilfred Saumure); was awakened by a tweet-tweet to his ear. He sleepily attempts to extend a too-short line between posts with no avail, even though he did lose on it from one end, and try it from the other with no better result.

SPANS THE GAP

After many deep cogitation, he decides to sever it and place the basket in the centre, tying the loose ends to the basket handles. This is also a failure. Thereupon he takes the dress shirt, and spans the gap by tying the rope to the sleeves. When his wife comes on the scene again, she takes it all in at a glance, then goes after the spouse who is much more retired to his chair, hat over eyes, to indulge in a pleasant nap, which is immediately shattered.

He is led in his semi-somnolent condition to the place where the shirt had been, and with the rope tied to each arm, which she holds in the position as soon as they begin to droop, the wash is soon in its place, with the ending in the erstwhile sleeper's chair, watching and resulting in the upright position, by a well-guided jab, the oft drooping figure of her spouse.

A fine rendition by the rhythm band of the overture, "Nushka Onaway," following the amusing skit, rendered a pleasing prelude to the play.

NUSHKA ONAWAY.

The story of "Nushka Onaway" was presented in five scenes, and depicted the story of the "Little Eagle", from birth to young manhood, with the accompanying ceremonials which take place in the life of a young brave, including the introduction of the baby papoose to the world, the assembling of the Indian tribe, the Medicine man, who makes the incantations and prays that the pathway of this new life will be made smooth over the first hill—babyhood; over the second hill—adolescence; over the third hill, young manhood, and over the fourth hill, that of age.

In scene two, death has come, due to a prevailing famine, and leaves the mother of Little Eagle, who is now the sole care of grandmother Dawn. The scene is colorful and attractive, showing the young braves engaged in target practice with bows and arrows, which gives place to an Indian war dance, with borrowed headfeathers from the tepee of the absent chief, and the consequent intervention of grandmother Dawn who fears that Little Eagle will be awakened from his sleep as he sways from the limb of the nearby tree in his Indian cradle. At this juncture the Medicine man enters, and the dance is stopped. He takes feathers from their headbands, saying that these were won for gallant and brave deeds, and not worn just as an ornament.

THE NATIVITY STORY.

This scene is augmented by the grandmother telling the young braves the story of the birth of the Christ Child, according to Indian lore, and shows the birthplace, and the Indian's keeper, the entrance of the white winged angels, the coming of the Wise Men, (three Indian chiefs) each bringing his offering of precious pelts to the Babe. A lovely scene indeed.

Scene Three shows Little Eagle grown up into manhood, when his baby name must now be changed to correspond with his years, if he qualifies. The braves assemble, and Little Eagle is required to spend a night alone at the Vigil Rock, after lighting the fire at its base.

After the long night, dawn breaks; the chief, braves, and medicine man appear, and Little Eagle descends from the big rock, assisted by the medicine man, who presents him with his new name, "Golden Eagle" on birch bark denoting that he is now a full-fledged brave, and the recipient of his first white feather.

HAPPY TIDINGS

Scene IV shows him coming to grandmother Dawn with the happy tidings that he was entitled to receive the name of "Gold Eagle," her pleasure at the news, and the many gifts of her Star, a lovely Indian maid, comes to visit, bearing gifts from her father, Chief Thunder Cloud, is very ill, through lack of food owing to the famine, and sickness.

Though Golden Eagle and his people, are also out of food, he goes with Bright Star to bring the ailing chieftain to his tepee, and later goes away on his luck for meat into the "Land of the West Wind" where game and berries are plentiful. With a prayer to the Great Spirit, Minnie, he sets out, and soon the deer falls, and Golden Eagle returns to his tribe with food for all. There is great rejoicing; a dance takes place—for he is promoted to have more white feathers.

The story would not be complete without the happy ending. Golden Eagle and the lovely Bright Star are "to live happily ever after."

EXTRA COMMENDATION

This presentation merits extra commendation due to the fact that hereto the plays given have been mostly along well-known lines of the fairy tale, with which most children have grown up, either by written word or picture. In this presentation, there is complete change in subject matter dealing both with fanciful acts, but with historical ceremonials, which necessitated unusual concentration on the part of the players, all of whom deserve honorable mention, as well as all others connected with the play, Mrs. Henderson and her girls for costumes; Mr. H. Vaughan and his boys for scenery; Mr. Graham, M. Micetick and B. Wilks, for stage set; Mr. Charet and Miss Lake, Ladies' choir for incidental music, and the soloist Mrs. William Wilkinson for delightful assistance.

The cast is as follows: Narrator, Joanne Bateman; Little Moonbeam, Mother of Bright Star, Christina Desserre; Grandmother, Mother of Little Eagle, Mary O'Neil; Medicine Man, David Elliott; Grandmother Dawn, Wilhelmeffe Hamilton; Mary Chong; Red Wing, Son of Chief Thunder Cloud, Jerry Flying Cloud, Red Wing's playmate, Marshall Wick; Crow Foot, Red Fox and attendants, Donald Dennis; Sweet Noise, Red Wing's playmate, Nancy Kennedy; Chief Sitting Bull, Tribal chief, Bill Hakbirk; (Little Eagle, Golden Eagle), Kenneth Wheatley; Chief Thunder Cloud, Bright Star's father, Peter Klym; Braves, Leroy McClymont, Lawrence Bateman, Satller, Irvine Hayes, Billy Hembill and David Farmer; Squaws, Jean Bailey, Doreen Brown, Maxine Wadsworth, Peggy De La Fran ier, Vivian Curtis and Claudette Gravelle; Angels, Margaret Kirkness, Isabel Nugent, Joyce Rath, Irene Laney, Mary Penfold, Margaret Gansky, Rosemary Burnade, Diane Moon; Hunters, Peter De Boer, Kenneth Searson, David Hunter, Alan Ozawa; Chiefs, Marie Micetick, Billy Wilks, Robert Obersoehr; Stage Manager, Keith Derschner, Assistants, Norman Rutan, Tommy Dallaire.

SISTERS ALL

By Jean Love Galloway

A neighbor of ours in his late thirties, husky and hard-working, suddenly took a severe pain in one foot and ankle. His ankle swelled. In a few hours he was in great pain, though otherwise he felt fit. — They hobbled him into a car to see a doctor. His friends thought it must be some blood infection. But he had not hurt his foot in any way and was not sick.

The doctor quickly diagnosed the case as a clot of blood in the lower leg and ordered him onto a stretcher, into an ambulance and into a hospital bed instantly. The doctor says that if it weren't for the new wonder drugs available to medical men today, the clot would be dead. As it is, he will have to remain in bed slowly until the clot is dissolved into the blood stream, or of course, surgery may be necessary.

Bahais Hold Surprise Party

The Bahais of Belleville recently celebrated with a buffet luncheon at the home of Rina Di Gennaro. The occasion was the New Year of the Bahai calendar, March 21st. This New Year date was enjoyed by Bahais throughout the world, who term it "New Run".

Guest speaker for this happy event was Mr. Robert Cretzery who said that "the date of the New Year" coincided with the vernal equinox or the beginning of the new year in the cycle of seasons, a new beginning. The coming of the prophet to humanity again brings a new spiritual energy to the hearts of men which must result in the spiritual regeneration of society."

Added to this joyful occasion was a surprise birthday presentation made to Jim Scarlington by Mr. William G. Connor, of the book entitled "Seven Valleys," written by Bahaullah, author of the Bahai World Faith. All sang "Happy Birthday" to Jim, as the hostess Marg Mann, brought in the lighted birthday cake, of which Gordon Jardine Jr., blew out the candles.

Margarite Carter and Mrs. Beer poured tea and coffee.

Guests arrived from Picton and Kingston.

This instance shows the importance of having an early medical diagnosis. It shows, too, that a person may be seriously ill without either himself or his family being aware of it when it strikes. Even though a person can crawl around, sometimes they, unknowingly, are taking life in their own hands by not being carried on a stretcher.

So when unusual illness strikes anybody, the best thing to do is get the person into bed and call a doctor.

We like the quotation found at the door of a French menu used at a banquet for senior officers at the Kingston Penitentiary on Penitentiary Staff College in France.

It is commendable that our Canadian penitentiaries are now geared to saving old economic human men and women. Is the current title for criminal reform, it is our faith which are coming in for justified criticism of conditions there because our legislation provides only a tomb for short-term offenders.

Our penitentiaries which receive men and women for sentences of two years or longer, are being praised for their practical rehabilitation programs.

Maybe it's just imagination, but a lot of us are finding the ground coffee we've been using has a better quality and strength than the same brand ground on-the-spot and put into paper bags.

Melrose W.I. Hears Talks on Radium, Children's Aid

The Melrose Women's Institute March meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Ed. Lasher. The W.I. project for '54, "Widows' Self-Help Program for Korean Widows" was diagussed.

A donation of $25 was voted to the Red Cross and a committee comprised of Mrs. N. Denille, Mrs. Ed. Lasher and Mrs. Ken Mc-Mechan was nominated to select officers for the coming year.

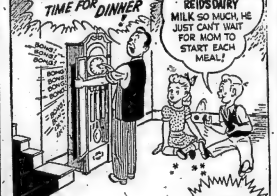
Any donation to the paper drive will be forwarded to its destination by Mrs. Arthur English if received by the 15th of April at her home.

Mrs. Lorne Weese rendered a piano selection and led in a singing of Irish ballads.

Mrs. McLaughlin was thanked by Mrs. N. Denille and a shamrock contest was won by Mrs. E. Snow, Jr.

The roll call "Say, Sing or Pay", was answered by over forty members and visitors.

Christ Church W.A. Sees N. British Columbia Film



An interesting film was shown at the business meeting of the Christ Church afternoon branches of the W.A. in the parish hall on Thursday afternoon by Mrs. L. Hendley.

Views of northern British Columbia included wild life, Indian families, the Skeena River with the flat-bottomed river boats, rockets, the New South Wales mountains, all in the vicinity of Telegraph Creek, where Mrs. Hendley had lived for a few years.

The pictures were much enjoyed by the members of the W.A.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

AIDED AT HOME

However, not all children under the care of the C.A.S. are in foster homes. If the parents are responsible, conscientious persons and through sickness, poverty or hard luck are unable to give their children proper care, the children are left in their own homes and supplied with clothes, medical supplies, until the parents can stand on their own again. This partial aid is one of the big features that few people hear about. In addition, all adoptions are handled through the C.A.S.

The C.A.S. is able to carry on from monies received from the municipality, government grants and local donations of both clothing and money.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

HOW CAN A GIRL BE SURE MAN IS THE RIGHT ONE?

Today or two ago in this column, I was stressing the fact that before making a decision to marry anyone, it was of vital importance to be sure you know that person thoroughly. Too many people, I said, go into marriage without such knowledge, only to discover before long that the new wife or husband was actually an entirely different sort of character than he or she had seemed before marriage.

Now comes a girl of 18 who is certain she has a man whose personality and character are just what she wants in a husband, and what she says about him seems to prove her point.

So what is she worrying about? You'd be surprised! Read it for yourself:

"I'm going steady with a fellow who is extremely good-looking. Surprising as it may seem, he is also conceited—far from it. He's 22 years old and very much in love with me, so he says.

"He's everything any girl would want to see in a fellow. He has a good job and plenty of ambition, and wants the same things out of marriage that I want, which is to raise a healthy and happy family.

"My girl friends often ask me how I can be sure that he'll make such a wonderful husband as I think. I could give them hundreds of reasons, but the one I'd like to mention especially is this: he treats me wonderfully. He's never tried to get fresh or talk me into anything we both know it wrong. We have swell times when we are together, even just when taking my small brother and his cousin to the Zoo or for a ride because we both love kids. I know if I ever had to describe the character of an 'ideal man,' I'd have no trouble.

"I'm not trying to brag about this fact. He has a temper that flares like a firecracker—with a bang! But it blows over almost as quickly.

"What kind of problem could I have? It's his looks!

"Every girl likes to have a nice-looking boy friend, but you find very few with a personality to match the looks, and I can't help wondering if I'm letting myself be carried away by those good looks of his.

"The reason I say this is because sometimes I just don't want to see him. Take tonight, for instance. We had a date, but I didn't feel like going, so I said I had some things to do.

"I want more out of life than a guy with good looks, but I know I'm young—I'm only 18—and could be that I'm letting that handsome face and wavy hair carry me away.

"Is there any way I can be sure?"

Yes, there definitely is a way for a girl, or any one can be sure. Like a way I've been urging for years on young people who are thinking about marriage, and so here goes once more.

Before you say "yes" to a man, take plenty of time to get acquainted with him. And by getting acquainted, I mean a whole lot more than finding out how entertaining he can be when he takes you out, how well he dances, how he looks when he's all dressed up, how kind he is to animals. What I mean is finding out how close he comes to the girl's own principles, standards, ideals and philosophy of life; whether he is selfish or unselfish, considerate or inconsiderate, tolerant and generous or intolerant and narrow-minded, outgoing or wrapped up in self; how far they agree in the kind of things they like to do and the kind of friend they like to have; in what they consider important and what they regard as unimportant. For if these things are right, the unsuperficial ones will be easily adjusted.

If this girl of the letter is as sure as she seems to be that her young man measures up in the important qualities, then I think she need not worry about being carried away by his good looks. Moreover, it's not necessarily of any great significance that there are times when she'd like to do something besides go out with him. Even people in love do want to see other friends occasionally, or catch up on special interests—or even just have an evening alone! And it's good for them to do these things—good for their own development as individuals, and good for their relationship together; since there definitely is such a thing as concentrating on one single person to the point where it gets a bit monotonous.

So if all our young woman has trouble her is her young man's looks and her own desire to have a little time to herself once in a while, she can dismiss these from her mind. If, however, she has definite doubts about whether or not she is really in love, let her simply use the formula I have laid down—that of taking all the time she needs, before committing herself, to make certain the young man's character actually is what she thinks it is, and that his kind of character is what she wants.

Readers' Saturday Column

As Conducted by Mary Moore

QUESTION:

I wonder if you would help me with detail of four recipes I am anxious to obtain: 1) Quick Bread containing some of the things Brazil nuts, cherries and perhaps grated orange rind. This is quite nice and served spread with butter. 2) Small cakes made in plain cake pan into one inch squares dipped in ——— (?) and rolled in chopped pecan nuts. 3) Butterscotch Buns (sweet) Dough is rolled, spread with butter, brown sugar and cinnamon and rolled as for cinnamon buns. Cut into slices. Muffin tins have also a layer of syrup, brown sugar and butter. 4) Pecan Ring. Similar dough as No. 3 cut into slices and put in tube pan already spread with layer of cherries, pecans, brown sugar, syrup and butter.—Muriel A.

ANSWER:

CHERRY NUT LOAF

Cream together thoroughly 2-3 cup white sugar, 1-3 cup soft shortening, 2 eggs, and then stir in 3 tablespoons sour milk or buttermilk and 2-4 cup sliced moist candied or maraschino cherries. Sift together 2 cups sifted flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon each soda and salt and stir in. Add 3-4 cup shaved blanched Brazil nuts or other nuts and 1 teaspoon finely grated lemon rind. Pour into greased loaf pan 9x5x3 inches. Allow to stand 20 minutes then bake at 250 deg. Fahr. for 50 to 60 minutes.

I believe the frosting for the small cakes you refer to is powder butter fudge frosting. If so it is made by boiling together 3-4 cup each white and brown sugar and 1-3 cup cream to 234 deg. Fahr. stirring until mixture, covering for three minutes, then removing cover and until temperature has cooled. Remove from heat, let stand until lukewarm. Add 1-4 cup butter and beat until it will nearly hold its shape. Spread at once on cakes or use as frosting for large cake.

I have mailed you the recipe for Butterscotch Buns which appeared in the column on March 6, for Pecan Ring use recipe for Cinnamon Rolls (which also appears in March 6 column) or Butterscotch Buns up to the point where they are sliced. Then place them in tube pan coated with 1-4 cup each melted butter, brown sugar and pecans (and sliced cherries desired). After baking turn pan upside down onto serving plate for a few minutes.

QUESTION:

Thanks for calorie chart. It is helping me greatly. I can't seem to lose more than 2 lbs. per week, is that enough? . . . what is the calorie count of 1 medium baked potato and 1 boiled potato? 1-2 cup cooked parsnips? 1-3 cup cooked onion in cream sauce made with skim milk and only a small chunk of butter. I have taken inches off my waist and hips but would like to do better. —Mrs. J. E. G.

ANSWER:

Good for you. You are doing splendidly. Two lbs. a week is just perfect. Medium potato, boiled or baked including skin 100 cal.; 1 parsnip 7 inches long 100 cal.; 1-3 cup onions in sauce made with skim milk and 1 teaspoon butter would not exceed 75 cal. I do not think

LETTER:

You always bring a ray of sunshine into my kitchen with your column but today I was able to help that ray. Your home made Rolls are just super! and what they did for my morale! I grew up on a rural area where we baked every loaf of bread in the oven, but we worked with real bread flour and I just can't turn out a loaf of light bread with all-purpose flour, or any yeast product for that matter. Friend husband, an Easterner, began to show his doubts about my former baking experience. Will today! Now I can hold my head up again. . . . I've just got to get my Yorkshire Pudding right soon. If you can help me I'll give you all the credit.—Mrs. E. R. B.

ANSWER:

Okay—now we're set for triumph No. 2. You will always get a Yorkshire Pudding with a crusty crown and a centre-core of a doughnut if you bake it in muffin tins. There is nothing like it to keep it from falling. I bake mine in the roasting pan. Since you have an 18 cu. ft. range I'd remove it when it is puffed and set it on the platter you are warming in. Turn big oven to 450 deg. Fahr. Pour enough fat from pan in which you roast to coat 9 tablespoons in pan and preheat pan in oven. Pour 1 cup Yorkshire Pudding mixture (mine is 1 cup flour, 2 cups milk, 2 eggs, 1 teaspoon each baking powder and salt). It should sizzle as it hits the pan. Bake at 450 deg. Until puffed all over and lagged if with gold. Cut into squares and serve at once, around roast.

Let me know. You are pretty sunny yourself.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECHMAN

BOY FRIEND

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be married soon, and I would like to know whether or not it would be proper for me to invite my former boy friend. He tells me that if I don't invite him to the reception he will come anyway. He has told me so many times that although we did break off, he still wishes to be a friend. Please advise me. — L.

The ones to advise you, dear bride-to-be, are your mother and, even more particularly, your prospective bridegroom, for they know more about the circumstances than you do. Perhaps you shouldn't take too seriously his plans to come to the reception . . . he may have been singing too often "I'm Walking Behind You!"

BRIDE'S BRIDGE PARTNERS TO SEND IMPORTANT GIFT

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

For several years four of us, 'gals'—three married, one unmarried—have had a bridge club, and we've been wonderful friends. Now the fourth is to be married, and we would like to give her as a wedding present an electrical item which she particularly wants and which is quite expensive. So we three, with our husbands, would like to give this as a joint wedding present. Would this be proper, and should we each send an individual present? —Dorothy J

To carry out the excellent idea of giving her the electrical item for which she yearns it would be quite proper for you three couples to combine to do this, it would be a most sensible and practical way to do, and this present would be a most wonderful remembrance to her of The Bridge Foursome!

A QUESTION OF WEDDING PROCEDURE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be married in June, in a Catholic church. There seems to be some doubt concerning where my mother should sit in the church. My mother and father are divorced, and ever since the divorce, I have lived with my father. Under these circumstances is it still proper that she take the guest of honor seat in church? —L.

You give no reason why your mother should not be given the seat in the first pew on the left of the aisle, the traditional seat for the mother of the bride. If for some reason you haven't given me, you do not agree with this point of view, I suggest you consult the priest who is to perform the ceremony, for his guidance about this. Incidentally, that seat in the first pew on the left of the aisle is not the "guest of honor seat" . . . the bridegroom's mother is the woman guest of honor of the wedding, and she, with her husband, who is the man guest of honor of the wedding, sits in the first pew on the right of the aisle.

TO VISIT CANADA

The Duchess of Kent will make her first visit to Canada in August and September with her daughter, Princess Alexandra, Government house authorities announced Friday. Her three-week tour will be limited to eastern Canada. On August 27 she will open the 1954 Canadian National Exhibition at Toronto. The Duchess is the widow of the Queen's uncle who was killed during the Second World War in a plane crash in Scotland. (CP from UK information).

Gay Royal Air to Fashions For London Social Season

Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—There's a gay royal air to the fashions for London's coming social season. The Queen's choice influences clothes designed by most of the couture houses here.

Even those of fashion design's "mig 17" not credited as royal designers show outfits that might have come from the royal wardrobe.

But collections designed by Norman Hartnell, Hardy Amies and Victor Stiebel are especially influenced by the fashions favored by their royal patroness.

Take Stiebel, designer to Princess Margaret and the Duchess of Kent. His slender suits and unfussed day dresses might well have been for the stately Duchess or Kent. The tiny-waisted, big-skirted evening gowns and princess coats call to mind the neat figure of Princess Margaret.

DAINTY, SOPHISTICATED

There is something of the dainty sophistication of the five-foot, two inch Margaret in Stiebel's short evening dress in mist grey organza. With skin-fitted bodice, draped to accentuate the bust, and a full skirt embroidered with medallions of pleated taffeta set with rhinestones, it has the smooth hipline and tiny waist suited to a petite figure. The strapless top, however, would not be favored by the royal family for public wear.

The short skirts liked by the Queen and Princess Margaret for informal evening wear have resulted in an increased number of couture gowns with skirts around low-calf level.

Even Norman Hartnell, whose ball gowns are world-renowned, has included a number of shorter styles. One is a bolero and tail dress with off-shoulder decolletage, three-quarter sleeves and skirt which has full-ness added by deep pleats that taper to a point at the front.

The Queen's tour is reflected in designs by John Cavanagh. A brightness of a bird of paradise flows a cape of palm fronds encircling the neck and coming to waist length.

Evening Dress

There a gaily royal air to the fashions for London's coming social season. An example is this short evening dress in mist-grey organza designed by Victor Stiebel, designer to Princess Margaret and the Duchess of Kent. With skin-fitted bodice, draped to accentuate the bust, and a full skirt embroidered with medallions of pleated taffeta set with rhinestones, it has the smooth hipline and tiny waist suited to a petite figure like that of Princess Margaret. The strapless top, however, would not be favored by the Royal Family for public wear. — (CP Photo.)

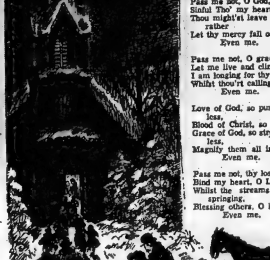
Stories of Famous Hymns

By HORACE B. POWELL

"LORD, I HEAR OF SHOWERS OF BLESSING"



Lord, I hear of showers of blessing
Thou art scattering full and free;
Showers, the thirsty land refreshing;
Let some drops now fall on me.
Even me.

Pass me not, O God, my Father,
Sinful Tho' my heart may be;
Thou mightst leave me, but the rather
Let thy mercy fall on me.
Even me.

Pass me not, O gracious Savior,
Let me live and cling to thee;
I am longing for thy favor;
Whilst thou'rt calling, O call me.
Even me.

Love of God, so pure and changeless,
Blood of Christ, so rich and free,
Grace of God, so strong and boundless,
Magnify them all in me.
Even me.

Pass me not, thy lost one bringing,
Bind my heart, O Lord, to thee;
Whilst the streams of life are flowing,
Blessing others, O bless me.
Even me.

"LORD, I HEAR OF SHOWERS OF BLESSING"

Sermons in songs? Most assuredly, and some of the best ever penned by Christian worshipping at home on Sunday mornings when illness prevented their going out to church.

There is, for instance, the story of Mrs. Elizabeth Codner, the wife of an English clergyman, who became very much interested one day in 1860 about the spiritual welfare of a group of young friends and whose desire for their conversion led her to write the hymn, now widely used in gospel and evangelistic meetings, "Lord, I Hear the Showers of Blessing."

Mrs. Codner's friends had returned, and were completely interested in a meeting at which the progress of an Irish revival had been described. Mrs. Codner was concerned lest the young people overlook their own need for individual salvation.

"On the following Sunday," according to her own story, "not being well enough to get out, I had a time of quiet communion. Those children were still on my heart, and I hoped to press upon them an earnest individual appeal. Without effort, words seemed to be given me and they took the form of a hymn. I had no thought of sending it beyond the limits of my own circle, but passing it to one and another, it became a word of power and I was published it as a leaflet.

"In its further history I can only say the Lord took it quite out of my own hands. It was read from pulpits, circulated by tens of thousands, and blessed to a remarkable degree. Every now and then, some sweet token was sent to cheer me of its influence upon souls."

Why "buy it installed" makes sense in plumbing or heating purchases

You wouldn't do at the man in the picture is doing. Neither would you buy anything and then have your own tailor fit the pants where it fit you best.

Products which require installing skill should be bought installed and as a ready-for-use unit. Otherwise, you are likely to get an expensive disappointment.

Plumbing and heating products belong in this class. A water heater, an oil burner or radiator is not a thing to be entrusted to anything plumbing or heating contractor. Every piece of equipment should be selected as the figure of precise dimensions, capacities or special characteristics at the system to which it attaches. Only in that way can you avoid disappointment.

Remember, "buy it installed," you not only buy a product but also the service of a reputable contractor which, after all, is as only naive to you.

In the long run, isn't it cheaper to "buy it installed"?

Let us explain exactly why it's cheaper, better and safer to get your new "equipment" on your next purchase of plumbing and heating products.

BELLEVILLE INDUSTRIAL, HOME AND Plan Well Before Building

By 'Home Builder'

Selecting a house plan and choosing a home site are two aspects of home building that are so closely related that one cannot be settled without completing the other. For example, if your choice of a house plan is ranch style then you must purchase a wider lot than you would for a conventional bungalow or a one-and-a-half or two-storey plan.

Again, your choice of a house type may not be adaptable to the size and shape of the lots in the district where you wish to build. Zoning by-laws and value restrictions may compel you to build in a section which is not entirely to your complete satisfaction.

It is recommended that as a home builder or potential home builder, you should decide how much you can spend on a home, select a house plan to your satisfaction, then try and build this home in a district conforming as closely as possible to the ideal location — a convenient quiet neighborhood, free from obnoxious influences, on a site giving the highest possible resale value should it be necessary to move in the future.

FINANCIAL CRIPPLE

Do not cripple yourself financially trying to build a home in a district which is too expensive. Many a house has been sold because the owner "tried to keep up with the Joneses" or mistjudged his financial abilities.

Most homes, at present, are being financed on long term mortgages which have been taken on in good times. No allowance has been made for depressions or the possible inability of the home owner to maintain his payments because of sickness or other unforeseen influences.

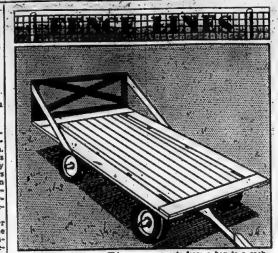
Home owners are advised to proceed carefully with their plans because the financial obligations encountered in building a home will be great. The home owner should be able to estimate his earning power over a period of 20 years and judge himself accordingly. Financing a new home will be discussed further in a subsequent article.

MANY PLANS.

Today's article will deal principally with the problem of selecting an appropriate house plan. The number of plans available is great. There are almost as many home designs as there are styles for ladies' dresses. Most plan books are compiled by competent architects and offer an accurate description for the prospective home builder.

Plan books will give the builder the general idea. It is up to the builder to make the house conform to his individual requirements. If major changes in the original design are contemplated then a registered architect should be consulted. If changes are of a minor nature then blueprints sold by the plan book publishers may suffice.

In any case do not proceed with a building program until you have a good set of blueprints to conform with the building requirements for the district in which you wish to erect your home. It is most important that the blueprints be to your complete satisfaction.



Changes made in the process of construction are costly and as a rule cannot be made at all after the building has progressed beyond a certain stage.

GET NEW IDEAS.

Ask to be shown through existing homes that you think you might like. Get ideas from homes already built, from plan books, periodicals, and from your contractor and local building supply firm. Suggestions for the best use of building products are available to the prospective home owner at all building supply houses in the form of displays and circulars. These ideas are available without obligation and the chances are great of learning more about what should be included in a dream house.

Do not listen to sidewalk superintendents. It at all possible use the services of a registered architect.

Unless you are building for speculation you will want your dream house to be complete package when it is finished. To be sure that this is so, it is important that you do considerable research. Your architect and contractor can make recommendations but only you can tell whether or not such ideas fit into your individual idea of convenience, economy and appearance.

There are no two homes exactly the same because there are no two builders' personalities the same.

CONSIDER CAREFULLY.

Be sure to consider the following points when selecting a house plan — storage space, privacy, easy access from one part of the house to another, ventilation, electrical outlets, and artificial and natural lighting. These are only some of the countless considerations you should include in your thinking as you plan a dream home.

The three basic requirements which you should strive for are convenience, economy and satisfaction.

Convenience gives complete consideration to the business of living in a home, the ease of working in it and the arrangement of the rooms for rest, harmony, privacy and general good living.

Economy demands a low first cost as well as a low maintenance cost in heating, cleaning, and servicing the house after it is built. It should be emphasized that economy is applicable not only to the building and maintenance of a home, but also to its resale value. Be sure the design and lay-out you choose is readily saleable.

AVOID FADS.

Do not resort to fads and freaks in architecture. Fads soon go out of style and lower the value of your property. Likewise remember that prevailing style epidemics permanently date a house. A house that will retain its style over scores of years is much more saleable than a quickly outdated house.

Satisfaction is the final test of a modern home. Choose a home that is pleasant and convenient to live in — one with architecture in good taste that will make you proud to own and appreciative of the fact that in it you have the maximum value for your building dollar.

At your building supply house there is a wide range of plan books covering almost every conceivable design. For some of these books there is a small charge. Free National Housing plan books are also available for bungalows, one and a half and two storey houses.

STRICTLY CANADIAN.

These N.H.A. books are strictly Canadian. They present plans that are attractive, modern and economical. Leading Canadian architects are responsible for the designs and anyone thinking of building a house would be remiss if they did not at least consult these books.

Working drawings for bungalows, one-and-a-half and two storey houses can be obtained for all plans at a nominal fee and all plans pass the most rigid building specifications.

FARM BUILDING TIPS AND NEWS

Insulation in Attic Aids Summertime Comfort

By J. RALPH DALZELL

Author of Books on Home Building and Repair

During the hot summer weather the rooms under unusable attic spaces become uncomfortable and stay that way both day and night unless the attic is insulated and ventilated. Insulating is not difficult, and can be done before the cooling hot months. The cost is reasonable, and you will have benefits in winter from insulation, too.

The summer sun makes the roof hot — temperatures range from 125 to 160 degrees on the roof surface — and ordinary building materials cannot resist the flow of heat. Much of this heat flows through the roofing and raises the temperature in the attic space. Then the heat flows through the ceiling and into the rooms below.

The heat not only flows into the living quarters while the sun shines but is stored in the building materials during the day. After the sun sets the stored heat flows into the rooms below for most of the night. Insulation is quite unlike most building materials in that it has the ability to resist this flow of heat. Insulation between attic joists (as shown in picture C) prevents the free flow of heat from attic space to living quarters. Because batts of insulation are easy to install, they are recommended to the home owner.

Any attic flooring must be removed, but it can be replaced later. Be careful not to step between joists and break through the plaster. Joists (see picture B) are usually sixteen inches on centres, but measure yours to make sure and if not, be sure to tell your dealer the correct measurement. Measure the width of the attic floor (the top of the ceiling of the room below) and multiply this width by the number of spaces between joists. Your dealer will figure the linear feet of batts needed. Buy batts with a moisture barrier on one side.

Pick a cool day and push the batts snugly down between the joists, with the moisture barrier down, just above the ceiling lath and plaster as shown in picture B. Butt the bats down tightly together, and also push into the eaves where roof and ceiling meet, but do not block the vents. Cornice vents are shown in both pictures A and B.

Vents are absolutely necessary to prevent condensation, and must be added if not a part of the original house construction. During the winter months condensation will cause water damage to decoration in the rooms below if the attic space is not vented. The cross section view at the right of picture A shows that pieces of the cornice can be removed and screened to create vents. Arrows in picture A illustrate the path of air through the cornice vents and out the louvers, which cools the attic space.

Two louvers are necessary, one at each apex of the roof, as shown in picture A and can be purchased at most lumber yards.

Questions and Answers

Q—Are these windows with two panes of glass worthwhile?

A—Yes, particularly where severe cold or heat occurs. Double glazing provides a dead air space which acts as insulation. Heat loss and gain takes place by conduction through glass.

Q—Should a household hot water tank be insulated in any way? Maybe with asbestos?

A—Yes, in any climate to conserve the heat. Asbestos is only good if it is fluffy or spongy.

Three Soldiers Guilty of Theft

BURKS FALLS (CP) — Three young soldiers, stabbed in a stolen car at North Bay following a police chase, have been sentenced to terms of two years less a day.

They pleaded guilty on four counts of car theft and four of breaking and entering. Among the loot was a valuable communion chalice.

Sentenced were Marcel Cyr, 21, of Ottawa, Ralph McKay, 18, of North Bay.

Expect Natural Gas in Toronto Near End of '56

OTTAWA (CP)—Alberta natural gas should arrive in Toronto around the end of 1956, Vice-President Hon. Clay Milner of Trans-Canada Pipe Lines, Ltd., said today.

He told the Commons railway committee the company intends to proceed immediately towards Montreal as part of its general $300,000,000 plan of bringing Canadian gas to eastern Canada.

The committee, considering two pipeline bills, also heard confirmation of an agreement between Trans-Canada and Consumers' Gas Company of Toronto for supplying natural gas to the Ontario capital.

USE U. S. GAS FIRST

Under the agreement, Consumers' will supply Toronto with United States natural gas—replacing the present manufactured gas—until Trans-Canada's gas arrives there.

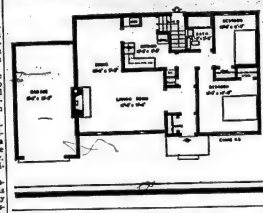
Trans-Canada will build the line from the U. S. border to Toronto and lease it to Consumers' until the Alberta product reaches Toronto. Then, Consumers will switch to the Canadian gas.

One of the bills before the committee today would authorize Niagara Gas Transmission, Ltd., a Consumers' subsidy, to operate the 85-mile pipeline from the border. The other is to increase the capitalization of Trans-Canada.

The agreement between Trans-Canada and Consumers also is joined by the Niagara company and by Tennessee Gas Transmission, Ltd., which will carry the Toronto-bound gas through the U. S.

NO U. S. GAS FOR WO

Western Ontario members of the committee asked how communities such as Guelph, Galt, Kitchener and Waterloo would be served with natural gas in view of the arrangement.



E. J. Tucker, Consumers' general manager, said no provision was made to supply them with U. S. gas because they did not want it at the time the company was getting an export permit from the U. S. The company got just enough for Toronto requirements.

However, Vice-President Frank Schultz of Trans-Canada said they will be asked for natural gas eventually.

Entry of the U. S. fuel—expected by the next Nov. 1—should about halves the price of gas to Toronto customers, Mr. Tucker said.

Mr. Milner said no subsidy has been promised and none has been asked for. Nor were any government guarantees or concessions being sought.

DESIGN-OF-THE-MONTH — Just off the architect's drawing table and fresh as Spring itself, here is a new two-bedroom bungalow which should prove popular with many families planning home ownership in 1952.

Ottawa architect M. G. Dixon has designed the house for economical construction and the utmost in living comfort. The interesting treatment of the front of the house, with its large window areas highlighted by a flower box for colour, accents its suitability for construction in any locality.

The dimensions of the house, excluding the garage, are 26 feet by 23 feet four inches and the floor area is 828 square feet. The cubic measure is 10,145 cubic feet, excluding the garage.

Working drawings for this plan, known as Design 152, are available at minimum cost from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

Gen. Vandenberg Dies in Hospital After Long Illness

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, U. S. air force chief of staff from 1948 until his retirement from service last July, died today. He was 55.

"General Van," as he was known to airmen, had been a patient in the army's Walter Reed Hospital here since last October, when he was admitted "for observation and checkup." He was in virtual seclusion during the last months of his illness, too sick to receive many visitors.

The air force declined to state the nature of his illness but private physicians who attended him in a 1952 operation said it was found then that he was suffering from cancer of the prostate gland, and that subsequently the malignancy spread to the hips, spine and other bones.

The second man to hold the job of air force chief of staff, Vandenberg succeeded Gen. Carl (Tooey) Spaatz.

It was Vandenberg who decided to concentrate the nation's air might in long-range, speedy planes capable of striking deep into the heart of an enemy anywhere in the world.

R.W. Bro. Pitts Addresses P.M., Wardens' Assoc.

MARMORA — The winter meeting of the Past Masters' and Wardens' Association of Prince Edward Masonic District was held in St. Andrew's Church hall on Tuesday evening with a record attendance.

The catering was by Marmora Chapter, 267, Order of the Eastern Star, which served an excellent menu.

Following the dinner there was a short period of entertainment. Mrs. Walter Warren, of Rawdon township, sang a solo and encore, and Jack Grant led in a sing-song with Mrs. A. F. Fraser acting as pianist.

Wor. Bro. Everett Wood, president of the Association, was chairman and conducted the business part of the meeting in which various problems were discussed.

The guest speaker was Right Worshipful Bro. C. M. Pitts, of Ottawa, chairman of the Committee of the Condition of Masonry, Grand Lodge of Canada in the Province of Ontario. He was a member of a great Masonic gathering in Washington, D.C., in February at which Masons from many countries were in attendance.

His address was masterly and inspiring. He was introduced by Wor. Bro. Anderson, of Belleville, and thanked by Wor. Bro. Canon J. M. Brownlie.

A number of other brethren spoke briefly.

MARMORA — Mr. Bernard Finnegan and son, of Peterborough, visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Finnegan on Monday. Mr. and Mrs. Earl Birch spent Tuesday in Toronto.

ON MILK DIET

Dr. D. L. Gibson, head of the dairy department, University of Saskatchewan at Saskatoon, has undertaken to live on a diet of milk and orange juice for a 24-day period. He is shown taking a snack at his desk on the 12th day of his diet. The experiment ends April 8. Dr. Gibson drinks three quarts of whole milk and four ounces of orange juice daily. He supplements this with two weekly pills containing iron. The cow and calf figurines on his desk appear to give Lacie approval.

Garden Notes

Practical Side of Home Gardening

By FLORA M. BAVILLE

This week I went to the flower show. It was a thrilling sight to see thousands of yellow tulips, white hyacinths, rhododendrons, camellias, chrysanthemums and forsythias in bloom.

But, there was a practical side to the show too. There were several gardens planned for the home owner with a small lot. One of these was a garden of small fruits. Strawberry plants were in bloom and some had set berries. Rhubarb, raspberries, currants were arranged along the sides as one would set out shrubs. At the corners apple, pear and peach trees supplied height and background interest. This was completed by the grape vines on the back fence. Such plants would supply a not unpleasant background for the out-door living room in the back yard.

DWARF FRUIT TREES

The fruit trees should be dwarf types and the grapevines and other small fruits fed heavily to get the maximum crops from this small space.

Other small model gardens featured a pool, pergola, or bird bath. These five gardens proved that even in very limited space one can have attractive and unusual arrangements. There is a wealth of plant material to vary the background and border. To create the feeling of space and meticulous grooming one must start with a careful plan, and provide systematic care. Take plenty of time and enlist the help of your nursery man in selecting plants for your lot. In the small garden the regular weekly care would not take too much time after the plant material was in place.

Gravel and flagstone paving were featured in two of the gardens. Both of these materials are easily kept neat, and this does away with much of the lawn mowing.

The Japanese contemporary garden used Malus Eley (flowering brab) flowering peach, juniper, Japanese holly, astilbe magnolia and wisteria. As bedding material they had used white hyacinths, kangaroo ivy, phyiodendron, and cactil.

Just as varied and effective were the plants used in the other gardens Sargent crab, Bechtel crab, taxus brownl, alpine currant and forsythia complemented each other in the background plantings while the edges were made colorful with such annuals as tagetes tum tagetes marigold (dwarf mari, gold and zinnias. Many of the gardens used bulbs for early spring color. When these are fading they should be replaced by long lasting annuals such as begonias, petunias or linarias.

CAREFUL SELECTION

In each of these gardens care had been taken to select only those trees and shrubs which would not out-grow their setting. Dwarf types and those with slow compact growth may be counted on to stay within bounds. Flowering fruit trees (the ornamentals) crab, cherry and peach, while birch (with two or three stems) Mop-head maple or the Japanese maple supply interesting color, offer some shade, and build in the high background points which are necessary for good balance.

For the middle heights some evergreens were used along with deciduous shrubs. The evergreens will provide continued color in the winter and interesting leaf tex ture to contrast with the other plant material.

To show Mr. Average Gardener he can landscape his small city lot was perhaps one of the finest features of the Detroit Flower Show of 1954.

Believe That Living Costs Are Now Relatively Stable

OTTAWA (CP) — Living costs, which have been shifting for many months, appear to have moved into a period of relative stability.

They remained unchanged in January for the first time in almost four years. Indications are that the cost-of-living index for February, likely to be issued Monday, will vary only slightly from the January figure.

During January prices rose for such things as coffee, pork, postal rates, soap and taxi fares.

The January consumer price index, yardstick for measuring cost-of-living changes, remained steady at 115.7, 2.5 points below the high of 118.2 reached in December, 1951. The index is based on 1949 prices equalling 100.

This is the first time the index has remained unchanged over a two-month period since April, 1950. But perhaps more significant is the fact that the shelter column, which includes rents, also remained unchanged, halting an 11-month rise. In the last three years the shelter column jumped 15 points to a peak of 125.4 last December.

The index of food prices edged to 111.7 from 111.6, well below the peak of 122.5 reached in November, 1951. Pork and coffee prices rose, but these were partially offset by fractional dips in the price of grapefruit, potatoes, tomatoes, beef, fish, raisins and orange juices.

Butler Is Busily at Work Drafting Britain's Budget

LONDON (AP)—Richard A. Butler, chancellor of the exchequer, is hard at work this week-end in the locked study of his old Essex country House on one of the world's best-kept secrets—Britain's budget for 1954.

Butler gives the country its eagerly - awaited bread-and-butter news next Tuesday.

Some forecasters say that if Butler scatters around tax concessions liberally it will mean Prime Minister Churchill's re-elective government intends to call a general election this year.

Even ruling out political factors, Butler is expected to unveil a budget designed to follow through on last year's trend toward a freer economy.

'53 GOOD YEAR

Almost every part of Britain's economic picture showed improvement during 1953. Production went down to record levels. Prices and wages stayed relatively quiet on even keel. The housewife will be able to throw away her food ration book next July after a short time in more than a decade.

Labor Party critics complain, however, that the working man didn't get a fair share of the national take during 1953. And they claim Churchill has dangerously exposed the economy to a severe setback by shedding too many controls.

Th government admitted this week that there are some threatening clouds on the horizon.

The country's surplus from foreign trade is precariously small. West Germany and Japan are cutting into traditional British foreign markets. And economists fear a turn-down in American business activity which would seriously damage Britain's export drive.

Pipeline for Gas To Start in 1955

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's $300,000,000 cross-country natural gas pipeline will start eastward from Alberta not later than the spring of 1955 and reach central Canada by fall of 1956, the Commons railway committee was told Friday.

Vice - President Ray Milner of Trans-Canada Pipe Lines, Ltd., said the 2,250-mile line stretching to Montreal — world's longest — might start this year but he was doubtful of that.

The committee, which approved two Commons bills dealing with the pipeline project, also was told by Trade Minister Howe that the federal government will not allow export of Alberta natural gas to the United States until foreseeable Canadian needs are cared for.

Other points in testimony by eight witnesses before the committee:

1. Controversy over the import of U.S. gas to the Toronto area has been cleared up by an agreement between Trans-Canada and Consumers' Gas Company of that city, allowing consumers to import U.S. gas until Alberta gas reaches Toronto.

2. Southwestern Ontario points will be supplied with Alberta gas as it becomes available, but it is unlikely the earlier-arriving U.S. gas will be available to these communities as it will all be absorbed by the Toronto market.

3 Trans-Canada foresees no shortage of Alberta gas for Eastern Canada, despite the fact it looks to an eventual market of 1,000,000,000 cubic feet a day against some 350,000,000 at the start.

Think Power of H-Bomb Means Small Communities Will Decide Fate of Nation

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—The hydrogen bomb has put the small community in the fore of any battle for survival which Canada may have to wage.

This was indicated by Health Minister Martin in a carefully-worded statement in the Commons Friday.

The new bomb envisages such destruction of large cities that surrounding communities, perhaps as far as 25 miles around, might have the brunt of rescue and of care for wounded and survivors.

Mr. Martin said in reply to a question:

". . . Information now available on the destructive potentialities of thermonuclear weapons necessitates, here as elsewhere, some examination of some aspects of our civil defence programs.

"It emphasizes the importance of the consideration of measures having to do with the dispersal of urban populations, through evacuation, if such need ever arises, and I am not saying that it will.

"Substantial consideration is being given to the problem both in Canada and the United States. The new situation increases the importance of mutual aid in civil defence and we are currently engaged with United Kingdom and United States civil defence authorities in a reappraisal of the new situation which now exists . . ."

VIEWS CHANGING

Up to now, thinking in both Canada and the United States has regarded dispersal of city populations as a virtual impossibility. It was thought people would have a better chance taking shelter in homes or office buildings than making themselves sitting ducks in a traffic jam.

This still is the situation in both countries. The United States, however, appears to be the belief that build-up of warning systems may allow a warning of even two to three hours, has asked its cities to examine the feasibility of evacuation.

Canada, if an attack came from the north, would have somewhat less warning. But in view of the more recent American thinking, Canadian civil defence administrators are also reconsidering their views.

Present thinking in Canadian circles is that such cities as Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver, with limited avenues of egress, would have an exceedingly difficult task to get quick evacuation, whereas that some other cities, such as Windsor, Ont., might do it.

Dispersal, as at present envisaged, does not mean complete evacuation. Certain key personnel must remain and take their chances.

MANY PROBLEMS SEEN

The human problems would be immense. A husband at work might refuse to go his wife in the belief that his wife and children would also go to work and that they would leave in the belief that her children at school would be taken care of.

As in the United States, possible population dispersal would be a new approach, with strong arguments both ways.

One civil defence worker said: "The civilian population must realize that in any future war it will be in the front line and will be hit first. If the civilian population is defeated in the first attack, and production stops, the war is lost in the first week."

Another said: "We must not be a nation dashing into funk holes."

Still another stated: "Evacuation, perhaps, if it is a retreat to a prepared position—but not if it is just a flight."

Advocates of dispersal say: "Okay, we lose a week's or a month's production, and we must be prepared to cope with that. If we lose machines, that is one thing; but if we save our workers they can go to work at other machines elsewhere."

To which an opponent of dispersal replies:

"Evacuation is based on the assumption that an attacker will drop his bomb where we expect him to drop it and where it will do the most damage. Under war conditions it doesn't necessarily happen that way. That fellow 30,000 feet up in the pratt-and-whitney, he may drop it where he can get rid of it—perhaps on the spot in which the population is fleeting."

Stevenson Says Republicans Should 'Stop Calling Names' And Deal With Atom Demons

AN EARLY WORM GETS THE BIRD

WASHINGTON (CP) — Democratic leader Adlai Stevenson says the Eisenhower administration should "stop calling names" and concentrate on international control of "the unknown demons that lurk in the atom"

The 1952 presidential candidate said Friday night the threat of atomic war, the fighting in Indo-China and growing unemployment at home are grave problems facing the United States while the Republican administration has been resorting to sales campaigns and "our national life is preoccupied with Republicans quarrelling over the discharge of a dentist by the army."

"McCarthy," Stevenson said of the Wisconsin Republican Senator, "is a scoundrel if he attacks Republicans, but a patriot when he attacks ordinary people or calls names like Franklin Roosevelt and Harry Truman the patrons of traitors.

"In short, politics first and principle second."

Stevenson made the remarks at a political rally in Charlotte, N.C., while the Republicans here were in the throes of a dispute over the Wisconsin senator's quarrel with the army, which originated with the discharge of a dentist, Dr. Irving Peress, whom McCarthy had called a "fifth-amendment Communist."

ROW CONTINUES

The dispute now is centred on Samuel P. Sears, a Boston lawyer named as special counsel for the investigation of the McCarthy-army exchanges. The investigation was ordered March 16, but was delayed pending a search for a counsel agreeable to both sides. And following the appointment of Sears, there were allegations that he had publicly shown himself to be an admirer of McCarthy.

Senator Karl Mundt, South Dakota Republican, has acted as chairman of the Senate investigations sub-committee which McCarthy heads, and it will take "solid" information of bias to deprive Sears of his job as special counsel.

Mundt has said he has never been a McCarthy supporter either in public or in private.

Developments related to the McCarthy-army row meanwhile continued in several directions.

The defence department announced Friday night that it has referred to the justice department for "appropriate action" — not further explained—the case of Peress, who several times refused to answer questions about possible subversive connections, claiming the privilege of the fifth amendment to the constitution which says a witness need not testify against himself.

He was called to active duty as an army dental officer, promoted to major, then honorably discharged. McCarthy contended he should have been court-martialled.

M.P.'s Believe Rape Arranged To Get Divorce

OTTAWA (CP)—CCF members who have complained for years against Parliament granting divorces said Friday evidence in one case shows a put-up job of rape or attempted rape as a wealthy man could escape his obligation to his crippled wife and their child.

Five CCF members, including leader M. J. Coldwell, and others attacked a series of divorce bills. The Commons referred one bill back to its private bills committee for further study.

Mr. Coldwell said evidence accompanying the bill has all the appearances of rape or attempted rape. The bill was "An Act for the relief of Lucien L'Esperance Junior."

Divorces from Quebec and Newfoundland, the only provinces without divorce courts, are handled by Parliament.

"Amazing features" of the evidence in the particular case discussed were described. The husband hired for $750 an insurance man who volunteered to obtain the evidence. A second man was engaged for $250 and a third man appeared in the case, testifying for the husband, who said he received no money. This man had been the co-respondent named by the husband.

In an unusually short time the men hired turned up evidence of three acts of adultery. The wife testified that on two occasions there was no adultery. On the third the events had every appearance of rape or attempted rape.

Assessment Appeal of CGE May Set Pattern in Other Areas

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — The assessment, subject to the correction Canadian General Electric Company has launched a new appeal against its assessment in a move which municipal officials say could upset the assessment of many other Ontario municipalities.

In the reassessment of the city last year, assessors followed a manual issued by the Ontario department of municipal affairs. Officials of many other cities and towns have used the same manual.

The CGE assessment was increased to $4,753,868 from the previous year's $2,300,000. On appeal the court of revision confirmed the statute.

Still Hopes for Start On Seaway This Year

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister St. Laurent said Friday Canada is still ready to go ahead with all-Canadian construction of the St. Lawrence Seaway's navigation phase if the United States Congress delays action.

He also told the Commons that the government has not given up hope of a construction start this year on the $900,000,000 power-navigation project.

Cairo in Egypt lies close to the ruins of the Sumerian fortress of Babylon, a colony founded in 525 BC.

Can Cut Assessments On Veterans' Holdings

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario legislature approved Friday amendments to the Assessment Act allowing municipalities to reduce assessments on Veterans' Land Act homes where undue hardship has been created by annexation, amalgamation or formation of a metropolitan municipality.

The reduced assessment will apply when the VLA homes are paid off and will apply only to lands held by veterans on the day the act receives royal assent, probably next Tuesday or Wednesday.

Russians Told Bomb Experiments Out of Control

MOSCOW (AP) — The Russian people were told Friday that hydrogen bomb experiments by the Americans had gotten out of control. The shocked public got the news in information was the publication of a resolution of the Communist-dominated world peace council meeting in Vienna. The resolution called upon all the people immediately to demand of their governments conclusion of an agreement forbidding all types of weapons of mass annihilation.

Given a pseudonymous display at the top of Pravda's back page, the foreign public got the most important thing about it was not news of the resolution but that the Soviet people were told at all about the terrific experiments in the Pacific and what they can mean for mankind.

This was only the second time Pravda has mentioned those March experiments in the Pacific.

What happened in the Pacific March 1 wasn't reported in Pravda until March 18 and then under a Paris date quoting reports of a French press agency correspondent, who said "rumors circulating in Tokyo say that during the American explosion in the region of Bikini Atoll March 1 three or four Japanese fishing boats were sunk with a loss of about 60 fishermen. . ." (There was no substance to these rumors).

Says Eisenhower Must Choose Party or Nation

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Adlai Stevenson says President Eisenhower will have to make his choice between uniting his party and uniting his nation" in handling the dispute between Senator Joseph McCarthy Rep, Wis. and army officials.

"So long as his party is constituted as it is at present, he can not do both," the 1952 Democratic presidential candidate told a North Carolina Democratic party rally Friday night.

Stevenson said "we have been cheaply distracted long enough" by the intra-party dispute between McCarthy and members of Eisenhower's administration.

Stevenson was critical of government economic policy and accused the administration of "calculated use for political effect of brinkmanship, brainstorming, and representation on great issues like foreign policy, defence and the loyalty of our servants . . .

Public Works Official Fired

OTTAWA (CP)—W. P. Harrell, 61-year-old assistant deputy minister of public works, says he has been "let out" of his job.

The Ottawa-born career civil servant, married and the father of a 19-year-old son, said Friday he has been dismissed four years before his retirement time and given no reason why his services are no longer required.

A departmental spokesman said the department has another man in mind as assistant deputy minister and that Mr. Harrell had been offered an appointment as special adviser to the Deputy Minister, Maj-Gen. H. A. Young, but this he rejected.

Mr. Harrell said he rejected the transfer because it was not permanent job. If he had taken it, he would have had to forgo his six-month retirement leave and still be out of a job at the end of the year.

George T. Jackson, 53-year-old director of the civil service commission's organization and classification branch, there will become the new public works assistant deputy.

BABY-BEATER SENTENCED

MONTREAL (CP)—An 18-year-old baby sitter who beat an 18-month-old boy with a stick because he wouldn't stop crying was sentenced Friday to four days she has spent in jail and placed on personal bond of $200 to keep the peace for a year. The girl, Ernestine Haran, pleaded guilty to a charge of grievously assaulting Claude Larochelle.

1,424,000 Cars Built in January March Quarter

DETROIT (AP)—Ward's automotive reports said today approximately 1,424,000 cars and 264,360 trucks were built in U. S. factories in the January-March quarter.

Some increase is expected in Canadian imports into Japan, which last year totalled $100,000,000, he added.

Moscow Sees Hydrogen Bomb As Increasing Need for Pact Prohibiting Atomic Warfare

LONDON (AP)—Moscow radio Friday the hydrogen bomb has creased the need for an international ban on atomic warfare.

The broadcast, quoting the Communist party organ Pravda, linked Russia's unofficial bid to join the North Atlantic Treaty Organization to "the fact that the destructive power of the atomic weapon is increasingly increasing and in addition to this the hydrogen weapon has appeared whose power surpasses many times the power of the atomic weapon."

Russia has long clamored for an immediate ban on atomic weapons, but has refused to agree to Western demands that it be preceded by establishment of an effective system of inspection to ensure compliance.

The United States and Britain already have served notice they will reject formally Russia's March 31 note proposing Soviet membership in NATO or full U. S. membership in a Soviet-proposed all-Europe security system to replace NATO. Western circles have interpreted the note as a maneuver to kill the West's planned European Defence Community.

SETTLEMENT IMPORTANT

The Moscow broadcast said the note "raised the question of international relations whose settlement is most important for strengthening universal peace for preventing a new war which would represent under present conditions a particular danger to the peoples."

"The U. S. S. R.," it added, "will continue to insist upon the necessity for a substantial reduction in armaments of armed forces and for reaching an agreement which would ensure that atomic energy is not used for the destruction and mass annihilation of people. The importance of such efforts is becoming greater. . . ."

In British today there was speculation that Prime Minister Churchill's cabinet will consider a Labor party motion asking the government to take a lead in calling for a high-level conference of Britain, the United States and Russia to discuss reduction and control of armaments.

WANTS MEETING

Churchill himself has repeatedly said he still wants an informal get-together of world leaders to ease tension—but at the proper time. He will address the House of Commons Monday in a full-dress debate on perils and problems of the H-bomb.

In Western Europe, newspapers gave photographs of the 1952 U.S. H-bomb explosion precedence over written descriptions, letting the pictures tell the story. There appeared less indication of alarm than in the exposed island kingdom of Britain.

Most West German newspapers showed the pictures and stories side or on their back pages. There was little editorial comment.

In New Delhi, Prime Minister Nehru called on the U.S. and Russia to agree on an immediate "standstill" on H-bomb explosions pending progress toward elimination of weapons of mass destruction.

MORE INFORMATION

In a statement to the Lower House of the Indian Parliament, Nehru said his government intends to seek full publication of the bomb's destructiveness and its effects as shown in experiments.

He said the United Nations and the countries possessing the bomb, the U.S. and Russia, should provide such information.

Nehru also called for an immediate meeting of the UN disarmament commission, which has been deadlocked for years over the rival Western and Soviet plans on disarmament and atomic-weapons control.

Caribou Herds Can Be Presesved 'Forever' With Good Management

By STEWART MacLEOD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Newfoundland's chief game warden says caribou herds can roam the barren wilds of this province "forever—with a decent bit of management on our part."

H. W. Walters, the chief warden, believes that although it is true the animals cannot live near civilization, the province still has—and will have—enough virgin territory to support sufficient herds.

He says conservation plays only a minor part in the future of the herds with annual legal kills increasing only about 300 animals. There are an estimated 25,000 caribou in the province.

"Although surveys have never indicated any great increase in the herds, there hasn't been any decrease."

HANDSOME ANIMAL

The stately Newfoundland caribou, said to be the most handsome species in North America, became an unofficial emblem of the province during the First World War when the Newfoundland Regiment wore caribou badges. Since then the animal has been the standard identification mark of the province and appears on the covers of many Newfoundland books. And although there is no proclamation that the pitch pine might become the official emblem of the province, there is little danger of the caribou losing its letterhead prestige.

Although about 10 times as many moose are shot each year, the caribou is a more popular target, especially by non-resident hunters. But Mr. Walters says there are many reasons more moose are killed:

Sometimes hunters take a week to get in and out of real caribou country, while moose can be shot within walking distance of a paved highway. Besides this, he says, most Newfoundlanders are after meat when they go hunting and the moose carry about three times as much as caribou. So, he concludes, the hunter who bags a moose might get three times as much meat in one-third the time for the same priced licence. The moose population is estimated at 35,000.

DIETS DIFFER

Moose, unlike caribou, thrive in second growth timber and many herds can be found in former logging areas of paper companies. They pull their food from shrubs, bushes and trees. Caribou eat only moss of barren-type land and in spring the Newfoundland moves into an area, caribou move out.

In some inland parts of the province where caribou are plentiful, two seasons are opened each year, Sept. 1 to Oct. 10, and Dec. 1 to 31st. In other areas, where the government is trying to protect small herds, caribou can be shot only during the early season.

Licence fee for residents are $25 for the early season and $10 for the late. This entitles the hunter to one animal. For non-residents the fee for one caribou is $35 for either season.

APRIL.

April is coming over the hills
In a misty robe of grey,
The hungry heart of the old world thrills
As it lists to her melody—
The music of wind and of silver rain,
The song of the freshet stream,
The early robin's delightful strain
That floats from the hills of dream.

April is coming over the hills
With changing smiles and tears,
The human heart with rapture fills
As in the dear, dead years;
The song-sparrow a welcome sings
From the top of a leafless tree,
And the lordly crow his tribute brings
To Springtime's melody.

The maples show a tint of red,
The flowers spring in the wood,
A tinge of green o'er the meadow's spread,
And life again seems good;
And in spite of the showers that April brings,
In spite of the silver showers,
Far over a weary world she flings
A vision of summer hours.

—HELEN B. ANDERSON.

WELLINGTON — How eagerly and sometimes how impatiently we await the coming of April . . . April that opens up for us the wonderful gift of the resurrection of the spring! In April the very air holds the spirit and the promise of renewed life, and the human heart and spirit too feel the subtle stirring of awakened life with new ambitions. A strengthened faith and brighter hope.

"But apparently there are some people", said a writer, "to whom April seems little more than March does, and who, when she does come over the hills has no eyes to see and no heart to understand. Are these April ways not indeed the goings of the feet of God, and how can we be so blind that we do not see them?"

"Show me that Thou art April, Lord,
And Thou the flowers and the grass,
Then when awake in the soft spring winds
I'll hear Thee pass."

—CHAS. H. TOWNE.

Mr. and Mrs. Earnest Carley, Consecon Lake, spent Saturday afternoon in Wellington.

The robin that have returned in large numbers have received a very cold welcome, the snowstorm on March 29, blanketing the earth. The killdeer too has returned, his happy voice being heard from adjacent meadows in the early morning.

THE KILDEER

The Killdeer calls across the lee,
I joy to hear his welcome note
O sweet to me the killdeer's song!
It fans the flame of life aglow,
And brings back scenes forgotten long,
And memories dear, a happy throng,
Of summers of the long ago.

What to do...

FOR CHILDHOOD DISEASES

Balmy spring weather and communicable diseases seem to go hand in hand. So this is a good time of year to keep an eye on children for early symptoms of measles, scarlet fever, chickenpox, whooping cough and mumps. Prompt treatment will lessen the severity of the disease and help to prevent complications.

How do parents recognize the symptoms of these childhood ailments? Watch for these telltale signs, says St. John Ambulance:

Red Measles: The child will have a fever, running nose, sore eyes and a cough. On the fourth day after these early symptoms start, a reddish, blotchy rash appears on the forehead and behind the ears and then spreads downwards over the body.

German Measles: Early signs and symptoms are similar but milder than red measles. There are usually small tender lumps behind the ears and down the sides of the neck. As a matter of fact, the rash may be the first sign parents notice. This rash is finer and more pinkish than that of red measles.

FIRST SYMPTOMS

Scarlet Fever: First symptoms of scarlet fever are fever, headache, sore throat and reddish or furred tongue. This is followed in 24 to 72 hours by a fine, bright red rash which first appears on the neck, armpits and groin. The rash begins to fade in three to seven days and is followed by "peeling".

Chickenpox: Within 24 hours after the child develops a mild fever, headache and loss of appetite, the chickenpox rash usually appears. This rash first shows up as small, separated, pimplelike raised red spots which rapidly become filled with a clear fluid, which, in turn, becomes pus, breaks and scabs over. In mild cases the rash may be the first sign of the disease.

Whooping Cough: Starts with a fever and a cough. They become gradually spasmodic and the "whoop" develops about the second week of the disease.

Mumps: This disease is usually easily recognized by the painful swelling in front of and below the ears. But don't forget that the swelling can be in front of and below just one ear or both.

In every case, the patient should be isolated as much as possible immediately a communicable disease is suspected to prevent spreading the infection and the family doctor should be called for advice.

SIDNEY TOWNSHIP WET or DRY?

For some forty years, the sale of alcoholic beverages has been forbidden in our Township.

WITH NO ONE IN THE TOWNSHIP, MORE THAN A 15 TO 20 MINUTE DRIVE TO THE NEAREST HOTEL OR LIQUOR OUTLET IN BELLEVILLE OR TRENTON, NO ONE COULD REALLY BELIEVE THAT SIDNEY TOWNSHIP HAS BEEN ACTUALLY DRY. YOU CAN EVEN GET SOME ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGES LEGALLY DELIVERED TO SOME PARTS OF THE TOWNSHIP.

The local option law has not stopped the citizens of the Township from legally purchasing all the alcoholic refreshment they wished, whenever they wished.

THE LOCAL OPTION LAW HAS PREVENTED, HOWEVER, THE TOWNSHIP FROM REALIZING FULLY, THE ENTIRE BENEFIT WHICH COULD BE HAD FROM THE TOURIST INDUSTRY, IT HAS ROBBED THE TOWNSHIP OF INCREASED TAX REVENUE AND INCREASED PURCHASING POWER.

The Dutch Mill Inn, which is interested in this vote, paid out last year, some $25,000.00 in wages, mostly to Township residents. It paid out over $30,000.00 in food, which included eggs, chickens, vegetables and other foodstuff grown locally. These sums and others were paid out of money received almost entirely from the travelling public, NOT FROM THE LOCAL AREA.

ON THE 21st. OF APRIL, YOU, AS A RESIDENT OF SIDNEY TOWNSHIP, WILL BE ASKED TO VOTE ON THE QUESTION OF WHETHER YOU ARE IN FAVOR OF PERMITTING LICENSED HOTELS, IN THE TOWNSHIP, TO SERVE ALCOHOLIC REFRESHMENTS WITH MEALS.

Let us understand this clearly. By voting yes to the two questions, licensed hotels in Sidney Township, (Which now forbids the sale of all alcoholic refreshment) will be permitted to sell WITH MEALS and ONLY WITH MEALS such alcoholic beverages as the customer may require, providing he is of legal age.

THERE IS ONLY ONE ESTABLISHMENT IN ENTIRE TOWNSHIP OF SIDNEY WHICH QUALIFIES FOR A LICENCE AS A HOTEL.

IT WILL NOT PERMIT ANY OF THE FOLLOWING:

1. TAVERNS or BEVERAGE ROOMS
2. COCKTAIL BARS or LOUNGES
3. ANY STORE FOR ANY ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGE

BEFORE YOU VOTE

Remember:

1. BOOTLEGGERS ARE MUCH HAPPIER WHEN PEOPLE VOTE DRY.
2. THOSE INTERESTED IN A DRY VOTE, CAN ALWAYS COUNT ON THE WHOLEHEARTED SUPPORT OF THE BOOTLEGGERS.

How to KEEP FIT after 50

In the old days fifty seemed the signal to slow down—take things easy—watch your diet—get more rest. It's still good advice. But these days you can face fifty with many interesting and active years ahead. Why? Just this. For more years Doan's Kidney Pills have been helping men and women 50 to 70 to keep fit. Many happy users of Doan's prescription have told how feel better, to worry better, and get more "fun out of life." If you're approaching fifty, or past it, Doan's Kidney Pills may help you, too. BASEBALL!

The Central Ontario Baseball League that made diamond history in the days of "Peeny" Mills, Jack Williams, Al Heckman, Ty Tyler, Speedy St. Louis, Joe Daly, and the rest of those gallant old district stalwarts will come into being this year.

With the announcement yesterday that Peterborough would be a definite entry, rounding out the four-team loop—Peterborough, Belleville, Kingston and Oshawa—the stage is all set for a revival of the old familiar set-up.

President Jack Devine has called a meeting for the league on Tuesday, April 6, at the radio station and all teams will be represented. Watertown, N.Y., has been contacted several times, but thus far no satisfactory replies have been received. They have been informed of the Tuesday meeting and the league executive has set that date for the deadline for entries. If Watertown is not represented or heard from, the executive will proceed with arrangements for the operation of the four-team league.

The Peterborough interests had a highly successful meeting on Thursday night with such people as Dit Clapper and Max Swanston, both colorful sports figures, behind the organization. Thomas, according to Stan Scrutton, is holding a local organization meeting, as is Oshawa.

President Malcolm Robb, of the Belleville Baseball Association, through Manager Jack Carson, has called a meeting for next Thursday night at the city hall, starting at 8 o'clock, and it is hoped all interested in senior baseball here this season will attend.

Tempes fugits very fast and with the announcement that the Central Ontario Baseball League is now a reality kli teams will swing into organizational action. We are particularly interested, naturally, in the Belleville entry, albeit we hold the thankless position of secretary of the loop.

The new granddaddy of the baseball profession I is "dilly" and fandom at long last will sit in some sort of comfort to watch its favorite summer pastime.

We have no idea as to what players will turn out with the Belleville nine, but it was suggested at a meeting for same on Thursday night at the city hall, starting at 8 o'clock, and it is hoped all interested in senior baseball here this season will attend.

We have no idea as to what players will turn out with the Belleville nine, but it was suggested at a meeting for same on Thursday night at the city hall, starting at 8 o'clock, and it is hoped all interested in senior baseball here this season will attend.

Besides, it costs coin of the realm to bring in these players and we understand the coffers of the city organization are not "burtin'" at the seams with accumulated wealth. In fact, any wealth.

So we urge all who are interested in senior baseball to attend the Belleville meeting next Thursday evening in the city hall. Belleville is back in the old "Peterborough-Kingston-Oshawa" groove and this city must needs have the strongest team it can gather, and also the strongest support of its citizenry.

We understand Manager Jack Carson has been working quietly regarding the organization of a Belleville team since it was announced there would be a strong possibility of a league being formed. However, "Jack probably will have some announcements to make at the Thursday meeting, and the best way, as far as we can figure it out, is to be there and hear them for yourself.

PLAY MONDAY HERE

The Foini Anne Cementmen, fresh from their five-game battles with the Trenton Flyers, now have bigger prizes in the ofin, namely the YAL title. There's only one thing standing in their road, and that's the Marmora Millionaires, as tough a team as you'll find anywhere when the chips are down.

The two clubs clash in the first till in the best-of-seven, come Monday night at 8.30 here in Wall Gerow's ice palace, with the return game slated for Wednesday night back in the Dr. Crawford Memorial Arena in Marmora.

Manager Earle Anderson sent his boys through a tough workout on the screwy ice last night and indicated he and playing coach Tim Williams are not taking this series lightly. It shapes up to be a great battle.

Mercury's Blast Scoring Slump With 5-2 Win Over Sudbury Wolves

OWEN SOUND (CP) — Owen Sound Mercurys, defending Allan Cup champions broke out of their scoring slump Friday night with a 5-2 victory over Sudbury Wolves to a wild third game of their Eastern Canada semi-finals.

Mercurys, who dropped the first two games of the best-of-seven series to the Wolves in Sudbury, built up a three-goal lead in the first period and held it to the end.

The Wolves lead the series 2-1. The fourth game will be played here tonight.

Both teams started pushing their weight around early in the game and feelings ran high.

PENALTIES HEAVY

Referee Frank Sicia had a tough time and broke up several skirmishes that threatened to erupt into brawls. He handed out 20 penalties, including two majors for two misdemeanors. The Mercurys received a major and nine minors.

Bill McComb scored two goals for Owen Sound. John Shedden, Elmer Skov and Herb Carnegie tallied the others. Nick Tomiuk and Flori Gosgan scored for Sudbury.

A fight started late in the second period when Carnegie chased a loose puck back of the Sudbury goal, Goalkeeper Al Miller raced behind the net to block Carnegie and they engaged in a high-stick ing feud. The players from both clubs got into it. Carnegie and Miller each drew a minor and major after Sicia broke it up.

FAN EJECTED

However, that was not the end. When Miller skated to the bench for a towel, Norm Defelice of Sudbury piled up and tossed his stick at a fan who had thrown a program at the bench. Miller then threw his stick over the boards into a group of fans. One fan was ejected but no action was taken against either Miller or Defelice.

Mercurys opened up the third period goals with a manpower advantage. The Wolves scored only of the rough second session but were outscored 2-1 in the final.

HORSE WINS BATTLE

MAFEKING, South Africa, (Reuters)— A horse won a battle with two long near Serowe, Bechuanaland, killing one and driving off the other, wounding one. The lion died immediately from a kick on the head. The horse was scratched and shaken, but its wounds were stitched and it recovered.

Wings Favored Over Habitants When Clubs Clash Sunday

'Sizzles' Ready for Action

DETROIT (CP) — Detroit Red Wings are given a slight edge over defending champion Montreal Canadiens when the two clubs meet Sunday night at Olympia Stadium in the opening game of the Stanley Cup finals.

The National Hockey League champions are favored in the best-of-seven series because Montreal seldom manages to win on the road and hasn't copped a single game at Olympia Stadium this season. The Canadiens dropped five contests on Detroit ice and gained two ties. They won only eight of 28 other road games, six of them from New York and Chicago, the two teams that didn't make the playoffs.

Thus the Red Wings stand a good chance to get away to a good start with the games on their home ice Sunday and Tuesday.

CANADIENS CONFIDENT

However, the Canadiens, well rested after their four-game sweep of Boston Bruins are brimming with confidence.

The youthful trio of Jean Beliveau, Dickie Moore and Bernie Geoffrion, the "sizzle line", scored 10 goals against the Bruins and veteran Laurice Richard is still the Canadiens' major threat.

Jacques Plante, the sensational rookie goalie who got his start as a replacement for Gerry McNeil and completely outshone McNeil's job, came down with an attack of indigestion or stomach flu Friday and was unable to work out with the team.

Detroit is also confident, since Gordie Howe and Ted Lindsay snapped out of their scoring slumps. Howe tallied twice and Lindsay followed with the winning goal as the Wings eliminated Toronto Maple Leafs Thursday.

EVEN DURING SEASON

Montreal and Detroit broke even during the regular season—each with six wins and 27 goals against the other. Two games ended in ties.

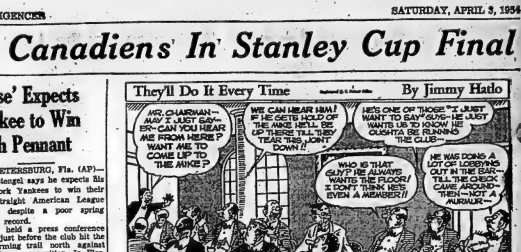
Lindsay has done the most scoring against Montreal, with eight goals and five assists for 13 points. Bert Olmstead and Richard each collected 11 points against the Wings.

Previously, the two teams met in six playoff rounds, with Detroit winning five times. Montreal has lost to Detroit in 11 playoff games and won 11.

The third and fourth games will be played in Montreal's Forum Thursday and Saturday.

'Case' Expects Yankee to Win Sixth Pennant

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)— Casey Stengel says he expects his New York Yankees to win their sixth straight American League pennant despite a poor spring training record.



Casey held a press conference Friday just before the club hit the baronrumbling trail north against minor league opposition. In Florida the world champs salvaged only eight victories in 24 games.

Skirting charges of complacency hinted Thursday by co-owner Dan Topping, Casey singled out three rookies as the players who have pleased him the most this spring —first baseman Bill Skowron, outfielder Bob Cerv and pitcher Bob Grim.

Spring's blast was against the established stars of the club although he mentioned no one by name.

OHA Senior Council Vetoes Hamilton Representation

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Hockey Association's senior council Friday threw down on a proposal that Hamilton Tigers discontinue operations in the league next season so they can represent Canada at the world amateur hockey championships in Europe.

Ken Soble of Hamilton, owner of the Tigers team, suggested the move at a council meeting Thursday night.

The council recommended that the Allan Cup champions be Canada's representatives at the world amateur hockey championships; and that if the Allan Cup championships decline to go to Europe, consideration be given the Tigers after providing they remain in the OHA senior league.

Soble said he wanted to reorganize the Tigers and let them play exhibition games in Europe with CAHA and professional teams with the receipts turned over to the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association to finance the trip.

His claim that CAHA officials found it impossible to get a senior club to play in the world tournament was challenged.

GOAMAN CRITICAL

Ernie Gorman, representing Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen, said no such request had been made to send a senior A team overseas.

Asked if he intended to operate a senior entry next year, Soble wouldn't commit himself. Previously the other six teams, Niagara Falls, Owen Sound, the Dutchmen, Stratford and Chatham, had indicated they would be back.

OHA president Tory Gregg said: "This thing will probably blow sky high at the OHA annual meeting in Vancouver. There may be stiff opposition from other branches to the suggestion of sending another team from the OHA.

"The Allan Cup team two years ago and won the title. The OHA's team made a mess of things."

Gregg was referring to Toronto East York, a senior B club, which lost to Russia in the final game of the championship this year.

Gregg also told the council the OHA had received a warning to the United States Hockey League that their affiliation with the CAHA would be cancelled if the International League continued to use players who do not have a release from their OHA clubs.

ARCARO HURT IN RACE

NEW YORK (AP)—Eddie Arcaro was injured slightly Friday when knocked from his mount at the start of the fifth race at Jamaica. Arcaro was aboard Mountain Ace, 9-5 favorite, who reared coming out of the gate. The filly threw her head back, striking Arcaro in the face. Eddie bucked out, he said later, and fell to the ground.

Sport in Brief

TORONTO (CP) — Before anybody gets any ideas, Managing Director Frank Selke would like to make clear that King Clancy is coach of the National Hockey League Toronto Maple Leafs as long as he wishes to remain. And there won't be any wholesale trading or selling of present Leaf personnel.

The echoes of team supporters' cheering were still bouncing around the Detroit Olympia when Smythe voiced his views about the club that bowed out in the Stanley Cup semi-finals four games to one to the Wings Thursday night. Here's the gist of his remarks:

"We need three or four men. You can't buy a top player on the open market, so they'll have to come from our own development section.

"We're not going to be in a hurry to sell or trade a single man. We've dealt off a couple in the past to help other clubs at the expense of our own club. This time I'm not discarding so much as a deuce from the pack until I'm sure the other fellow is returning a trump."

And Clancy, who piloted Leafs to third place in his freshman year as coach, still has his job until he decides to quit.

TORONTO (CP)—A survey Friday showed excellent skiing both on the tow hills and in the bush at four Ontario centres in 1952. Lake, Larder Lake, Owen Sound and Sudbury districts.

Good skiing also is reported at Huntsville, North Bay (highway 63), and Sudbury (excellent trails lent in the bush); fair on the hill and good in the bush at Timmins; poor on the hill and fair in the bush at Collingwood.

There is no skiing at other points due to lack of snow.

KITCHENER (CP) — Second baseman Ernie Bonifaces and shortstop Erv Lar signed 1954 contracts with the Kitchener senior baseball club of the Intercounty Association.

Lar has been with the Panthers for four season. Bonifaces, obtained from Guelph in the fall of 1952, will be starting his third year.

Panthers will open spring training April 26.

TORONTO (CP)—Coach Frank Clair of Toronto Argonauts was "embarrassed" Friday when he was reported from Springfield, Ohio, that Dick Shatto, 22-year-old centre from the University of Kentucky, had signed with the Big Four club.

Clair hasn't received the signed contract and said he is happy to know the player will report for practice July 12.

'Bobo' Olson Wins Decision

Kid Gavilan in Titular Battle

By JERRY LISKA

CHICAGO (AP) — Middleweight champion Bobo Olson has a September title defence set against Joey Giardello after having welterweight champ Kid Gavilan ruefully convinced that it takes two hands to beat a good man.

Olson Friday night hacked and harassed a left-handed-punching Gavilan, the right eyelid sporting blood from the ninth round on, for a split 15-round decision before 18,582 roaring fans at Chicago Stadium.

Gavilan, who injured his right hand in a tune-up bout Feb. 23, didn't really connect with that hand until a torrid, 15th round when he tried in vain for the knockout he needed to win.

The Kid had nursed the hand in training to the suspicion of everybody, including doctors of the Illinois State Athletic Commission, who at noon Friday said after examination that it was all right.

FAVORED SOME HAND

Despite Gavilan's insistence that his eye cut and not the hand lost him the fight, it was evident to ringsiders and the millions of television fans across the continent that the Kid was favoring a dukeless Olson. Gavilan claimed a ninth-round butt opened the eye cut.

The International Boxing Club says it's all set for Olson to make his seventh and toughest title defence against the top-ranked contender, Giardello, in New York next September.

What's in store for the fattened, 28-year-old Giardello, the fought at 155 against Olson's 159½? The Kid had an arduous task trimming to 147 in recent defences.

"I don't think I can make 147 unless maybe I sit down," said Gavilan.

As he did after rising from the middleweight crown from Englond's Randy Turpin last October, Olson has plenty of time, retiring away from the scene of his hardboned triumph Friday night. The 25-year-old Bobo, his manager, his trainers and sparring partners flew to an early morning plane for San Francisco.

RIGHTS SURPRISE OLSON

Olson who showed a rare bit of humor, for him, when he draped a Hawaiian lei over Gavilan as he entered the ring, said he was prepared for Gavilan's flashy and frequent left hooks, but thought the kid used more rights than he expected.

But it was a right which Gavilan said had never recovered from a soreness which developed when he breezed past Johnny Cunningham Feb. 23.

The 15th round, when he threw all caution to the wind, indicated Gavilan might have been able to chill Olson if he had been the same two-fisted buzz saw all the way.

It was a toe-to-toe closing round which Gavilan several times seemed to have Olson in serious trouble with crashing lefts and rights, only to have Olson display the tough tenacity that has given him 63 victories in 64 pro fights.

It was Bobo's persistency and crisp hacking combinations to the body and head which repulsed Gavilan's bid to emulate Sugar Ray Robinson's climb from the 147- to the 160-pound championship.

Bobo had his biggest payday from the announced gross gate of $334,720, plus a $100,000 melon from TV. Olson's 35-per-cent cut of the net gate and TV gave him an estimated $122,866. Gavilan's share netted about $87,762.

SUDBURY (CP) — Toronto Runnymede Steel staged a last-quarter rally to edge Sudbury Mine-Mill 73-72 Friday night in the second game of their Ontario intermediate A basketball final.

Teepees Blast St. Mikes 7-3 To Square Junior Playoffs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

St. Catharines TeePees were still in the thick of Ontario's junior A hockey playoffs today by one of the toughest series in years.

The Teeps, at one time odds-on choice to take their best-of-seven semi-final against Toronto St. Michael's Majors, came back again Friday night for a 7-3 win and force an eighth, sudden-death game.

The Teeps had everything to lose in this one but they played it smart all the way. The series now stands at 3-3, with one game Friday night, Toronto Marlboros defeated Hamilton Cubs 5-3 in the third game of their best-of-seven finals. Marlboros need only a tie to advance into the finals. One game was decided and Marlies lead the series 2-0.

CROWD WILD

In St. Catharines, a hometown crowd of 4,200 nearly went crazy as the Teeps carried play for most of the game. They took a 3-1 lead in the first period and made it 5-2 in the second. After that they coasted.

Ches Warchol led the TeePees with two goals plus hot goal-keeper Jerry McNamara in the Toronto net. Warchol, Verne Lesnick, Wilf Roberts, Brian Cullen and Cec Hoekstra scored singles.

Paul Knox, Vince Colvin and Norm Anderson tallied for the Majors.

The TeePees, who once trailed 3-1 in the series, will meet Majors in the final game in Toronto Sunday. The winner probably will go in as favorites on the strength of their 7-3 victory Friday and the 8-5 win over St. Michael's in Toronto Wednesday.

CLOSE GAME

In Toronto, the game was close until the third period when Marlboros outscored Cubs 3-2 before 1,500 fans. Marlies had scored a 1-1 tie in the first period and Marlboros held a 2-1 margin at the end of the second.

Wally Maxwell led Toronto with two goals. Reid, Jerry James and Al MacNeil were the other scorers. Marlie McArdle, Jerry Cheevers and Ted Reid scored for Hamilton.

Marlies meet the Cubs in the fourth game at Hamilton tonight. If a fifth game is necessary it will be played in Toronto.

Great Mix Up In Gals' Hoop Loop

By DON MATTHEISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Canadian women's basketball finals here next week or next year, it will be the Canadian women's basketball finals. It depends upon who wins.

Let's put it another way: If Edmonton Grads defeated Toronto Ellers retain their title for the fifth straight time, they meet the champions. They will play another series to try and prove it.

But if either Calgary Wittichens of Saskatoon Accs win the title in the Grads they definitely are the champions.

That's the "who's on first?" situation that's developed here. A step-by-step explanation:

Calgary beat Saskatoon 1-0 in the best-of-three Dominion semi-final in Calgary. The winner is scheduled to meet Ellers in the best-of-five Dominion final starting Monday.

But Ellers are not the British Columbia champions. They lost the provincial best-of-three final to Victoria Kins in two straight games.

COULDN'T POST, BOND

And Victoria lost a chance to play in the Dominion final by not posting the required bond to ensure travelling expenses of the eastern entrant.

Ellers did post a bond, then, after his team's victory, Victoria coach Wally Yeamans sought to "buy" Ellers' bond, saying that Accs were available and that the Dominion series would be more successful on the coast.

However, Wilson, Western Canada senior women's basketball representative and president of the four Basketball Association vice-presidents, said every Victoria player quit. That was the situation up to Friday night, when sponsor Bill Ellers made the following offer;

"Our team has no desire to be rated as second-grade champions.

"Therefore, if we win the Dominion title again we will, in turn, lay the trophy on the line and invite Victoria here to play a series for the title."

VICTORIA ACCEPTS

Victoria manager Yeamans replied:

"While it doesn't seem fair to those fans who supported us in the B.C. series, we accept."

Miss Wilson approved the series and said the winner would be declared the official Canadian champion. If they hold the second series. If Calgary or Saskatoon doesn't defeat Ellers. If. . . .

Montreal Runner Sole Athlete To Create Record

By W. R. WHEATLE Y

MONTREAL (CP)—Laird Sloan, Montreal boy who does his track work for the University of Michigan, was the sole athlete to break a Canadian open mark in the relay night Eastern Canadian indoor track championships.

It was a junior mark that was toppled by Sloan in galloping off with the 300-yard championship in that division.

One provincial native record was broken and a assortment of Canadian native and provincial marks equalled. The eighth annual Montreal meet brought out crowd of 4,200 nearly went crazy as the Teeps carried play for most of the game. They took a 3-1 lead in the first period and made it 5-2 in the second. After that they coasted.

'Brooks' Line Sights On N.Y. Yankees

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP) — Brooklyn Dodgers' chief aim is to defeat New York Yankees in a world series. With that as an added incentive, the Dodgers feel they can overcome such possible handicaps as old age and a new manager and march to their first consecutive National League pennant this season.

The Brooks have just about everything a winning baseball team needs. Their tremendous pitching power, airtight defense, good speed and a strong bench, together with the best pitching they've had since 1941, should beat down the challenged of Milwaukee Braves, St. Louis Cardinals and other hopefuls.

The Dodgers have won five pennants in the last 15 years, but on each occasion were humbled in the world series by the Yankees.

HAVE STRONG CLUB

The Brooks will open the season with the same club that won 106 games in 1953, clinched the flag at the earliest date in National League history (Sept. 12), hit home run and set 40 major-league records—with one exception. It will have Don Newcombe, the big right-hander who won 20 of 27 games in 1951 before he was called up for a two-year hitch in the army.

The reinforced Braves, who finished a surprising second 13 games behind the Dodgers last year, could conceivably dethrone the Dodgers, but it appears doubtful.

Here's how the National League pennant race this way:

1-Brooklyn, 2-Milwaukee, 3-St. Louis, 4-New York, 5-Philadelphia, 6-Cincinnati, 7-Pittsburgh, 8-Chicago.

Were it not for the Dodgers, the Braves would be a good bet for the pennant. They have a good team that packs power in the infield defense, and their pitching is the cream of the league. They received a boost Thursday when, however, when Bobby Thomson, their big hitter acquired from the New York Giants, suffered a triple ankle fracture in an exhibition game.

CARDS GOOD

Eddie Stanky's Cardinals will be a contender, but they must stabilize their infield and need more pitching depth, although the purchase of Vic Raschi from the Yankees was a 10-strike.

The Chicago Phillisbirds Phillies and Cincinnati Redlegs appear evenly matched and should wage a keen battle for the remaining third-division berth.

Chicago Cubs and Pittsburgh Pirates should have a hard-hand struggle to escape the cellar.

With The Minors

By GARRY ALEXANDER

There were several disappointed youngsters at the close of last year's minor hockey season when the M.H.A. found their funds to be very low, as low in fact that they were unable to present individual trophies to the kids. This year things will be different thanks to Messrs. Ab Conterver, and Hugh Jones.

For the most improved player of the Juvenile league goes the Ontario Intelligencer cup, Dewhurst cup for midgets, Pat Dale and cup for the bantams and the CJBQ trophy to the most improved peewee.

There is one big cup donated by those named above and the winner will receive a smaller replica as well as having his name engraved on the larger trophy, Mr. Courseyes is footing the bill for all these cups.

The other award is a new one. It is awarded to the most valuable player in each league. Reptitas will be given the winners. Presentations will be made at the Belleville Minor Hockey banquet on April 23rd.

One of the winners. We'll take the "most improved players" first! We start at the peewees.

Paul Brown received the coaches votes here. Paul figured to be one of the Red Wings, scoring five goals and getting one assist and was named on the All Star team that played in Lindsay.

The bantam award went to Jim Ycxley. Jim scored 11 goals and he did not accumulate any scoring points. He just played well enough to help his club into third place.

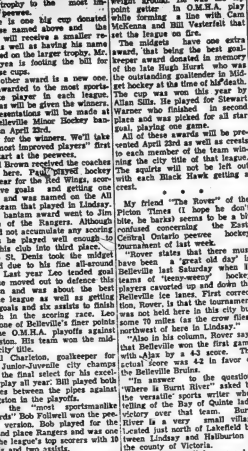
Leo St. Denis took the midget award due to his fine all-around play. Last year Leo tended goal but was moved to defence this season and was about the best in the league as well as getting his share of goals and finishing fourth in the scoring race. Leo was one of Belleville's finest points in the O.M.H.A. playoffs against Kingston. His team won the midget title.

Bill Charleton, goalkeeper for the Junior Seagoville city champs was the final select for his excellent play all year. Bill played both the fifteen and seventeen game against Kingston in the playoffs.

In the "most sportsmanlike award" Bob Follwell won the peewee version. Bob played for the Belleville Legion bangers and was one of the league's top scorers with 10 goals and two assists.

Jim Hook received the bantam cup after playing both in the nets days.

FORTS WIN



FORT WILLIAM (CP) — Fort William Canadiens scored in the dutches Friday night to take a 4-3 overtime game against St. Boniface Canadiens to win the best-of-seven series in the Western Canada junior hockey semi-final.

Canadiens, trailing 4-2 going into the second period, combined two goals in that session and then came up with a 3-3 tie in the third period before a record crowd of 5,698.

The Teams will meet in the fifth game here Sunday afternoon.

AUSSIE CHOPS ON SALE

Conservation Tips For Youngsters

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT
(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solmar Tables.)

While standing at a boot dock down in Key Largo last February, I watched two boatloads of fishermen and fisherwomen come in after a day's sport. They were old-timers, people, in Florida on vacation, and they were having a time of it.

They had been bottom fishing and the fishing had been good. On the dock down from their combined catch on lengths of cord were some 250 pounds of having their pictures taken. In all they had 56 grunts, salmon reds, small snappers and two or three baby barracudas.

Since the picture-taking was finished, they sorted out some of the larger fish, packed those in ice in their boats and then asked the bystanders if they wanted some fish. Nobody did. Finally the owners of the boats gave away a few of the larger ones, and the rest, I suppose, were more lely, to spoil.

Far be it from me to detract from the fun those folks had on their fishing trip. They had caught their limit of fish, packed those in ice in stably unburned, evidence in northern latitudes that they had been fishing and had obviously they were having a grand vacation. Nobody got them—after all, that's what vacations are for.

BASIC COMMANDMENT

Yet it seems too bad that they had not caught more than they were still young, the basic commandment upon which our present day conservation is based. It is this—never kill or destroy what you do not intend to use or take more than your fair share. If our forefathers had obeyed that simple commandment in this country and its natural resources would be in far better condition than they are to-day.

When I was a youngster it was pretty much a case of every man for himself so far as fishing and hunting were concerned. Such a thing as putting back a legal fish was unheard of, and the conservation era was merely a word in the dictionary.

Today, fortunately, that is not the case. Our schools, both public and private, are doing a fine job of all youngsters, whether they like the outdoor sport or not, are given this instruction at least in the basic fundamentals of conservation.

In the first place, fishing in conservation were run, more or less, on a rather hit-or-miss basis. If the school happened to have an outdoor-minded professor, usually he would start a conservation class on his own initiative. Attendance was usually good, for the lectures were movies and casting instruction was enough to entice any boy to attend them. These classes served their purpose and did much good.

NO HARDSHIP

Now, however, the state conservation departments are taking over and organizing systematic fish-and-game conservation education. Attendance is mandatory, but that is no hardship for the boys concerned, as the programs are interesting, well-planned, and conducted by trained men who know their business.

One state has a conservation truck, fully equipped, and with a trained crew of lecturers. This truck makes its annual seasonal circuit among the grade schools. They conduct a two-day program and the members of the crew give talks on all phases of conservation, using motion pictures to illustrate their particular branches of conservation activity.

Another state has what it calls "conservation kits" which are put together by the conservation department.

These are substantially of the same general equipment as with which the towing truck is supplied. On application these kits are loaned to schools and the talks and demonstrations are put on by local personnel. The kits are greatly in demand.

INTERESTING APPROACH

Kentucky has an interesting approach to the matter of juvenile instruction in conservation. Under the leadership of Mr. Ed Adams, there have been formed Junior Conservation Clubs. These clubs are set up in secondary schools under the sanction of the Department of Education.

There are now 500 of these clubs with a membership of 25,000 boys. Monthly meetings are held, during which Adams and the Department men are furnished with projects that emphasize the importance of conservation.

The Department of Conservation and Education, which finances and sponsors the general program, has built a number of conservation camps which operate throughout the summer. For the week's fee of $15 per head, a boy who is a club member may spend a week at one of these camps. Last year 250 boys can be taken weekly at one of them.

In addition to the usual camp programs, there are courses in boating, canoeing, outdoor life shooting, rifle shooting, motor boating, swimming, camp and fish laws and the identification of trees and birds. There is no compulsion for any boy to attend these courses, for that individual instruction is possible.

SHOULDER PATCH

Boys who pass examinations in any of these courses are given a shoulder patch, and any boy who gets five patches is given a special certificate of achievement. Last year about 4,000 boys attended the camps.

It gives me pleasure to report that Ken Adams was the guest speaker at the Nash Conservation Awards dinner which was held here in recognition of his efforts in setting up conservation programs.

And so, while I watched those happy vacationers unload their catch of fish at the boat dock, I thought that it was too bad that they could not have availed themselves of the opportunities that the youngsters have to-day.

Not that a few fish, more or less, will in any way affect the future of the fishing around the Florida Keys. However, the fact remains that they don't know much about his favorite sport, the better equipped he is to obtain the utmost enjoyment from it.

Thus, had those happy fishermen been one of the junior members of a Junior Conservation Club, the probabilities are that they would have had even more fun than they evidently were during their short-termed vacation in the Florida Keys.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was lighting his first cigar after dinner, and as he said, William, I have a letter out of the annals of crime to relate to you. I had the imbarrassment of being found with a counterfeit half dollar in my possession this afternoon, she said.

Yes gods, I feel like the husband of a jailbird, pop said, unless said, Constantly I was quite innocent, I threw it down on the counter at the drugstore with a indifferent air, and it landed with the ring of genuine coin. But I soon marched it right back to its source, because I know enough about counterfeit if I'm not that herby butcher at the market. I always get honest weight an honest bone in his big red face and hands, and I was rite, she said.

You meen he admitted it? pop said, and ma said, Practically. He didn't give me time to tell him that I knew it was bogus. I just simply took the bad coin back and gave me a good one. Oh dear, now that I think it, I don't see how I even change when I paid for my meat, so the butcher couldn't of been the silly party. What shall I do, William? she said.

Give him back his half dollar, or a reasonable facsimile thereof with your apologies, pop said, and ma said, But William, he's always charging me for my imaginary ounces—you can tell by the way he whisks the change off his scales before he has time to study the indicator. I know what I'm talking about, for my friends lambergers meat for me, I'll look the other way and allow a little extra weight to creep in all the fat he pleases. That will more than offset the short weight, and I know him well enough for that, and my moral victory won't have been spoiled by an apology, she said.

You win, it's still a woman's world, pop said.

Being the end of the subject.

REMEMBER WHEN

Ken Doraty scored the winning goal after 164 minutes, 46 seconds of play here Toronto defeated Boston Bruins 2-1 years ago tonight at Toronto. Doraty's counter, the only goal of the game, won the league title for Toronto, who then went to New York Rangers in the Stanley Cup playoffs. The record for the longest game ever played here is 176 minutes, 30 seconds, when Detroit beat Maroons at Montreal March 24, 1936.

BOX 14 — ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The chronic no-trump bidder is a mule that looks like a man. Of all the mean, selfish, conceited, pig-headed partners, in the game of bridge he takes the hand-painted whifflctree.

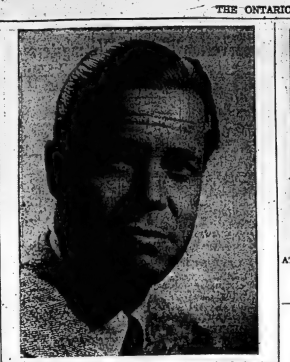
He will tell you he bids no-trump to show his distribution, or strength, or weakness, or honor tricks, or count in points. But he does it because he intends to play the hand for the pair.

No-trump is one of the 15 words in the bidding vocabulary. Like each of the other words in the bid language it has a basic meaning: My hand contains no trump suit that is biddable.

Leave out the three words in front and the four words that are after and you get the word no-trump. Therefore, no-trump is simply a denial of holding any biddable suit that is suitable for trump.

Where no-trump is used for any other purpose it is a signal of some kind; a convention with an unusual meaning. Or because of some special lure that is bursting in the bean of some player.

You will find experts of international fame saying: "My opening of one no-trump shows a very powerful hand." Others, of equal ability have been known to say: "My no-trump opening is weak."



Not because either is correct. Only because they have a personal preference for such a bid. Not because either can prove his bid best. Only because they stubbornly persist in their own beliefs.

You are dealer with the hand shown here:

♠Q 7
♥A J 6
♦K 9 7 5
♣A Q J 7

Your club suit is biddable. You also have the qualities for an opening bid of one no-trump. But your correct opening bid is not one no-trump. It is a correct first bid of one club.

Why? Because, if you start with no-trump you will deny having a biddable suit. Unless you prefer to say no-trump as a convention. Or insist on being the one to play the hand for your pair.

AT THE CAPITOL—Dan Duryea stars as an international adventurer and a man in many mysteries in Allied Artists' "World For Ransom", opening Monday at the Capitol Theatre. Both of these thrillers for the first first Belleville showings on our new giant curved screen.

AT THE McCARTHY — Rita Hayworth quarrels with co-star Jose Ferrer as Aldo Ray looks on in Columbia Pictures' "Miss Sadie Thompson" now at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre. The new film in color by Technicolor, is based on the world-famous W. Somerset Maugham South Seas story.

STRATFORD (CP) — Andrew Bach, 22, was sentenced Friday to three months and fined $200 including costs or another three months when convicted on a charge of indecent assault. Police said the offence against a 15-year-old girl took place in living quarters above a Millbank store March 6 while the owner of the store was away.

$1,000 FOR BEAUTY

Horse Artillery Going to Korea

CAMP PETAWAWA (CP) — The 3rd regiment, Royal Canadian Horse Artillery, was given its official farewell here Friday though the unit will not leave for Korea for about another two weeks.

The ceremonial parade in this army camp 110 miles northwest of Ottawa went off flawlessly—unless you count a wailing child which for a few seconds drowned out the boo-voyage speech of Maj.-Gen. H. A. Sparling, vice-chief of the general staff.

Wives and children of the Korea-bound soldiers stood in the snow around the square. The regiment will form part of Canada's watching brigade of the truce demarcation line.

STAR DIES

BLESSING, Tex. (AP) — Walter Pudge Heffelfinger, a three-time football All-American at Yale University and a Hall of Fame selection, died here Friday at the age of 86.

Heffelfinger, in perhaps his greatest honor, was named to a guard position in 1951 on the all-time All-America football team in the Associated Press mid-century poll.

He was a guard for Yale Bulldogs during the 1888-91 seasons when the beef football was played in the Ivy League.

WANTS FEWER HOLDUPS

TORONTO (CP)—Mayor Allan Lampert threatens "retaliatory action" against city banks unless they adopt more stringent protection against holdups. He did not explain Friday what the action will be, but said the banks must co-operate by keeping limited amounts of cash on hand.

ITALIANS LIKE CANADA

ROME (AP)—More than 200,000 Italian workers have applied for the available 5,000 places to be opened by Canada this year to Italian immigrants. The Canadian visa department announced Friday that it will accept no more applications.

Your Individual Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR TUESDAY, APRIL 6, 1954

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — You may experience tendencies toward bluntness and unreasonableness now. And so will others. But if you will be smart and gracious a manner you can smooth all paths.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — You may have to watch each and every movement; a possible chance now to take advantage of new opportunities. Neither drift nor rush into things: that happy medium.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — One of your best periods to go it on your own. Original ideas favored. In most things the exception to the rule should pay off. Make a schedule: don't improvise: be constant and calm.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Give no compunction about taking on the different. It has merit. Tackle that difficult prospect. The whole day inspires action, acquisition, achievement, and you can fit in here fine.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Suggest that you follow a well-devised plan—one that is reasonable and not over-taxing. Sensible economy, avoidance of unnecessary debts stressed.

August 23 to September 21 (Virgo)—Plenty of "No" signs evident now. Better devote some time to study, reviewing and planning tomorrow's work. Check others' doings and the reasons for their success. Be a careful observer.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Day's aspects the opposite to Virgo's. Benefic rays abound and the keen, intelligent go-getter will have many good ideas—and gains.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Subtle undercurrent possible, now and unforseen contention. Don't be swayed in wrong directions or allow questionable propositions to influence your better judgement.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Headway, gains may be heid up in early hours. Stick to sensible methods, tried and familiar endeavors: be constructive rather than critical. Tend to your tasks first.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—It may require extra effort to convert things to your credit or favor now. Keep logic in foreground. Don't allow situations to affect your disposition. You'll feel fine.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Setbacks are only temporary. Stay with it, fiend. Fight but keep calm. Don't, allow others to deter you from your objectives; give care to your personal affairs, especially.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—With a steady, pleasantly aggressive attitude in both business and personal affairs you can round out a moderately good day. Avoid recklessness in travel, play, anywhere.

YOU BORN TODAY are generous in disposition; have splendid qualities for leadership and managerial ability. You are usually tactful, ingratiating in manner. Never permit ambition for fame or gain to override your finer qualities. Keep studying, improving constantly and be sure your spiritual girds keeps pace with the temporal. You may have to be especially watchful and conservative during the balance of '54 regarding expenditures, exploits. Patience and self-control urged.

Top Glider Pilot

Albert Pow, 24, of London, Ont., Canada's top glider pilot, will be the Dominion's only entry in the British Empire soaring competition in England this year. Pow is one of the few enthusiasts in Canada who has a private interest in a glider; he owns half a Swelzer 1-23. Here he is shown in his sailplane at Kitchener's Breslau airport. — (CP Photo.)

Canada's Top Glider Pilot Modest on Chance

By HARRY KINGDON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Albert Pow, 24, of this city, Canada's top glider pilot, is modest about his chances of winning the British Empire soaring competition in England this year. He will be Canada's only entry.

The only prediction he'll make is that he expects "to do better than in Spain" where, in 1952, he placed 32nd out of 40 to finished the international competition.

"In Canada we have no pilots of the calibre of those required for international competition," he said.

There are only 13 pilots in Canada who hold the silver C certificate required for international competition.

FEW ENTHUSIASTS

There are few glider enthusiasts in Canada— about 300 altogether— and only about 40 gliders. The initial outlay on a sailplane—$2,000 to $4,000 for a new one—is beyond the reach of many, although the upkeep cost is small and there's no gasoline to buy. Other countries have been using gliders for years as part of their air force training programs and have developed fine pilots.

Pow, a single, sandy - haired manufacturer of display signs, started gliding in 1945 with a Toronto club. He is one of the few enthusiasts in Canada who has a private interest in a glider; he owns half a Swelzer 1-23. Most glider pilots belong to clubs.

Although the craft used are known to the public as "gliders", enthusiasts have their own terminology and differentiate between types. Pow says his ship is a "sailplane" and he "soars."

A sailplane, he explained, is a "high-performance" glider that can lift itself on thermals and air currents once it is off the ground. A glider is a training craft that is towed up and simply glides down. It cannot use air currents efficiently enough to travel any great distance.

SOARING RECORD

Pow last year set a Canadian distance soaring record, travelling 265 miles from Swift Current, Sask., to Rock North Dakota, in seven hours.

A soaring pilot gets his start by tow from an airplane, auto or winch and, once in the air, relies for lift on upward currents of warm air — called thermals — or winds blowing up hills. Streamlining of a sailplane has to be more perfect than in a powered aircraft so that no lift is lost through the drag of air.

Pow will be accompanied by

D. M. STEPHENS

Donald McGregor Stephens, M.E.I.C. of Winnipeg, Manitoba, will become president of The Engineering Institute of Canada next May. This announcement was made, today, following a meeting of the Council of the Institute held in this city. The Institute has 47 branches extending from coast-to-coast and sixteen thousand members.

Mr. Stephens will succeed Ross L. Dobbin, of Peterborough, Ont., who, "He will assume his new duties at the annual general and professional meeting of The Engineering Institute of Canada to be held at Quebec City in May.

Dick Noonan of Winnipeg, vice-president of the Soaring Association of Canada, team captain; Guy Joyce of Hamilton, Ont., and a Mr. Pound of St. John's Nfld., ground crew.

Pow says that both soaring and the RCAF would benefit if students were given their early training on gliders. For the cost of putting one man through a powered craft, he says, the RCAF could put through 20 on gliders.

The saving could be both in money and in life. The Soaring Association of Canada has never had a fatal accident.

The association supervises Canadian soaring meets which are held at least once a year with Kitchener, Ont., and St. Eugene, Ont., favored spots. It also lays down regulations for safety and aircworthiness. Pow was president in 1953 and now is a director.

Duck's Boys Donate Plenty

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Trustees of Ducks Unlimited, Inc., have appropriated their largest sum ever—$450,000—for rehabilitation this summer of the migratory fowl breeding areas in Canada's prairie provinces.

And officials of the non-profit organization holding its annual meeting here Friday said the increased amount of money is in line with the greater work expected to be needed this year. They said current weather conditions in Alberta, Manitoba and Saskatchewan threaten a summer drought.

DU estimates that 65 per cent of the fowl migrating through the United States in the fall and winter are bred in Canada.

The money set aside by DU trustees was donated by sportsmen last year and will be used to support 367 active duck-breeding projects and to build about 30 new projects. At these projects, DU impounds water, provids food and nesting cover and builds fences to protect the cover.

With completion of the new projects, Ducks Unlimited will be assisting conservation on more than 700,000 acres of water.

CBC Reserves Decision on TV At Peterborough

OTTAWA. (CP) — The CBC Board of Governors reserved decision Friday on applications by broadcasters to establish television stations at Peterborough, Ont., and St. John's, Nfld., and a new radio outlet at North Vancouver, B.C.

Fifteen private broadcasters now hold licences in the television field.

Two applicants sought use of channel in Peterborough. H. L. Garner represented one, Kawartha Broadcasting Company which includes Senator W. Rupert Davies and Roy Thomson who have broadcasting and publishing interests.

Mr. Garner said Kawartha could be on the air nine months after licensed. The station proposed by his group had support from many municipal groups and businesses.

Herb May, Toronto radio personality appearing in support of his own application, said a station operation by his group could be on the air in nine months and could serve communities within a radius of about 90 miles from Peterborough. It was supported by groups in Peterborough and nearby communities.

Anti-EDC Mob Attacks Laniel And Defence Chief

PARIS (AP)—Premier Joseph Laniel nursed sore shins today and Defence Minister Rene Pleven a slapped face after a mob attacked them to protest ratification at the proposed European Defence Community.

The 100 or so rioters, identified as supporters of Gen. Charles de Gaulle, Monarchists and possibly some Communists, broke up a ceremony Sunday at the Arc de Triomphe honoring the defenders of Dien Bien Phu, the Communist-besieged fortress in Indo-China.

With only a few police and troops on hand, the demonstrators rushed the official party as it started to leave the ceremony.

Laniel was kicked in the shins. A police flying wedge got him to a police car which the rioters then tried to overturn. Police held off the mob and the chauffeur finally rammed the car through the crowd.

Pleven was stranded under the arch alongside France's national shrine, the tomb of the unknown soldier.

THROW STONES

Screaming "resigni," the crowd hurled stones which missed him. Two or three knocked off his hat and glasses. Someone slapped him twice. Another grabbed a handful of his hair.

Pale and seething, Pleven stood with the police in the centre until finally arrived—almost a half-hour later.

The rest of the crowd of about 1,000 watched the attacks with detachment and made no move to intervene. They dispersed after Pleven departed.

Police arrested seven of the demonstrators.

Western Allies Now Have Strong Deterrent Force

LONDON (Reuters)—Gen. Alfred Gruenther, supreme Allied commander, Europe, said here today that though the West does not have the military strength to stop a Red attack or aggression, "we can now claim to have a strong deterrent force."

He was speaking at London airport where he arrived from Paris to address the Atlantic pact's fifth anniversary celebrations tonight in London.

Commenting on the proposed German contribution to European defence plan he said:

"Should there be an all-out attack from the East we should need a shield to give our reserves time to mobilize. We in NATO feel that a German contribution could be made to that shield and that is the advice we have given to our political superiors."

BAGPIPES SLIPPING?

BANFF, Scotland (CP) — Sir Douglas Haig, 76, regrets a declining standard in bagpipe playing. "Pipers are going too fast, missing notes and not playing them clear," he says. "The popularity of pipe band contests is to blame. Tunes are played up to full dance time. Nothing could be worse."

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP)—Synopsis Milder temperatures are in store for Ontario today and Tuesday; southerly winds over the entire central part of the continent assure at least two days of generally rising temperatures; showers and thunderstorms associated with this warming trend may affect extreme southern regions tonight and Tuesday; elsewhere mainly sunny skies are expected.

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Fire struck more than a half-dozen Ontario communities during the week-end, killing four children, leaving 40 persons homeless and doing damage estimated at more than $1,250,000.

The children, three under five years old and the fourth a 13-year-old baby-sitter, died at Galt Saturday night when flames spread quickly.

Dead are three children of Pte. and Mrs. Richard Dalgleish, eight months, Mary, 3, and Bobby, 4. The baby-sitter was Nancy Wylie Mrs. Dalgleish's sister.

The children's parents were at Canadian Legion dance.

Firemen said Bobby's body was found in a living room where Ricky was in his crib in the same room. Mary was in a bedroom.

Nancy Wylie apparently had been asleep on a couch when she was aroused by the fire and tried to get to a door. She was found on the floor, 18 feet from the stove which was between the couch and entrance to the apartment.

Firemen said Mrs. Bobby for two hours in an attempt to save her children. They had broken out through a window by firemen and given artificial respiration. He also failed in this.

An inquest will be held Thursday.

At Campbellford in the Peterborough district, 26 persons were left homeless early Sunday when flames leaped through part of a downtown business district. Two stores were gutted and the loss was estimated at $250,000.

The blaze was believed caused by a short circuit in a meat shack's freezing unit. Ed Shanbury, owner of the meat bar, received back and hand burns.

The flames spread to adjoining Gibson's book store. Firemen fought more than two hours before they could stop the blaze under control. Four persons were revived after they were overcome by smoke.

At Parry Sound, three buildings were destroyed and four damaged in a fire which caused $1,000,000.

The community's residents and department and firemen from nearby Muskoka district centres fought the fire for nine hours. The flames were believed to have started near the furnace in a fuel oil in the basement of the J. A. Symes general store in the centre of the downtown area.

Destroyed were a Tip Top Tailors' store, Donnelly's shoe repair, Brown's paint and wallpaper, Parry Sound Dairy Party, and a Masonic hall. Deluxe Taxi and Royal Grill were damaged.

Another fire, Mrs. Philip Slater saved her 63-year-old crippled husband from death in their burning home as he fell against an electric heater. She then fled, thinking Sam Slater, him but he suffered severe burns.

Salk Polio Vaccine Triple-Tested, Positively Safe, Reply to Winchell

NEW YORK (AP) — Positive assurance of the safety of the Salk polio vaccine was given today after Walter Winchell broadcast that it "may be a killer."

The assurances came from the U. S. public health service, National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, and Dr. Jonas E. Salk, who developed the vaccine. Two firms making the vaccine also said no vaccine is used on the market unless proved safe.

The vaccine is scheduled to be given soon to up to 1,000,000 children to test its effectiveness against paralytic polio.

The vaccine is made of dead polio virus. Injection cannot cause polio. Each batch of vaccine is given triple tests, including injection of monkeys, done separately by the manufacturers, the public health service, and Dr. Salk's laboratory at the University of Pittsburgh.

Winchell said on his Sunday night program:

"Attention all doctors and families in the United States. . . The public health service tested 10 batches of this new polio vaccine. The government's health department, I am told, found that seven of the 10 contained live—not dead —polio virus. It killed several monkeys."

Immediately the public health service issued a statement that difficulties had been anticipated in converting Salk's smallpox vaccine technique method to full-scale commercial production.

"We have found some positives (live virus) in the lots of vaccine that were tested," the statement said. "We are looking for the other tests, it said.

When live virus is found, that batch is discarded. It said.

Some of the tests which showed live virus in Salk polio vaccine actually conducted as checks on the manufacturing processes and were known in advance the results would not be satisfactory."

En route to Ann Arbor, Mich., to attend a meeting on influenza, Dr. Salk added at Detroit:

"It is nice to have the advice of sidewalk superintendents like Winchell—and we will give his criticism our attention, but this is actually a misrepresentation of what we are doing."

1,000 VIETMINH TROOPS KILLED IN NEW ATTACK

Attempt to Force Way Into Fortress Fails

BY LARRY ALLEN

HANOI, Indo-China (AP) — The French high command announced today the defenders of Dien Bien Phu had killed "more than 1,000" Vietminh troops trying again to smash their way into the heart of the besieged fortress through its northwest corner.

Heavy fighting raged in that sector of the plain as the Communist-led rebels battled to widen the gap they gained a strong French anti-attack supported by tanks, artillery and war planes.

Brig.-Gen. Pierre Langlais, the French commander-in-chief in Indo-China, sent a message to Dien Bien Phu leading the defenders.

In the attack from the northwest, the rebels for a time occupied a new position which would have been an excellent takeoff point for a blow toward the heart of the fortress But the gain was moved down by the fire of French tanks and machine-guns. A-mass rush by the Vietminh "human sea" also was thrown back.

The French said at noon the defenders were still holding all key points of entry.

RECKONS FOR ASSAULT

The rebel troops threw into the battle today apparently were under orders to keep the garrison occupied while other besiegers, strung out elsewhere around the oval-shaped plain, were regrouping and moving up ammunition for another general assault.

Overnight—planes brought the night and early today plastered the rebels with 1,000-pound bombs and fresh barrages of fire bombs.

There was no mention of any attacks by the Communist-led legions in other areas around the besieged fortress.

In the northwest it was close combat, with French Union infantry often gripping the black-clad Vietminh in a hand-to-hand struggle.

The rebels tore one hole in that sector early today, overrunning a perimeter post and wrecking it before the French drove them out.

BREAKTHROUGH TARGET

The frequency of the attacks by Vietminh infantry in the sector in the northwest heightened an impression in Hanoi that the rebels were making a breakthrough there might be easier than at any other point.

The rebels Sunday night pulled back from the center of a mile back from the heavily assailed eastern and southeastern defenses of the French-held plain 175 miles west of Hanoi.

Today was the sixth day of steady attack by the fanatic, screaming Communist hordes against Ho Chi Minh in a renewal of the infantry assaults which began in force on March 13, then broken off three days later.

Bad Weather Prevents Food Being Cached for Expedition

JASPER, Alta. (CP) — Clouds shrouding the Rocky mountains today prevented aircraft from flying food supplies to a group of hikers who are attempting for the first time to traverse dangerous mountain country between here and Banff, Alta., 200 miles south. Their proposed route would take them across eight icefields, some never before crossed on skis.

The party, seven men and one woman, left here Thursday and were to have reached Fortress lake 40 miles south, by Sunday. There was no word that they had reached their first objective.

An aircraft landed at Fortress lake early last week and cached a supply of food for the party. It was estimated that the cache, plus what food the party was carrying, would last them 11 days.

Aircraft flying out of Banff have been trying to set up other food dumps but blinding snow and cloud have prevented their doing so. Pilot Stewart Arnes of Banff said an attempt will be made to land at Fortress lake, weather permitting. If the plane is unable to land, the party will remain at the lake six days and then return here.

The weather forecast for today was for continued snow and cloud. Arnes said it must be sunny and clear for a ski-equipped plane to land on a glacier, the only "landing fields" in the Rocky mountain area.

The party is under the leadership of Peter Bennett of Oakville, Ont. Other members are: Tony Kleitl of Jasper, an alpine guide; Mr. and Mrs. Peter Austin of Ancaster, Ont. and Pat Boswell, Ted Pope, Dr. Allan Bruce-Robertson and Murray Salvesly, all of Toronto.

Second Hydro Plant Blast Does $800,000 More Damage

TORONTO (CP)—Robert Saunders, Ontario Hydro chairman, said today an estimated $800,000 damage was caused by the second explosion in five days to rip through the Richard L. Hearn steam-operated electric generating plant on Toronto's eastern waterfront.

The blast knocked out one of four big generators, injured two workmen and caused further damage to the big plant.

The station was closed down to permit complete investigation. Arrangements were made to supplement power for industries in the Toronto district by obtaining current from Detroit Edison in Detroit and from Niagara Mohawk Company in Niagara Falls, N. Y.

H-BOMB TALKS ILL-TIMED NOW SAYS CHURCHILL

Must Await Results Of Geneva Conference

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Churchill today told the House of Commons a Labor proposal that he take "immediate initiative" in arranging a meeting with President Eisenhower and Soviet Premier Malenkov on the H-bomb was ill-timed in view of the forthcoming Geneva conference.

Speaking in a debate on the hydrogen bomb, Churchill accepted in principle the Labor proposal for a Big Three meeting to ease world tensions but said "we must see what happens" at the Geneva conference. The proposal was offered today by Opposition leader Clement Attlee.

He said that with the Geneva meeting coming up there could hardly be a more ill-chosen moment for a meeting of the heads of states and governments."

The Geneva conference, scheduled for April 26, is to discuss Korean and Indo-China settlements.

Churchill said any attempt to press for a high-level meeting now might be "a serious hindrance to the hopes and desires which are widespread on both sides of the House for an easier relationship between both sides of the world."

YET INTERVENE, WITH U.S.

Churchill again replied to interventa against American H-bomb tests in the Pacific. He said the tests "increased the chance of world peace rather than the chances of world war."

He also declared that the Soviet Union is "very much closer on the heels of the United States" in the development of the H-bomb than it was with the atomic bomb.

The H-bomb "now is in large-scale production, I believe, in the U.S. We also believe, that to a less degree, and probably in less potent form, it is in large-scale production in Soviet Russia."

Armed with non-security H-bomb information supplied by President Eisenhower, Churchill said:

National Income At All-Time Peak As Production Up

Revenues Set New Record But Are Less Than Forecast

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government estimated today it had a budget surplus of $10,107,000 in the fiscal year ended March 31. It was the eighth straight surplus and the smallest in that time.

Finance Minister Abbott gave the estimate in a white paper tabled in the Commons preliminary to Tuesday night's presentation of his 1954-55 budget forecasting spending and tax policy for the current fiscal year.

The 90-page economic and financial review showed the value of production, national income and personal income moving to new highs in the calendar year 1953. However, net farm income was down.

The 1953-54 budget surplus, subject to confirmation when the accounts are cleaned up about August, compares with an actual surplus of $23,547,000 in the previous fiscal year and with a forecast of an $11,000,000 surplus for 1953-54 in Mr. Abbott's budget of Feb. 19, 1953. The 1952-53 surplus was $676,100,000 in 1947-48.

REVENUES DROP

Both revenues and expenditures are down from Mr. Abbott's predictions last year.

The 1953-54 revenues reached an all-time peak of $4,400,988,980. This compared with the 1953-53 high of $4,360,823,000 and with a budget estimate of $4,473,000,000.

Expenditures were $4,389,870,000 compared with the previous year's $4,337,276,000 and with a forecast of $4,462,000,000. The record spending was $5,322,000,000 in the war-time year of 1943-44.

Canada's net debt was cut at the end of 1953-54 by the amount of the surplus—$11,151,000,000. This consists of unmatured funded securities of $14,360,300,000 plus other liabilities of $2,406,300,000, less the $6,824,200,000 amount of active assets on the government's credit sheet.

The revenue-spending figures do not include a variety of non-budget transactions such as loans and investments and the repayment of such advances made in previous years. On these there was a net over-all credit of $362,700,000.

Of this amount, $276,000,000 was used to retire unmatured securities in the hands of the public and the remainder went into the government's cash balance.

Another major item not reflected in the budget cash accounts was payment of $338,800,000 in universal family allowances for the year.

This is raised mostly by special income and sales taxes, which produced an estimated $294,000,000 in 1953-54.

The government made up the $41,800,000 deficit in the fund by a transfer from it.

Defence spending continued the largest item in the budget, but fell from 1952-53.

Including defence production, defence expenditures were given as $1,889,600,000 or 43 per cent of all budget spending. This compared with $1,971,200,000, or 45 per cent, the year previously.

Royal Couple Pays 90-Minute Visit To Feudal Scottish 'King' of Cocos

By GOMER JONES

COCOS ISLANDS (Reuters) — The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh paused briefly on royal yacht Gothic into another world today as they paid a 90-minute visit to this romantic coral group.

All 350 inhabitants of Home Island, one of the three coral islands, gathered along the "main street" of the island as the royal couple drove 300 yards to the house of Mr. and Mrs. Clunies-Ross, the island family.

The narrow dirt road was lined by the people of the village in bungalows which flank one side. A lagoon laps the other side of the street.

Six police officers had been flown to from Singapore. So had the jeep which carried the royal couple — normally there is no form of mechanized transportation here.

The brightly clad natives who greeted the royal couple were descendants of one of the few feudal communities left in the civilized world. No islander would have ever allowed to return. There is no currency on the islands. All goods are obtained by copra. Payment is made on barter system.

The Clunies-Ross family has developed the island as a welfare state for the 1,000 inhabitants during the last 130 years. The present head, John Clunies-Ross, is known as "the king of the Cocos."

He is the descendant of the first settler who first reached here in 1825 and was granted a "perpetual lease" over the islands by Queen Victoria.

It was the most quiet, informal and happy reception the Queen and duke have had during the royal tour. The natives are not by nature noisy and there were no cheers—only respectful waves from those at the roadside.

Chinese, Czechs Default on Loans Made by Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — Communist China and Czechoslovakia defaulted in 1953-54 on the repayment of Canadian loans.

A total of $49,400,000 is outstanding on a loan of $51,000,000 to the Chinese republic following the Second World War. Czechoslovakia owes $9,800,000 on a post-war loan of $16,400,000.

Interest of the loans was outlined in a budget white paper tabled today in the Commons.

Repayments were received on schedule from other countries to which Canada extended credit.

Britain has validated its $1,162,100,000 the $1,250,000,000 loan received in 1946. She also has produced $142,500,000 at $700,000,000 loan in 1942.

M.J. Shappee Receives Award For Courage

Michael J. Shappee, of Belleville, 60-year-old Bell Telephone installer gave little thought of rewards or his health when he dived into the chilly Bay of Quinte last October 11 to save a man from drowning. But others took notice.

On Friday night at the Bell Telephone eastern area safety banquet in Montreal's Windsor Hotel he received a citation for his courageous act of good citizenship. C. L. Dewar, the company's assistant vice-president (operations) presented the citation.

MICHAEL J. SHAPPEE.

The illuminated document points out that Mr. Shappee risked his life and suffered injury in effecting the rescue. The citation is signed by Thomas W. Eadie, president of the Bell Telephone Company of Canada.

On the day of the rescue, Mr. Shappee was fishing at Murray Canal near a party of anglers from Toronto. While he was getting some extra tackle from his car he heard a splash. He turned around and saw that one of the Toronto party was missing. He ran to the dock and saw a man rise to the surface of the water. Before he could grasp him the gasping fisherman began to sink again.

Despite his rather poor health, he dived into the cold water. He struggled until he raised the man to the surface. Rescuer and rescued were then pulled to the dock by other members of the Toronto group. The visiting angler, soaked but unharmed, walked to his car, and drove away with his companions.

Mr. Shappee, with a forearm bruised when the sinking man had clutched him, drove home, changed into dry clothing, then collapsed. He did not feel well for several days but continued to report at work.

4 Arrested, Girl in Hospital After 95-Mile-an-Hour Chase Of Stolen Car West of City

An 18-year-old Toronto girl is in Belleville hospital, and four other young people are being held by police following a 95-mile-per-hour chase of a stolen car on No. 2 highway west of Belleville Sunday evening.

In hospital with lacerations and possible skull fracture is Susan Jones, 18, of 202 Belgraven Ave., Toronto, being held by police are two Montreal youths, James Davis, 17, and Leo Tremblay, 21, and two other Toronto girls, Margaret Hipson, 18, and Joyce Gamble, 18.

Provincial Constable D. W. McAlonen spotted the stolen car as it passed him near the Trenton air station. He gave chase and as the car sped speed radioed ahead to have a road block set up.

With speeds ranging up to 95 miles-per-hour the two cars sped down the highway and as the driver of the stolen vehicle attempted to run the roadblock set up at the Bay of Quinte Cabinet by OPP H. D. Sears, three miles west of Belleville, the car collided with another vehicle driven by Jack McAvoy, R.R. 6, Belleville.

CAR FLIPS OVER.

The car flipped over three or four times throwing out several of its passengers and crashed against a tree. The stolen car was completely wrecked.

The three girls were taken to hospital by Thompson's Ambulance, where after treatment two were released into police custody.

Police said that James Davis, driver of the stolen car, was being charged with dangerous driving.

The car in which the five young people were riding was reported stolen at Port Hope shortly before 8 o'clock Sunday evening. An hour later Constable McAlonen spotted the vehicle at Trenton and gave chase.

Police believe that the two Montreal youths had stolen a car earlier in that city. Sunday morning a car stolen in Montreal was found abandoned in the ditch near Marysville. Provincial Constable A. K. MacLeod. Subsequent investigations have led police to believe that the two youths held in connection with the Port Hope theft were responsible.

Ald. G.B. Hyde Named Governor For Y's Men's Club

Y's man Alderman Gerald B. Hyde was elected to the office of governor of the eastern district of the Ontario region of the International Association of Y's Men's Club at their annual conference held in Midland, Ontario, over the week-end.

Six members of the Belleville Y's Men's Club, including the president, Robbie Clarke, the new district governor, Jerry Hyde and Y's men Bud Trill, Oscar Wagar, Ed Littlejohn and Ted Wardle made the trip and were privileged to hear the Hon. Walter Harris, M.P., minister of citizenship and immigration, address the opening banquet on Saturday night.

Close to 100 Y's men from five of the six clubs in the eastern district were represented at the conference, including Y's men from Iland, Orillia, Peterborough, Ottawa and Belleville.

UNANIMOUS CHOICE.

The new district governor was the unanimous choice of the conference for the position and he succeeds Ted Callon of Orillia, who was elected at the conference held last year here in Belleville. The eastern district of the Ontario region is one of the largest districts, geographically, in Y's dom existing as it does from Midland on the west to Ottawa on the east.

In his acceptance remarks the new district governor stated it was a high honor and a great responsibility but with the united cooperation of the members of the clubs in the district he would endeavor to serve the district creditably in his new position.

A past president of the local club, Jerry Hyde has been a Y's man since 1945 and will bring considerable experience in Y's dom to his new undertaking.

Bids were received from the Peterborough and Ottawa clubs for the holding of next year's conference with the likelihood of the Peterborough bid being accepted as a more central point.

Y's Men Induct Three Members, View Film

At the regular meeting Belleville Y's Men were hosts to a number of Y's Men from the Kingston Club. There were 18 guests present.

During the evening, Belleville Y's Men, under the direction of president Robbie Clarke, inducted three of the visitors into the Kingston Club.

Ron Moorman, program chairman, was responsible for bringing to the club a fine film on "Alaska". It gave some idea of the country, its people and its natural resources. All were reminded of the "Land of the Midnight Sun," and shown how gold mining is carried on under present day conditions, as compared with earlier methods.

TOOTHLESS FARMER

HEREFORD, England (CP)—A man who has failed to learn to thresh by hand has been allowed full replacement cost by the Herefordshire executive council.

by Gene Hitchon

Last week we talked about the early start of Belleville's own TV station. I'm going to take you back to England again. Only, this time, we'll be the members of a social club, there to see the source of hours of fun and are naturally interested in other TV centres.

The greatest interest since the British Broadcasting Corporation went on the air with TV in 1936 has just begun.

The BBC has finally decided to set up a second TV broadcasting company and this one will be owned by the people who will actually be viewing the programs. It will be in competition with the BBC service which still will have no advertising.

In this way, they hope, the fine entertainment that television TV can be will be achieved. It will inspire the older BBC service also to provide better and better programs.

Although there are settled this one thing and that is perfect color of British television sets. Viewers in some sections of England you can see TV stations broadcasting in color, and on these French stations appear from time to time pretty ladies wearing little — and sometimes NO — clothing at all.

About your competition if you will, they haven't been able to do anything with the new medium as yet.

The only bare facts we have we're broadcasting. The new BELLEVILLE-HOME set we've just received flash on the brightest, clearest pictures we've ever seen on TV. And the part we're proudest of is that after you buy you know that we're still right here, at the same location, ready to service it. The same fast service and service when you need it.

March Just Average Month That Is What Figures Say

Figures don't lie, runs an old adage, but when it comes to the weather one might be excused for pointing out that if figures don't lie, they do not tell the whole truth either.

If you have been laboring under the impression that the weather in March '54 was freakish you will be astonished to learn that the most remarkable thing about the weather last month was that it was almost average in every respect.

Statistics supplied by Harry Mills, weather observer at the Belleville purification plant on the Trent Road, prove that March '54 was really not remarkable at all, weatherwise.

In his 20-year summary of March weather as recorded at the purification plant, Mr. Mills reveals that the maximum and minimum temperatures this year were 55.1 and 12.0. Neither figure comes even close to extremes chalked up in other seasons.

In 1936 the max. and min. were 59 above and 10 below; in 1938, 68.9 and 20 below; 1946, 57 and 10 below; 1948, 61 and 20.5 below; 1950, 51.3 and 22 below. In 11 of the last 20 years the temperature dropped below zero in March. In 1943 the minimum temperature was 21 above zero. In 1951 and 1952 the minimum temperatures were 12.8 and this year with 12.0 is the fourth warmest minimum in 20 years.

The mean temperature in March 1954 was 39.3 which compares favorably with other years. Highest mean was in 1945, 39.5, followed by 1942 with 34.3. Lowest mean for mean March was in 1945 with a shivering 20.8. Other low spots were 1941, 23.2; 1950, 23.6; 1940, 23.8; and 1939, 25.1.

PRECIPITATION FIGURES.

Rain, snow, and total precipitation also came in for Mr. Mills' careful tabulation and again March '54 came out in the middle. Neither too much nor too little snow or rain fell this year and the total precipitation was about average.

This year 2.17 inches of rain fell in March plus 16.1 inches of snow or a total precipitation of 3.78 inches.

In 1938 for example, 4.25 inches of rain fell as well as 18.1 inches of snow, for a total precipitation of 6.76 inches. In that a lot? In 1936, in case you have forgotten, the Moira river overflowed on March 12th and flooded the downtown business district so that people were travelling by skiff from the Quinte Hotel to the foot of West Bridge St. All and great sport was had sailing up Front St.

Mr. Mills pointed out that in 1936 almost two inches of that 4.25 inches of rain fell just before the river overflowed.

The year 1935 should have been some sort of warning of dampef things to come however, as March had a near drought with .94 inches of rain and 1.3 inches of snow, for a total precipitation of 1.07 inches, the lowest recorded in the last 20 years.

In 1953, 3.82 inches of rain fell and in 1948, 3.23 inches fell.

In 1941 only 0.68 inches of rain fell but there were 13.9 inches of snow. In 1940, .49 inches of rain fell but one would hardly have noticed that for the 16 inches of snow on the ground.

Heaviest snow falls in March occurred in 1947 when 30.9 inches fell, and in 1944 when 22.1 inches fell.

A little advance information about April '54 was tucked in as a bonus by Mr. Mills who stated that the coldest April 1st recorded at the pump house was in 1923 when the thermometer registered one degree above zero.

April 3rd this year was chilly enough at 6 degrees, but April 4th, which was Sunday, was even colder at 4 degrees above.

On thing emerges from all this about the weather. It certainly has variety.

DO TASTES DIFFER SO WIDELY?

In a Montreal paper we noticed an advertisement which described court tennis, a game popular amongst kings and barons in the Middle Ages.

Judging from the advertisement, as anyone might have guessed, was to the effect that court tennis appeals only to the few but a certain brand of ale "appeals to just about everybody."

This set us wondering whether the appeal of court tennis was as limited as the advertisement suggested, or whether it was just a case of few people today ever having had an opportunity to play the game, since a court costs around $300,000.

From there it was only a short step to pondering the possibility that many other sports and pastimes—and even occupations—fail to win popularity only because few people ever learn about them.

The best way to test this theory is to consider one's own personal experiences. How about one's own favorite pastimes? Do people, perhaps, become interested in them merely by chance? How many of the sports and activities which the many regard as uninteresting has the reader personally tested?

Hockey is one of the most popular sports in Canada. Why? Because almost every Canadian boy gets a chance to test its appeal. Cricket is derided. How many of those who laugh at the game have ever played it, even once?

Some people are archers. The group is small. But how many of those who do not indulge in the sport ever drew a bow?

Of course, casual tests are not enough to provide an adequate test of the enjoyment which can be derived from any activity. The question arises, however, whether what the one-time player played can really be called bridge. How many people who have taken the trouble to really learn the game can say that they find it boring?

Is it possible that tastes do not vary as much as we are wont to believe, that we do not have so greatly different opportunities to test the appeals of different pastimes?

The reader can check this theory with his own experiences in the selection of hobbies. Of course, the results of this check will differ with every individual.

But we shall be somewhat surprised if most readers do not agree that they have found enjoyable almost every hobby or sport which they have given a fair trial.

A BUST FOR MISS MACPHAIL

So they are thinking of installing a bronze bust in the House of Commons to commemorate Agnes Macphail!

Perhaps that idea should be reconsidered.

How can anything as conventional as a bronze bust be considered a fitting memorial for so unconventional a woman?

She was, of course, the first woman elected to the Canadian House of Commons.

She may, alas, have been one of the last true individualists.

We do not know what Aggie would have said about that bust, but it would probably have been caustic enough to dissolve it.

Or then again she might have approved. One never knew how she would react except on a question of principle. Then she never wavered.

It just so happened that her views on many subjects did not coincide with those of the majority of Canadians. But in election after election she was returned to the House. It took a combination of redistribution, a World War and the defection

Ten Campbellford Stores Gutted or Damaged In $250,000 Fire on Sunday

Loss estimated at close to a quarter of a million dollars was caused in Campbellford Sunday afternoon as fire, starting in the basement of a snackbar, threatened a row of stores in the downtown section of the town before it was brought under control.

Firemen from Campbellford, Peterborough, Hastings and Warkworth fought the blaze for nearly three hours before it was extinguished. Twenty-six persons in eleven families living over the stores, were rendered homeless in the fire. Ten stores were either gutted or damaged.

The fire destroyed the Wiggins' block on the main intersection of Front and Bridge Streets.

FAULTY WIRING

Faulty wiring in the basement of Rose's Snack Bar, operated by Ed. Stanbury, was given as the cause of the blaze, which destroyed or damaged stores and forced the eleven families to the street from second floor apartments.

Mr. Stanbury was readying his fish and chip business for the afternoon's business when he noticed smoke coming down the stairs from his ice cream freezer. Thinking there was a short in the motor he started for the basement to turn off the power only to find that the whole basement was ablaze.

"The blaze almost cut me off from the fire hall and I would have been for an old coat, which I managed to throw over my head I would never have got out at all to sound the alarm," Mr. Stanbury related.

ALARM SPREAD

He immediately spread the alarm and although upstairs tenants managed to escape safely, one partially blind man, Tommy Haig, 69, had to be led downstairs, while another, Mrs. Clara Arbtrifle victim, had to be carried to safety.

Many of the families lost all their household possessions and escaped only with the clothes they were wearing.

Ten stores or businesses along both sides of the business block were completely gutted or extensively damaged. Among them were Mr. Stanbury's fish and chip shop; Taylor's Food Goods, Dublin's Radio Repair; Mrs. Effie MacDonald's Dress Shop; the De-Luxe Cafe; C-H-O Restaurant; Nichol's Beauty Shop and Gibson's Book Store.

Among those forced to leave their apartments were: Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Hagerman and two children; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bennett, twin son, Dr. Bennett and two small girls, aged two and six years; Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Jacobs and two children; Harry Cassidy; Ernest Haig; Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Fraser; Mrs. Mervin Mc-Mr. and Mrs. Ellis. A Mrs. Mel-ville, who had an apartment in the block, as well as all from home, lost all her possessions. The Holmes and Jacobs families also lost most of their household furnishings.

FANNED BY WEST WIND

The blaze which sent dark columns of black smoke climbing into the clear sky Sunday was fanned by a west wind and attracted thousands of spectators who watched firemen fighting the blaze. Front and Bridge Streets were a mass of people as persons from four departments poured water into the fire.

Firemen were hampered in their fight due to the fact that the blaze was in the basement beneath stores. False ceilings in the upstairs apartments also made fire fighting difficult.

Mr. Stanbury suffered burns to his hands and had his hair singed in the fire but was apparent after discovering the fire. A volunteer fireman, Murray Locke, suffered a cut hand while fighting fire in one of the basements.

Salvation Army members served hot coffee and sandwiches to firemen.

Old time Campbellford residents said Sunday's fire was the third time that the block on the town's main intersection had been burned in the past half century. The last time the block was burned was in 1930.

Marmora Ousts Waterford 10-5; Meet Lucan Next

MARMORA.—At Simcoe on Saturday evening, Marmora emerged victorious from the second round of the O.H.A. Intermediate "C" series in decisively winning against Waterford by the score of 10-5.

The winners led at the end of the first by four goals to none. Brooks and Mantle evenly dividing the goals. The former got three in the one game from Mantle and in the other from Mantle and Jones. Brooks assisted Mantle on his first goal and Jones with the second. In the second unassisted. Jones and Brown added goals for Marmora and Waterford replied with one in the second period closed.

Goals were more plentiful in the third period. "Stubby" Trumble got one for Marmora unassisted and then Waterford added two. Waterford emerged but Marmora had not done with scoring. Brown netted an assist from Brooks and Mantle and Maynes-put Trumble's pass to the net.

Waterford tried hard to reduce the lead but the game ended with two goals. It was a clean game with few penalties and a small attendance.

Marmora now faces Lucan, a community of 1,000 population about 20 miles northwest of London in the Western section. They have elected to play the first two games at Lucan on Friday and Saturday evenings of this week. They are entering the round on the understanding that Lucan is a team to be reckoned with.

Store Is Robbed As Owner Attends Father's Wake

BONARLAW (Special) — While the owner was at his father's wake, burglars entered the general store of J. Barlin & Bonarlaw, sometime Sunday night and escaped with a large quantity of tobacco and cigarettes.

Taken from the store were quantities of tobacco and cigarettes, a bolt of print cloth, shirts, overalls and pants. Also taken from the store was a quantity of clothing left at the store for pick-up by a clothing firm. Cash in the store cash register was ruined and a small amount of cash was taken.

Mr. Barlin was at the home of his father Jesse Barlow, who died on Saturday, when he learned of the break-in.

The break-in is being investigated by Madoc provincial police.

P. Wheeler, 28 Bridge Street, Belleville, won the handsome prize donated by Bill Bingham, alley manager.

Canadians, Except Farmers, Earn, Save and Spend More

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadians, other than farmers, earned more, saved more and spent more in 1953 than at any time in history.

The 1953 figures, just tabled today in the Commons, set personal income at $15,147,000,000, $179,000,000 compared with $17,128,000,000 in 1952. Personal outlay compared with $1,381,00,000, and personal expenditures $15,147,000,000 compared with $13,766,000,000.

Farmers did not share in the general increase. Net income from farm production was down to $1,667,000,000 from $1,934,000,000 in 1952. More than half the reduction was traced to a decline in agricultural productivity.

Despite the drop in farm production, Canada's gross national production hit a record $24,300,-000,000, up $1,100,000,000 over 1952.

The national income figures represents the value at market prices of all goods and services produced.

Labor income, representing the total income earned by all wage earners, joined the record setters in 1953.

Wages and salaries, including military pay and allowances, were estimated at $13,962,000,000, an increase of $900,000,000.

The civilian labor force, including both employed and the unemployed, averaged 5,925,000 for 1953, an increase of 68,000 over 1952.

Finance Minister Abbott noted a drop of 44,000 in the number of agricultural workers and said this trend—a continuation of the shift from agricultural occupations.

National Debt Cut Two Billion In Nine Years

OTTAWA (CP)—Nine years after the Second World War Canada has lopped more than $2,000,000,000 from the net debt it had to contrast to the increase that followed the First World War.

A white paper, tabled today in the Commons, estimated that at the end of the fiscal year last March 31 the net debt was pared by $10,100,000 to $11,151,000,000.

The net debt hit a post-war peak of $13,421,400,000 in 1946. In 1919, the net debt stood at $2,384,816,-It rose in the next nine years to $2,-927,854,370 at the end of the 1928-37 fiscal year March 31, 1927.

Ask Write-Off Of 99 Millions Pension Deficit

OTTAWA (CP)—Parliament will be asked at the session to extend additional financial assistance to Canada's old age security fund.

A budget white paper, tabled today in the Commons, said Parliament will be asked to write off the fund's 1952-53 deficit of $99,000,000. A year ago, a deficit of $49,700,000 was written off.

Still outstanding will be the fund's deficit of $44,800,000 for 1953-54.

The fund was established in 1952 to provide pensions of $40 a month to all persons 70 and over regardless of means. It was to operate on revenues from a two-per-cent sales tax, a two-per-cent tax on personal income and a two-per-cent tax on corporation profits.

The taxes have yet to yield enough to cover the pension payments.

Spend Billion On New Homes

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadians invested a record $1,962,000,000 in new homes in 1953.

The figure, contained in a budget white paper tabled today in the Commons, is the previous record was $801,000,000 in 1950.

The housing record was set in the face of a tight money investment reached $5,286,000,000, up from $4,900,000,000 in 1952 and lower than the 1951 total of $5,-430,000,000.

The white paper said the "most significant" change in investment was in bank loans, which showed an increase in business inventories. These increased at the five per cent annual rate in the first nine months of the year and then declined during the last three months.

Defence Spending Cut During Year

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's defence spending was reduced in the last year but it remains the largest item of federal expenditure.

A government white paper, tabled today in the Commons, showed budgetary spending for the fiscal year ended March 31, down $81,600,000 from the year before but still 42 per cent of expenditure.

There was a cut of $127,500,000 in direct expenditures on Canada's armed services. The largest reduction was that of $108,900,000 on the army, to $407,200,000.

RCAF costs were the highest of the three services, though they were reduced by $22,800,000 to $742,300,000.

The navy showed the only increase in the budget, a rise of $2,000,000 to $264,500,000.

Defence production spending fell off to $49,900,000 from $88,800,000

Mr. Kennedy is survived by his wife and three small children.

Consumer Price Index Drops Fifth of Point in February

OTTAWA (CP)—The consumer price index measuring living costs, declined by one-fifth of a point in February to 113.5, the bureau of statistics reported today.

Declining food prices were the deciding factor in trimming the index which had remained unchanged at 113.7 in the previous month. The index, based on 1949 prices equalling 100, now is 2.1 points below the all-time high of 118.2 reached in December, 1951.

Coffee prices rose sharply and cereal products rose in cured pork, apples and oranges, but lower prices for oil cuts of beef and most fresh vegetables trimmed the food-index by a half point to 110.7 from 111.7.

WELL DOWN FROM 1951

This is well below the peak of 122.5 reached in November, 1951.

The clothing sub-index also declined, slipping a fifth of a point to 109.8 from 110. The column now is the lowest in 11 months.

All other columns showed increases. The shelter column rose by a fifth of a point to a new high of 125.6, reflecting higher rents.

The household operations column edged up one point to 112.2 on a new high of 117.6, pushed up by higher prices for soaps and laundry and cleaning services.

Reflecting higher costs for automobile operations and street-car and bus, fares, the "other commodities and services" column increased also by a tenth of a point to 116.6, just a shade below the January, 1953 peak of 116.7.

"The Soviets were well behind the U.S. even before the explosion of hydrogen explosion of March 1, but they were very much closer on the heels of the U.S. in the development of hydrogen bombs than they ever were in atomic bombs."

WARNS AGAINST PANIC

Churchill appealed against what he called "hysteria" and said: "I must repeat that I shall not ask the United States to stop their series of experiments until we are all safe throughout April"

Churchill said "nothing could be less helpful to us in our problems than panic and hysteria, especially when the actual physical results are all favorable to the free world."

Attlee had introduced a labor party motion saying the hydrogen bomb threatens civilization with a "grave danger" and calling on Churchill to "use all efforts in meeting with President Eisenhower and Soviet premier Malenkov to avoid some means of easing world fears.

TIME FOR PARLEY

Churchill replied:

"I also believe we have time, though not too much time, to consult and agree together as friend to friend us and the whole world and thank over the differences and proportions."

However, the prime minister declared only what he called public and private discussion "with a view to reaching a truce."

The prime minister described Attlee's speech as "helpful and inspiring" and added "we agree with almost everything he said."

Churchill said that he did not feel that he has bridged the gulf between the differences Attlee had mentioned and the practical method of solving the problem by "some agreement" which can be timely well intentioned, which he hoped to reach.

"There is a gap between the evils and perils we have to face which have often been stated, and the practical steps which can, in the circumstances, be taken," Churchill said.

GLAD IT'S NOT RUSSIA

But he thank God for sparing us" from the "dark day" that would follow if the hydrogen bomb in the U. S. was carrying on a series of H-bomb tests.

In fact, I believe that what is happening, and what is going to happen in the United States in the Pacific ocean, increases the chances of world peace rather than the chances of war."

"I must repeat that I shall not ask the United States government to stop their series of experiments, which will go on throughout April, a very great deal of faith in banning any particular weapon.

"Unless we meet hangs over the democracies and the autocracies," Churchill said, "I think there is some change I believe the danger of its happening is less each."

"I do not believe that time is on our side for the survival of civilization, I believe that every month that passes is to our gain."

ASKS FM TO LEAD

He appealed directly to Churchill to take the lead in "saving civilization."

Calling for a live-and-let-live agreement between East and West, he said the use of H-bombs or attention are mounting and are worldwide.

Attlee said he did not agree with Churchill's contention that the hydrogen bomb might deter war. He said there would be a great danger it will be used in total warfare.

"It is impossible to say what stake any weapon will be used," he said, adding that there was no doubt doubt that Hitler would have used such a weapon as the H-bomb if he had possessed them.

"There is no guarantee that in other countries there will not arise men who may not attise to power a fanatic who hated the human race or believed that all civilization might be destroyed."

The labor party motion called on the government to take "immediate initiative" in arranging a five-power meeting.

Amid loud cheers from Labor MPs, Attlee said: "I believe there is no feeling of panic because we do not know what is coming."

MANY HEAR DEBATE

One of the longest queues ever seen outside Parliament waited for hours to try to get into the House for the debate.

Attlee said the H-bomb as shown by American tests in the Pacific could "devastate the area of London and spread to Birmingham, Sydney or any other of the world's great cities."

"It is capable of being increased in size," he added.

Attlee received regret over "these innocent Japanese fishermen injured by the radio-active ash from the American H-bomb blast of March 1.

Opposition motion, tabled by Attlee, left-winger Aneurin Bevan and other leading Labor members, said the H-bomb "threatens a grave threat to civilization and that any recourse to war may lead to its use."

It said that Britain "owes it to reconsider reduction and control of armaments as a means to removing from all the peoples of the world the fear and tension that now exists" and to strengthen collective peace through the United Nations.

Military Science Devising Selective Arsenal of Weapons

By ELTON C. FAY.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Military science has or is devising a selective arsenal of weapons to kill multitudes.

The thermonuclear bomb is getting major popular attention now because of the Pacific island tests and the jittering it has caused the world.

But behind the scenes, scientists are working in other fields, improving and perfecting radiological, gas and germ warfare.

Disarmament talks, official announcements and speculation about the H-bomb and the A-bomb is the so-called "C-bomb."

Actually, a "C-bomb," in itself, will not be an explosive weapon designed primarily for mass destruction by blast and heat but a deadly vehicle for radiological warfare. It would be an addition to a powerful explosive weapon, like a fusion or fission bomb. The C-bomb would distribute the radio-activity impregnated in the element cobalt.

LOSES CONTAMINATION

As the March 1 test at Bikini demonstrated, a thermonuclear H-bomb generates an immense amount of radio-activity through the fusion-explosion process. But, the "dirt" and poisonous contamination from a fission or fusion bomb loses its poisonous quality rapidly.

The products are short keeping alive, at a really high level, the radio-active contamination from which the mineral element cobalt multiplies. Scientists are finding their way scientists are finding their way.

Some forms of cobalt such as radium require only a few days prolonged radio-active life when impregnated. Its dangerous radiation lasts for only five several years. But of equal significance is the fact that atomic bombs using the element have much shorter life spans.

So there is selectivity for the duration of contamination—it can be made short-lived. Or, conversely, if military plan requires long-lived radio-activity to soon, the contamination can be made short-lived.

GAS KILLS QUICKLY

But suppose masses of an enemy must be killed quickly?

Here gas fits into the picture, specifically the nerve gases. The U. S. may be absorbed by breathing, through the skin or eyes or by swallowing. Death is instantaneous to victims:

The nerves confused mentally; the skin turns bluish; there is vomiting; blood pressure drops sharply to point of shock; the heart slows down; the pupils of the eyes contract to pin holes. There is a "sudden inability to breathe"—coughing, choking, spasm and death.

Gas masks have been designed to cope with nerve gas. The question is made soon enough and the material if readily available, atmosphere may help save the victim.

Australian Navy Completes Duty Guarding Queen

CANBERRA (Reuter)—Sailors throughout the Australian navy got an extra ration of rum today by Queen Elizabeth.

The Queen's traditional "splice the mainbrace" order marked the transfer of escort duties for the royal tour liner Gothic from the Australian to the British and Indies naval units. The Gothic is due in Colombo, capital of Ceylon, this week-end.

Correction Made In Hearing Report

In reviewing the report of some of the evidence given at the Bell preliminary hearing, it has been noted that an error was made in the list of the leading witnesses. Wm. Fotheergill, had been asked a question by Alex. Hall, crown prosecutor, regarding the "Bells' room." However, it appeared in the paper as "Mrs. Bell's room."

The Ontario Intelligencer is glad to make the correction and trusts that Mr. Fotheergill will be spared further embarrassment.

Mr. Fotheergill's testimony was given in regard to a conversation he had with Mrs. Bell at a funeral parlor.

Revenues from non-tax sources do not include old age pension levies of $90,700,000 in personal income tax, $35,000,000 in corporation tax and $147,700,000 in sales tax.

GNP UP IN '53

Dealing with the economic aspects of the 1953 budget every, the white paper made a preliminary estimate of $24,340,000,000 for the gross national product—the market value of all goods and services produced in the country. This was an increase of $1,100,000,000 over 1952.

In terms of volume, it was estimated production went up four per cent.

Personal income of all kinds was estimated at a record $15,076,000,-000 compared with the previous high of $17,128,000,000 in 1952.

Labor income went to $11,633,-000,000, compared with $10,792,000,-000 the year before, the highest pay rates.

Farm income declined to $1,-667,000,000 from $1,934,000,000 because of a combination of reduced output and lower prices. Non-farm production generally was up.

Personal spending, aside from taxes, was $15,147,000,000, compared with $13,766,000,000. Personal savings were $1,500,000,000, up from $1,381,000,000.

Government and private capital expenditures were estimated at $5,-370,000,000, compared with $5,285,-000,000. Biggest investment was in housing, with a record $1,962,000,-000.

Unfavorable Trade Balance Of $467,000,000 Is Reported

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada had an unfavorable net balance of $467,-000,000 on international transactions in 1953.

The budget white paper tabled today in the Commons said there was a record merchandise import surplus of $55,000,000 in 1953 compared with an export surplus of $491,000,000 in 1952.

"This change in the merchandise trade balance was the major factor in the movement from a current-account surplus of $157,000,000 in 1952 to an estimated deficit of some $467,000,000 in 1953," said the white paper.

Merchandise imports were valued at $4,142,000,000, down from $4,-197,000,000.

Merchandise exports were valued at $4,142,000,000, down $185,-

Jagan and Wife And 8 Followers Held in Guiana

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (AP)—Troops, security police and Guiana constabulary launched emergency duty today following the weekend power struggle between premier Ceddi Jagan, his wife and eight other top left-wing political aliants.

Officials expect Jagan's followers to launch an anti-British disobedience campaign in a showdown fight. They particularly fear an attempt to sabotage the colony's dike system and send Atlantic salt water sweeping over sugar and rice fields along the coast.

Security forces also prepared for the possibility that Communist-led unions controlling sugar and other laborerm might call sympathy strikes.

Jagan and the other jailed leaders of his People's Progressive party were slated to appear today before a magistrate.

Jagan, who has vowed a campaign of boycott and strikes since his ouster from power last October, was charged with violating an order by Governor Sir Alfred Savage forbidding him to enter Georgetown.

Jagan's wife, Janet, and eight other leftists were arrested Sunday for leading a protest demonstration in defiance of a ban on political gatherings.

29 New Members Rec'd into Fellowship At Holloway United

Twenty-nine new members were received into the fellowship of the Holloway Street United Church, during a service in congregation of which filled the church.

Mr. Clifford Tempier, presided at the organ and the senior choir presented part of Stainer's "Crucifixion," with Mrs. Arthur Daniels, taking the solo part. The minister, Reverend Sidney E. Lanning, in his communion meditation, described the institution of the Jewish Passover and stated, as with The Lord's Supper—so called because our Lord instituted it—was celebrated in a home, and afterward in the early churches.

Thus, the communion table is not monopolized by any one denomination, but it is the Lord's table, and none has the right to prohibit any from partaking of the symbols of our Lord's life and death. The examination of one's own heart and subsequently accepting the Divine invitation to eat and drink 'in remembrance of me' is a personal matter and responsibility.

Galaxy of Gorgeous Garments Awaits Debutantes in London

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—A galaxy of gorgeous garments from the May fair salons of London's "big 12" await the debutantes stepping into the new social season.

Spring fashion shows cater to the needs of the youthful social set, who recently made an official public bow to society at formal presentation parties at Buckingham Palace.

The "deb" with a bankroll is a customer to be reckoned with on the basis of usual requirement. Her wardrobe will include at least 12 evening dresses, costing as much as £150 each, three cocktail dresses, two suits, three afternoon dresses and six cotton frocks. A day's wear—including a smart town suit, afternoon dress and dance dress with the right accessories—would average £300.

MUST PAY LESS

However, most post-war debutantes settle for less. Shop-bought outfits interspersed with two to six couture garments depending on budget, must do for them. Order of importance is generally a royal party dress. Special attention is paid, of course, to the afternoon dress worn for presentation.

A suitable choice might be the V-necked, full-skirted satin print by Victor Stiebel, designer to Princess Margaret and the Duchess of Kent, with low belted waist and black accessories. Its ash grey tone, marigold and black, it would be suitable for many occasions.

A sure winner for Queen Charlotte's Ball—the May 31 "deb" ball-of-the season—is a white evening gown with 100 yards of tulle forming a gigantic un-crinolined skirt, by John Cavanagh. It has tiny, strapless bodice outlined in black velvet ribbon and a huge bunch of illies-of-the-valley decorates the waist.

A formal floor-length evening gown in pearl-colored nylon satin, by Michael Sherard, has full skirt, pleated bra and a one-shoulder Greek effect.

FOR THE OPERA

For a trip to the Glyndebourne opera, traditional outing, there is a pale pink sekers satin by Hardy Amies, designer to the Queen, with full short skirt and belted waist. Frill coming from under the bust and fluting upwards to panel-wide shoulder straps.

An afternoon tweed suit by Michael has clinging lines and cut-away neckline. In pale blue, yellow and white tweed it has the designer's new "lissom" look. This means a straight skirt and a well fitted waistline.

A dress and jacket in a blue grey silk and wool mixture, also by Amies, would prove invaluable for many formal occasions. The dress skirt is slim and the cap-sleeved collarless bodice, buttoned to the belted waist, is similar in style to the long-sleeved jacket with neat waist and rounded peplum.

Ball Dress

A galaxy of gorgeous garments from the Mayfair salons of London's "Big 12" await the debutantes stepping into England's new social season. This pearl-colored nylon satin has been chosen by Michael Sherard for his classical ball dress, cut with one broad shoulder panel crossing the tucked bodice. Nylon satin has a particularly rich, gleaming texture, flattering under ballroom lights.—(CP Photo.)

The sale or tickets on a hostess chair to be drawn on April 22nd, was then reported.

Miss Sulman showed her versatility and skill with a few elocution readings. Much enjoyed was Miss Sulman's portrayal of a radio emcee sponsored by "Plunkett's Pink Pills," a never failing cure all. Also, her portrayal of a minister bidding a fond adieu to his congregation. Sulman played a morose visitor in the reading "Cheerful Little Earful."

A poem entitled "Mother's House" was given by Doreen Holston. A green contest in honor of St. Patrick's day, in charge of Dorothy Bazuk, was won by Edna Keeble. Current events were reported by Bertha Doyle. Jerry McLaughlin proved her knowledge on soaps by winning a soap contest.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

SHE WANTS TO MEND HER MARRIAGE, NOT BREAK IT UP

Over and over again some distraught wife, or some unhappy husband, comes to ask us that she or he could do to straighten out the heart which a marriage has become, ready to go to any lengths to bring it about. And over and over again, we have to dilute more than point out that making a success of marriage is something that cannot be done singlehanded, and that unless some way can be found to enlist the necessary co-operation from the other partner, there are only two alternatives—to give the whole thing up, or simply to go on suffering—but of a bad and partial bargain.

One wife who neither wants to break up her marriage nor to have to go on making the best of her bad bargain has this story to tell:

"I am 34, my husband is 31. We've been married five and a half years and have a daughter one year old. Shortly after I became pregnant, my husband started running around, and was gone every night. I began to have my suspicions, but it wasn't until my baby was four months old that I learned the truth, which was that for over a year he had been having an affair with a woman who was married and had two children. This was the second such episode in our married life.

"We had a quarrel and he walked out. After six weeks he came back for three weeks, but continued to go out night after night, leaving me home. When I said anything about it he would just get mad at me and go, but then he came again, and now, still away, he comes over every day to see the baby and me, which is harder on me than if he didn't come at all.

"As far as I am concerned I gave up his affair, so why doesn't he come home? I love him and don't think he loves the baby and me, but likes his freedom even more. I don't know what to do next. If he would only come back and settle down, I'd more than willingly forgive and forget.

"Should I consult a lawyer to see if he can take action against me my husband? I don't want a divorce, although I have many grounds for one, but I'm afraid I'll go out of my mind if the situation isn't straightened out soon."

No, I do not think this young wife should see her husband's back lawyer, unless she is seriously considering legal action against her husband, which she is not. What she wants is for someone to try and talk some sense into her husband, and the only way a lawyer has of "talking sense" into a person is to hold over that person's head the threat of possible trouble if he will not listen to reason.

If, as is only natural, she wants to discuss her problem in person with someone near at hand, then she should go to her minister or priest, to a marriage counselor, or to a family welfare organization, or, possibly, to an old and trusted friend upon whose discretion and wisdom she can rely. To such people as these, she can give all the details that she feels she must need to know in order to advise her most faithfully and, if it seemed best to talk with the husband, too, they would be able to do so in a entirely frank manner without the threat of the "big stick" that invariably accompanies the thought of a lawyer in cases of this kind.

Then, hard as it would certainly be, I would urge her to refrain from any reproaches, tears or, in fact, any mention whatever of the rift between them on those daily visits of the husband to her home. Of course it is harder to have him coming there every day than if would be if he didn't come at all. But—since she says she is desperate to be willing to forgive and forget"—if she could find it in her heart to put up a cheerful front when her husband comes: to treat his visit as though it were that of a congenial friend and to make whatever time he stays a pleasant one, this might eventually have its effect. I suggest, too, that she try to find herself some interests outside her home so that she will have new things to tell him on these visits. For the best way to avoid saying or doing the wrong thing, is to have something aside from themselves to talk about.

This sort of treatment may seem more than he deserves—as indeed it is—but it is far more likely to bring the desired result than the reproachful, the heartbroken, the antagonistic attitude. After all, the Prodigal Son did not find the welcome met by his father, not with anger or harsh words, but with love and rejoicing.

This husband may not yet be the Prodigal who wants to come home, but it certainly can do no harm, and might do even much good, to make it evident that a welcome awaits him.

NO WIFE SHOULD STAY WITH AN ABUSIVE HUSBAND

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 30 years old, have been married 12 years and have six children.

My husband and I don't get along. He accuses me of dating men, but it is not true. He is the one who is doing the dating.

He won't give me any money for anything and doesn't want me to go anywhere, not even to church. He also beats me on the slightest provocation. I've been fed up with this way down. Place in greased baking dish, pare them 1-4 way of living for a long time, but never thought of doing.

Do you think I should leave him and the children and go where he can't find me? I left him once, and he came after me and promised he would be better and not go with other women, but he didn't keep that promise. Now he says he has been dating have even some to my home after him.

Please tell me the best thing to do, for I love my kids a lot.

Desp G.S.P.:

If you really love your children as much as you say, then you certainly don't want to go off and leave them, do you? At the same time, I certainly don't think you should stay with any man who beats and abuses you.

What I think you should do is to go to some family service organization in your city for advice on how to handle this very serious problem. While I personally think that you and your children would be better off away from this man, there are too many factors in your situation as which I have no information—among them, how you and your children would be supported if you did leave your husband—that the only sensible thing to do is to seek help from someone who can find out everything necessary about you and your family and then work out with you a practical plan for your immediate future.

If you don't know how to locate the family service organization in your locality, call up your City Hall, consult your minister or your priest. Any one of these will be able to give you the name and address of the proper place to seek such advice.

For Diabetics In Particular And Reducers In General

By Mary Moore

The soft spot in my heart for my diabetic friends has a guilty feeling. So to, also to them go my caloric recipes especially for the diabetic patients in this audience. If the reducers want to take advantage of them too they are perfectly welcome, for free.

APPLE BETTY

(Low calorie)

To 1-4 cup water add 2 tablespoons lemon juice and in them dissolve 10 sucaryl tablets (or stir in 1-4 teaspoons sucaryl solution). Then add three sucaryl products may be bought in your drug store). Mix together 2 cups soft coarse bread-crumbs (from 2 slices of bread) and 1-2 teaspoon each cinnamon and salt. Spread about 1-3 of these crumbs in partially buttered baking dish. Have ready and sliced 4 medium apples and put half of them over the first layer of crumbs. Cover with another one-third of the crumbs, and cover them with the remaining apple slices; finish with a layer of crumbs. Spoon the sucaryl mixture over all. Cover. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 20 minutes then remove cover and bake 30 minutes longer. This is good cold or hot.

Note—One of my friends who is diabetic said to me that he hardly is aware of his ailment when a dish like the above is served.

WHIPPED TOPPING

(Low calorie)

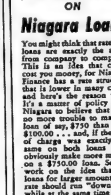
On top of 1-2 cup ice water sprinkle 1-2 cup powdered skim milk in cold bowl. Beat with rotary or electric beater until thick enough to leave marks of beater. Slowly add 1 sucaryl tablet dissolved in 1 tablespoon lemon juice and 1-2 teaspoon vanilla mixed together, beating as you add them. If desired you may add 2 sucaryl tablets.

BAKED APPLES

(Low calorie)

These amounts are for 4 medium-sized tart firm apples — preferably Spys. Core the washed apples, pare them 1-4 apples, place in greased baking dish and set aside. Mix together 1-2 cup coarse soft bread-crumbs and 1 teaspoon sucaryl solution and 1-2 teaspoon cinnamon. Fill the cavities in the apples with this crumb mixture. Mix together 3-4 cup water and 1-4 cup orange juice. Spoon this over the apples. If you have any crumbs left sprinkle them over the pared part of the apples. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 1 hour or until easily pierced with fork. Baste 3 or 4 times during the baking period.

ORANGE-MILK SHERBET



(Low calorie)

Soften 4 oz. can undiluted frozen concentrate orange juice (or lemon or grape), 12 sucaryl tablets dissolved in 1 cup water, 1 cup evaporated milk. When tablets are dissolved mix all ingredients together. Pour into freezing tray and freeze to a roush. Turn out into cold bowl and beat with rotary or electric beater until smooth and creamy. Return to tray to freeze firm.

CINNAMON COOKIES

(Low calorie)

Cream together 5 tablespoons shortening and 1 cup sifted all purpose flour which has been sifted with 1-2 teaspoon salt and 1-4 teaspoon baking powder until they are well blended. You will use a pastry blender or wooden spoon for this. Mix together 1 tablespoon milk or orange juice or strong coffee and 12 sucaryl tablets or 1 1-3 teaspoons sucaryl solution. Stir this into the flour mixture and mix well. Add vanilla, about 2 teaspoons. Sprinkle a little dough on a teaspoon cinnamon and knead only until it presents a marbled appearance. Shape dough into one-inch balls by rolling between palms and arrange on lightly greased baking sheet. Flatten balls with tines of fork dipped in water. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 12 to 15 minutes, or until edges are just brown. These are a great favorite with my diabetic buddy.

LOWER RATES ON Niagara Loans

You might think that rates on loans are exactly the same from company to company. This is an idea that could cost you money, for Niagara Finance has a rate structure that is lower in many cases, and here's the reason why. It's a matter of policy with Niagara to believe that it is no more trouble to make a loan of say, $750 than it is $100.00 . . . and, if the rate of charge was exactly the same on both loans we'd obviously make more money on a $750.00 loan. So we work on the idea that on loans for larger amounts the rate should you borrow's while at the same time rates on smaller amounts are standard. Besides that, we think you'll like our idea of having loans on $1500 life-insured at no extra cost to you. That's the sort of recommendation that's family man can appreciate. Come in and see us if you need money, we'd like to meet you.

A Lash Curler Is A Valuable Glamour Gadget

Eyes are a wonderful means of communication. Whether it be the curious glance of a stranger, the appraising look of a new acquaintance or the fond glance of a sweetheart, eyes are often more eloquent than words.

Whether periwinkle blue, limpid brown, soft grey or velvety black, charm can be greatly enhanced with a little know-how and daily use of the items in your make-up kit.

Give yourself an alert, wide-awake look by keeping your eyebrows in perfect form, plucking away stray hairs with a tweezer that has blunt ends and scissor handles. This type of tweezer will not break off the shafts, leaving a little black spread in the flesh, as will ordinary tweezers. If your eyes are close together pluck fairly wide space between the eyebrows. This is a flattering trick that works for the long face.

Even if you are an eye shadow addict, do not forget this piece of lingerie in the daytime. Instead, pass the rouge pad over your eyelids to produce a natural effect.

If your eyebrows peter out at the far end, extend them then with a crayon. But not with too much of a downward curve—or you will produce a droopy look to your features.

When beauty shopping, get yourself a lash curler. Apply a lash pomade before using, however, as the silky shafts will be more pliable. This gadget is worth its weight in glamour.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

GROOM'S ATTIRE AT AFTERNOON WEDDING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My daughter is to be married in a church wedding at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. She is to wear a wedding gown and a long bridal veil. The ceremony is to be followed by a reception and dance, for approximately 200 guests. Our problem: what should the groom, best man, and ushers wear? The groom dislikes the idea of wearing a tuxedo. And none of the men who are to be in the wedding party owns either a tuxedo or a cutaway. So please tell us what is "reasonable" attire for the men in the wedding party. — E.

My deep salutations to the prospective groom . . . I'm so glad that he "dislikes the idea" of wearing a tuxedo" at his afternoon wedding. For most definitely he and his best man and ushers should not wear tuxedos . . .which, of course, are evening attire . . . at the afternoon wedding. It really does look odd to see the men in a wedding party all dressed up in evening attire at 3 or 4 or 5 o'clock in the afternoon! A tuxedo should not be worn before 6 o'clock in the evening, preferably not before 7 o'clock.)

The alternative? Very simple. They may wear. . .correctly wear . . .dark blue business suits if the bride plans the wedding more or less on the side of informality. That is, she may wear a wedding dress if it is not too formal, with a train, or at most a short sweep, and if her veil is short, not a long one, more appropriate to a formal wedding.

Of course today it is very convenient, and quite inexpensive, for the men in the wedding party to rent (if they can't borrow) formal day time attire. . .either cutaway coats or short Oxford jackets striped trousers, and all the appropriate accessories. Nowadays this is the customary procedure! But if the bride can't persuade the groom to persuade his attendants to dress appropriately to the occasion, she apparently wishes for her wedding, she should change the type of her wedding to not-so-formal, and then the men may wear the dark blue suits. (And with the blue suits, while shirts, stiff white fold-over collars, black shoes and black socks, four-in-hand ties, of conservative color and design, and all the same.)

WHEN DOCTOR SIGNS LETTER

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I know I'm sure that I have read in your column that it is never correct for a doctor to sign any letter "Dr. John Hall." And I think I'm sure that you also said that it is sometimes correct for him to sign his name to a letter "John Hall, M.D." Now it has become very important to me to know about this. If so, please tell me when it is correct for a doctor to sign a letter with the "M.D." after his name. — Lelia L.

You are right. . . It is not correct for a doctor to sign any letter "Dr. John Hall." (For it is never correct for anyone to sign any letter with a title. . . "Dr. or "Mr." or "Mrs." or "Miss.") But the doctor may sign a letter "John Hall, M.D." when the use of the degree has a definite bearing on the subject of the letter, signifies qualifications.

MAY GIVE BRIDAL SHOWER

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am going to be matron of honor at a dear friend of mine in her June wedding. She is also having two bridesmaids. Please tell me just what is expected of me in a way of a shower? — H.

You, as the "honor" member of the bridal party, may give a shower if you wish to, or you and the two bridesmaids may unite in giving a shower. Giving a shower for the bride-to-be is a most thoughtful and generous gesture, but it is not necessary, shouldn't necessarily be expected.

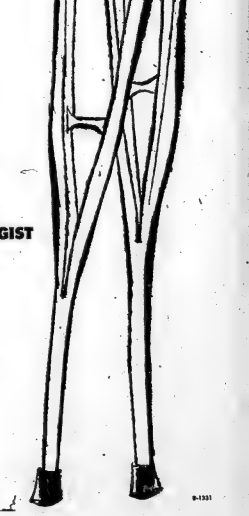
A WONDER DRUG HELPED CHANGE THIS . . .



There are times when crutches are a vital necessity.

But because of antibiotic wonder drugs in many cases their period of use has been considerably shortened. Serious infections arising from foot and leg punctures, compound fractures—acute inflammation in the smaller joints . . . all these have been helped by today's wonder drugs.

But in grandfather's day it meant many medicines, doctors, possibly surgery, nurses—and certainly a long period of convalescence on crutches. Even in his day of low prices all these costs were great.

It is only because truly staggering sums have been spent in research and development by the leading pharmaceutical houses that we can buy today's wonder drugs at all. And buy them, moreover, at prices that are very reasonable when compared to what grandfather had to pay for treatments—many of which are no longer necessary!

YOU CAN DEPEND ON YOUR NEIGHBOURHOOD DRUGGIST

NATO Marks 5th Anniversary Today With More Guns And Troubles Than at Any Time

PARIS (AP) — The North Atlantic Treaty Organization marked its fifth anniversary today with more guns and more troubles than at any time in its short history.

The treaty was signed in Washington April 4, 1949, by 12 Atlantic powers, including the United States and Canada on the western side, Belgium Denmark, France, Iceland, Italy, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Norway, Portugal and the United Kingdom to the north and east. Greece and Turkey joined in 1952.

In the far background, pushing these countries toward such an organization, was the recognition, as a NATO explanatory document says, that the Atlantic is no longer a barrier between the nations on its shores, but is "the inland sea of a closely-linked community."

The addition of Greece and Turkey in essence added the Mediterranean to this "inland sea."

But the immediate pressure that brought the organization into being was the disquieting recognition that Russia had kept her armies while everybody else did disarming after the Second World War. And Russia was pressing for time in its useless. Czechoslovakia disappeared behind the Iron Curtain in early 1948.

That same year brought the Berlin blockade, which Russia sought to drive the Western Allies out of Berlin.

NATO,which began with barely 15 divisions "on the line" across central Europe and a scattered, ill-equipped air force, didn't immediately get into high speed rearming. It was a leisurely procedure, with meetings of ministers discussing in general the attainment of NATO's objectives—"the maintenance of international peace and security."

Then came the shock of Korea. the West didn't know whether it was the beginning of a little war or a big one. What was sure, by 1950, From that hour NATO's strength buildup has been spectacular.

Now there are 53 divisions that can be put on the line on the day war starts, if it should. More than half of them, with far more than half the fire power, are concentrated in western Europe. The remainder are in Greece and Turkey. These two smaller powers have a defence alliance with Yugoslavia.

In addition there are 45 reserve divisions, at least theoretically capable of taking the field within 30 days.

The air force has grown from literally nothing to 4,500 planes, mostly jets. By the end of this year the number will be 5,700. Heavy bomber bases have been established in the United Kingdom and North Africa. From a bare dozen in 1949, the number of air bases in Europe fit for jets has grown to 140.

Atomic weapons are stationed in western Germany.

All of this was the result of a lot of heavy thinking that took place after the summer and fall of 1950. Troops would be sent to Europe. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower was chosen SHAPE commander.

But the big, trouble, making decision was taken in New York in September, 1950. Germany, it was decided, must be rearmed.

Relations among NATO nations have been severely strained by that decision. Both to harness the Germans and to postpone their rearmament, the French hastily devised the European Defence Community scheme under which Germans would be brought into uniform but only as part of a European Army.

Instead of 500,000 trained Germans on the line along the Elbe, not a German soldier has been armed in the 3½ years since the decision to rearm them was made.

France, the key terrain in NATO's European defence, is torn by internal dissension over whether now to approve the European Army she dreamed up.

Campbellford C of C Elects New Officers

CAMPBELLFORD — The official for the coming year for the Campbellford Chamber of Commerce were elected at the dinner meeting in the parish hall this week. A dinner was served by the ladies of Christ Church Parish Guild.

The president, J. F. R. Douglas, presided and the election of officers resulted as follows:

President, J. F. R. Douglas; vice-president, R. C. McKeel; secretary, F. G. DeCarrie; treasurer, C. A. Putnam; directors, R. D. McDonald, H. H. Davidson.

Mr. John Wall, of Stirling, was the guest speaker. Mr. Wall is the Canadian manager of the Fritz W. Giltsch Co., manufacturers of equipment for the oil industry.

Mr. Wall expressed himself as a great admirer of Canada and Canadians. He said that co-operation is the secret of all success and hence the Canadian everyone must learn, if effort is to be rewarded.

He outlined the manner in which an industry has been procured for the town of Uxbridge and praised the people of that town for their faith and co-operation in forming a development company and erecting a building to encourage industry to come there. He said that as a research man, he had great possibilities of employment in the district, and when he was excellent position to advise industry to locate in Uxbridge, because he had the utmost confidence in people. He further stated that the municipality need not give fixed assessment or any special concessions in most cases, that if an industry needs it, a great deal of help it is not a good thing for the town. He told how he had come to the small Canadian town and with absolutely untrained help had surpassed the production of their comparable American plant by 33 per cent.

Mr. Wall was introduced by E. C. McKeel and thanked by F. M. Rutherford.

Keen Bidding Expected For Off Shore Oil Lands

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Oilmen are a new land rush in the making.

Spirited bidding for oil leases is predicted when the U.S. government opens its share of the submerged the lands off the shores of Louisiana and Texas, possibly this month.

Coasts will run high, both for drilling and for leases.

Once Texas cleared title to tidelands for 10 miles out—the federal government holds title beyond that—it got $35,000,000 out of lease sale. The highest price paid for a lease that covered 5,000 acres on the bottom of the Gulf of Mexico was $3,000,000.

Oilmen say that the cost of locating a producing well offshore averages three times that of getting it onshore.

"It's getting hard to find rich new oil fields on shore," says C. E. Woodley, Humble Oil Co. vice-president with offices in New Orleans. "The indications are the one big place around where we're fairly sure there's oil."

Soviet Russia's 'New Look' Is Evident in Czechoslovakia

Ivan Bozell, president and publisher of the Hartville, Fla., News, is one of a group of small-city U.S. newspaper editors and publishers heading for a visit to Russia. In the following story he gives some of his impressions of Czechoslovakia on his way to Moscow.

By IVAN BOXELL

WARSAW (AP)—Soviet Russia's "new look" is in evidence in satellite Czechoslovakia. We saw some of it Thursday in Prague when an estimated 50,000 people marched to old town square in a "manifestation" through which, we were told, the Czechs were expressing their appreciation for substantial price cuts on practically all food, clothing and household items.

And the fillip, at least for visitors to the city, was a style show featuring the "new look" in clothes and the "old look" in prices.

Staged in a hotel dining room by one of the nationalized stores, about 50 spring and summer outfits were shown.

Of course, we, too, were part of the "new look" as our group of 16 U.S. newspaper people were the first to enter Czechoslovakia since the imprisonment of William R. Oatis, Associated Press correspondent, three years ago. Oatis since has been released and is now on our way to Moscow, with a two-day stop-over at Prague and Warsaw, after having visited 10 European and Middle East capitals.

VIRTUALLY IGNORED

Little attention was paid to us. We saw no government representatives except customs inspectors. Who, cleared us readily, and Prague citizens showed little interest except when we took taking pictures. The cameras seemed to surprise them, and they watched us curiously. Police hurried with this phase of our activities only twice—when it may have appeared we were pointing the cameras in the direction of soldiers or military offices.

I have no idea what the public officers said at the "manifestation," but did ascertain that the frequent rhythmic chant was "long live the Soviet Union, long live the Czechoslovak republic." The big crowd, which had come largely in marching groups from mills and offices, was orderly, impressively quiet during the speech-making and not subject to the good-natured pushing around and jostling characterizing a similar gathering in the U.S.

Husband and Wife Open Deep-Sea Diving School

TORONTO (CP)—A man-and-wife deep-sea diving team, believed the only one in the world, is opening a diving school here.

Max Lubker is backed by a matter diver's certificate and 31 years' experience in many parts of the world. Mrs. Lubker, a dainty lightweight, has spoiled duties of attendant and dives occasionally.

Last year she accompanied her husband on 15,000 miles of cross-country travel. She cares for Max's suit, keeps an eye on air guages and relays instructions by earphone between her husband and workers on shore.

Max's diving began in 1902 when he was called to refloat sunken ships in the China Sea. He went down 70 feet, a feat in those days.

Only once, when working in South Africa, did he fear for his safety. A full grown octupus wound its tentacles around his legs from behind. Max drew his belt knife and slashed wildly through the inky mass. The fish let go and he continued with his work.

Canadian waters offered some challenges since his arrival here from his native Germany 25 years ago.

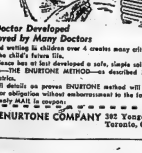
He was once called to dive under two feet of ice in January weather. His record dive in Canada is 185 feet in Lake Memphremagog, Que. Students who enrol from as far as Vancouver requore excellent physical condition.

Calming nerves can become good divers, says Lubker.

"Often a diver has to feel his way under water," he said, "and a blind man's sensativeness to surroundings is a useful asset."

Preparing Soo Locks

SAULT STE. MARIE, ONT. (CP)— One Michigan lock is ready and the Canadian canal here is in the final stages of preparation for the opening of navigation.



The Sabine or fourth lock on the Michigan side has been flooded, as has the Canadian lock. A tug is completing the operation by pushing ice away from the lock gate on the Canadian side.

United States Coast Guard officials say it will be at least a week before navigation opens on the St. Mary's River.

Red Wings' 'Production Line' Pays Off In 3-1 Victory Over Canadiens

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

"BUT WHERE?"

The smelts are "smelting," the pickerel are beginning to pick their spots for the spring spawning; golfers are getting in practice licks, in our backyard the tulips are inches high and snowdrops are waving brave white heads in wintry weather. The family feline is readying for nocturnal quests, and some people report robins and crows have yet to an appearance. In all spring is around the corner despite Ole Man Winter's hang-dog attempts to retain his hold on the atmospheric scene.

Perhaps the more convincing thing is that baseball is in the air and the youngsters hereabouts are getting the old diamond urge.

Bryson Reid, who took his juniors to the ORA junior "A" titular series last year, says the youngsters have been around his service station door for the past ten days or so, clamoring for some sort of baseball action—and if he is going to take over the reins of management again this season.

"You can count me in, if I can get some assistance," Bryson told this department. "I do not mind doing my share and baseball, like any other sport, is an expensive hobby. But I do want to see these young fellows play baseball again this year, and it will not be my fault if there is no junior squad."

And while on the baseball subject, the Belleville Baseball Association is holding its first meeting in the city hall council chambers this Thursday evening. It is an important meeting, an open one, Manager Jack Carson tells us, and it behooves all interested in senior baseball to be in attendance.

We do not know what player plans Manager Carson has in mind for the 1954 season, but it is clearly evident the junior youngsters all want to make the senior grade, and there is no reason, as far as this department can see, why these kids should be denied the privilege of playing baseball.

Last season the Reid Regents, a team that was more or less "picked up", so to speak by Reid and Coach "Red" Carson, kept the Belleville baseball banner flying, and went, as has been mentioned before, to the provincial finals. The senior squad, through no fault of its own, nor that of its manager-coach, could not find a league in which to pair despite the all-out efforts of association president Malcolm Robb and Manager Carson. This year it is different, with senior baseball being assured of a four-team loop at the least.

The Central Ontario Baseball League, at the moment comprised of Belleville, Kingston, Peterborough and Oshawa, with a possibility of Watertown, N.Y., entering the circle, is holding an important executive meeting at Saddle-Station CJBQ tomorrow night. Many wrinkles will be ironed out and in all probability a schedule will be drawn up. Meanwhile all squads are in preliminary throes and present indications point to the league opening somewhere in the vicinity of the traditional May 24, if not sooner.

But in the meantime do not forget the Belleville Baseball Association meeting scheduled for the city hall Thursday evening starting at 8 o'clock. The 1954 season looks like a revival of the famous old COBL loop that made baseball history in the district years ago, and you can bet your grandpop's store mates the other teams in the league will be after the best player material they can produce. Every little bit helps and many willing hands make the job easier.

MARMORA-POINT ANNE TONIGHT

In the meantime there is some hockey business to clear up. The Point Anne-Marmora Millionaires battle for the Trent Valley senior hockey championship tonight in Marmora Arena, and with both teams at full strength it looks like a dilly of a series. The teams play the second game in Marmora Wednesday night.

CLIPPERS IN!

The Stouffville Clippers ousted the Toronto East York Lyndhursts in three straight games in the Senior "B" playdowns and that night did up the old "sore" about the Russian story. In fairness to the Lyndies they were minus a few players that were with them in the "world series" but we will stick by an earlier opinion, one of the many why the Lyndies were not by any stretch of the imagination the pick of the Senior "B" crop, let alone Canada's "finest". The Clippers now meet ancient rivals in the Oshawa Truckmen in the semi-final series.

DOTS 'N FLASHES . . .

Maxie Jackson's Kingston Vics defeated Port Perry 5-3 in the first game of their best-of-three playdown series. The teams play in Port Perry tonight and in Kingston Wednesday, if the third tilt is necessary . . . Tom Pappas Recreation Alleys team won the Central Ontario Bowling League championship Satevo and that is why the amiable Tom is wearing a broad smile today. Tis the first time the Recreations have won the title. Playoffs for prize money are coming up . . . Speaking of bowling the Men's Spring League gets under way on April 8. It will contain eight teams and will last seven weeks. Total prize money is $216.40. More about this later . . . Jim Mackenzie writes an interesting story on the Moss-Jay Bowling Classic. HARLEM TROTTERS COMING!

Abe Saperstein's Harlem Globetrotters, the world-famous basketball virtuosi, play themselves in "Go, Man, Go" which opens at the Capitol Theatre on April 18 for a three-day run. There is but one exception: Big Inman Jackson, one of the original Trotters and probably their greatest centre is portrayed by Sidney Poitier, the brilliant negro actor. Reece "Goose" Tatum, Marques Haynes, and "Sweetwater" Clifton, three of the Trotters' most spectacular players are, with the rest of the team, co-starred with Dane Clark, who plays Saperstein, owner and coach of the fabulous sports aggregation.

Reibel Scores Winner Behind Lindsay, Howe, Delvecchio; Kennedy Says He Will Retire

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

DETROIT (CP) — A production line that produced and a punch line that was punchless tells the story of Detroit Red Wings' 3-1 victory over Montreal Canadiens in Sunday night's opening of the best-of-seven Stanley Cup final.

The Red Wings had the power on the power plays. Their big line of Gordie Howe, Ted Lindsay and Alex Delvecchio, with rookie Earl Reibel tossed in as the extra forward, was the most potent on the ice. Two of Detroit's goals came on power plays.

It was the rookie, too, who did the most scoring damage to Montreal by scoring the winning goal early in the third period. From 20 feet over the right boards Reibel let go a 40-foot rising shot that goodie Gerry McNeil never saw.

As far as Canadiens were concerned the game was gone then and there.

GIVES COUP DE GRACE

Red Kelly, Detroit's tireless defenceman, gave the Wings another grace with a goal while his own team was shorthanded.

Ted Lindsay scored the only goal of the opening period and Boom Boom Geoffrion and Montreal even in the second when Canadiens made their first stand.

But on the whole, Canadiens were outclassed and outchecked by the hard, sometimes rough game.

Where Detroit's famous production line was functioning, it added intact to Montreal's third line of John McCormack, Floyd Curry and Lorne Davis to put on the hardest-working effort in the losers' ensemble. Geoffrion went best of the line that created so much havoc in the Canadiens' net but found a league to his goal despite the all-out efforts of association president Malcolm Robb and Manager Carson. This year it is different, with senior baseball being assured of a four-team loop at the least.

Coach Dick Irvin was openly disappointed with the failure of Montreal's punch line. That line, made up of Ken Mosdell, Bert Olmstead and Rocket Richard, was remarkable for its impotence. The line has yet to get over an assist in this year's Stanley Cup play.

Irvin still has three lines when centre Elmer Lach and winger Calum Mackay. Neither appeared in the Boston series. He said he was too early yet to consider using either of them and present indications are he will go into Tuesday's game with the same squad that took a licking Sunday night.

TORONTO (CP)—Ted Kennedy, a centre on whom Toronto Maple Leafs are willing to shoot the bank roll, says he is retiring from the National Hockey League. Leafs want him to think it over.

Conn Smythe, managing director of the Leafs, said at a press conference Sunday that Kennedy wants to quit after 12 years in the big time, all with Toronto, but that he is batting him with the highest salary offer "ever made a hockey player." He didn't divulge the offer.

Smythe refused to accept the resignation until Kennedy ponders it for at least six weeks.

"Money is no object," the Leaf boss said. "The team needs Kennedy. Hockey needs Kennedy."

At 28, Kennedy, known around the circuit as Teeder, has scored 231 goals since he moved up to the Leafs from amateur ranks in the 1942-43 season. That time, as Leaf captain, he led Toronto to five Stanley Cup titles.

Kennedy said he is calling it quits because he wants to devote his time to his job in the building materials field. He added:

"Mr. Smythe has been a wonderful offer, but I feel definite about retirement. I honestly believe, I'm making the right move."

Smythe said he offered Ted "proper contract" but Kennedy can reduce it into one year."

IN REAL TROUBLE

"We're in real trouble if we lose such a great player. He is more valuable to us on defence than at any other time."

Kennedy said he was the going tougher each year and took the Leafs' team to Detroit Red Wings to win Stanley Cup semi-finals this year hard.

"I haven't been producing," Kennedy commented.

Kennedy, a native of Port Colborne, Ont., scored 15 goals and 23 assists this season. He centred the top line with Sid Smith and Ron Stewart on the wings.

The Leafs also announced goalkeeper Harry Lumley and coach King Clancy were signed to new contracts.

Royals, Ottawa Will Meet In Semi-Finals

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It's Montreal Royals and Ottawa Senators in the first game of the Quebec Hockey League semi-final playoffs in Montreal Tuesday.

The Senators ousted Valleyfield Braves 3-1 Saturday in the final game of their best-of-seven quarter-finals. Montreal has been standing by since last week following a 4-1 sweep of their best-of-seven quarter-finals against Shawinigan Saints.

At Ottawa, veteran Leo Gravelle, who had a brief whirl with Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League, paced his team's attack with two goals. Howard Riopelle also scored for Ottawa, breaking a 1-1 deadlock caused by Jean-Paul Bisaillon's first - period counter.

Sunday at Quebec, the hometown Aces edged Chicoutimi Saguenays 4-3 in an overtime to move into a 4-2 games lead in the best-of-nine semi-finals.

Adam Brown scored the clincher for Quebec near the three-minute mark of the first overtime period. Larry Regan's early third-period goal, two minutes of the game, pulled Aces into a 3-3 tie. Gerry Cabana got the other Quebec goal, while Jacques Locas scored twice and Jimmy Moore one for the losers.

Hockey Loss In Hamilton Said $70,000

HAMILTON (CP)—Ken Soble, owner of the Hamilton Forum, says he doesn't know whether Hamilton Cubs will be operating in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series next season.

Soble said Saturday night the Forum's loss from senior, junior and minor hockey in the last season in Canada's big league was more than $70,000.

"I thought I had the solution by offering to withdraw from the senior league and send the Tigers to Europe next year to represent Canada in the world championships. It looks like that is out.

"We've got about 1,100 solid senior fans who turn out for every game. On the other hand, the juniors drew only a few hundred fans a game early in the season. The crowds were good in the playoffs but will they turn out next year?"

Clippers Oust Lyndhursts 3-0

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto East York, Lyndhurst representatives at the world hockey championships this year, were eliminated from the Ontario Hockey Association Senior B playoffs Saturday when they were beaten 4-3 by Stouffville Clippers.

East Yorks lost the best-of-five series in three straight games. They lost to Russia in the last game of the world championships.

Teepees Eliminate St. Michaels 5-4 In Sensational Junior 'A' Comeback

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ontario's Junior A hockey playoffs were down to the finals today and fans couldn't help but wonder how much fire there is left in St. Catharines TeePees.

The Teeps pulled off the greatest, and toughest, comeback in the Ontario Hockey Association this year with a 5-4 victory over Toronto St. Michael's Majors in Toronto Sunday. The win, before a record 14,601 fans, sent TeePees into the finals against Toronto Marlboros but it left them tired.

TeePees were favored to take the Majors be-fore the series started. But it went eight games.

Marlies, on the other hand, moved into the finals Saturday with a 3-0 win over Hamilton Cubs. They won the best-of-five series 3-0, with one game tied. TeePees and Marlboros will know how they stack up against each other when they meet in the first game for the league championship in St. Catharines Wednesday. The second game of the best-of-seven series is scheduled for Toronto Saturday night.

WIN IN THIRD

At Toronto, the TeePees, down 3-1 in the series in the third, climaxed a great comeback by scoring two goals in the third period. It gave them the series 4-3, with one game tied.

St. Catharines took a 3-2 lead in the first period but the Irish tied the score in the second and went ahead 4-3 in the third. Ches Worchol scored once in the third period and set up Jack Armstrong for the winning goal.

Brian Cullen also added two goals for the winners. Don McLean tallied the other. Jim Logan, Brian Anderson, Paul Knox and Dick Duff scored for the Majors.

The Majors got off to a bad start at the beginning of the game and the TeePees were in front 2-0 before it was five minutes old. Two of the three St. Catharines goals were scored on shots that deflected off Toronto defencemen.

Worchol, bought from Oshawa Generals last year, pulled the payoff when he carried the puck into the Toronto defence and fed a pass to Armstrong.

At Hamilton, Marlboros had things easy and scored in every period for the victory. Bob Baun, Bill Harris and Wally Maxwell were the marksmen.

Dunnos started Marlies off at 10:47 of the first period on a play with Dave Reid. Harris got his in the second and Maxwell closed it off with a goal in the third.

Mercs Whip Wolves in Rough Game To Even Allan Cup Series at 2-All

OWEN SOUND (CP)—The eastern Canada Allan Cup semi-final is now tossup again after Owen Sound Mercurys defeated Sudbury Wolves 3-1 in a rough game here Saturday night.

A record crowd of 2,272 fans saw plenty of action as Mercurys, defending cup champions, tied the best-of-seven series at 2-2 with their second straight victory over the Wolves.

It was a tough game from the start and before it was over 21 minor penalties were handed out. The Mercs took nine of them.

The fifth game will be played here tonight and the sixth is scheduled for Sudbury Wednesday. If a seventh is necessary, it will be played in Sudbury Thursday.

CLOSELY PLAYED

The teams played this one close and the Mercs didn't take the lead until 12:22 of the second period when Bill McGrath put them into a 1-0 edge by scoring on Jerry Reid's rebound on a shot by Ralph Hosking.

Both Forslund and Doug Mentiplay scored the other Owen Sound goals. Hub Beaudry tallied for Sudbury at 13:54 of the second session with Mercurys two men short.

Just after Mercurys were back at full strength, Forslund made it 2-1 when he was first uncovered and beat goalkeeper Al Millar on a play with Doug Sheddon and Ralph Hosking. Gillespie picked up a loose puck in the third, skated behind the Owen Sound goalmouth and decked Millar for the third Owen Sound goal.

Millar was called on to make 36 stops. Goaltender Bob Gibson handled 34 Sudbury shots.

The Mercurys showed signs of returning to the form that carried them to four straight wins over Stratford Indians in the Canadian Hockey Association Senior A final.

Edmonton Enters Junior Finals

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton Oil Kings entered the western Canada junior hockey finals Saturday night trouncing Flin Flon Bombers 6-2. They now meet either Port William Canadiens or St. Boniface Canadiens for the western title.

Ray Kinasewich paced Edmonton with three goals, bringing his total in the series to eight.

Y Swimmers Set Records

MONTREAL (CP)—Two young YMCA swimmers established Canadian records Saturday in the metropolitan open swim meet.

Gladys Priestley, 15 - year-old member of Canada's Olympic team, sped through the 440-yard free style junior event in five minutes and 56 seconds, shaving 10.2 seconds off the old time set by Irene Barr of Hamilton in 1940.

Lloyd Hibbing, 18-year-old McGill University student, raced through the 50-yard butterfly event in 27.7 seconds, knocking four seconds off the old record held by Peter Salmon of Victoria.

Letter To Sports Editor

More About Arena

We would like to add our support to what we believe will become a very controversial issue if the near future, renovate the old or build a new arena.

We have already read two very good articles in the Ontario Intelligencer -in favor of a new arena which has our whole hearted support, and now comes the answer from the arena chairman.

1. As elected representatives they must also be money minded, well seeing as some of that money is ours, we can only quote from our earlier learnings: "Penny Wise and Pound Foolish."

2. In fact if it had not been for last year's commission there would have been no hockey last winter. If the gentleman on the city council had minded his own business he wouldn't have been necessary.

Well let's face it, the present site, the lack of parking space, the size of the arena even with pool removed of new seats, dressing accommodation, all are inadequate.

We are not the type as a rule who try to keep up with the Smiths, but we do think Belleville and Peterborough have the right idea.

We would like the opportunity of taking our wives to the various events, and not have her look at you as if you've invited her to a beer garden.

We want a place big enough to be able to accommodate circus shows, ice follies, road-shows besides athletic shows, things for the whole family, not forgetting this city's growth we always be keeping in mind the growth of our fair city.

If a project such as this could be undertaken on the similar grounds as the new grandstand, with the federal and provincial governments coming in for a third, debentures could be asked on the rest, so what's the drawback, let's not throw good money after bad.

We would like to go on record as asking for a city ballot before one cent is used to renovate the old dilapidated arena.

Yours very truly,

Mrs. S. Garvin, R. Little, K. G. Spreckett, W. G. Philp, C. Jones, F. Jones, B. Valentine, R. W. Willis, Mrs. J. Rudd.

Sport in Brief

BABE TO RETIRE SOON

CARROLLTON, Ga.—(AP)—Babe Didrikson Zaharias says she will quit competitive golf after two more tournaments.

She made the announcement after finishing third in the annual Georgia women's open golf tournament Sunday.

"I'm through," she said, "after the next two tournaments, the New Orleans tournament and the Babe Zaharias open in Beaumont, Tex.

"No, I'm not just upset at falling down here," she added. "I mean it. I'm through. I'm tired, just simply worn out. I don't stand the cars of driving week after week like I used to."

She made no reference to her cancer operation more than a year ago.

She will be 30 June 26.

THISTLES UNBEATEN

TOKYO (AP)—Kenora Thistles wound up their goodwill hockey tour Saturday night with a 12-2 win over the all-Japan sextet at the Karakuen Ice Palace. It was the visitors' 10th straight victory against no defeats in their tour of Japan.

He is Lawrence (Lonnie) Winters, a six-foot, 230-pound, 26-year-old Negro player from Washington, D.C.

Winter, said Stukus, has never played a college or professional game in his life, but has played seven years in a semi-pro league in Washington.

Stukus described his eighth player to be signed as an offensive fullback, as "defensive linebacker, an end or tackle, a fair passer, a punter who averages 50 yards a kick, and as a kickoff specialist.

Lacrosse Is 'Dying Out' Says Delegate

TORONTO (CP)—Several delegates to the meeting of the Ontario Lacrosse Association held Saturday were anxious about the future of Canada's national sport.

"Lacrosse is dying out," said Rev. Arthur W. Hare of London, Guest speaker Merv McKenzie, Ontario athletics commissioner, said: "We will help you with equipment, but my suggestion is that a publicity committee should be set up to deal with pictures, information and publicity."

Eight amendments to the constitution were adopted, including a proposal that any senior team must pay $100 for every junior or minor player. Referees' fees also were raised to obtain better officials for junior teams.

All officers were elected by acclamation. Wallace Cattel of Dundas was chosen president, Sam Hewitt, Orillia, first vice-president and Charles W. Rowan of Hamilton treasurer. Other executive members include James Brock, Sarnia and William Curran, Orillia.

Brantford Back In Rugby Fold

TORONTO (CP) —The Ontario Rugby Football Union has agreed to re-admit Brantford Redskins to the league for the 1954 season on conditions they post a $5,000 bond.

Previously league teams had to post a bond of only $500. But officials agreed Brantford should be asked to post a $5,000 bond as protection against the possibility that the club might withdraw in mid-season.

Last season the Redskins failed to win a game in the 10-game schedule.

Ernie Churchhouse, president of the Brantford club, and Frank Gnup, Redskin coach, took strong exception to the league's move.

"You either accept up or kick us out," Churchhouse said. "Last year you were glad to have us, but this year you want to throw obstacles in our path."

Gnup said "This is a cutthroat league; everyone is looking out for himself."

Other teams in the league are Kitchener, Sarnia and Toronto Balmy Beach.

St. Boniface Ties With Forts 2-2

FORT WILLIAM (CP)—St. Boniface Canadiens kept their best-of-seven Memorial Cup western semi-final hockey series alive Sunday holding Fort William Canadiens to a 2-2 overtime tie.

St. Boniface, trailing 1-0 at the end of the second period, rallied to tie the score in the third and then took a 2-1 lead with four minutes left to play. Fort William tied it up in the last minute of the period after pulling their goalie on a goal by Walt Bradley.

CRITICISM FROM INSIDE ISRAEL

Menachem Begin, M.P., leader of the Herut (extreme right opposition) party in Israel, addresses a crowd of some five thousand in Tel Aviv. He criticized the government for its silent stand in connection with the Arab ambush attack on an Israeli bus recently. The Jordan government this week charged 200 Israelis attacked a village three miles inside Jordan killing nine Arabs, including three soldiers. The Jordan communique said the attack occurred at Nahaleen in the area below Hebron and compared it to an attempt similar to that fail when Israelis reportedly shot and killed scores of Arabs in the village of Kibya. The frontier between Israel and Jordan has been especially tense in the past three weeks following the attack on the Israeli bus, in which eleven Jews were killed. (Central Press Canadian).

Form New International Golf Body

MONTREAL (CP) — Formation of the International Golf Association, a non-profit organization, was announced Sunday by John Jay Hopkins, American and Canadian industrialist and golf enthusiast.

The announcement said the new organization is dedicated to furthering international goodwill between Canada and the free countries of the world. In conjunction with the Professional Golfers Association of America and the Canadian Professional Golfers Association, the IGA will co-sponsor two annual matches inaugurated by Hopkins within the last two years.

They are the Hopkins Trophy matches between Canadian and U.S. PGA teams, to be played in Toronto this year in June, and the world-country two - man team matches for the Canada Cup, scheduled this year for Montreal in August.

Brockville Girls Win Cage Crown

MONTREAL (CP)—Brockville Police Athletic Association Saturday night won the intermediate ladies basketball championship of the Quebec conference and the Ottawa Valley 53-52, although they dropped the second game of a total-points series to Verdun Beavers 54-44.

A rally by the Beavers in the last half fell one point short of tying the series. Brockville won the opening game a week earlier 39-34.

The Beavers trailed Saturday's game 28-23 going into the second half They battled back to lead 39-35 at the end of the third quarter but could add only one more point to their margin in the last quarter.

Marilyn Kirkman paced Verdun with 24 points Joan Potvin and Phil McGlashan each netted seven.

Allen Jamieson was top for the visitors with 14 points, followed by Joan Clow with 10.

Brockville netted 20 points from the foul line, compared with eight by the Beavers.

LEAFS GET INFIELDER

PONCHATOULA, La. (AP)—Baltimore Orioles parcel their squad to 34 players Saturday, optioning outfielder Bob Balcena to Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League.

Manager Jimmy Dukes said he has been impressed with Balcena's defensive play but Dykes has so many outfielders that the fleet Californian had to go. Balcena is subject to recall.

ESKS SIGN VETERAN END

EDMONTON (CP)—Signing of giant Kansas end Rollin Prather for his fifth season with Edmonton Eskimos was announced Saturday by the Western Interprovincial Football Union club.

Prather was lost to Eskimos last season when he suffered a dislocated elbow in the first game of the schedule.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The main purpose of your responding jump is to tell your bridge partner there is a game in your pair. Since this is so, what are the tricks promised by your immediate jump?

It stands to reason you should not insist on going game unless your pair is assured enough tricks. So, your jump says: "Partner, with what you have shown I have enough to help make a game."

What would be enough? A total of 11 tricks in your pair if it ends in a minor suit (clubs or diamonds), ten tricks in a major suit (hearts or spades), nine tricks at no-trump.

When your partner opens with a bid of one you must assume he can take five tricks. Add the tricks in your own hand. Up to then you will know the total number of tricks in your pair.

If your jump is an assist in a major, you need the other five tricks. If your jump is an assist in a minor, you need the other six tricks. If your jump is a takeout in anything you need six tricks.

Even if your jump takeout is to a new major suit you need the other six tricks. Why? The trump suit has not been decided and your jump may wind up in a minor suit.

What if your jump is to no-trump? You promise five high card no-trump tricks, on their equivalent. Because the opener of one in a suit promises four high card tricks and ten tricks.

South opens with a heart when you hold this north hand:

♠A K 7 5
♦A 6 5 3
♣J 7 6 3

Should you jump to two spades? Certainly not. Your count is only five. Your trump is not decided. You need 11 tricks.

Why is it important to have enough tricks when your pair finds success? Because your partner with slightly more than his opening allowed may bid game or slam for a slam before you can stop him.

Don't get so reckless with what you lack.

COLLEGE CLOSED

EDMUNDSTON, N.B. (CP)—St. Louis College here was closed Sunday because of fire being announced. The superior, Rev. Robert Bernier, declined to make a statement. Dr. Euclide Hioux, a public health officer, said there were a few isolated cases of scarlet fever at the institution. He added, however, that this was not the reason he had been given for temporarily closing the Roman Catholic college, attended by 450 male students.

U.K. to Import More Newsprint

LONDON (CP) — F. P. Bishop, general manager of the Newsprint Supply Company, has said he has been authorized by the government to purchase an additional 50,000 tons of Canadian newsprint in 1955.

Bishop said this purchase would be in addition to the extra 50,000 tons ordered for the second half of 1954.

The new government move may lead to an end of newsprint rationing in Britain. The Times, however, cautions that this will depend on the future level of imports.

"The government are unable to commit themselves beyond the end of 1955, owing to the uncertainties of the present international situation, but the level of imports for 1956 will probably be decided in the autumn of 1955," says the Times.

For some time, British newspapers have urged the government to import an additional 50,000 tons of newsprint — not less than half of it from Canada — in 1955. This would make it possible to reconsider ending rationing and control next year. After today's report, the prospects for future freedom appear to depend on whether $0,000 tons can be found in the world Scandinavia and from home mills. British paper-and-duty experts say average between six and 12 pages.

Toscanini Retires After 65 Years As Music Maestro

NEW YORK (AP)—Arturo Toscanini, whose name means the finest in music to millions, has retired as conductor of the NBC symphony orchestra.

The 87-year-old maestro left his post quietly and without making a special occasion of his last concert, an all-Wagner program in Carnegie Hall Sunday.

NBC said he planned to leave the United States in May or June for a visit to his native Italy. It was understood he has no arrangements for future concerts.

Official word of his retirement was withheld until after the final broadcast. NBC said this was out of Toscanini's request to avoid a sentimental demonstration by the audience or orchestra, formed 17 years ago especially for him.

Without turning to the audience or a nod to anyone, Toscanini left the podium as soon as the last note of the concert's final number died.

He refused to return to the stage, despite lengthy cheering and applause by the audience.

Through most of the hour-and-a-quarter broadcast program, Toscanini conducted with his usual vigor.

In the last number, however, he quieted noticeably and allowed the music to slide along with no more than a mechanical beat.

RELEASES LETTER

David Sarnoff, chairman of the board of RCA and NBC, released the following statement: He told him "she sad time has come when I must reluctantly lay aside my baton and say goodby to my orchestra."

Toscanini's letter reminisced about the orchestra's beginnings 17 years ago. You will remember, he wrote, "how reluctant I was to accept the invitation because I felt at that time I was too old to start a new venture."

To Sarnoff he left the task of relaying his "cordial and sincere thanks" to his listeners and his orchestra.

ROBBED IN DAYLIGHT OF $3,000 PAYROLL

Gaspard Martel, paper mill employee, was robbed of $3,000 after being hit over the head with the butt of a pistol in a public bus in Cornwall, Ont. Martel was carrying money for his fellow-employees' envelopes during their noon lunch recess. Police arrested three men and said they had recovered an amount in excess of $3,000.—Central Press Canadian.

British Film Star Posed Nude From Waist Up

LONDON (AP) —Buxom red-headed Simone Silva of British films says she posed nude from the waist up for a photo with Hollywood's Rocky Mitchum last week because she needs the publicity.

"Look what that nude calendar pose did for Marilyn Monroe," said the dazzling-eyed 20-year-old whose movie parts up to now have been mainly confined to supporting roles—"They always cast me as a bad girl."

The incident occurred at a picnic held in connection with the annual film festival in Cannes, France.

There were reports that Mitchum, taken by surprise, was somewhat put out. There were further reports that festival officials had asked Simone to take her 37-inch bust elsewhere.

That was denied.

Miss Silva's picnic costume was a gross skirt with a scant top.

The photographers got down on their knees to plead with me to take the top off," she said reporters Sunday upon her return from France.

"As far as sex is box office and I keep my figure, I'm out to be the greatest thing in sex."

"So I took off the scarf."

In the mad scramble which followed, Miss Silva said, three photographers fell into the Mediterranean. She twisted her ankle and a fifth emerged with a fractured elbow.

She said she held her hands over her chest for the pose with Mitchum.

NATO Forces Twice as Large As in 1951

OTTAWA (CP)—NATO forces in Europe are twice as large and more than twice as effective as in 1951, Prime Minister St. Laurent said Sunday night.

"This pooling of defensive resources is unprecedented in peacetime," the prime minister said in a broadcast on the fifth anniversary of the signing of the North Atlantic Treaty. "We can be proud of the real progress demonstrated by this co-operative movement."

Mr. St.-Laurent, recognized as one of the chief architects of NATO, spoke in an anniversary broadcast over the trans-Canada network of the Chin Armed Affairs Minister Pearson and Defence Minister Claxton also recorded talks for broadcast on the same program.

Canada's permanent representative to the North Atlantic Council, L. Dana Wilgress, spoke on an earlier broadcast.

Fred Rose's Wife And Daughter Go to Join Him

MONTREAL (CP)—The Herald says today in a newspaper story it has learned the wife and 17-year-old daughter of convicted Communist spy Fred Rose, have gone behind the Iron Curtain.

Rose left for Czechoslovakia last October and never returned.

The story says Mrs. Rose and her daughter, Laura, left by plane from an east coast port following a farewell party given here by friends. No dates were mentioned but it was understood the Roses would be united "shortly."

DOESN'T HAVE TO STAY

An RCMP spokesman is quoted as saying:

"We are not concerned with forcing anybody to stay in the country if they don't want to stay."

The story says it is not definite whether the Roses will return to Canada or not.

Rose, a former member of the Communist, was released from St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary in 1951 after serving most of a six-year term for complicity in a Soviet spy ring exposed in 1945 by Russian cipher clerk Igor Gouzenko.

In Parliament he represented the Montreal-Cartier riding as a member of the Labor - Progressive (Communist) party.

Could Make God Himself Say Whatever We Wanted Him To Boast of Red Brain-Washers

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — "If God himself was sitting in that chair we could make Him say what we wanted him to say."

When a Communist interrogator made that boast to Robert A. Vogeler he was describing one of the Communist world's most mysterious and terrifying weapons. It's called brain-washing.

Brain - washing is the means whereby a man is forced to admit an act he did not commit, in another aspect it's a method by which the mind is washed as if it were a blackboard slate and on the new blankness is inscribed whatever the Communists choose to write there. It destroys the will, under reason, banishes hope.

Brain-washing made Vogeler, an American business man, "confess" to acts of espionage in Hungary which he never committed and led to his serving 17 months of a 15-year sentence before he was freed.

The strong, brilliant mind of Hungarian Cardinal Mindszenty could not withstand the endless, concentrated attack of Communist inquisitors. He, too, "confessed." The charge: Treason. The sentence: life imprisonment.

Many prisoners in Korea could not resist endless hours of mass line corps court in Washington inquired into the brain - warfare "confession" of Col. Frank H. Schwable. The cases of these service men were "introduced" to Communist captors are pending. The question of whether these men should be court-martialled is a matter of concern to the armed services.

TECHNIQUES KEPT SECRET

Western man measures his concepts of good and evil, strength and weakness by the standard of the individual. He is unprepared for barbarians who bring ultra modern psychological insights to work the results of the medieval rack and wheel upon its victims. It makes one ask:

How would I stand up under brain - washing? What is man's breaking point?

Much the answer depends, of course, on the nature of the torture. The Reds keep their techniques a closely guarded secret. It appears, however, that they've tried nearly everything.

Bela Fabian, Hungarian Jewish leader, says Cardinal Mindszenty first was questioned for 32 hours without rest. He was not beaten. Fabian wrote in his book, "Cardinal Mindszenty," that he was forced to stand upright all that time while inquisitors remorselessly fired questions. His first collapse came when intimate friends were brought before him crying and covered with their own blood.

In his book "Brain-Washing in Red China," Edward Hunter describes how the Communists there are constantly engaged in psychology and perverted evangelism to make the Chinese impervious to all but the "Communist party line."

SOME HELD OUT

In Korea a variety of techniques were tried on prisoners of war. Returned prisoners have told of such acts as these:

Confinement to a cage in which a man can neither sit, stand nor lie down; being forced to kneel in a corner of a cave with hands tied behind one for 48 hours; beatings with rifle butts; walking around and around an enclosure for five days and nights without halting; living in one's own filth.

Other returned prisoners have said that the most nerve-wracking is "psychological" torture. One prisoner was taken for midnight walks and forced to dig his own grave on three occasions in an effort to get a "confession."

Yet some did hold out. Was it because they were not tortured as severely? Is it because they were stronger?

"Everyone has a breaking point," says Dr. Joseph G. Sutton, superintendent of Essex Mental Hospital in Cedar Grove, N.J.

RELIGION HELPS

"I believe a person with strong religious beliefs has something that will sustain him longer than a person who has not. Someone who has a cause far bigger than himself undoubtedly will not break as soon as one who lacks it."

Sutton says one who has had to struggle for survival and had "hard times" probably will stand up better under stress than one to whom everything has come easily.

The type of physical courage that makes one brave in battle does not serve him when he is alone and in darkness. "When he's alone, the group is physically removed from him, the incentive goes and his strength is sapped."

COLUMNIST DIES

WOOSTER, O. (AP) — Leigh Hodges, 77, author and radio columnist for the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin, died Sunday of Hodges' weekly column, "The Optimist," first published in 1902, is described as the longest running column in the United States. He was one of four persons who launched the sale of Christmas seals, first as a benefit for the American Red Cross, and later for the National Tuberculosis Foundation.

WAITS FOR MAYOR

Mrs. Margaret Laverock, 22-year-old mother of four children, and expecting a fifth, waits outside the office of Toronto's Mayor Lamport, to discuss her housing problems. She waited ten hours the first day and returned the second day when the mayor was too busy to see her. She said her family was forced out of their two-room apartment when they were no longer able to pay the rent they can afford. (CP Photo.)

Gigantic Stocks of Butter, Dairy Products Worry U.S.

By DON WHITEHEAD

HANVARD, Ill. (AP) — Two hard words, butter and too much politics.

That's the story you here these days across the midwestern United States farm belt. Democrats and Republicans are major factors in stormy arguments over what to do about the huge surpluses of surplus farm products which the U.S. government owns or is obligated to buy.

Butter is the current bad boy of the farmland just as potatoes were a few years ago. American taxpayers then lost $300,000,000 on the potato program. Butter is piling up in refrigeration plants now at the incredible rate of 1,000,000 pounds a day. Now more than 270,000,000 pounds of the stuff is in storage.

BUTTER PERISHABLE

The spotlight is on butter because it's a perishable commodity. There will be more and more butter—if it isn't eased into the market gradually.

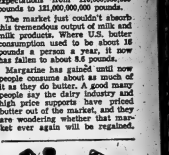
It's a problem a lot of people would like to forget. But you can't forget 270,000,000 pounds of butter, or 262,000,000 of cheddar cheese, or 470,000,000 pounds of dried milk, or the other tons of food and fibre piled if storage.

President Eisenhower and Agriculture Secretary Ezra Benson have promised to do right by convince farmers that their best interests lie in a flexible price support system rather than the present guarantees of 90 per cent of parity on basic commodities. Parity is a standard for measuring farm prices established by law to give to farmers in terms of prices they pay.

On the political side, cries are raised that the Republican administration is trying to choke the farm throat in the farm belt. There are denials, of course, and support for the Eisenhower-Benson plan. But these voices seem to be less demanding than those on the other side.

Benson slashed price supports on dairy products, effective April 1, from 90 to 75 per cent of parity. This has brought a drop in the retail cost of butter of up to 18 cents a pound, with a resultant drop in price for cheddar cheese and dried milk.

BENSON'S WARNED THEM



The dairy people had fair warning. A year ago Benson told them the situation was becoming intolerable. They promised to police the situation themselves if Benson wouldn't take drastic action at that time. But the dairy people failed to put its own house in order—so Benson lowered the boom.

The butter, tens-of thousands of pounds of it, is stored principally in cold-storage plants in Chicago, Minneapolis and St. Louis. It's kept in 60-pound cartons at temperatures ranging from 0 to 30 degrees below zero. There seems no immediate danger of the huge stockpile becoming rancid.

But the butter problem actually is only a by-product of the fluid milk problem. Fluid milk production jumped last year beyond all expectations from 116,000,000,000 pounds to 121,000,000,000 pounds.

The market just couldn't absorb this tremendous output of milk and milk products. Where U.S. butter consumption used to be about 16 pounds a person a year, it now has fallen to about 8.6 pounds.

Margarine has gained until now people consume about as much of it as they do butter. A good many people say the dairy industry and high price supports have priced butter out of the market, and they are predicting whether that market ever again will be regained.

Newfoundland Paper Celebrates 75th Birthday

By STEWART MacLEOD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — The Newfoundland's oldest daily newspaper The Evening Telegram, celebrates its 75th birthday today with a 60-page supplement edition. It is believed to be Canada's oldest family-founded and operated newspaper.

Founded by the late W. J. Herder a country boy from nearby Bonavista, the Telegram has had a colorful history since the first eight copies of the four-page edition rolled off the presses daily after the type was hand-set by the publisher and his 19 helpers.

Today, the politically - vigorous Herder, 77, author and W. H. Herder and J. M. Herder, sons of the founder, and their nephew, H. G. Herder, goes to some 19,000 homes through Newfoundland.

Editorials stem from the typewriter of C. E. A. Jeffrey since 1928 take stands on most provincial issues, fighting for social and economic improvements. It is Newfoundland's paper.

APPRENTICED AT 11

The paper's founder was 14 when he started his apprenticeship as a printer with the old weekly Courier, but in 16 years he had bought out the weekly, changed the name to Evening Telegram, and come out with the four-page daily. Those were the days when the publisher directed operations, answered letters, gathered news and worked in the composing and printing rooms.

When Marconi received the first transatlantic wireless message here in 1901, one of the six men in the little hill-top shack was a Telegram reporter who later informed the rest of history-making incident. Twenty years later president Herder was one of the first Newfoundlanders to hear a wireless telephone from ship to shore.

Mayors Challenged

MEDICINE HAT, Alta. (CP)—Mayor Harry Veiner has challenged other mayors in the Commonwealth to a special 100-yard dash to be run at Medicine Hat's pire Games in Vancouver this summer.

Mayor Veiner, an athlete in his younger years, claims the western inaugurally title for foot racing on ice, a sport a specialty he developed during the last two winters. Mayor Veiner said Sunday he issued the challenge to help publicize the games and to try to draw mayors from other Commonwealth cities to Vancouver.

How Many Wives Should a Man Be Allowed Under Debate in Singapore

By WARREN WHITE

SINGAPORE (Reuters) — How many wives should a man be allowed to have?

Should girls be given in marriage before they are even born?

Should a man be able to divorce his wife simply by sending her back to her parents?

These are some of the questions being debated by the multi-racial public of this British colony.

British colonial law carefully evades such issues, which could conflict with ancient Chinese and Moslem customs and Hindu caste laws.

The subjects of controversy, the Chinese, Malay and Indian women, have shown themselves sharply divided about suggested legislation to define their status.

It is customary among Chinese in Singapore for men to take as many wives as they please.

Moslems are loosely bound by custom to a maximum of four wives at one time.

When the Singapore Women's Council proposed a "one man, one wife" bill, the newspaper Free Press came out with a headline reading "Hands Off Our Husbands' Chinatown Wives."

Miss Lucy Tan, a journalist, said: "Polygamy is natural. What would be forbidden by law could be achieved by stealth."

A bill to be introduced in the Singapore legislative council soon aims at making 16 the minimum age for marriage.

It is not uncommon here for Chinese, Indian and Malay girls to be married even before they reach puberty. More rare in modern Singapore, but also not uncommon, are arrangements between families for girls to be betrothed even before they are born.

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least nine persons died in accidents in eastern Canada during the week-end. Five died in fires and four in traffic accidents.

A Canadian Press count today showed Ontario had seven deaths and New Brunswick and Nova Scotia one each.

At Galt, three small children and their 12-year-old baby sitter died when flames swept a second-storey apartment. Killed were three children of Pte. and Mrs. Richard Dolson — Ricky, eight months, Mary, 3 and; Bobby 4— and Nancy Wylie.

Zeke Loses Out to Zolf

DETROIT (AP)—Zeke Zzzpt—all 15 of him—has lost his title to Zolf Zzzpt—both of him.

Confusing? Then let us explain.

Gillies of Creemore died when he fell from his car after it collided with another.

Four years now Zeke Zzzpt has gone unchallenged for the honor of having the last of nearly 800,000 listings in the Detroit, telephone directory.

Then all of a sudden, along comes Zolf Zzzpt in the final line on the final page of the 1,676-page 1954 directory.

With names like those, the natural question was: "Any relation?"

A call to Zeke discloses that 15 men in a rooming house—none of them named either Zeke or Zzzpt—had adopted the alias long ago merely for the honor of the final listing.

A call to Zolf disclosed a similar situation. He turned out to be—of all names—Robert Smith, plus Jerry Greuel. Those two men also wanted the honor of bringing up the rear, so combined under an alias to get it—at least until the 1955 directory comes out.

Reds Expected To Protest S. Korea Foray

PANMUNJON (AP) — The Communists are expected to protest officially Tuesday against a five-man South Korean foray into the Korean neutral zone Saturday night in which Red guards killed one man and wounded another.

Red China's Peiping radio termed the skirmish a serious violation of the armistice.

The Communists asked a full-dress meeting of the joint military armistice commission Tuesday afternoon. A United Nations command spokesman said the Reds probably will bring up the incident.

The Communists charged that five men crossed into the Red sector of the neutral zone Saturday night near Panmunjon and fired on Red guards.

The armistice agreement permits both sides to police their halves of the zone, which is about 2½ miles wide.

There have been previous minor incidents in the zone but this is the first reported instance where Allied personnel were killed.

ALL SOUTH KOREANS

United States officers said all five allied men in the skirmish were South Koreans.

The Reds still hold the South Koreas they captured.

Peiping radio broadcast the story first and the UN command confirmed it.

The Reds said the five South Koreans opened fire after refusing to answer a challenge.

They said Communist police answered the fire and three members the Allied group fled.

Russia Unlikely To Risk War Against U.S. Atomic Might

Eisenhower Makes Plea For Sober Facing of Facts

By ED CREAGH

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower has told the American people will remain free world that Russia is unlikely to risk war as long as the United States stands ready to strike back swiftly with all its atomic might.

However, he says, Americans must prepare "very coldly and very carefully" against the danger that power-loving men in the Kremlin might "in a fit of madness" plunge the world into a hydrogen bomb holocaust.

Eisenhower went on all radio and television networks Monday night in a ballyhoo plea for a sober facing of the atomic facts of life, and a fervent warning to the people not to "litter" and hysteria over communism, investigations of communism or the threat of depression.

NO NEED FOR HYSTERIA

Of course there are risks, but we do not have to be hysterical. We can be vigilant. We can be Americans. . . . It is up to us to lead this world to a peaceful and secure existence—or the whole world we can do it."

In a plain effort to soothe some of the controversies boiling at home, and to quiet disquiet now apparent abroad, Eisenhower said the FBI — rather than congressional investigators — is the country's "great bulwark" against Communist infiltration, and he put in a strong plug for the radio-TV report which Attorney General Herbert Brownell will deliver on that subject Friday night.

He said "very few offenses" can be committed against innocent persons by "excesses having been committed by congressional membership, though he voiced his confidence that in the long run public opinion "will straighten this matter out wherever and whenever there is real violence done to our people."

And while Communists in the U.S. were dangerous, their number was "infinitesimal" often exaggerated.

On another home-front topic, he said unemployment "happily shows every sign of levelling off." The government was ready to undertake anything necessary to prevent a depression, he said, but did not indicate when the committee will meet.

UNUSUAL DIFFICULTIES

"Progress has been made in the last few weeks and the whole situation will clearly itself for the committee and others within the next two weeks," Mr. Frost said. He added:

"The investigation has really been a tremendous affair, full of the most unusual difficulties. It has involved irregularities in engineering date. . . .

The management consultant firm of J. D. Woods, Gordon and Company Limited of Toronto was called in earlier by the provincial auditor to make a complete investigation.

EAST GERMANY JAILS SIX

BERLIN (AP)—Seven East Germans have been sentenced to prison by a Communist court on charges of spying for the West. The Communist press reported Monday that the terms, given Friday, employed trains moving between East Germany and the Soviet Union, were from 2 to 3 years.

Others got up to three years.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: Temperatures climbed during the night throughout southern Ontario as warmer air moved up the Mississippi valley and across the lower Great Lakes. Cold Arctic air covers northern sections of the province and is creeping slowly southward. However, the warm air has spread over southern Ontario today and Wednesday.

PEACETIME SPYING WILL BRING 14 YEARS IN PRISON

Death Penalty Remains For Other Types Treason

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons has voted to a maximum sentence of 14 years in prison, instead of death, for peacetime spying in Canada.

Death will remain the maximum penalty for other types of treason, in peace or war.

Members Monday agreed to the lessened penalty for spying during the debate on changes proposed by the government in the revised Criminal Code now before Parliament.

The amendment was opposed by Progressive Conservatives. However, a motion by Davie Fulton (PC—Kamloops) to retain the maximum penalty for spying in peacetime was defeated 35 to 18.

Mr. Fulton said bettering of secrets to a foreign power always is treason. The courts should be allowed to make the sentence conform with the seriousness of the offence, whether it be a prison term—at their discretion.

The revised Criminal Code defining treason complements the Official Secrets Act by including matters affecting a country or military or scientific information affecting safety of Canada's safety or defence.

GOVERNMENT CONCERNED

Justice Minister Garson said the government is deeply concerned about the appropriate punishment for treason.

The change in the penalty for peacetime spying was recommended by a committee of the Canadian Bar Association. It proposed the death penalty it would be one of the few countries to do so.

The revised Criminal Code retains the mandatory death sentence, in peace or war, for:

1. Killing, attempting to kill, or injuring the Queen.

2. Starting or preparing a war against Canada.

3. Assisting either an enemy at war with Canada, or any armed force fighting Canadians, whether or not a state of war exists.

4. Giving intent that in war time, the maximum death penalty for spying would apply even though secret information was passed to a country not at war with Canada, provided no guarantee that the information would not eventually reach the hands of an enemy.

Wallace Nesbitt (PC — Oxford) said the maximum penalty provided for peacetime spying showed an unrealistic attitude to present conditions.

Although Canada was not at war with Russia, there was a war being waged and pressure that has been put on by Communists and fellow travellers," he said.

Vietminh Assault Slackens But French Expect Renewal

By LARRY ALLEN

HANOI, Indo-China (AP) — The French high command announced today that the Vietminh in their fanatical assault at the battered defences of Dien Bien Phu during the last 24 hours.

A French communique early today said Monday night was "relatively calm" at the northwest Indo-China base where the Communist-led rebel infantry last Tuesday launched its second major attempt to take the fortress.

But the French Union forces behind the fortified-wire barricades and bunkered defences of the fortress broke themselves for renewed assaults.

French planes ranged throughout the night against the feeder-coolie lines bringing in reinforcements for the Vietminh attack from Red China to the north.

Thousand-pounders and delayed-action bombs were strewn along the road and railway trails over which the vast army of coolies are carrying war supplies to the Communists supporting the low hills surrounding Dien Bien Phu.

In contrast to this primitive, straggling supply line, the French were bolstered during the night by a flow of supplies and ammunition parachuted to them from U.S.-supplied transport planes.

Despite the reported slackening of enemy ground activity the French kept a very close eye on the northwest corner of the fortress area, where the fiercest of the rebel "human sea" assaults have struck recently. The French said more than 1,000 were killed in Monday's repeated efforts to take the defence point.

As usual, there was no announcement of French casualties.

The French said they believe the enemy concentrated on the key point to attract all attention there while preparing for new assaults at other points.

It is a huge and violent race against time for the Vietminh, who by the objective of my first budget (two years ago) was to rectify and strengthen our balance of payments."

"This was done," he said amid cheers from Conservative MPs.

He said the task of his 1952 budget, which had been to continue to fortify trade and seize every opportunity to develop production-at home.

Butler outlined Britain's steadily increasing, the precarious position of two and three years ago and said "last year industrial production reached heights never before recorded in our industrial history."

EXPORTS HIGHER

Butler said Britain's exports by the end of 1953 were 18 per cent higher in volume than a year before.

He traced the nation's recovery to sound internal measures and "the courageous, unpopular and unpopular measures" taken during the 1951 "crisis."

Butler then wrote a carefully guarded manuscript which he carried to the House in the battered old dispatch case dating back to Gladstone's day. Many Conservative MPs were flip loppers, once the customary headdress on budget day.

COMPLACENCY

Butler said Britain cannot afford to be complacent about her trade surplus because industrial production, contending the rate "is far too often below that of our overseas competitors."

Britain's level of industrial investment, he said, is "still too low."

Butler said: "We have before us the picture of a budget broadly in balance. It seems right to drive virtual equilibrium in the year that lies ahead."

On the basis of existing taxation, he said the budget should yield £4,537,000,000 (12,703,600,000) and spend £4,523,000,000, allowing a "small surplus" of £14,000,000 ($39,200,000).

He said defence costs without United States aid are estimated at £1,440,000,000 or roughly the same as last year.

LOWER TAX AID

He said American aid is expected to total only £245,000,000 against with £140,000,000 last year.

Amid cheers, Butler said "during the coming year we must see to it that there is definite relief from the defence burden." Britain's defence commitments are the "crushing whole stain" on the nation's trade position.

Dulles Seeks to Form Group For United Indo-China Action

WASHINGTON (AP)—The state department reported today that Secretary Dulles has consulted on the southeast Asian crisis with diplomatic representatives of six friendly nations during the last few days.

Authoritative indications are that the United States government is seeking the formation of some kind of regional grouping to counter the Communist threat to the area and to underwrite united action specifically in the Indo-China war.

Washington and London are colocided with Paris dispatches which quoted French foreign ministry sources as saying that the conference proposed that Britain, France, Australia and New Zealand join next the U.S. in a strong warning to "communist aggressors" in that area.

In Washington, officials privately displayed little enthusiasm for the idea of a joint declaration or new warning to the Chinese Communists in terms from open international conference in Indo-China.

The U.S. is, however, understood to be urgently interested in some kind of plan for what Dulles has called "collective action" in southeast Asia.

Earlier, Representative Albert Morano (Rep., Conn.) called on the administration to serve notice that the United States will not take part in th April 26 Geneva conference on Korea if there has been clearly established that Red China is not engaged in aggression in Indo-China.

Morano, a member of the House of Representatives foreign affairs committee, said in a statement he is "not convinced that we are a result of State Secretary Dulles' statement Monday that the United States is interested in a "swift close" to direct aggression in Indo-China.

Members of the foreign affairs committee seemed worried over a statement that the United States soon may have to make a choice between direct intervention or in Indo-China and possible loss of Southeast Asia to communism.

Two-Man Race in Prospect For Ont. Liberal Leadership

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario Liberals, led by a different man in each of the last four provincial elections, meet in Toronto Thursday and Friday to make another leadership choice before there is another test at the polls.

Barring a possible late starters, the 900 voting delegates will choose between two of the party's seven members of provincial cabinet—Quinlar Oliver and Albert Wren.

Mr. Oliver, who led the party for two years and has been Toronto leader in the legislature since 1952 and Mr. Wren are the only persons formally announced candidates. There has been speculation that Eric Taylor Toronto, noted as a conciliator in labor disputes, might enter the race but in his one public statement on the matter he indicated he would not be a candidate.

The convention opens Thursday with the annual meeting of the Ontario Liberal Association. Leadership candidates will be nominated and make their speeches at the afternoon session. Health Minister Martin will speak at a Thursday night dinner.

Friday the meeting tackles policy in the morning and votes on the leadership in the afternoon.

ELECTED AT 22

Mr. Oliver was elected party leader at a convention May 16, 1947, and he resigned two years later following the 1948 provincial election in which the Liberals won 13 of the 90 legislature seats.

Now 50, Mr. Oliver first entered politics at the age of 22 when he was elected in Grey South as a United Farmers of Ontario candidate. He was a farmer in the legislature ever since, capturing his constituency in six more elections. He

No Set Answer to Question Should Doctor Tell Patient He Has Cancer

By FRANK CAREY

CHICAGO (AP) — Should a doctor tell a patient if he has cancer?

A small group of doctors, interviewed separately and at random on the annual meeting of the American College of Physicians, agreed there is "no set answer" to the question, admittedly one of the toughest they have to face.

The decision largely depends, they said, on the emotional make up of the patient. Each case has to be handled individually.

In general, according to most of the doctors:

If a patient is in emotionally stable type who can "take it," then tell him.

If he's the type who might go to pieces emotionally, don't. A good doctor put it, telling such a person he has cancer might even lead to suicide.

And one of the doctors said it's well to "individualize" not only for people who have an incurable cancer, but also for those who might have a cancer possibly curable by surgery, x-ray or radium.

"The very word 'cancer' still scares some people," said George Miller of Long Beach, N.Y. added that people of that type should not be told what they have though the particular cancer might be and actually is, cured.

A complicating factor is the doctor's own way people should be told, if at all possible, is as follows:

(1) The personal desire of everyone to arrange his affairs, business and other matters; (2) The possibility that the patient, knowing he has cancer, might deliberately want to do something he wanted to do all his life, like take a long trip, or even, as one doctor put it, "be with a girl friend;" (3) Even on learning he had an incurable cancer, decided he'd go back and finish out his term at school; "or (4) The possibility that the patient might decide to undergo a course of quiet courage that would be helpful to others in time of sudden crisis.

But, several doctors say, there are some people who "might get worse if you don't tell them" meaning that uncertainty about the nature of the illness might get such people up upset that their general physical condition would be affected.

Passenger Train Plunges into Cars Standing on Siding

Travelling at High Speed Engine, Six Cars Derailed

MONTMAGNY, Que. (CP) Three men died when the Montreal-bound Ocean Limited struck cars on a siding and plunged into standing freight cars here early today, scattering flaming coals over a massive pile of debris.

The Canadian National Railways express swerved onto the siding at full speed and the front end jumped the rails before smashing the freight cars into a shed 1,000 feet away that contained 20 boxes of dynamite.

A possible major disaster was averted when a fast-working fire brigade doused the hot cinders from the locomotive before fire spread to the dynamite.

FIVE KILLED

The locomotive crew was killed. Dead are: J. J. Lavergne, 46, engineer, and Eudoise Thibault, 40, fireman, both of Riviere du Loup, Que., and J. P. Lemieux, brakeman, St. Vallier, Que.

The limited, which left Halifax at 5 a.m. AST Monday — came within sudden view of Montmagnity, 35 miles east of Quebec City on the south shore of the St. Lawrence river.

There was no panic among the passengers. Conductor Thomas Pouliot-or St. David, Que., said most of them were asleep at the time. Apart from minor bruises and several cases of shock, there were no injuries, he said.

MASSIVE PILE

The force of the collision left a massive pile of twisted steel and other debris. The freight shed was destroyed and boxcars were torn down.

All 12 cars of the express left the rails but remained upright.

It was not immediately known if the steam within the boilers of the locomotive would cause it to explode.

The accident was the third involving Halifax-Montreal passenger trains within a month. The Ocean Limited was derailed near Moncton, N.B., by a locomotive derailment and the Scotian hit a car at a level crossing near Moncton a few weeks previously, killing a commercial traveller.

The crash brought doctors, ambulances and hundreds of townsfolk to the scene.

A crane arrived shortly after dawn to start clearing the line. A CNR source estimated it would take about a day.

U.S. Proposes Five Powers Warn Communist China

PARIS (Reuters)—The United States has proposed a five-power declaration on the Indo-China war and the powers concerned is studying it, informed quarters here said today.

It is believed the declaration would warn Communist China about the consequences of intervention in the war.

Signatories would be France, Britain and countries of the Anzus Pact — the United States, Australia and New Zealand.

It is possible that some of the Asian countries close to Indo-China also will be asked to sign the statement, informants said.

French foreign ministry officials declined to disclose the contents of the American proposal beyond saying it would be on the same lines as the statement issued last Aug. 7 by the 16 allied governments that had taken part in the Korean war. That statement warned that they would hit back if the Communists broke the Korean truce again — "in all probability it would be impossible to contain the conflict within the borders of Korea." This was a clear warning that renewed hostilities might bring counter-attacks in China itself.

The top-secret U. S. memorandum was believed to have been the subject of a diplomat meeting today presided over by Premier Joseph Laniel.

Name Committee To Investigate Irregularities

TORONTO (CP)—An 11-man select committee headed by Toronto lawyer Kelso Roberts will investigate alleged irregularities in the highways department of the Ontario government.

Premier Frost announced formation of the committee in the legislature Monday night. The legislature was to prorogue today.

Mr. Roberts, Progressive Conservative member for Toronto St. Patrick, will be chairman and Mr. Frost said the investigation now being conducted by the provincial auditor's department will be clarified for the committee within two weeks.

The appointment came as a surprise. It had been speculated for weeks that Mr. Nickle (Kingston) would be named chairman. However, at the afternoon sitting, Mr. Frost named Mr. Nickle chairman of a select committee on highway safety.

Other members of the committee: Attorney-General Dana Porter, M.P., Beckett (PC — York East), C. Maplesdean (PC—Fort William), W. Sh.—Goldhto (PC — Toronto Beaches), C. E. Janes (PC—Hamilton East), R. Hunt (PC—Timiskaming), T. R. Best (PC—Oxford), Stanley Javine (Lab.—Fanshawe Oliver, Albert Wren (Lib.-Lab.—Kenora), and W. J. Grummett (CCF — Cochrane South).

BOOKS SEIZED

The books of nine contracting firms involved in construction in the highways department's Fort William division have been seized, it was learned in Port Arthur often exaggerated.

On another home-front topic, he said unemployment "happily shows every sign of levelling off." The government was ready to undertake anything necessary to prevent a depression, he said, but did not intend to go into any slam-bang emergency program unless it is a dangerous.

The president ignored requests by Democrat Lyndon Johnson that he give more H-bomb details —and that he give some details on what happens if the atomic armaments race turns into a dead heat between the U.S. and Russia.

The H-bomb, he said, is "merely a dramatized name" for the problem gnawing at the world.

The great factor working for peace was Russia's "economic weakness" compared with the powerful American industrial machine.

Two Engineers Flown From Britain Get Close View of New Hydro Blast

TORONTO (CP) — Two British electrical engineers, flown here last week to find the cause of an explosion which damaged an Ontario Hydro steam generating plant, had front-seat views Sunday as another blast when the second blast in five days rocked the structure.

The blast through the second of four giant generators in the Hydro-Electric Power Plant at Lake Ontario shore in Toronto's east end. Damage was again placed at $300,000. Two hydro workers suffered minor burns.

After the blast hydro chairman Robert Saunders ordered the 987,000,000 plant closed until cause of the blasts could be determined and damage repaired. The shut down involved the entire control system of 400,000 kilowatts which Mr. Saunders said can be made up from other sources.

The two engineers, A. A. Parsons Limited, British manufacturers of the 137-ton generators in the Toronto plant, saw the explosion.

Hugh Oliver was in the steam turbine room on the building's third floor when the explosion occurred. Seconds later Thursday's explosion when the second blast came, Oliver was said to be in the boiler building's sheet-of orange flame.

The second man, Douglas Horsley, Parsons' chief engineer, was in Hydro's head office on University avenue when he got a call to look out over the city. There-after five miles away—he saw heavy clouds of smoke blackening the Toronto skyline Heavy station.

Record Price Received by City For Debentures

A record price of $103,385 is received by the city for an issue of $100,000 in debentures for the addition at Prince Charles School, it was stated today by Alderman Wilbur Countryman, chairman of finance. The debentures were sold to Daly and Hillfield, the interest rate being 4 1-4 per cent.

The premium on the debentures will net the city the additional sum of approximately $3,300, it was stated. Sixteen bids were received for the purchase of the debentures.

"It was the greatest number of bids and the highest price ever received by the city for a debenture issue," the city official stated. "It reflects the sound financial position of the city of Belleville."

Ministers Hold April Meeting

The April meeting of the Belleville Ministerial Association was held Monday morning in Bridge Street United Church parlor. Devotions were led by the Rev. A. E. Smith.

The president, the Rev. Keith Daniel, welcomed the Rev. J. L. Austyn, of India, a missionary in the Church of the Christian and Missionary Alliance. A group of members of the Central Hastings Ministerial Association were in attendance at the meeting and were also welcomed.

Bible Society Sunday was again drawn to the attention of the Association by the local chairman, Archdeacon J. B. Creeggan. Mr. Creeggan announced that Sunday, May 30, was the day designated for special services in the interests of the Society and that Prof. R. A. Ward, of Wycliffe College, would be the special speaker at the evening service to be held in Bridge Street United Church.

A motion was carried that the months of July and August be allotted to the Council-Ministers Ministerial Association for religious broadcasting.

Temple Lodge Holds 'Veterans Night' in World War I Setting

Temple Lodge, A.F. & A.M., No. 666 convened the initiation of a new candidate with a First World War setting at the Masonic Temple last night.

Worshipful Master Bram Humphreys and members of the lodge combined Veterans' Night with lodge initiation ritual. The banquet atmosphere, glittering medals of veterans, brought a wave of nostalgia to many "old sweats" of the 1914-1918 conflict.

They ate "McConchie", vintage 1954, from regulation army mess-tins. The tasty stew in the "dixies" was a far cry from the pungent variety that "Old Bill" sloshed from a can after standing well back and puncturing it with a bayonet.

There was the famous "plum-and-sago" pud, his brother in mess arms, cheese, but tasty unlike the cheese of the wood-like "hardtack" of the old days. There was milk from the cow, not the tin can. The table was set for the knaspery. A steel helmet (circa, 1918) graced the head table.

FAMILIAR PARADE

A bugle, blown by Arnold Duffy, sounded "Reveille" and the "troops" lined up in the familiar parade before a table where homeward-bound soldier the mess-tins. There was no officers' mess. Colonels and majors fell in with the "rear-rank buckos" if they wanted to eat. They did.

"Blue" was the predominating color. Navy blue for the air force, the blue of the smart dress uniforms of the army and the blue of the battle-dress of the navy. There were the old songs for the occasion. George Christopher of the Hasty Pees, and the famous "Kit Inspection" recitation by the ever-appreciable style of George Fountain.

There was a brief address by Major Fred Gbotti, M.C., D.D., overseas padre of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, and now assistant director of the Royal Canadian Army Chaplain Corps at Ottawa. Major Goforth climaxed the evening with the showing of beautiful slides of Japan and Korea.

From the "Veterans' Night" point of view, the special guest was a soldier of the First World War, who has not walked in 18 years. In fact last night was the first night he has visited Belleville in that time and coincidentally the 18th anniversary of "the last time I was on my feet."

He is Clarke R. Brown, well-known resident of Tweed, who served with the 45th Battery C.F.A., overseas for 14 months in the first conflict. The dread arthritis claimed him as a victim shortly after his return to Canada, after being wounded by shrapnel at Lens, France, and it spread until 18 years ago it forced him to remain almost constantly in bed.

FORMER ATHLETE

The former gunner, one of the district's finest athletes prior to joining the service, was brought to the lodge hall through the fine gesture of Jack Bush of the Belleville Burial Company General Home, who provided ambulance and attendant service. The veteran was accompanied by Very Wor. Bro. Inspector Clair Hayes in order to be present for the evening.

The veteran's mind bridged a chasm of forty years when he saw the First War medals, some familiar faces and the 1914-18 atmosphere of the banquet. He was accorded a fine reception by young and old veterans as well as members of the lodge. He is a former past Master of Tweed Lodge A.F. & A.M., No. 239. He was given a special welcome by Wor. Master Humphreys and paid special tribute in the toast to the Visitors' proposed by Wor. Bro. Harold Mott.

Responses to the toast were made by Lieut. Col. R. H. Widdifield, representing the army; Lieut. Henry McKenna, the navy and WO2 Walter Turton, RCAF Trenton, who has been in charge of wartime air force masons with him.

The banquet committee candidate, Louis Mirasakas, was proposed by Bro. Ron Cass, with the candidate responding.

Wor. Bro. Humphreys extended the official welcome to the guests to the visiting brethren and the visitors, paying special tribute to Bro. Jack Bush for his fine spirit of masonry in arranging for the ambulance transportation. He expressed appreciation to Bro. Harry Lindsay, chairman of the banquet arrangement committee and to Aubrey Hall, Ella Cinnamon and Lena Manger for the generous donation of the produce.

LANDS CANADIAN TROOPS.

Major Goforth in a brief address paid tribute to the gallantry of Canadian troops in three wars. The part Canada played in all three had been very significant, especially in the Korean theatre. He commended the high regard for their fathers and grandfathers in some cases did in one world wars.

Major Goforth showed slides of various parts of Japan and Korea, especially the Buddhist Temples especially interesting were the wellkept cemeteries of Canadians who fell fighting on the Korean front. The padre concluded with running commentary of the many colorful scenes which depicted churches, shrines, temples and other strange sights of the Asian country.

Among the special guests were Lieut. Col. Widdifield, Major Ronse Vandervaart, M.C.; Major Everett S. Fairman, 5th Anti Tank Regiment, RCA (AA) who represented his commanding officer; Major Bill Grayden, Captain Ian Duff, Hon. Captain A. S. McConnell, Trenton, Hasty Pees and Prince Edward Regiment; Lieut. forth; Captain Ken Bowman, Lieut. McKenzie, Lieut. Gavin Scott and WO2 Walter Turton, RCAF.

Nearly 200 were in attendance.

History Ready About Christmas

The history of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment will likely be ready for publication by Christmas, it was learned here last night.

The prediction was made by Farley Mowat, well-known Canadian author, who was chosen the writing assignment, in a communication to Major Fred Goforth, M.C., D.D., former overseas padre of the regiment, who was the guest speaker at the "Veterans' Night" banquet given by Temple Lodge, No. 666, A.F. and A.M.

Mr. Mowat stated in his letter that he has completed one phase "Militia Days, England to June, 1943, on which he has written 25,000 words, comprising six chapters. He has the Sicily operation well "under way" with 15,000 words and three chapters. He expects to write 100,000 more words before the history is completed.

Mr. Mowat is a son of Major Angus Mowat, former member of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment and an author in his own right. He was given the assignment of writing the history by the regimental association of the "Hasty Pees."

Northern Canada Fascinating Country Students Are Told

"Northern Canada is fascinating country. Some of it is very pleasant and attractive. The best fishing I've ever had was within sight of the Arctic circle. I took lake trout with almost every cast," said the Hon. R. H. Winters, Minister of Public Works, in an address to the staff and student body of Albert College at the college, Monday afternoon.

Mr. Winters, who until last fall was Minister of Resources and Development, has travelled extensively in northern Canada and has a first hand knowledge of the Yukon and Northwest Territories.

The speaker, who expressed himself as greatly impressed by Canada, the opportunities in Canada and the Canadians, described in detail the vast engineering accomplishments of the Aluminum Co., of Canada in the construction of its Kitimat smelter, and Kemano power site.

He told his audience that while the Kemano power project will supply 1,500,000 horsepower to Kitimat, there are sites on the Yukon River which will allow development of 5,000,000 horsepower.

REFUND REQUEST

"The United States asked Canada if the Aluminum Co., of America could divert Yukon River for the production of power for a smelter at Skagway. We decided against it," he said. "We felt we wouldn't have done the right thing for future generations of Canadians by giving away the power that will develop the north."

Mr. Winters spoke briefly about the St. Lawrence seaway and power project and stated that "if our friends to the south will clear the legal obstacles we will get on with it."

"Canada's great north is now within easy reach by highway," said Mr. Winters in describing northern Canada. "There are many good roads. The Alaska highway is one. The Mackenzie highway runs from Edmonton to the Hay River on Great Slave Lake and from Hay River it is an easy boat ride to Yellowknife in the centre of the gold fields."

MANY URANIUM DEPOSITS

"There are great uranium deposits in the north and the nation with uranium holds the key to cheap, easy power in the future."

"But our resources won't do us any good until we can use them," said Mr. Winters. "People must be equipped and trained to develop these resources, and that is where the students come in. Canada has a great potential that will be realized only when people with confidence, know how, ability and resources will start to develop Canada's resources."

"Soon you will be called upon to play your part in the development of this great country," said Mr. Winters. "Keep in mind as you study that what you are doing is in the interests of Canada, and we will have a country unsurpassed by any other in the world," he said.

Mr. Winters was introduced by the principal of Albert College, Rev. A. E. MacKenzie, who was a student at Mount Allison University with Mr. Winters and whose invitation was responsible for Mr. Winters' visit to Belleville.

The thanks of the staff and students were expressed by H. J. Simpson.

Hon. R. H. Winters Declares Any Talk of Depression Is Not Based on Facts

HON. R. H. WINTERS
Minister of Public Works, who addressed Rotary club on Monday afternoon.

"Any talk of an approaching depression is not based on facts as they appear today," said the Hon. Robert H. Winters, Minister of Public Works in an address entitled, "The Role of Public Works in an expanding Economy," delivered to the Rotary Club at its weekly meeting on Monday noon.

"Some industries, notably the farm implement and textile industries are having hard times," the Minister continued. "The industries in most trouble have had the greatest percentage wage increase since 1945," he pointed out in stressing that "some industries must adjust to a competitive sphere."

"The time to adjust is now," he said. "The Canadian economy, on the whole, is bright with opportunities for change and readjustment."

"People wonder if the future of Canada is as bright as they have been told," said Mr. Winters. "Unemployment is of concern to all of us. But it is important to assess the problem in perspective against the background of Canada's material and human resources, and in the light of the future."

RECORD YEAR IN 1953

Mr. Winters drew upon statistics to show that 1953 was a record year in the Canadian economy with more bouses, cars, goods and services being sold and greater capital investment being secured than ever before.

"The economy has doubled since 1939," he said, "and has increased three times as rapidly as population growth with consequent rise in the standard of living."

Speaking directly of the growth of Belleville Mr. Winters noted that the number of manufacturing industries increased from 43 to 63 between 1945 and 1952, with the value of production tripling to 34 million dollars.

"The population was up one quarter from 1941 to 1951, a gain greater percentagewise than the national growth. More than 1,000 homes have been built here in the last six years," he declared.

GREATER THAN EVER

Public and private investment in Canada will be greater than ever in 1954 he stated, with new outlays for construction and machinery expected to reach 5.3 billion dollars.

"In a private economy some industries overexpand and some unemployment is necessary," stated Mr. Winters. "While unemployment is a serious concern to some people, Canadian industrial expansion has been built on a sound basis and talk of a depression is not based on facts as they appear today," he said.

Mr. Winters went on to quote from an address by Sinclair Weeks, U.S. Secretary of Commerce, in which Mr. Weeks expressed the greatest optimism for the continuing high level of business and employment in the United States.

"Canada's best customer is in excellent shape," said Mr. Winters, "which should prove to be an encouragement for the Canadian economy."

Mr. Winters touched on the great variety of industrial enterprises being brought into production by the natural expansion of Canada. Development of the iron ore deposits in Ungava, the Kitimat aluminum works, the projected St. Lawrence power and seaway project, and the expansion of Canada's petroleum industry were cited as good reasons for continued optimism for the flourishing health of the Canadian economy.

PROSPECTS BRIGHT

Prospects for Belleville's continued prosperity were considered bright by the speaker.

"Ontario will get the direct benefits of low cost hydro and cheap water transport," with the opening of the St. Lawrence seaway and the construction of hydro generating stations," said Mr. Winters.

"In Belleville you have the opportunity to share in the inevitable industrial growth of Ontario," he mentioned the Bethlehem open pit mining operations as another project, which will have a beneficial effect on the industrial health of this area.

"Your physical attributes of quiet lakes and woods," were described as great attractions for tourists.

"Belleville looks to have an interesting future," he asserted. "Temporary setbacks in some industries should not be a deterrent to continued optimism," he said. "Canada is at the beginning of a period of great expansion."

TWO-MAN RACE

Wilfrid P. Gregory, a 49-year-old lawyer from Stratford, will be acting president of the Ontario association for the meeting. Executive vice-president, he takes over the chair because of the death March 26 of Arlie Cadeau of Burlington, the president.

OUTLINE PROGRAM

In a broadcast over an Ontario network of CBC and private stations Monday night, Mr. Gregory outlined details of the convention program and said that party policy is designed to benefit the greatest number of persons.

He said recommendations to be sought to the convention by Colin Campbell, chairman of the party's co-ordinating committee on policy, includes plans for relief of the financial burdens of municipalities who lacked the revenue to finance functions assigned by the provincial government.

The proposals would call for assumption by the province of cost of administration of justice. There was no logical reason for charging these to real estate, which built municipalities derived their revenue. Cost of welfare and old age care should also be paid by the province.

JAPANESE BOATS SEIZED

TOKYO (AP)—A Soviet patrol craft captured two Japanese fishing boats off the northeast coast of northern island of Hokaido today, Kyodo news agency said. The Russians have seized old ships in the area since March 15, Kyodo reports. Four are still holding four, plus 25 sailors.

MALAYA GIRL REPRIEVED

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaya (AP) The court of criminal appeal Monday commuted from death to 10 years the sentence given an 18-year-old Chinese girl convicted of consorting with Communist guerrillas. Lee Ah-Mui was the eighth woman to be reprieved since the state of emergency was proclaimed in Malaya in 1948 in order to facilitate the jungle war against the guerrillas.

Sales of Easter Seals Lag Have You Bought Yours Yet?

The familiar Easter Seals which are sold annually at this time of the year were out in full force some time ago.

Every cent of the proceeds derived from the sale of the seals goes to the aid of crippled children in the city and province.

The Rotary Club of Belleville is sponsoring the drive again this year and is fully confident that city residents will respond to their appeals generously as in previous years.

While so far the response has been nothing of a sensational nature. True, the returns are trickling in, but a more substantial amount in the fund collectors, However it has not amounted to fifty per cent of the required $3,000, although it is in that neighborhood.

Time is short. The appeal, naturally, was timed with the arrival of Easter. What returns are in by the holiday constitute the total amount donated by residents of the city and district.

A lot of well-meaning citizens, who procrastinate occasionally, have not yet sent in their donations.

The Rotary Club respectfully requests these and others to send in their donations as soon as it is convenient. Do not wait until Easter has come and gone, and then apologize to yourself.

And remember, as go these donations, so go the treatments, medicine, and equipment for these kiddies, a lot less fortunate than you own. If the money is not there, some child might have to go without the things necessary to bring a brighter future.

So act now. You know you would not see a crippled kiddie if he or she asked you for something. That is what is happening now in an indirect way. Do it today!

Letters Coming Through Short Of Stamps

A small percentage of Her Majesty's mails have not yet realized that the postage rate for letters mailed in Canada is now five cents, according to Postmaster J. C. Waddell.

"People just seem to be forgetting the new mail rate, although on the whole we do not receive too great a quantity of letters except the only four cent stamps", the postmaster said.

Oddly enough, according to Mr. Waddell, the main offenders are business firms, members of which apparently just can't get out of the routine of placing only four cent stamps on letters.

Whenever packages of letters from local business firms come in carrying only four cent stamps the letters are held up and the firms are notified.

"It's a case of forgetting the rate is now five cents. Actually the firms prefer to pay the postage."

"On the whole there is more mail being received with four cent postage than we would like, but in a few years I expect it will level off as people get accustomed to the new rate," Mr. Waddell said.

WHY SALSBERG IS ELECTED

J. P. Salsberg is the member of the Ontario Legislature for the riding of Toronto St. Andrew. Mr. Salsberg is a member of the Labor-Progressive Party. He is a Communist.

Many Ontario residents wonder why St. Andrew riding continues to elect Mr. Salsberg. Of course, the anti-Salsberg vote has been split and this has been an important factor in his continuous success at the polls. But, in election after election, more voters in the riding favor Mr. Salsberg than support any other candidate. Why?

The answer is not difficult to discover if one will read the report of the Legislature debates.

A debate on housing in the Legislature on Wednesday was typical. Mr. Salsberg, discussing the question, was asked by Hon. William Griesinger, minister of public works, whether he was referring to subsidized rentals. "Even subsidized," he replied. "Okay," said the minister, "as long as we know that."

Then, according to the Toronto Star, the following exchanges took place:—

"Yes," the St. Andrew member went on, "and we'll save it in reformatories, jails, hospitals—"

"Cigars," interjected J. W. Hanna (P.C.-Huron Bruce) as the House roared.

"Do you know of any better place to live?" asked W. J. Stewart (P.C.-Parkdale), a former mayor of Toronto. "The member is always condemning things."

"If you know of a better 'ole, go to it," said Rev. D. M. Kerr (P.C.-Dovercourt).

"No ahead, name a better place," said Mr. Stewart banging his desk. "Name it."

"Now the member doesn't have to act like a high school lad," said Mr. Salsberg. "We can be adults. This is a serious social problem. Of course it's a big city and a great province."

Members banged their desks.

The St. Andrew member said Premier Frost should call an emergency conference on housing with federal, provincial and municipal participation.

"Well, we haven't any gas chambers," said Mr. Stewart, when Mr. Salsberg sat down.

That is the Toronto Star's report. Comment appears superfluous.

We should not be surprised if St. Andrew riding returned Mr. Salsberg to the Legislature for another term at the next election. It is not a result of which we will approve, but on the basis of that performance and similar ones, it is a result which it is not difficult to understand.

BRITISH ARE CAUTIOUS

The British are noted for their talent for understatement.

Seldom, however, have we been fortunate enough to note such a prize example of this gift as one provided by Marcus Van Steen, writing in the spring issue of "Northern Circuit" which is published by the Northern Electric Co. Ltd.

Mr. Van Steen has written an informative and amusing article about plans to build a tunnel under the English Channel, from Dover to Calais. Seventy-four years ago, he says, such a tunnel was actually started. Why? It was called off in 1883 has, says Mr. Van Steen, never been adequately explained. But there was widespread fear that the tunnel might make it easier for some continental power to invade England.

Recently the tunnel project came up again in the British House of Commons. A parliamentary committee had this to say regarding its possible use as an invasion route:

"In these days of rockets and jet planes it seems at least doubtful whether the Channel Tunnel would increase the danger of invasion."

Well, yes, to be sure, at least doubtful, dontcha' know.

WRONG BOX

Food stores face one difficult supply problem — boxes in which to pack purchases made by customers.

At least one Belleville store has found a most excellent source of supply. The Ontario Liquor Control Board establishment on Bridge Street East always seems to have surplus boxes. The store finds that most of its customers do not make purchases in such a quantity that they require a box.

One day, however, the clerk in the grocery store ran into a problem. She was placing purchases made by a customer into a box on the outside of which was emblazoned the name of a well-known distillery.

"Oh, heavens," exclaimed the customer, "don't put them in that box. I have to take them to a church tea."

JUST FOLKS

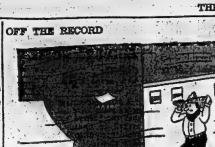
CRISIS

There are moments of terror and dread
Which rob us of reason and sense;
Into every man's scheme, into every man's dream
Comes the time when the struggle grows tense.
And the thing you would do with a grin,
With nothing at stake on the shot,
Is not easy to do when the thing that's in view
Hangs on whether you make it or not.



The test of the game isn't skill,
But how do you stand to the strain?
When your skies are all fair you have courage to spare,
But how do you battle the rain?

And what of that moment of doubt
When to falter means failure for you?
With your nerves in control, can you go to the goal?
And prove what you're able to do?

It's the crisis which makes you or breaks.
It's that difficult time of suspense
When the end is in doubt and you're fighting it out
With your nerves taut and tense.
And you fail if your eye be not true,
For all the cunning is vain when you come to the strain
If you're not the master of you.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

INTELLECTUAL INCOME

Anyone with no money income at all is in bad straits, indeed. Applied to the mind it is even worse, for with nothing going into the mind each day, and throughout the years, we would be but mental bankrupts! Just imagine living for years without a thing thought of an uplifting or inspiring nature entering the mind.

We speak of a person as being alive in mind and outlook. It's because he or she has an income of ideas and new discoveries forever contributing to the mind, giving him or her mental health and stimulating joy. The only genuine wealth in this world is what we gain from knowledge and new information. The great organization of the Y.M.C.A. has as its motto: "Mind, Body and Spirit." These three are the source of all intellectual income.

A mere millionaire is no match for a wealthy mind. An investment in a bond or stock pays only at set intervals, but the income from a well-stocked mind pays dividends every single day of one's life! Such an income is a stream of wealth. Memory, the scholarship of the world and what not! Is a millionaire's amount to? Who would care for their offerings alone? You can't buy a rich mind. No one wants the corpses of it!

I have some thirty or so of the books by Somerset Maugham. I like to read them. They give me a sense of good intellectual income. Each one I read adds to my intellectual income. I am sure they will remain as an asset to all those who love such books as Maugham has written. This same thing holds well be said of many another writer. Books that last keep paying a greater income. Who can adequately estimate the intellectual income offered by the writings of Shakespeare, or of the Bible?

An intellectual income doesn't fluctuate, except upward, for once you have knowledge, no one can take it from you. It's yours, "to have and to hold"—forever.

Lady Tracers

Weaving Huge Tapestry

(Winnipeg Free Press)

When the city of Coventry was grievously bombed with heavy loss of life during the Second World War the cathedral was severely damaged. A new cathedral is to be built and Britain and the Commonwealth countries are making many contributions to the new edifice. Behind the high altar of the new cathedral there will be a huge vast tapestry. Designed by the British artist, Graham Sutherland, it will be sixty-two feet high and forty feet wide—the biggest ever made.

In a rough description of this notable undertaking, Mr. Robin Cockburn emphasized that making a loom for it will be something of an engineering feat and it may be necessary to knock two studios into one while the six artist weavers on the job will possibly have to set up some kind of "inter-com" with each other while they are at work.

The studio where the tapestry will be made is the only weaving concern of its kind left in Britain. The cartoon, or full artist's straight painting of the proposed tapestry; this is then enlarged to scale and the colors are copied and sent to the dyers. When all is ready, the actual weaving begins, working between the warp threads. The reverse side of the weaving in a standing mirror, a method which is traditional. They start at the top of the tapestry and work upwards, winding the warps down from a roller as they weave. The warps are stiff woollen fibres knitting together the pattern. They are ready etched into the wool in indian ink.

On small tapestries for ordinary rooms there are twelve to seventeen warps to an inch but with the huge tapestry there will be only five to an inch as the closest range at which it will be seen in the cathedral will be some thirty feet. The finished tapestry will weigh about three quarters of a ton and fourteen hundred pounds of Cheviot wool will be used, in the thing that worries the studio. By tradition a finished tapestry is nearly always cut from the loom by a woman and this is quite a tough job. Cutting the world's biggest tapestry will be rather like the proverbial first snip. But this is a problem for the future. The weaving will take about three years to do and it has not yet been started.

Details of the new windows have now been announced, and the biggest order ever given for ecclesiastical stained glass has been placed by the Coventry Cathedral Reconstruction Committee. They have asked the Royal College of Art to design the great windows in the nave of the new cathedral. The windows, 70 feet high, will depict man's journey through life.

Is 'Kindness' Harming Young?

(Cleveland Plain Dealer)

Once upon a time a young star was expected to help with the work around home. The farm boy had chores which left him less time to play. Even the small town and city boys had jobs to do.

There was kindling to be cut, ashes to be carted out of the basement, lawns to be mowed, windows to be washed, rugs to be beaten, errands to run, dishes to be wiped, leaves to be raked, roofs to be painted, caves to be dug.

Muscles, perforce, developed and backs grew straight, and he managed to have time enough to make a high school football team or to get educated to play the entire game.

Times have changed. Hardly does an urban dweller cut wood. He buys it. Most kids don't know the difference between a hoe and a saw and a sawbuck. There's not much to be carried out of the basement and even if there were pop would probably do it while junior watched television.

There is no need for a kid to work on the block when a lawn-mowing service will do it, and the yardman cuts it, or the windows, when professional cleaners are employed by a month. There is no need to use the legs for walking, for transportation is provided by parents or can be procured readily by standing on a corner and using the thumb.

As an American parent you will probably find your child active in U.S. News & World Report which tells of the problem the United States youths, though larger and stuffed with vitamins, are not the equal of European youths.

The question, whether we like to admit it or not, that 3,600,000 American men under 26 were examined by the armed forces for the draft and that 1,600,000 were found unfit for various reasons, physical and psychiatric.

U.S. News, discussing a study by a United States research team, says that in the United States children who were given muscular fitness tests, 44 per cent failed to meet a minimum standard required for health and that of that number, children who were given the fitness tests only eight per cent failed to meet the standard.

The fact of the matter is that kids are growing soft in body because we, their parents, are growing soft in the head.

We don't start them out as little fellows, learning to like to be good. We don't encourage them to play strenuously, to build bodies and minds together.

We are weakening their bodies with misplaced kindness, and we are weakening instead of making them walk, doing jobs for the family which they should be doing themselves.

Fashion in Japan

(New York Herald Tribune)

Opiled firms in Tokyo are having the biggest boom in years in eye glasses. Girls are trooping in, some buying two or three pairs in different colored frames. Those who don't need spectacles demand plain glass in harlequin frames.

The boom began soon after the opening of a movie in which Marilyn Monroe plays a near-sighted siren whose boy friend talks her into wearing spectacles to enhance her appeal.

U.S. Develops Deadly Gas

(St. Catharines Standard)

The United States, it has been revealed, has produced the deadliest gas known to mankind. It is odorless, colorless, invisible and so powerful that a tiny drop of it on the skin will cause death in 20 seconds. And that gas, according to a copyrighted article which appeared in the Rocky Mountain News, is being produced at Rocky Mountain Chemical Arsenal and at a large Alabama plant.

The article, the joint effort of James Daniels of the Scripps-Howard Washington staff, and Bill Brenneman, Rocky Mountain News staff writer, reports that Gen. Jesus Ha Son, and the Holy Spirit, J. E. Fickel, Jr., Bullene, chief chemical officer for the army, who unveiled the secret gas in Washington, as saying the army spent $400,000,000 developing the gas after it was first discovered in Germany during World War II by the Nazis.

Tests have been made on animals to show the terrible effects that the gas will kill on contact with any exposed flesh, by breathing, or by swallowing.

In its liquid form, a tiny drop, less than a pin head in size, in the hand would paralyze his nerves instantly. Death would follow in a few seconds and bring death in 30 seconds.

Gen. Bullene said the gas, unloaded from a plane, could wipe out an army within minutes. The gas quickly mixes with the air and, undetected, creeps silently upon its victims. It kills all living everyone unaware.

The deadly formula was brought from Germany and developed at a pilot plant at Edgewood Arsenal, Maryland. The Denver plant was completed a year ago. Gen. Bullene said the Russians might have stumbled on the gas in Germany, but Gen. Bullene called the gas an American development and said he hoped the Russians don't have it as yet.

Yet, it is to be sincerely hoped that the Russians too have not stumbled on the gas and perfected it. Only then will peace be confident, would use such a gas only as a last means of defence, but could the same be said of the Russians?

It is terrifying, to say the least, to think of a gas so powerful that a mere drop will kill and within a mile, it is an indication of what the mind of man can devise. Surely, mankind is not the same thought was given to perfecting a cure for cancer or other unconquered diseases how much better would mankind be served.

The Unfair Tailor

(Wall Street Journal)

A British tailor named Ernest Prosser has been fined 10 shillings six pence for cutting two more suits than his weekly quota.

The National Union of Tailors and Garment Workers decreed in assessing the fine against Mr. Prosser that he had violated the "principle of fair shares when work was not plentiful" by cutting more than his share.

We wonder what would have happened to him if he had cut the price as well.

Personal Health Talks

MAYBE THE OLD RELIABLE MEDICINES WERE TOO CHEAP

Sometimes I wonder whether I'm going—or maybe have gone—off my rocker. If so, I'd be the last person to recognize my pitiful state. That's what worries me. . . .

A NEW . . .

sense! I have to fight to avoid developing a persecution complex.

Take the Iodin-ration, for example. In the days when Tony was a pup there was an official iodin preparation (that is, recognized standard in the U.S. Pharmacopoeia) which was reliable for use as a daily ration of iodin for growing child or adult, and I so recommended.

Dr. Brady

But my recommendation did not please the self-constituted medical and health authorities of that era. They issued many half-baked warnings to the public about the "danger" involved in taking iodin to prevent simple goitre or goiter. They contrived to compel the public to buy "iodin-ized" salt in the iodin preparation, and this frightened it didn't please the people so that they kept the sale of iodin out of the hands of the country store keeper, the corner grocery and the delivery, yet did not interfere with the druggist's graveyard trade.

For a while I continued to recommend a daily iodin preparation which succeeded the other in the U.S. Pharmacopoeia. Why the change was made I have never been able to determine, unless it was just to embarrass and confuse my readers who tried to obtain the iodin preparation I recommended in the then last or next edition of the Pharmacopoeia. The big boys pulled another switch on me and I gave up. I've been play around with the Pharmacopoeia as much as they'll like, I decided, from here on I'll recommend only an iodin preparation they can't monkey with —and for the past ten or twelve years that is what I do. The iodin preparation I recommend is not labelled "poison" because it is not poison.

Through the years this column has been loitering along I have had to fight similar battles over the popular use of three other good home remedies, namely, citrate of soda, iron-ammonium citrate and boric acid.

The citrate of soda (sodium citrate) was formerly widely employed in the modification of milk in infant feeding — a grain or two of the salt was added to each ounce of milk in the mixture, to prevent formation of curds.

Thousands of readers have reported satisfaction from this cough and cold remedy in recent years. But in the past year or two, druggists in many parts of soda seems to be in short supply. More and more readers complain, when they can't get soy, and some tell me their druggist makes a to-do about getting it without a prescription. Surely the big boys of the pharmacy will make an attempt to classify sodium citrate as "poison". Just what is the catch, Somebody trying to corner the market?

WRESTLING WITH THE INEXPRESSIBLE

Many people demur over accepting the Doctrine of the Trinity. What is doctrine? The word "Trinity" does not occur, of course, in the Bible. The Doctrine of the Trinity is man's awkward attempt to try to relate certain apparently irreconcilable facts which the Bible presents.

We believe in the unity of God. The Lord our God is one (Deut. 6:4). Yet at our Lord's baptism the Heavenly Father spoke, calling Jesus his Son, and the Holy Spirit descended in the form of a dove. The theological paradox which the human mind has never been able to satisfactorily understand—and which we try to explain in the Doctrine of the Trinity is that although God is one, He set forth in the Bible as Father, Son, and Holy Spirit. These three are personalities—that is, they have personality — separate, yet united.

The Trinity is simply irreconcilable facts. They appear contradictory, but we believe they appear so because of the lack of knowledge. We try to resolve the difficulty by the Doctrine of the Trinity—one God in three persons, equal in power and glory.

Perhaps the Trinity man tries to express infinite truth by the use of finite terms.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The best way to get a news item into a newspaper is to try to keep it out. It is commonplace in the newspaper business for people to try by every means to keep their wills and estates out of the news. When a man dies and his estate comes up for probate in the surrogate court he is very careful to familiy prefer not to have his estate published for all those whom he turned down at his life with them he was an old lightwad. And those whose estates are small do everything to prevent the publication of their scores of wills go through every few days, and the reporter charged with covering that news selects one by the most interesting, either because they are large or unexpectedly small.

Hundreds, nay, thousands of wills go through every year without so much as a line in the newspapers. Their existence is kept secret by requesting that it be left out and sometimes, thirty years after, Editor's sense of news. Why should it be left out, he asks himself. There is no reason at all. And the more he looks at it, the more objectionable it seems to appear.

Shrewd press agents and publicity hounds know about the rule, turned down at his life with them he was an old lightwad. Major Increase In Power Of NRX Reactor

OTTAWA - (CP) — Canadian research into peacetime uses of atomic energy, particularly in industrial power, soon will be accelerated at the atomic energy project at Chalk River.

The speed-up will be made possible through a major increase in the power of the NRX reactor which broke down Dec. 12, 1952, and went back into operation Feb. 17. The rebuilt pile now is operating at a power output 33 per cent greater than before the accident.

The power increase, announced Monday by Atomic Energy of Canada, Limited, which operates the Chalk River establishment, will:

1. Reduce time required to conduct research experiments, including many now in progress to find an economical method of harnessing the atom for production of electric energy.

2. Cut the period necessary for the reactor to produce radioactive isotopes, such as cobalt 60, the energy source of the "cobalt bomb" therapy unit used in the treatment of cancer.

3. Enable scientists to use NRX more effectively in making tests of parts for the new $20,000,000 NRU atomic pile scheduled to start operation in 1955.

EXTENT UNKNOWN

The extent to which research and production of isotopes will be speeded will not be known for some time.

The company said the power increase results from a number of modifications made to the reactor during the rebuilding job. It said the modifications could not have been made without dismantling the reactor.

Atomic Energy of Canada said the reactor now is operating at a power of 40,000 kilowatts, as compared with a top power input of 30,000 at the time of the breakdown.

The announcement means that NRX will remain the hottest atomic furnace of its type in the Western world. No other similar reactor produces a greater density of neutrons.

Polio Outbreak Called Mild By Health Officials

MELBOURNE (Reuters) — Australia's summer outbreak of poliomyelitis, now well past its peak, has largely dropped out of the public eye with the end of the Queen's tour here.

The only state where a record number of cases was reported was Western Australia. But there, as in all other areas, the disease took on a mild form with three deaths occurring in 309 cases reported in the first three months of the year.

Health officials said the reporting of mild cases not officially recorded in previous years tended to give a false impression of the seriousness of the outbreak. They viewed it as unlikely that the current outbreak would have attracted any foreign attention if it had not been for the controversy it caused over alleged cancellation of the Queen's tour of Western Australia.

Most of those stricken were in the five- to 10-year age group. Official mortality statistics for the whole country in the first quarter of 1954 are incomplete, but they suggest a death toll of about five per cent of the cases reported.

Of 4,869 cases reported in Canada's Prairie provinces during 1953 267 resulted in death. There were 2,338 cases and 96 deaths in Manitobe, 1,086 with 70 deaths in Saskatchewan and 11 deaths in 1,445 cases in Alberta. A record total of 119 deaths in 2,546 cases was reported in Ontario in 1937.)

Officials said the disease reached epidemic proportions only in localized areas.

OUTBREAK CONTINUES

States mainly affected now are New South Wales, Victoria, and Western Australia. Only in Victoria has the outbreak of new cases continued into the cooler months not normally associated with polio danger.

Victoria's victims are scattered over the state and the majority are youngsters. Authorities said many of the latest cases are mild, with quick recovery expected.

Western Australia figures revealed the highest disease rate on record, with 309 cases in the first three months of this year against 211 for all 1953. But the state health department stressed that this failed to give an accurate picture of the outbreak.

They said that both paralytic and non-paralytic cases now are being reported, whereas only paralytic cases were recorded six years ago.

ARMY OFFICER PROMOTED

OTTAWA (CP)—Col. Ernest C. Brown, 41, of Ottawa and Edmonton has been promoted brigadier and will become deputy adjutant general succeeding Brig. M. P. TWO ONTARIO FIRES DO $1,250,000 DAMAGE

Nine business buildings and several private homes were destroyed in this $250,000 fire at Campbellford, Ontario. It was the second time in 24 years that the main street of the town had suffered serious loss by fire. Twenty-two persons were rendered homeless.

High winds brought fear to residents of Parry Sound, Ont., that this fire in the business area would spread, but firemen, aided by 100 volunteers, kept it under control. Three buildings were burned to shells. Damage was estimated at $1,000,000. (Central Press Canadian Photos.)

Canada Wants to Make NATO More Than Military Alliance

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada wants to make NATO more than just a military alliance.

To get closer economic and political integration within the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, Canada would be willing to relinquish some national sovereignty.

This determined bid to extend NATO into the economic and political field has been exhibited in recent speeches by Prime Minister St. Laurent and External Affairs Minister Pearson.

The references are necessarily vague. But so were references to an Atlantic alliance before NATO was born. It would appear that Canada now is feeling out her NATO allies on closer integration.

NATO, the cornerstone of Canadian foreign policy, was conceived primarily as a military alliance to prevent Communist aggression. But article 2 of the pact is regarded as a Canadian clause. It says in part: "They (NATO members) will seek to eliminate conflict in their international economic policies and will encourage economic collaboration between any or all of them."

HIGHLY IMPORTANT

Though this article of the treaty has been largely ignored, Canadian officials have always considered it highly important because Canada is so dependent on world trade. Another reason is that any NATO member is a poor asset to the common defence if its economic health is poor.

Canadian statesmen have rarely missed an opportunity to promote article 2, or NATO itself, and they regard the clause as even more important now that tension in Europe has eased.

Anything that would seem to hurt NATO has brought Canadian officials running to its defence. That is one reason Mr. Pearson expressed concern March 15 in Washington over an apparent switch in United States defence policy from containment, or local defence to a middle force for massive nuclear retaliation as a war deterrent.

John Foster Dulles, U.S. state secretary, said the next day that the U.S. is not eliminating local defence and that her allies would be consulted in most cases before nuclear retaliation was undertaken. Mr. Pearson said he was reassured by this statement and other Canadian officials said Mr. Dulles had cleared the air considerably for Canada and NATO.

INTEGRATION SOUGHT

The recent flurry of speeches on closer integration of NATO was touched off Feb. 10 at Bonn, Germany, by Mr. St. Laurent, when he said:

"Perhaps the time has now come to consider whether some of the steps towards closer integration, should be taken within the larger framework of the North Atlantic Community.

"Our very survival and our continued development in freedom and in peace depend on our ability to look beyond national barriers and to make them somewhat less artificial and more satisfactory.

"We believe the proper solution to the economic, cultural and spiritual betterment of all free peoples is to be found in an ever closer integration of their activities and in a greater sharing of their endeavors."

Fire Victims Buried Together

GALT (CP) — Four little white caskets lowered into graves Monday contained the bodies of the victims of Saturday night's apartment fire in which three young children and their 33-year-old baby sitter died.

Firemen praised the heroism of blonde Nancy Wylie, who celebrated her 19th birthday last week. They said she filled pots and pans with water in a vain attempt to quench the flames which investigators think started from an overheated stove in the kitchen of the ground-floor apartment.

Found dead in or near their beds were Bobby Dolson, 4; Mary Margaret, 3; and Ricky, eight months.

The Dolson children's parents, Pte. Richard Dolson, 26-year-old Korean war veteran, and his 22-year-old wife, Peggy, were at a Legion dance at the time.

GENERAL JUIN JOINS DE GAULLE.

Marshal Alphonse Juin, top soldier of France, is shown in dress uniform as he addressed the annual dinner of former cavalry officers in Paris. At the time he was making this speech, Marshal Juin was supposed to be explaining himself to French Premier Laniel over a previous speech highly critical of the European Defence Community plan. The marshal failed to answer the premier's summons. As a result he was stripped of authority over French armed forces posts and privileges and resigned from his command of NATO forces in Europe. He then announced his support of Gen. De Gaulle.—Central Press Canadian.

FRENCH STRIKE CALLED

The basic minimum now is 20,000 francs ($57) a month. The CGT wants this raised to slightly more than 22,000 francs.

The second explosion in four days rocked the steam generating plant, the Richard L. Hearn, in Toronto, injuring two employees and putting the generators out of use. After the first blast, engineers were studying the cause and were preparing to put the plant back in operation when the explosion occurred. The plant is considered the finest electric-powered steam generator on the continent. (Central Press Canadian).

General Health of 25th Brigade 'Excellent', Says Chief MOH

By JACK BRAYLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

IN KOREA (CP)—Lt.-Col. James Galloway of St. Thomas, Ont., chief of the 4th Canadian Field Ambulance in Korea, says that generally the health of the troops in the 25th Canadian Brigade is "excellent".

His words are emphasized in the ruddy and alert look of the men, in physique and fitness they stack up favorably with other crack formations in the Commonwealth.

Col. Galloway says the Korean spring and fall climate is healthful and the winter has been a good one for maintaining good health. But the big worry to the MO in Korea is hygiene of the troops in the intense heat of summer because sanitation facilities are limited and the insect population is enormous.

While the civilian population has been evacuated from the Canadian area, there are still cases of VD in the brigade.

IMPROVED FACILITIES

Both field ambulance and field dressing setups have improved their facilities since the armistice, exchanging tents for quonset huts and installing refrigerators.

A happy girl who radiates warmth and understanding to the troops whether they be Australians, Britons, Canadians or New Zealanders is matron at the FSS. She's Capt. Flora Brohman of West Montrose and Marybill, Ont.

"There's all nice boys, and I can't see any difference in them at all," she said. "They have a great time out-boasting each other."

Two of them grinning at Nursing Sister Margaret Whebby of Dartmouth, N.S., were Cpl. Louis Newman of Winnipeg, suffering stove burns, and Pte. Jacques Ouellette of Ashibil, Que., with an eye injury.

The hospital is a happy place from the time you enter the admitting room where a good-humored sign urges: "Please have your symptoms ready."

DENTISTRY TOO

Col. Galloway's unit handles anything but surgery which goes to Maj. Edwards' field dressing station at the rear of the division. The field ambulance even has a dental corps man, Maj S. Geoffrey Bagnall of Halifax, on hand in case of emergency.

Most accidents on the medical records are minor injuries in trucking, many burns in tent stove fires and a remarkably few vehicle accidents.

Col. Galloway says sore throats, flu, pneumonia and the common cold, in that order, are the chief winter ailments. Malaria, Dysentery, skin diseas and ear infections, in order, 'are the summer ailments.

The medical corps, set up to handle casualties of war, now is extending and improving its peacetime health services for the troops in the field in an arrangement with other members of the Commonwealth.

Under the set up Col. Jack S. McCannell of Newcastle, N.B., is senior medical officer of the division with the title of assistant director of medical services (DMS). Galloway is senior Canadian MO and his field ambulance embraces regimental units and forward casualty-clearing stations. A field dressing station under Maj. L. H. Edwards of Three Hills and Red Deer, Alta., staffed by Canadians has become a sort of base hospital and is Canada's contribution to divisional health.

150 Girl Guide, Brownie Leaders Attend Training Day

A most successful Training Day was held in this city on Saturday last, at Bridge Street Sunday School auditorium, under the direction of Mrs. D. B. Wilson, Girl Guide Commissioner for the Province of Ontario. Accompanying Mrs. Wilson were Miss D. Farthing, training commissioner for Ontario; Miss M. Potter, training commissioner; Miss V. Rosser, Miss Willett and Miss Mcgan, all of Toronto; Miss Andison of Carleton Place; Mrs. Beeman, of Perth and Miss Maitland, of Cornwall.

Upwards of 150 Girl Guide and Brownie leaders were in attendance. The subjects covered by the trainers were—program planning; ceremonial; hints on teaching and testing; outdoor adventures; games; camping and a discussion period.

4,000 NEW MEMBERS

Reports were given by the divisions of Hastings, Peterborough, Northumberland, Lennox - Addington and Frontenac. Increased membership was noted in all reports. During the past year, in Ontario, 6,000 new members have joined the ranks of the Girl Guide organization.

At noon a delicious buffet luncheon was served by the members of St. Thomas' Guild.

At the conclusion of the program, a vote of thanks was extended to the visiting trainers.

Fashion Flashes

All the way, say the buyers, it's the white coat for late Spring into Summer, and for resort and cruise wear. On "the dress-up is a full-length, Asian model of white chiffon fleece with collar and turnbo facings of coral silk faille encrusted with embroidery and white beads.

It's marvelous how things designed for high fashion soon drift down to the more comfortable price tags. Take quilting, for instance. Now it appears in budget dresses, not just in sections but in many model underlining the whole silouette, as in a coat dress of silk and wool in an extra mixture. Nice in gray or navy with white silk tab collar and cuffs.

RESORT AREA

Mont Tremblant, in the Laurentian mountains north of Montreal, has an altitude of 3,380 feet.

Casual Dresses Soft, Mobile This Spring

Dressmaker details make new its spring casual dresses. Mobility, softness and more fit than sportswear is accustomed to, make the casual dress a main feature in 1954 fashion presentations.

Linen dresses, highly important, feature side-pleated skirts with a good deal of flare. Glazed chambrays and broadcloths or soft pima cottons furthey the "schoolgirl" look, with their waist-clipping bodices and full gored skirts. Tissue-weight wools are new in spring casuals, but they take on all the youth and femininity of customary balmy-weather wear.

The empire look is present by dint of high, waist molding, full-or shoulders and much top interest. A fashion ford will be the linen, cotton or wool feather tiered dresses with contoured skirts and deep bib meaning or piping that comes under the bust to give a high-waisted look. These usually have belts for those who prefer them, but suggest an unbroken, beltless line.

The princess is another casual favorite. In polished cottons and smooth synthetic blends, the style features a skirt fulled by soft box pleating or bias-cut flare. The bodice is snug and simple, sometimes with white flannelette inserts about the neckline. Gay prints are most often used — small geometric, Dan Dandah modern designs and bright peasant florals predominating.

Ice-cream colored knits and terseys make attractive tiered sheath tausals, with simple details limited to the neckline area. Spectator dresses abound in tailored linen and sailcloth styles. Many have their own sporty jackets, cut on the square and featuring straight vertical trim.

Linen-like rayons are new with satin trimming; light little wool dresses have pullover or waist-length jackets. The pullovers show off knotched necklines, while the shorties feature natural shoulder curving and soft bloused ness draped in from the shoulders.

Multicolor stripes, solid pastels, dark crepes and tiny prints are slated for casual dress popularity this season. Linen is newly printed. And — surprise! — burlap makes a fashion appearance, treated luxuriously with simple styling and attractive block prints in gold and oriental colors.

Pupils of Queen Elizabeth School Display Art at McCarthy Theatre

On view till Saturday of this week, in the lounge of the McCarthy Theatre, is an interesting collection of public school art, displayed by the pupils of Queen Elizabeth School. Among types displayed are crayon work; paper mache handicraft; silhouette cuts; geometrical and linoleum designs; fanciful finger painting; posters on "Fire Prevention in the Home," an Indian Mural depicting various ceremonials, and crafts, as well as some paper masks, calculated to put fear into the most courageous of souls; and some lovely, and intricate Valentine hearts with cutout lacey openwork.

The crayon drawings were well done, both as to drawing and color contrast, and included an autumn scene; Canadian maple leaves were both delicate and pleasing in contour and shading, as were the "Wild Ducks."

A nice line of perspective showed a school room with teacher's desk, black board. The Christmas scene showed imagination, with Santa and his reindeers, the red church nestling amid the neighborly houses, and the snow-covered evergreens, which, though somewhat scattered, bore out the theme.

LOVELY SILHOUETTES

Among the most attractive of the exhibits were those of black cutouts which were indeed "things of beauty and joys forever, two outstanding ones were those of the fragile form of a boy and a girl; while those of the butterfly, Peter Rabbit, the colt, doves and a limb, and the galloping hockey, the lighthouse, the swan, the cedar waxwings; the ballet dancer, the pianist, skating, the camel and the deer were delightfully pleasing and demonstrated a wealth of detail and graceful strength, especially in those depicting the ancient in ships, with their sails as contrasted with the streamlined ocean going palaces.

The little kindergarten pupils had samples of paper weaving in basket weave, and one showing a snowman, and a "Barbara Anne" in an orange skating costume.

The finger painting was used to good effect in the depicting of an electric storm, and "The Hunter," "Atomic Blast" in vivid reds.

A nice tulip design showed a study in line, tone and color, beginning with the simple outline, then the graduating tone, and then in color, giving substance and life.

FIRE HAZARDS POINTED

The poster depicting fire hazards in the home was rejoice with good advice and plaint the following precautions: clean furnace pipes, clean chimneys inspect electric wiring for breaks, and defective insulation cords; keep matches away from children; crush cigaret butts; don't smoke in bed; do not leave small children alone in the house, and keep papers and refuse from around furnace.

The above tied several interesting pieces of work, especially those done in black, highlighted by green, red and yellow. These included "Moonlight Bay". "Wonders of the Sea" and others.

"Hadlen's F u r Carriers," showed the canoes with their cargo being skilfully directed down the flowing river which denoted motion and ease of movement. The delightful sketch of "Jesus blessing God," held the attention with its graceful curves and the fine expression on the faces of the singing heavenly beings.

The headwork, including "Humpty-Dumpty", the squatriums with their fish and underwater plants, and the depicting of "springtime" with the tiny flowers growing behind the fallen log, were most interesting and exceedingly well done.

As a whole, the exhibition was a most creditable one, showing talent, a sense of compositionn and love of color.

Kiwanis Kweens Model Attractive Easter Bonnets

The regular monthly meeting of the Kiwanis Ladies' Auxilia'y was held on Thursday. The president, Mrs. H. G. Emerson, opened the meeting welcoming members and guests.

The various committee convenors read their reports of the previous month's activities. The members were especially interested in the wonderful work being done by the Visiting Committee in helping needy families. A discussion was held to decide whether the members were in favor of holding a bazaar later in the year, or a spring or fall tea, as a fund-raising project. In view of the dance to be held in October, the members voted in favor of a spring tea, to be held in May.

At the conclusion of the business session, the president, Mrs. Emerson, turned the meeting over to Mrs. J. Allan, who introduced Mrs. S. C. Rose, and Mrs. L. Schram, Mrs. Rose and Mrs. Schwab had brought many beautiful spring hats from "The Hat Box", which were modelled by four lovely Kweens, Mrs. F. W. Witten, Mrs. H. Murray, Mrs. A. O. Drysdale, and Mrs. H. L. Rose. Mrs. Rose as commentator, was so interesting and amusing, lending quite a professional stamp to an informal fashion parade. The show was much appreciated by the members, and lively discussion of the Easter bonnets continued over coffee and cakes at the conclusion of the meeting.

Moscow Maternity Hospital Devoid of Frills and Flowers

By BILL ROSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW (CP)—There are no frills about a Moscow maternity hospital.

The girls leave at home their nice nighties or bed jackets. There aren't any flowers, or pictures on the walls.

On entering the clinic the girls park their clothes in a locker. After a shower they get the hospital-issue garb they'll wear for the rest of their time here. Personal washing thereafter is from basins of hot water brought into the ward.

Hospital clothing is a white duck cap, worn all the time, and a nightgown of the same material.

ACCENT ON HYGIENE

It's all part of the local accent on institutional cleanliness.

Maternity clinic No. 13 on Mail Ambassadeur street in the Sverdlakov ward of Moscow accommodates 180 patients. The director is Dr. Marina Shabunova Reglina, a cheerful redhead of 31, and a surgeon with 27 years' practice. Her husband, also a doctor, died a year ago. Her daughter is a doctor too.

Her clinic has 43 doctors, only four of them men, and includes 27 obstetricians, five pediatricians and some gynaecologists. There are 118 nurses and nannies.

Patients may bring only reading matter with them if the books are new. Used books might carry germs. No visitors are allowed, not even husbands.

NO PRIVATE ROOMS

There are no private rooms. Most patients go into 16-bed wards. After delivery women go into a ward reserved for the births of that day.

The babies are kept in separate wards, too, according to day of birth. They are taken to their mothers only at feeding hours.

Most women stay in the clinic 10 days—three days before childbirth, a week or so afterward.

Russian hospital beds are narrow, compared to ours, and have no lift-device for the heads. Russian bed sheets combine a border in which the blankets are inserted for cleanliness. Hotels use the same type of sheet.

TASTY MEAL

I had a meal in the hospital kitchen. It was typical Russian food, but tastier and less greasy than at Moscow's Metropole Hotel.

There was a vegetable soup, meat patties, mashed potatoes, carrots and black kasha, a barley-type of dry black gruel which I loathe.

Dessert was a fruit compote—essentially a glass of fruit juice, a few prunes and slices of apple. I didn't care for it. Patients can have all the bread they like, butter and bread.

Without exception the women were cheerful and clearly believed they were getting the finest medical care which modern medicines and other services are free. They laughed and joked, willingly posed for pictures.

Successful Spring Supper Sponsored By Shannonville WMS

The members of the W.M.S. of Shannonville United Church put on the annual spring supper on Friday in the church hall. Although it was chilly outside, the lovely potted violets on the tables gave a touch of spring to the cozy room, where the delicious meal was served.

Moving pictures were shown in the church by Mrs. Ross Shetler; Mrs. Raymond Clarke played piano and the films were being changed.

Mrs. Harry Sine, church pianist, played a selection on the piano. At the close of this fine, enjoyable entertainment, the Rev. L. W. Scott, minister, thanked the ladies for the good supper and Mrs. Clarke and Mrs. Sine for the music and Mrs. Shetler for showing the pictures.

The proceeds were gratifying to the members who worked hard to make the supper successful. The W.M.S. wishes to express its hearty thanks to CJBQ for the announcement on "Around the Bay program."

CARE OF THE HAIR

Give Your Hair the Air

"Freedom from care" is a grand thing for all of us but it does not apply to the hair—as some women seem to fancy. They go from one wave set to another with the result sure never disarranged by a single application of the hair brush. It is combed over lightly, and the blood supply which nourishes the little shafts is never encouraged to function as it should. Brushing stimulates the glands in the scalp and provides lustre to the growth.

Hair is composed of three layers —the outer one or cuticle, the middle one called the cortex, and the inner structure which is the medulla or marrow channel. The cuticle is composed of overlapping cells which emerge from the papilla in the scalp in which the hair root rests. In the medulla is the coloring matter. A shaft might be compared to a glass tube, getting coloring from its contents. When the pigment disappears—and why it does, nobody knows—the hair becomes white.

Cleanliness, brushing and massage are the best known means of keeping the hair and scalp in condition for the health, of course, may be as influence, although there are plenty of healthy men with bald heads and frail women with abundant tresses.

Careless shampooing can cause trouble as soap particles left on the scalp may interfere with the normal functioning of the glands. Cosmetic chemists have given us excellent shampoo mediums, but even the best of them must be completely rinsed away. This is possible only by using a bath spray and a strong current of water.

The manner in which the hair is arranged should be changed now and then as settings, continued through the years, may widen. Tresses should have ventilation. Give your hair the air by running your fingers through it. Lifting it, brushing it strand by strand, holding the hair away from the head, using the brush with a rolling motion.

The best brush, the kind that beautifies, use, is narrow with bristles of different lengths set in groups. Such a brush can easily be kept clean.

Lady-in-Waiting Named to Attend British Princess

LONDON (CP) — Lady Moyra Hamilton, 29-year-old daughter of the Duke and Duchess of Abercorn, has been appointed first lady-in-waiting to Princess Alexandra, only daughter of the Duchess of Kent.

News of the appointment appears to mean Princess Alexandra's 21-year-old princess will make her social debut this summer, and suggests she will soon begin carrying out public engagements on her own.

It was announced Friday that the princess and her mother will make an official visit to eastern Canada in August and September. They will also visit Northern Ireland for four days at the end of May.

Princess Alexandra now is in France where she has spent several months at the home of the Comte de Paris near Paris. She receives her first lady-in-waiting almost a year sooner than did Princess Margaret and almost three years earlier than the Queen, then Princess Elizabeth.

Lady Moyra, slim and dark-haired, served as a maid-of-honor at the Queen's coronation. Her home is in Baronscourt, County Tyrone, Northern Ireland.

CIVIL WAR VETERAN DIES

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Thomas Evans Riddle, just two weeks shy of his 106th birthday, died Friday night, leaving only four surviving veterans of the 3-year civil war. He died at the Texas Confederate Home where he had played dominoes, met old friends and slept in bed most of the time since January, 1930. He had wanted to live to be 110.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

SHALL SHE TELL HER BOY FRIEND SHE DATED A FORMER FRIEND?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

For nearly four years I went with a certain boy and put up with the way he treated me, which was like dirt. Just before he went overseas, I came to with him to go with one of his best friends.

A few weeks ago, the first fellow came back from overseas, and that was the first time he ever told me he loved me. Without thinking first, I went out with him, and I learned then that I no longer cared for him and that I am in love with the other fellow.

My old boy friend promised he wouldn't tell the one I have been going with, but I know he will because they see each other every day and I know the one I don't love will do anything now to hurt me.

Shall I tell my boy friend myself? I'm afraid he won't believe that he is the one I love, and will hate me. But I am nearly 20 now and am sure he is the one I want.

Please tell me what I should do before he finds out what I did.

D.M.G.

Dear D.M.G.:

The only thing for you to do, I should think, is to tell your boy friend with the boy you like and tell him everything you've told me. It seems to me you have put yourself in a spot where, if there is danger of his boy friend finding out, it's likely to happen anyhow, because he probably will hear from some one having gone out with someone else, you seem to be sure you don't love him, so be by himself. So don't you think you had better be the one to tell him? He gets the idea that you did something you didn't want to with him. He's not going to make him feel kindly toward you, whereas if you are honest enough to tell him, he will be willing to forget all about it.

A CONFUSING QUESTION ABOUT A BRIDAL PARTY

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My mother and father are dead. Is it necessary for my oldest brother to take their place at the bridal party or are the bride's parents enough?

Mr. Boston

Dear Mr. Boston: Yes, I am sure I'm confused. Whose bridal party are you talking about—your own, or that of some other member of your family, and in what way do you think your oldest brother might take the place of your parents?

I suggest that you, or anyone else who has questions about organizing a wedding, might go to your public library and ask there for books on the subject. There are many good ones, and I'm sure you will find in them answers to any questions that may be in your mind.

Club Activities

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

THE USE OF "JUNIOR"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please answer this "controversy" we are having: Is it correct to discontinue the "Jr." in a name when the son's father and mother are deceased?

J.T.

The customary procedure is that, on the death of the father, the son drops the "Jr." from his name, and becomes, say, simply John Thompson. However, there are some circumstances in which the son continues to use the "Jr." for example: (1) When the father has been so celebrated that the son is willing to use this famous name, and so retains "Jr." after his father. Also: (2) It is often desirable and most practical, for business or professional purposes, that the son retain the "Jr." in his name, thus continuing to use the form of name he has used to establish himself in his field, in this case the "Jr." is regarded as a significant and permanent part of his name.

Incidentally, when junior is abbreviated. It is spelled with a capital—"Jr." It is only when it is spelled in full, that the small letter is used. . . "junior."

UNEVEN NUMBER OF BRIDES-MAIDS AND USHERS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I plan to have as my bridal attendants a sister of honor and two bridesmaids. My fiance plans to have a best man and four ushers.

(1) Would the be correct?

(2) In what order is the order of the Processional and Recessional?

Bride-to-be

(1) Yes. . . whatever is the preference of the bride and groom as to the number of attendants, is correct. (As long as there are enough ushers to seat the guests).

(2) Processional first, the four ushers, two by two, the bridesmaids, together; next the matron of honor, alone; and last, you and your father, who will escort you. Recessional: first, you and the bridegroom; next, the matron of honor, either alone or, customarily nowadays, with the best man; next the two bridesmaids, together, as in the Processional; and last, the four ushers, two by two, as in the Processional.

(It would be a possible plan, of course, for two of the bridesmaids to be paired off with two of the ushers, the other two ushers walking together last to the Recessional. . . but to my taste, this would not be in such good form as having the Recessional the reverse of the Processional.)

Grey and Pastel Shades Will Be Predominant

By CHRISTINE SIROIS

Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — A spring preview of summer fashions indicates that grey and pastel shades will be the predominant colors in a variety of new designs for hot weather wear.

The preview was staged by a dress-manufacturing firm and displayed designs by two young Montrealers, Cecile Robert and Florence Kourl.

I. Niven, head of the company, who has been in the dress business for more than 35 years, says he has found that more sophisticated clothes are the fashion in eastern Canadian cities. In the West, women tend to be more practical.

The preview, one of the first all-Canadian styles given in the Montreal area, included models to clarify both the sophisticated and the practical woman.

For the city girl were two-piece costumes—short-sleeved sheath dresses with low necklines and jackets of matching or contrasting colors. A fitted linen black sheath was topped by a flying white jacket trimmed with black.

SMART ENSEMBLE

Another ensemble featured a duster with elbow length sleeves in a pastel mauve polished cotton print. It was worn over a slim dress of solid lilac linen. A double row of buttons closed the diagonally cut bodice and was spaced down the skirt side.

A simple coat with a white linen dress, scoop-necked, worn under a topcoat of coral satin cotton. The coat had no collar and was fitted.

The preview indicated that skirts have a tendency to be narrower this year. The few swing skirts displayed had their own crinoline.

Materials were polished cottons, silk and orlon and silk and cotton combinations. Prints were bigger, popular and dots were many.

Prices of the dresses shown ranged from $30 to $60.

Although Canadian-designed and Canadian-made, the dresses were made of imported fabrics.

Separates Look Sweet And Lovely

Softer sports suits, many new sports costumes in general mean feeling of youth and vigor typify this season's separates. This spring's fit is more pronounced, softer and rounded. Shoulders are low and there is pretty lap detail.

In sportswear, the boxy jacket is leader; but even the box gives a suggestion of nipping at the waist. Coming up in the fashion forefront is the bolero top, which introduces back blousing or pleating.

The barrel jacket looks new in lightweight pastel-colored fabrics. All are cropped short and take well to ensemble combinations.

The newest skirts are full all-around pleated or with six to eight gores and lined with taffeta for flare. Most skirts are slim and wasted or tucked at the top for smooth hip fit. Kick pleats front and back allow easy movement.

Soft tweeds and flannels make most slim sport skirts, and one-side detail — such as pockets — or new-cut pockets — is a spring signature.

FEMININE BLOUSES.

Heaven bless this spring offer, the utmost in sweet femininity. Because top interest in feminine blouses are styled to catch the eye and set the scene for many sports suits. Ruffles and interesting necklines are prime features, backed up by shoulder interest in pleated sleeves.

Dressy blouses tend to be fuller through the bust, with detailing principally detailed in front. Ruffles around the collar or down the button placket are typical. Lace ruffles edge dark cottons. Eyelet appears in the high dress-up blouse. Checked gingham shirts have strips of smaller-check ruffles.

Shirts will be man-tailored for "little boy" look. Tucked fronts will be definitely ladylike. Tiny prints, pint-size Petse Pan gaiety and fashion-wise styling.

Fashion Flashes

Looks like the real accessory winner this year is going to be the flowered earring. There are cluster buttons of tiny fabric tea roses and lilies as well as deep wide groups of and other flowers—also deep drops of violets and roses. The fabrics, mostly silk are generously sprinkled with tiny rhinestones. Some have colored stones.

Cited for wear with elaborately jeweled sweaters is the skirt of three dress of rayon surah, white with tiny black dots. Cut on empire lines, the low, round neckline is piped and bowed in black velvet, as is the high, curved waistline. Skirt is full.

Also for wear with jeweled sweaters is the collar, dainty pocket detail will contract with the tailored cut.

White fingertip touches and cuffs add soft lower-profile additional top interest. Fabric favorites include fine broadcloth shirtings, calicoes and linens in the shirt division.

SURPRISE FABRICS.

40th Infantry Workshop of RCEME Sets Record for Improvisation

By JACK BRAYLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

IN KOREA (CP)—The wheels are kept spinning under the mobile

25th Canadian workshop by a unit that has established such a record for improvisation and native ingenuity that it's often used to help solve the problems of other United Nations formations.

It's the 40th Infantry workshop operated by the Royal Canadian Electrical and Mechanical Engineers and it's the rune one of the biggest garages on this front.

The 300-man workshop, soon to rotate to Canada and be relieved by the 2nd under Maj. Frank Coulfish of Petawawa, is supposed to concentrate on Canadian equipment. But as a generous gesture and in response to flattering respect, it also gives a hand in recovering, mending and renewing the equipment of neighboring Allied forces.

WORKING LONG HOURS

In January, when there was uncertainty about Chinese intentions, the RCEME craftsmen worked long hours seven days a week to bring every vehicle and piece of equipment in the brigade area to tip-top shape.

"There wasn't a beef from anybody," said Maj. Herb McManus of Vancouver, a commander officer. "Actually I think we all welcomed it because it made the time go faster."

One of the big jobs in this land of tortuous winding highways, soft road shoulders and steep cliffsides is the recovery and salvage operations. Crews for this work are on duty 36 hours a day.

It's amazing how little traffic man Allen McNabb of Hull, Que., almost out of sight behind the wheel of a 17-ton winch and towing lorry, can manoeuvre his monster like a jeep on a narrow mountain road and salvage a crashed vehicle from an inaccessible perch.

Under the sympathetic eye of WO. Ivan Greenham of London, Ont., and Halifax, the workshop has taken a personal interest in a couple of war rehargees. Both have come across the border from Red China since 1950.

Dulles said this aid is in addition to the "artillery, ammunition and equipment generally which comes from Communist China."

The secretary also said the Chinese Reds are maintaining communication lines for the Vietminh.

Dulles said that's why the air and naval build-up is probable" in North Korea. He added that the neutrali-upervisory commission is prevented by the Communists from entering North Korea.

URGES SOLIDARITY

Dulles urged free world nations to rally behind the French Union contingents in Indo-China to reach Communists they cannot smash freedom by "massive suicidal attacks."

The need of the hour is solidarity on the part of the free world," he said, "and notably on the part of those nations which have a direct and vital stake in the freedom of the area.

"The governments of France and of the associated states ought not to feel that they stand apart in an hour of supreme trial."

President Eisenhower has said he will request $3,500,000,000 to continue "foreign aid until mid-1955 out of $4,000,000,000 from last years. The details may not reach congress until next month.

Chinese Experts Aiding Vietminh Dulles Declares

WASHINGTON (AP) —State Secretary Dulles told a Congressional Committee today Chinese Communists are "coming awful close" to Indo-China to the direct aggression which he has said might produce massive retaliation.

Dulles made this statement before a House of Representatives foreign affairs committee after saying frankly intelligence reports showed that new Communist radar-controlled 37-millimetre anti-aircraft guns, which are bringing down French planes over Dien Bien Phu are "operated by members of the Chinese military establishment."

The secretary, testifying on next year's U.S. foreign aid program, also said a Chinese general with "nearly a score of Chinese technical advisers is operating the staff headquarters of Vietminh forces attacking the French fortress.

MANY REDS HELPING

This was the first official statement that Chinese Communists are taking a combat role in the bitter Indo-China struggle"

Answering questions after he concluded formal testimony on next year's foreign aid bill, Dulles also said:

"Numerous other" Chinese Communist technical advisers are operating at division level with the Vietminh forces.

Approximately 1,000 trucks are "all driven by Chinese army personnel" and about that number have come across the border from Red China since 1950.

Dulles said this aid is in addition to the "artillery, ammunition and equipment generally which comes from Communist China."

The secretary also said the Chinese Reds are maintaining communication lines for the Vietminh.

Dulles said that's why the air and naval build-up is probable" in North Korea. He added that the neutrali-upervisory commission is prevented by the Communists from entering North Korea.

McCarthy in Four Years Has Become National Figure

By REUMAN MORIN

WASHINGTON (AP) —A great controversy today whirls about the figure of burly, dark-haired Senator Joseph R. McCarthy—and the effects of his one - man - ganged method of searching for Communists in government, education and industry.

It is only four years since McCarthy, then a platform in Wheeling, West Va., held up a sheet of paper and said: "I have here in my hand a list . . ." He told his listeners it contained the names of known Communists working in the state department.

Between then and today, McCarthy has become a national issue in the United States. The inclusive term for the man and his works, McCarthyism, has become a common term. The controversy has stirred great passion, cast a shadow over the administration of many men, encouraged the informer, brought such terms as "guilty by association" and "consciousness of a startled and frequently indifferent citizenry.

He is the object of intense admiration and intense hostility. But one evidence is strong that the Wisconsin Red-hunter now is confronted by years of restraint.

COLLIDED WITH ARMY

The turning-point developed out of McCarthy's reverberating collision with the Army. It was centered on a closed hearing, he roughtongued Brig.-Gen. Ralph W. Zwicker, a decorated combat officer. He told Zwicker he was unfit to command and, by implication, unfit to wear the uniform of his country.

Shortly afterwards, the army—evidently with President Eisenhower's knowledge—issued a report that carried the fight into McCarthy's own office.

It asserted that Roy Cohn, the senator's young, fast-talking chief counsel, and his friend G. David Schine, as an army private, had been assigned unpaid consultant in McCarthy's office before he was drafted into the army.

McCarthy and Cohn not only denied this, but accused Acting Secretary Robert Stevens and army counsellor John Adams of "black mail." They said the two had tried to persuade McCarthy to break off his hearings on the army, using Schine as a "hostage."

Somebody, clearly, was juggling the truth. But even before this impasse, there were indications that pressures were building up against McCarthy within his own party.

People who should know describe President Eisenhower's attitude during the "black out" with McCarthy. He is not going to speak out himself, or by name, against McCarthy. He considers this inconsistent with the dignity of his office.

OPPOSING VIEWS HELD

Two influential New York newspapers on the same day expressed these opposing views:

Daily News—"By and large, we think McCarthy's heart is sparked in the right place, and that he is doing a job which badly needs to be done."

New York Times—"There is no the slightest doubt that the yawning before Mr McCarthy emerges from Wisconsin—where the American people and the American government stand on the question of Communism. . . . . The real and fundamental issue . . . is whether or not the American people are going to stand any longer for the disruption of orderly governmental processes that McCarthy and his kind represent."

Thousands of letters, reflecting these same thoughts, were flooding the offices of McCarthy and all those connected with the story.

FOLLOWERS ANTI-FUR

As he gained more and more supporters, McCarthy seems to have attracted to his banner thousands of people who opposed the late president Roosevelt's New Deal and President Truman's "Fair Deal." People who are against the United Nations, and the Marshall Plan, and advocate what used to be called isolationism, tended to rally around McCarthy.

Some tell him that they formerly supported the late senator Robert A. Taft. It may be that since Taft's death, McCarthy has come to be a rallying point for many of Taft's followers.

Some Republicans today question the extent of his political value to the party. Few did in the summer and fall of 1952.

The great source of opposition arises from his methods. (McCarthy has many methods. The case of Theodore Kaghan illustrates some of the factors that have stirred white-hot feeling against McCarthy.

Kaghan came to New York in his early '20s from the University of Michigan in the years immediately prior to 1929 he admitted attending Communist meetings and writing some plays that could be called "radical."

In 1945, he went to Austria as an information officer and later to Germany. He came home with impressive testimonials to his efficiency, ability and anti-communism.

ASKED FOR PROOF

McCarthy, however, examined Kaghan extensively on his "background"—the years of his youth in New York. Kaghan said that when he realized the implications of communism, he had discontinued his associations in New York.

McCarthy asked him to give some concrete proof of that "reform," and suggested that naming the people he knew to be Communists during this period would be considered evidence of a change of heart.

Kaghan refused. He offered his work in Europe as the best proof of his anti-Communist sentiments.

In the end, Kaghan was forced to resign. When he returned to New York, he had difficulty finding employment. James Wechsler, managing editor of the New York Post—who also had been examined by McCarthy's committee—offered him a job on The Post's overnight cable desk. Kaghan said, "Thanks, but I'm not that hungry."

FINALLY ACCEPTS POST

Kaghan says he soon learned that he had become a controversial figure." After a month, he discovered that he was "that hungry." He is on The Post cable desk now.

The charge is often made that cases like these deter men from going into government service. And that when they do, they are careful not to express opinions—even in working out policy—that might rise to confront them later. The result has been, in the view of McCarthy's critics, to stifle ingenuity and originality in formulating American policy.

There are other results of the four years since the speech at Wheeling. Here are some:

Religious and racial feelings have been aroused. McCarthy has made criticism of Cohn and Schine "a flagrant example of anti-Semitism." Then, as a Roman Catholic, he clashed with the Democratic party's national chairman, Stephen Mitchell, also a Catholic, when Mitchell said of him: "I personally resent the insinuation of McCarthy's reputation to my church."

The J. B. Matthews case brought in the Protestants. Matthews wrote in a magazine article, "The largest single group supporting the Communist apparatus in the U.S. is composed of Protestant clergy." Matthews, who was staff director of the McCarthy committee, was stoutly defended by McCarthy. But President Eisenhower condemned "generalized and irresponsible attacks." Matthews resigned.

Big Three Meet To Draft Reply

instructors have been powerfully affected. Dr. Irwin Edman of Columbia University said students there are far less prone to engage in political activity than they used to be. The fact that FBI agents come back to check on them, after graduation, causes them to be timid about activities and associations while they are in school.

Apart from the controversial aspects of McCarthy's activities, the attention of Americans has been forcibly focussed on some particular parts of the government and constitution.

The bill of Rights and the concepts of civil liberties have been brought vividly to the consciousness of many people. The boundaries and functions of congressional investigating committees are being re-examined. People appear to be more aware of the struggle, over the years, between the presidency and the Congress.

These are the issues that try men's souls." But Tom Paine went on to say, of national ordeals: "Their peculiar advantage is that they are the touchstone of sincerity and quality, and bring things and men to light which might otherwise have lain forever undiscovered."

North Korea's Capital Being Rebuilt in Marble

TOKYO (AP) — Peiping radio says Communist North Korea's capital of Pyongyang is being rebuilt as a beautiful, modern metropolis—with a marble - paved "Stalin avenue." Stalin avenue, a recent Peiping broadcast said, will be 1½ miles long and 202 feet wide with a surface of marble bricks.

New buildings already planned include a 2,000-seat opera house, a five-storey hotel, a school for children of "Korea's heroes who died in the war," a big department store and the peoples academy of sciences.

A central square covering almost nine acres in the heart of the city also is planned. The radio said "it will be a focal point for mass meetings and will accommodate 200,000 people." In the centre of the square will be a bronze statue of Marshal Kim Il Sung, premier of North Korea.

CBC Will Curb 'Give-Aways' On Radio Shows

OTTAWA (CP) — A. D. Dunton, chairman of the CBC board of governors, Monday announced that the board plans to hold public hearings to check radio give-away stunts, the number of these prize-giving schemes is reduced in coming months.

In an announcement following last week's meeting of the board of governors, Mr. Dunton said the board "plans to watch the situation in the coming months. If there is no improvement it intends to hold public hearings regarding the possibility and advisability of a regulation which would check such prize schemes depending mainly on chance, on cue-words and situations, and so you'd put all concerned on an equal footing."

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—Prime Minister Mohammed Ali of Pakistan has again written to Prime Minister Nehru of India urging a meeting between them this month to discuss their dispute over Kashmir, according to Indian external affairs officials.

Political circles here do not believe Nehru will agree to any meeting before the scheduled meeting of Asian prim ministers at Colombo April 28.

Reliable sources say Ali's note—his second since early in February —strengthens Pakistan's view that United States arms aid to Pakistan should not influence the two countries' previous commitments to decide the future of Kashmir by plebiscite. Both countries, predominantly Moslem, is at present in the Indian union.

Punchless 'Punch Line' May Cause Shake-Up In Canadiens' Starting Trios

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

TONIGHT WILL TELL!

It just goes to show that the old grey-thatched sports cliche, "a champ tonight and a chump tomorrow," holds good, if only temporarily.

A few days ago Montreal hockey writers were bally-hooing the exploits of what they dubbed the "Sizzler" line, of Dickie Moore, Jean Marc Bellivean and "Boom-Boom" Geoffrion to the highest peak.

Sunday night the "Sizzlers" squizzled out when they met a new-punching punch-line wearing the Detroit Red Wings colors in the form of Gordie Howe, Ted Lindsay and Alex. Delvicchio, aided and abetted by the eazly-season rookie sensation, Dutch Reibel.

But while the "Sizzle" line, with the exception of "Boom-Boom" was fizzling out, the big question down in the eastern metropolis is "What is wrong with the Canadiens' "punch line" of Rocket Richard, Ken Mosdell and Bert Olmstead? The darlings of the Forum and points east have contributed little more than trimmings to the Habitant cause thus far in the Stanley Cup playoffs. In fact the de-fused trio has yet to score an assist in the chr-east cup-hunting safari.

Referring to the "Sizzlers" one Montreal sports writer halo'd them as "each excelling in a particular department. Beliveau plots the tactics and co-ordinates the plays. Geoffrion is the top marksman, the rifle on the line, while Moore is the sparkplug, the Ted Lindsay type."

"Take them as a unit. They fit together like three coats of paint, but it is co-ordination, the way they play and think together that makes the experts predict great things for them."

The "Sizzlers" certainly lived up to that ballyhoo Sunday night. They played and thought together like a unit all right but that is all they did. They played and thought, but produced nothing.

But one swallow does not constitute a binge, and it is quite likely the dour, shrewd-thinking Dick Irvin will have had something to say by this time.

Reports from Montreal state he will use the same line-up for the second game with the National League champions tonight in Detroit's Olympia.

The terrific scoring punch of the "Sizzle Line" in the semi-finals against Boston rated them as the line to win the Stanley peerwaree for the colorful Habitants but apparently they forgot to reckon with Jolly Jawn Adams' crew in whose bosoms rankle the defeat handed them by the Boston Bruins a year ago.

The Wings proved Sunday night they are far from the team that played lackadaisical hockey against the Beanbowers in 1953 and all probability they will step on the ice tonight with nothing much more in mind than to prove to the Irvinites that Sunday's sparkling effort was no flash in the pan.

But do not sell the Canadiens short. They could be defeated four in a row, stranger things have happened, but they probably will be a lot tougher team to beat on Forum ice than on that of the Motor City.

However, if you believe in statistics and past history, in the 21 series the Wings have captured over the years, 19 were won after they took the opening game.

And here's a side note:—Linesman Sammy Babcock, who has plenty of coins hurled at him by irate fans, opened a bank account at the start of the season for the money he picks up off the ice. At present he has $74.37 in the account.

WIDE OPEN!

There was something of the Alphonse-Gaston spirit in the Forum Anne-Marmora Millionaires Trent Valley League finals opener last night. It was put-and-take in a wide-open, free-scoring game that had the goalies puck-dizzy and the scorekeepers praying for adding machines. The Pointers tucked the pastime away by an 11-8 score after a recount was completed for the goals came so fast in the third local nothing but an octopus could have been at ease with a dozen pencils. Ten goals, count 'em, reared into the respective twines in the puck-wacky third session, six of them for the Pointers. In fact the Anderson crew whistled home five in a row but the Millionaires roared back with with four straight just to show there were no hard feelings.

The Pointers held a 4-2 first period lead and were never headed, although outscored 2-1 in the second frame. 1,000 spectators saw the game and Marmora arena will probably be packed tomorrow night when the teams meet in the second of the best-of-seven series.

Richard, Olmstead, Mosdell Yet to Score Playoffs Point; Irvin Issues Stern Warning

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

DETROIT (CP)—The possibility of a shakeup in Montreal Canadiens' starting lines began to crystallize early today and there were two situations in the making. One was borne of undisguised concern among the Montreal higher brass and the other of necessity.

They dealt with the ineffectual work of the first line and a knee injury that may keep little Paul Meger out of action.

The punch line of Maurice Richard, Ken Mosdell and Bert Olmstead hasn't scored a point in five Stanley Cup playoff games so far. Their ineptness reached the state of acuteness Sunday night when Detroit Red Wings banged out a 3-1 win in the opening game of the cup final.

Dick Irvin, coach of the cup defenders, said Monday night:

"I haven't made up my mind yet. But if that line doesn't get going there will be changes all right and they could come early in the middle of Tuesday's game."

LACH NOT INVOLVED

Asked if Elmer Lach, veteran centre, figured in any possible plans, Irvin replied: "No, not now."

Irvin also said he is considering using five defencemen and working only three intact lines, a departure from his usual game strategy of four full lines and four defencemen.

This shift most likely would come about if Meger were unable to play. The little winger injured the muscles in the back of his left knee during Sunday's game.

While Detroit's first line of Gord Howe, Ted Lindsay and Alex Delvecchio has gladdened the heart of coach Tommy Ivan, the failure of Richard to score has baffled the Montreal followers.

TOP GOALGETTER

Richard finished the National Hockey League season as top goaltgetter with 37. In the previous nine years he has participated in playoffs he has never failed to score at least one goal and has set playoff records that still stand.

His 54 goals and 79 total points lead all other players in those departments. He holds the record of 12 goals in a full series—in nine games in 1944—and a record of five goals in one playoff game, the same year. Last year in 12 games of semi-final and final series he scored seven goals. His poorest year, one goal, was in 1950 when he played in five games.

While Canadiens did all the worrying, Red Wings remained at their Toledo hideout, 60 miles away, confidently awaiting the second game.

If the Wings win the second game the odds on them to take the series will soar.

2-TO-1 FAVORITES

The Wings now are 2-to-1 favorites or a little better to take the series.

Word came from Toledo that Ivan hasn't the slightest intention of monkeying with the winning combination that turned aside Toronto Maple Leafs in the semi-final and now has the jump on Canadiens.

If there is any change in prospect, said a spokesman, it would be only a minor one.

This would indicate that Earl Reibel, the rookie who clicked with Detroit's second goal Sunday night, will remain in the role of extra forward for use when the Red Wings have a manpower advantage.

Cooke Boils, Simmers Then Cools Off

ORLANDO, Fla. (CP) — Florida police officials said Jack Kent Cooke, owner of Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League, Monday threatened that his club was "never coming back again" to Florida for spring training gif pooling pressed a traffic charge against him.

Police Justice E. G. Duckworth said Cooke later apologized and posted a $35 bond on a charge of improper passing on the highway.

Duckworth said that after his arrest, the Leaf owner also threatened to give Orlando and Florida "a bad name" through his Canadian publications, which he described as having a combined circulation of 4,000,000.

Cooke is president and publisher of New Liberty magazine and president of Consolidated Press which publishes Saturday Night and the Canadian Homes Journal. He is also owner of radio station CKEY Toronto.

The justice added that after consulting a lawyer, Cooke "presented his apology and—we were so far as to invite me up to Canada to speak."

The Leafs have been training at Haines City, southwest of here.

ORFU Squads To Post Bond

TORONTO (CP)—Harold Bailey, secretary of the Ontario Rugby Football Union, says all four teams in the union's senior league must post $5,000 bonds instead of the previous $500.

Bailey said Monday night there were reports that only Brantford Redskins would have to supply the increased bond.

The ORFU decided to toost the bond at a meeting here last week-end. It re-admitted the Redskins, who failed to win a game last year, on condition that the $5,000 bond is posted as protection against the financial failure that club might ask to withdraw in mid-season.

"The increased bond applies to all teams in the league," Bailey said.

Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen, Sarnia Imperials and Toronto Balmy Beach are the other three teams in the league.

Maurie Kanppi of the Wolves received the puck after the face-off and fired a hard shot from right wing. Gillson kicked it to the corner for his last save of the night.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

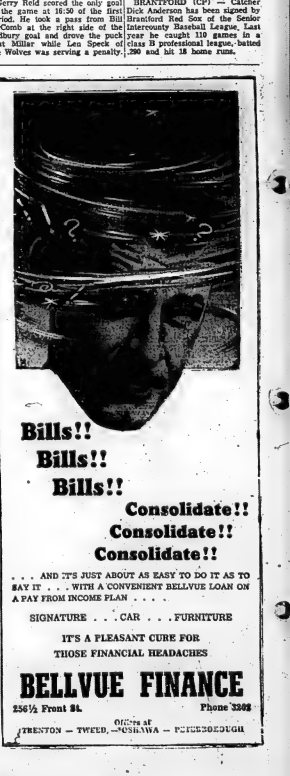
It is now quite unthinkable that, suggested as a possibility, Canada should withdraw from further representation in what is known as the "world's hockey series."

Russia made such a withdrawal quite inconceivable, by the simple process of defeating the Canadian team, in one of the great sports upsets of all time. For this was Russia's first entry into these championships, the quality of the Soviets was held in light esteem, and so the defeat was all the more stunning, all the more calculated to provide Moscow propaganda machine with rich material for sounding the glory of the Soviet athletes.

Under these circumstances, suffering from one of the most humiliating defeats inflicted upon its forces in the game at which they are famous in reality rule the world, Canada can not possibly retire until a day of reckoning has extinguished the fires of arrogant bluster which this triumph is certain to set alight in the Soviet press.

For retirement at this point would be rated as sheer defeatism, and indeed it would be very difficult, practically impossible, to convince other European nations that Canada's supremacy in its greatest sport had not been taken over by Russia. And, what is much more important from the standpoint of national pride, it might be even more difficult to convince the world that Canada has had hotfily taken the childish, unsportsmanlike attitude: "If we can't win, we won't play."

It has been said that, in view of the public's unfavorable attitude towards the club, Canada should quit this synthetic world series; synthetic, that is, in its title qualities, though definitely real in the number of competing nations.



Quit! That's not in Canada's sports lexicon. We've never been quitters nor cry-babies in any competitive sport. And if Canada quits now in defeat, those are stigmas that will be hung upon us, nationally.

What champion doesn't get an unfavorable reception when he invades foreign soil? Did those advocating Canada's withdrawal ever hear the Detroit Red Wings cheered in, say Toronto or Gordie Howe applauded when he invades the domain of his rival, Rocket Richard?

The jeers, in such cases, and in Canada's overseas-hockey case too, are real tributes to greatness. Anyone can get cheers at home. Jack Dempsey was one of the most unpopular figures in ringdom while he was champion. Thousands rooted regularly for his defeat. Dempsey went out fighting, and so turned mob dislike to fanatic hero-worship.

Canada can do the same. If we're going to retire, let's do so as champions, not in the face of defeat, inflicted by an underrated opponent.

Pt. Anne Defeats Marmora In Trent Loop Finals Opener

By GARRY ALEXANDER

The Point Anne Comentmen took a 4-0 lead in their hunt for the Trent Valley Hockey League championship last night, whipping the Marmora Millionaires 11-6, in a wide-open game that saw ten goals scored in the third period.

The southern - section champs took a 4-2 lead in the first period were still out front at the end of the second by a 5-4 score and then went on to blast home six in the final twenty minutes while Marmora scored four.

Point Anne was in danger of being overtaken after the second stanza when Marmora had outscored them 3-1 but they went to work early and beat Killian five times without an answer in seven minutes. The tide changed at this point with the Millionaires fighting against a sag-goal deficit. They roared in on the Point goalie and by 11.32 they had netted the game winner. Jones to Jones in 10-8 score and put them right back in the game.

Gerry Gover's third goal of the night was the stanza's first as he rammed a low 14.13, with Marmora, now inspired by their own comeback, pushing at every opportunity. Gerry stole the puck off the stick of a defenceman, went in to the goalie's doorstep, drew him out and flipped the puck into the twine for a 11-8 score.

Williams, of the Point, drew first blood at the three minute mark in the game but Smith and Darrah combined to knot the count with the latter doing the trigger. Pat Gilmour got the next one for the Cementmen at 9.36 and less than two minutes later Sam Mulholland backhanded one from outside the blue line into the net, made it 3-1.

The Gover brothers hooked up for the next goal with Gerry taking the puck from Leo and going in close before firing into the net. Lavender cut that lead just before the period ended when he scored after he, Leonard and K. Trumble had passed the puck all around Slater net.

George Jacklin put the Anderson-Williams crew out front 5-3 at 9.35 of the middle stanza when he tipped in Billy Strahan's shot after Strahan had taken a pass from Gilmour.

Leonard got one back after thirteen minutes of play with Jones and Mantle drawing assists and then at 17.13 Lavender took Lovelace' pass to make it 5-4 and set the stage for the seven goal period scoring spree.

Jacklin, Mulholland, G. Gover, Jacklin again and L. Gover, beat Killian like they were playing Jones, Jones, Brooks and Lavender getting Marmora's quickies before Gerry Gover had the last word.

Gerry Gover had three goals and one assist to give the winners, along with Pat Gilmour who notched one and a trio of assists. Jacklin had three goals while Mulholland got two and one assist.

Lavender had the hat trick for Marmora, with Leonard, Jones, Darrah and Loveless picked up one goal apiece on assists to round out the scoring.

Nine penalities were handed out before the 1,000 spectators with the Orchard Park crew the odd one, all were of the minor nature.

The next game of the best-of-seven series is slated for Wednesday night in the Marmora arena.

Canadian Coach Confident Boxers Will Win Some Titles

WINNIPEG (CP)—Gordon Macbeth, coach of Canada's boxing team for the July 30-Aug. 7 British Empire Games at Vancouver, believes Canada has a better chance of winning some titles.

The 33-year-old Winnipeg-born coach is a firm believer in condition. Given a free hand, he says, Canada's team is top shape, he said in an interview.

He picks good work as "one of the most important parts of boxing conditioning."

ON THE UPGRADE

Recently returned from amateur championships in Vancouver, Macbeth said the Canadian fighters were there, along with the calibre of eastern boxers lately appearing here, suggest that boxing is more definitely on the upgrade."

"We should really make a good showing at the Empire Games."

Macbeth is well-known in western Canada and the mid-west United States.

Last fall, he was appointed assistant trainer of the army football team at Fort Polet, Wis., coached by Col. Earl (Red) Blaik.

He has a chance to return to West Point this year, and might accept if he is offered a full-time position, working mostly in construction during the winter and as a trainer or assistant for the army's football and baseball teams.

He now is negotiating with coach Annis Stukus to train British Columbia Lions, next entry in the Interprovincial Football Union.

Born in Winnipeg, Jan. 17, 1922, Macbeth took up boxing as a hobby at 17 and two years later entered competitions. He joined the army in 1940 and fighting as a middleweight won 31, drew two and lost only two in 25 bouts.

After his discharge in 1945, Macbeth turned professional but after nine fights decided he did not care for the pro game. His record of six wins, one draw and two losses.

Macbeth reinstated as an amateur in 1949, appeared in five invitation bouts and won them all. He did not enter any championships or take part in any further bouts because, as he put it at that time:

"I did not get reimgated to fight. I prefer to be known as an amateur and assist wherever I can."

WIDE EXPERIENCE

While a pro in Montreal, Macbeth worked at the Montreal YMCA and later transferred to the Montreal "Y" as assistant health director and boxing instructor. After one season he resigned and took a post-graduate course in physical education at Chicago.

He returned to Winnipeg and opened his own health club and boxing gym. Calling Club is neighboring St. Boniface catering to business men's conditioning classes, boxing, wrestling, weight-lifting, physiotherapy and hydrotherapy. He left the club to act as assistant's hands while at West Point last fall for four months.

In his off hours in recfnt years, he also has been physical training instructor for the RCAF and trainer for the Manitoba interprovincial football league champs, St. Boniface Canadiens junior hockey club, and boxing instructor at the YMHA.

Nips Flip Tips From Kenora Thistles In Successful Japanese Puck Tour

By BILL BECKER

TOKYO (AP)—Japanese hockey teams, still relatively green but eager to learn, picked up a lot of tips on the fine points of the game from Kenora Thistles during their 10-game exhibition tour.

The Thistles, who departed for Canada from Yokohama Monday, left behind a 9-1 record for games. They were most impressed by the ability of the Japanese to learn.

"The Japanese players improved with every game," said Bob Robertson, coach and defenceman for the Western Canada Intermediate championship team on the last leg home.

Ray Westlund, Kenora forward, agreed. "These Japanese sure catch on fast. They keep improving. At first they did not shoot enough. Later they kept pumping that puck at the goal all through the game."

Goalie Jim Johnson said the Japanese gave him a much stiffer workout in later games of the tour.

Johnson also had praise for the Japanese goaltenders. "They have good reflexes and they're built up an amazing number of shots."

"WONDERFUL" SKATERS

The Canadians were impressed by the ability of the Japanese players to skate. "They are wonderful skaters," said Johnson. Added Ken (Sugar) Robertson, one of the Thistles' defence brothers on the team, said: "They never stop skating. They have lots of it and they start it any time they want to. They are weak on finishing up their plays. I think that's a lack of experience."

Don Robertson said the chief difference in Japanese players and was size. "They just aren't big enough."

The Japanese players spent a lot of time on the seats of their pants during games when they barged into the Canadians, who have weight advantages up to 50 pounds.

Picks 'Bums' Over Milwaukee Braves, But It Will Be Close, Says Talbot

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—It will take a far braver man than this reporter to pick against the Brooklyn Dodgers in the coming National League race. Unless I'm badly mistaken the Milwaukee Braves will not again finish second and make a show of the field in September.

Our only clearly defined hunch is that the Bums have been in No. 1 and No. 2 teams at season's end will be much less than 1953's games if not all fall, especially if Bobby Thomson's broken ankle heals rapidly and the rest of the Braves' outfield by a month from this date.

There seems little doubt that the entire league has tightened up to some extent, at least down through Cincinnati Reds, who finished sixth last year. Here is the consensus of best guess:

(1) Brooklyn, (2) Milwaukee, (3) New York, (4) St. Louis, (5) Philadelphia, (6) Cincinnati, (7) Chicago, (8) Pittsburgh.

There is only one important change from the order of the 1953 finals. The New York Giants, who wound up a disorganized fifth last year, are picked over St. Louis Cards and the Phillies, who tied for third.

MAYS IMPROVES GIANTS

Reports from the exhibition trail say the Giants look like a different outfit since their fabulous young Negro outfielder, Willie Mays, returned from the army.

It is difficult to say that Cardinals have strengthened materially during the winter. They are not a fourth starting pitcher and they still are weak at first base.

The Reds are very sorry and their new manager, Birdie Tebbetts, swears they are going to climb. He has the physical power and needs only to come up with a couple of winning righthanded pitchers.

Chicago and Pittsburgh each appear to be about through next season's away from the first division.

American Team Enters Lacrosse

TORONTO (CP)—An intermediate lacrosse team from Lewiston, N.Y., is among 66 teams entered in the senior series for the 1954 Ontario Lacrosse Association season.

Secretary - treasurer Chuck Rowan said Monday the new entrant is slightly under an associate club rule whereby American and Canadian clubs may compete.

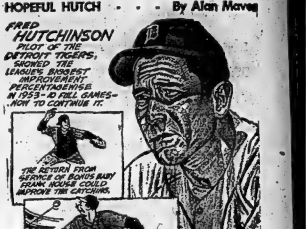
Lewiston has been associated with intermediate teams in Niagara district and other areas.

Swim Star Smashes Marks

TORONTO (CP)—Virginia Grant Toronto Aquatic Club's 18-year-old swimming star, established seven Canadian Junior records at a meet here Monday night.

She completed the 40-yard free style in 21.4 seconds, beating the old mark of 21.6 set by Joan Harper in 25.5 seconds, beating the previous best time of 25.6 established by Leonora Fisher of Ocean Falls, B.C., in 1952.

It was the first time that Virginia competed in a backstroke event and she was 12. She set records for the 100-yard and 50-yard free-style events at the Ontario Girls' championships here March 20.



Canadian Rye Most Popular Of All Drinks

OTTAWA (CP)—Drinking Canadians have a fondness for imported whisky and rum, but when it comes to over-all popularity, Canadian rye stands out in front.

Imported whisky appears to be a 2 to 1 choice over imported rum. But the total 2,317,286 gallons of whisky purchased last year ranked first, compared with about 9,500,000 gallons of Canadian rye sold in Canada in 1952.

The bureau of statistics said Monday figures for 1953 sales of Canadian-produced liquors are not yet available, but figures they supplied to a parliamentary return tabled in the Commons for Rev. E. G. Hansell (SC—Macleod).

Out-of-Town Burglars Got Small Reward

TRENTON, (Special.) — Out-of-town burglars got a small reward for a lot of trouble the other night.

Early Saturday night thieves broke into the Chainway Store and carried out a 150 pound safe. They total loot amounted to $1.25 left in an envelope in the strong box.

Local police investigating found that the burglars first broke into the boiler room at the rear of the store. Then they ripped out a piece of tin test covering the wall and found themselves standing in the hall way to the upstairs apartments. So they retraced their steps and made the conventional entry into the hallway. From there they cut out another piece of teh test which let them into the store.

An apartment dweller told police that he heard noises in the store in the first part of the evening. He said he figured someone had tried to break in through a wall in the hall because he noticed plaster and a piece of wallboard lying on the floor when he was on his way upstairs.

Local Firemen Busy People Over Week-End

TRENTON (Special) — Trenton's small war on fire force and the volunteers have had their hands full since Saturday. They have been called out no less than 12 times and yesterday were kept on the run during most of the daylight hours. They went out of Byron Street, south of the C.P.R. tracks for all of the three trucks at one time.

Firemen utilizing well water in the booster pump saved John F. M. Flindall's home in Murray township. A spark from the chimney caught in the roof and was burning furiously when the local fire fighters arrived.

Firemen paid a visit to George Leeman's home on Dundas Street and extinguished another chimney blaze at 2. Nopper's place on Cedar Street.

The longest run out of town was to Herb Clark's place at Gardenville. A pile of baled hay caught fire from a neighbor's grass fire and threatened to spread to a nearby barn. On the way back to town the firemen stopped in at Bill Fulford's at 12 O'clock Point where trouble had been reported.

During the day the firemen were summoned to fight grass fires on McNichol, Princess and Stanley Streets.

YOUTHS PICKED UP.

The law caught up with James Charnock and George Jones. They have been arrested and charged in connection with the theft of an oil stove and other house furnishings from Fred Soa's place off the Carrying Place Road a year ago. The Trenton youths were picked up by the Brighton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police.

CAR RADIO STOLEN.

Burton Wallace proprietor of the Sulvary Service Station, Trenton, had his car radio stolen in February, Brighton Provincial Police arrested suspect Harold Gray of Marmora yesterday. He has been charged and awaits trial at Brighton.

SPRING IS BROKEN.

C. Gauen of R.R.1, Trenton, found the spring rougher than usual while driving along Front Street the other day. At one point in particular he felt a terrific jolt and on examining his car found a broken spring.

EIGHT ANKLE BRUISED.

Paul Martin, 18, of 41 John Street suffered a bruised right ankle when the motorcycle he was riding skidded into the south curb on Dundas Street near the Victoria Street intersection. A car operated by Joseph Doyon, 22, of 149 King Street was crossing the east-main thoroughfare when the east-bound cycle rider avoided a collision by swerving to the right.

COLLECTORS OVER TOP.

Boorne, industrial committee chairman, Ted Parker; women's committee, Mrs. H. Ramsay Wright.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Bibliker

Bridge is crawling with no-trump bugs. The slight of major suits does not agitate them. But start showing minor suits and you will find them darting out from under the rocks of distribution.

It takes 11 tricks to make a game in a minor suit; ten when the suit is a major; only nine if played at no-trump. So, you find many players favoring no-trump because of the fewer tricks needed.

They will compromise on the middle course of a major suit bid. But show them the contract may end in a minor suit as trumps and they will switch to no-trump in preference.

This habit is not confined to stubborn players of only ordinary ability. Many of the highest rated masters fall for this temptation. This seems to put pants on the policy.

Even the best of them often take the worst of it by steering a minor suit into no-trump. Many a slam do they miss by doing it. But they still persist in gambling that no-trump is better.

If followed stubbornly, such a course is lending. Many are the cases where the contract will make in a minor suit when it will go down at no-trump. Less times is it, the other way around.

However, no-trump hounds quickly forget the hands they muff. They prefer to point their successful no-trump switches they made; usually because of some lucky lead or mistake of opponents.

Such was the case in the deal shown here:

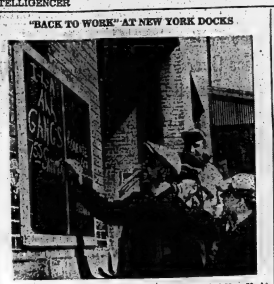
♥A 9 6 4 3 2
♦ 10 7 6
♣Q 2

WEST
♠10 9 6 4 3 2
♥J
♦Q 5
♣A J 9 7



EAST
♠Q 8 7
♥Q 10 8 7 5
♦A
♣K 10 8 6

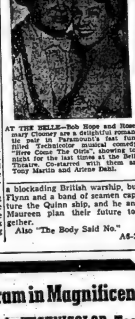
SOUTH
♠A K J
♥K
♦K 9 8 4 3 2
♣5 4 3

The contract belongs in four diamonds that will make against any lead if opponents take what they can, fast. But south landed in three no-trump that can be set with four clubs and the diamond ace.

The opening lead from west was a spade. Declarer fooled the east player into letting him make three no-trump. The clever hoax pulled by south is worth listening to. Wait and hear it.

"BACK TO WORK" AT NEW YORK DOCKS

Ending the most expensive strike in the history of New York's city docks, longshoremen of the International Longshoremen's union read the "back to work" notice on the notice bulletin board. The strike lasted for 25 days, causing bloodshed and rioting and diverted many ships that habitually tied up at New York docks to other ports. (Central Press Canadian).



DRIVE-IN THEATRE

"Against All Flags"

Errol Flynn and two scenes rose as British navy deserters to blow up the fortifications of an 18th century pirate stronghold. Suspecting they are spies, Anthony Quinn, the pirate leader, demands their death, but Maureen O'Hara, femme buccaneer, is attracted to Flynn and insists they be given a trial. Ordered to sail with Quinn, Flynn is on hand for the capture of the private ship of the Mogul of India, aboard which is Alice Kelley, the Mogul's fiancee. Aware that Alice's death would mean the slaughter of every Englishman in India, Flynn conceals her identity and completes a map of the pirated fortifications. Using Alice as a hostage, Quinn sails safely past a blockading British warship, but Flynn and a band of seamen capture the Quinn ship, and he and Maureen plan their future together.

NATO Scolds Juin for Attack On EDC Scheme

PARIS (AP) — The North Atlantic Council has delivered to France's marshal Alphonse Juin a severe and unprecedented reprimand for his criticism of the European Army treaty.

A resolution which the council voted Monday was delivered to the marshal, commander-in-chief of NATO forces in central Europe, today. It said:

"The North Atlantic council expresses its profound regret at the public statement made by the commander-in-chief of central Europe on 27 March, 1954, and subsequently reiterated. These statements are contrary to the explicit and repeated declarations of policy issued by the council under whose authority all NATO commanders hold their appointments."

Your Individual Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR WEDNESDAY, APRIL 7, 1954

March 2 to April 20 (Aries) — Between 8 a.m. and 2 p.m. planetary indications suggest you be careful in money dealings, signing contracts, leases. Devote sufficient time to everyday matters.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — No day for wild or loose action. Lean to the conservative. Well-and-see policies will be best—but not laziness! Personal wishes may have to yield to more general issues.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Your progress and opportunities will be determined largely by your own approach, conduct and your co-operation with associates. Benefits possible through study, research, conferences.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — Progress in substantial undertakings, mechanical and scientific fields. Do not strain to put over propositions for suggestions. Intend use reason, calm sufficiency.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Stimulating in part for business, professional, personal matters. Most new efforts and work done of prestige favored. Avoid excess optimism, however, thus to be found "napping."

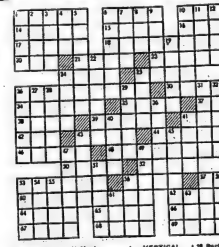
August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—You may have to put a little extra daylight in your personality. But be careful not to scatter energies. Heart interests hold an important key.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Concentration on stabilizing your assets. Don't let needless debts discredit you through thoughtlessness. Avoid that tempting buy, that extra good time in which you should not indulge.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—The A.M. will be most appropriate for reviewing activities, making revisions in plans, but don't go too far in this respect. Avoid anticipating; it may lead to false starts.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Time spent in self-development, making ready for problems is never lost. It saves time later, eliminating needless work and allowing for concentration on other matters. Forethought, tact today.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Conditions may not be entirely pleasing and in accordance with your whims now. Some unsatisfactory situations are only so on the surface, however. There is opportunity for the keen and energetic to make headway.



January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—With an honest, vigorous attack you can bring your boundaries and your capacity to carry through to proper completion.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—A double-job, logical attitude and a refusal to indulge in temperament will help to complete matters to credit. Whatever your trade or profession, there are good possibilities to be dug out.

YOU BORN TODAY are generally well balanced, reliable and patient. Many investors, doctors, lawyers, world travellers are found in this Sign. At times you are prone to haste and impulsive revelation of spirit. But withal, you have an affectionate nature and the mental ability to overcome obstacles. You are enterprising in business, science, the arts, music. Your ardent nature should have proper guidance. Birthday: St. Francis Xavier, "the apostle of Japan"; Wm. Wordsworth, English poet.

FOUR HUNGARIANS FLEE

GRAZ, Austria (AP)—Four Hungarians, among them two soldiers, have escaped to the British zone of Austria after travelling across Red-ruled Hungary, police here said Friday night. British occupation authorities refused to disclose how they made the flight.

See New Clash On Atomic Pact Likely to Occur

LONDON (CP)—A fresh clash between Sir Winston Churchill and the Labor Opposition in Parliament is threatened Thursday over the prime ministers disclosure of a secret atom treaty with the late President Roosevelt at Quebec in 1943.

Arthur Henderson, air minister in the late Labor government, announced today that he will ask Churchill to state government practice on public disclosure of secret treaties or agreements.

A major political storm over Churchill's disclosure Monday could temporarily today only be Parliament concentrated its attention on budget matters.

Home for Queen In Australia Is Considered

CANBERRA (AP) — Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies told the House of Representatives today that informal discussions have gone on for some time on the possibility of establishing a permanently designated home in Australia for the Queen.

He said if future visits by the Queen to this Commonwealth country followed the highly-organized pattern of the one she first completed, it would be difficult for her to come often.

But if Queen Elizabeth or some member of the Royal Family should set up a residence here, the prime minister said, it wouldn't be necessary to make each visit such an interminable affair.

The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh spent two months touring Australia and now are en route from the Cocos Islands to Ceylon.

STIRLING

Rev. A. E. Baker Receives Call To Smooth Rock Falls

STIRLING—Rev. A. E. Baker minister of St. Paul's-Carmel circuit, for the past four years has received a call to Smooth Rock Falls United Church in Cochrane Presbytery near Timmins, Ontario, his duties to commence in July of this year. Smooth Rock Falls is a town somewhat larger than Stirling, and the last year book in 1953, published by the United Church of Canada states there are 21 official board members, almost 200 on the membership and over 500 persons under pastoral oversight. There is just one United Church in the town.

Smooth Rock Falls is directly North of Cochrane and the town stood to be the home of the Abibhi Pulp and Paper Company, and is one of the new towns of Northern Ontario.

There is no doubt but what Mr. and Mrs. Baker will find plenty of work in their new church field if they accept the call. Mrs. Baker is a gifted musician and has capably filled the position of organist at St. Paul's.

JR. CHOIR FORMED

Since the Bakers came to Stirling, Sr. and Jr. Choir and junior choir has been organized and is now a splendid group of talented children. No pen can describe the value of this service in training the children in music and worship.

The senior choir has also made great strides and took part in the Stirling Festival of Music, has achieved high praise.

Mr. Baker is a man of vision and he has brought many improvements to the church building as well as to St. Paul's. Through his efforts a centennial book was published dealing with the history of Methodism in this district which culminated into church union in 1925. The book is a gold mine of valuable history for the future.

CENTENNIAL SERVICES

Special centennial services were begun in May 1953 and will be completed in May 1954 and Mr. Baker has been instrumental in bringing a large number of outstanding speakers and visiting dignitaries to Stirling. Through his efforts St. Paul's has reached the highest peak of financial success.

Mr. Baker has also been a great incentive to the Carmel congregation. In 1950 Jubilee Hall was dedicated and at the present time Carmel are busy with their reopening services when their little country church has been completely renovated and is now a great credit to the community. Mr. Baker has given hours of his time to assist in any way he could and his advice has been invaluable. More has been accomplished on the Stirling-Carmel charge in four years than has been achieved since church union and the work of Mr. and Mrs. Baker will stand as a glorious monument to their four years in Stirling.

Rev. W. S. Irwin, father of Mrs. Baker, has also given of his talent as a layman. He is a noted Sunday School class and he too will be missed, as he has made many friends during his short sojourn at the parsonage.

RCAF Orders Striking Force Of Sub-Hunters

NEW YORK (CP) — Lockheed Aircraft Corporation said Monday the Royal Canadian Air Force has ordered a striking force of submarine-hunting P-2V Neptunes to help patrol the North Atlantic sea lanes.

The firm said the contract calls for an undisclosed number of the planes to be delivered late this year or early in 1955. They will replace some of the obsolescent Lancaster bombers now being used.

CHILDREN, BABY-SITTER DIE IN FRAME HOUSE FIRE

Three young children and their 13-year-old baby-sitter died in a blaze that destroyed this frame house on Gait, Ont., early Sunday morning. Dead are Wylie Dolson, 4, and his sister, Carolyn, 5, and Bobby, four, and Ricky Dolson, eight months, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Dolson were out for the evening. Neighbors said they heard the screams of the children but were unable to enter the house. Nancy Dolson, 13, was baby-sitting with Margaret, three, when the children slept. Cause of the fire was undetermined. (Central Press Canadian)

Unemployment In Nova Scotia Causes Concern

Unemployment on the east coast is so serious that the Atlantic provinces should be declared "disaster areas," the Nova Scotia government was told Monday.

A 100-man labor delegation, the biggest in years, met with the federal Premier Macdonald and his cabinet to urge that the government recognize the coal mining districts of Pictou county and Cape Breton as distress areas. He said the province is "hamstrung" by freight rates and long hauls in the fight to keep the coal industry alive.

The delegation asked for increased unemployment insurance benefits, relaxation in the number of days before benefits are paid, and extension of supplementary benefits beyond the April 15 deadline.

EX-DIRECTOR UNDER FIRE

In the Newfoundland House, Malcolm Hollett, Progressive Conservative Opposition leader, charged that Dr. A. A. Valdmanis, the province's former director of economic development, invested money in a New Brunswick fishery plant while he held the post.

Mr. Hollett said Dr. Valdmanis and "other people besides" were investing in N.B. while trying to "sell Newfoundland" to industries.

In Alberta, legislation to make slot machines illegal was given first reading. The bill is to repeal the Alberta Slot Machine Act of 1942 that was found invalid by the Supreme Court of Canada because it encroached on federal jurisdiction.

Egyptian Official Leaves for France

CAIRO (AP)—His weeping wife and mother bade farewell today to Ma). Khaled Mohieddin, member of Egypt's ruling revolutionary council who left for Paris in the aftermath of the last government crisis.

Mohieddin, reported to have sided with President Mohammed Naguib in his unsuccessful struggle for a quick end to the military council's rule, denied he had resigned from the council. He told reporters he will return to Egypt with the national production council mission which will tour France and Italy.

Scottish Nationalists Claim Major Victory

EDINBURGH (Reuters) — Scottish Nationalists today claimed a major victory in their campaign to have Queen Elizabeth regarded as the first and not the second queen of that name to rule over them.

No more, the general post office announced, will mail trucks and post boxes in Scotland be decorated with the initials E II R. This sign has given offence to militant Scots who argue that the first Elizabeth reigned before Scotland was united with England.

They backed their protest by defacing the sign when it first appeared on a new post box here. It was daubed with paint and tar, and attempts were made to blow up the box.

A post-office statement made no reference to the arguments which have raged around whether the Queen should be called Elizabeth I or Elizabeth II.

It simply said: "New post boxes and mail trucks in Scotland will bear the Scottish crown and not as the necessary arrangements can be made."

Churchill Discloses Pact For Use of Atomic Weapons Made With Roosevelt 1943

LONDON (CP) — Sir Winston Churchill disclosed today that President Roosevelt agreed in 1943 that Britain and the United States would use the atomic bomb without each others consent.

The prime minister, reporting to the House of Commons, made public for the first time the 1943 atomic agreement he reached at Quebec with President Roosevelt.

Churchill said President Eisenhower had agreed to let him make the details public.

4-POINT AGREEMENT

Churchill, reading from notes he said he made many years ago, quoted from the agreement:

"1. It is agreed between us first that we will never use this against each other.

"2. We will not use it against third parties without each others consent.

"3. We will not either of us, communicate any information to third parties except by mutual consent.

"4. In view of the heavy burden of production falling on the United States as a result of the wise division of the war effort, the British government acknowledges that any post-war advantages of an industrial or commercial character shall be dealt with as between the United States and Great Britain on terms to be specified by the president of the United States for the prime minister of Great Britain.

"The prime minister expressly disclaims any interest in these industrial and commercial aspects beyond what might be considered by the president of the United States to be for the best and most harmony with the welfare of the world."

CANADA IN FACT

Churchill said the agreement then provided "a detailed arrangement in principle for full collaboration between the United States and British Chiefs of Staff, including the setting up of a committee in Washington to consider combined policy."

"That," he added, "was how things stood when the Socialist government came to office. Any changes in the interval are the responsibility of the administration not mine. But the British government is bound by them nevertheless and that was the position I took before Parliament last Friday."

The prime minister brought about unrest in the House by asserting that the Labor government had given up claims to military information from the U. S. about atomic energy in exchange for civil information.

LOUDLY BOOED

He was loudly booed by Labor members and Attlee, flushed and trembling with anger, rose to say: "You say we abandoned control over the military side in exchange for advantages on the industrial side.

"We never had any advantages on the industrial side. There was no bargain of that sort."

Then Labor party leader said: "We did not abandon any agreements with the United States. Unfortunately the American congress passed the McMahon Act (banning the sharing of atomic secrets) which prevented them carrying out the agreement."

Socialists shouted to the prime minister to withdraw his allegations, but Churchill, his jaw jutting determinedly, parried their attacks, though he was frequently interrupted for several minutes.

The prime minister said that two years ago in the United States he had shown his Quebec agreement with Roosevelt to American cabinet ministers. "If we had seen this agreement there would have been no McMahon Act."

BLAMES U. S.

Attlee jumped up to say that if there was a regret, it should be to the United States.

"Surely it was not for us to accept Churchill's interpretation," he said.

Herbert Morrison, deputy opposition leader, then got up to explain that the Quebec agreement was a secret one. Surely the prime minister was not suggesting that the agreement now should be published it over the heads of the United States government.

Churchill retorted: "There was no reason at all why this colossal agreement should be kept from Roosevelt and me should not have been brought into, possible effect since."

Opposition members shouted: "Why whom?" and Churchill replied "By the American government."

Attlee demanded: "What possible reason had I to suspect that the United States government had concerted their own supporters; how could I know?"

Churchill retorted: "I think it would have been an obvious precaution to confront them with that agreement."

Pierre du Pont, Industrialist, Dies Suddenly

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP)—Pierre Samuel du Pont, dean of the famed chemical-rich du Pont family, first in development of two of the world's largest industries, died Monday night. He was 85.

Du Pont, who took an active part in the du Pont empire even after his retirement in 1940, was stricken with a severe abdominal pain shortly after dinner at Longwood, his estate in suburban Kennett Square, Pa. Taken to hospital he died of what physicians described as aortic aneurism (rupture of a main blood vessel).

A younger brother, Irenee, and sister, Mrs. P. R. M. Carpenter, were at his bedside. They survive. There is only immediate survivor.

Du Pont, who shunned publicity, was a former president and board chairman of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., company known through the world more familiarly as the du Pont company. He also served as president and helped develop General Motors.

W.M. Nickle Heads Committee On Road Safety

TORONTO (CP) — W. M. Nickle (PC — Kingston) Monday was named chairman of a select committee on highway safety.

Premier Frost, in naming the 11-member committee in the House, said the provincial government, in view of the increasing loss of life and property, felt an investigation was necessary and the publicity value would be of benefit.

In supporting the proposal, opposition leader Farquhar Oliver said the committee had a "great job to do" and suggested the investigation be extended outside the province and Canada to "get the world proper ideas."

Other members of the committee are J. N. Allan (PC—Haldimand-Norfolk), J. Yarenho (PC—Timiskoto Bellwoods), A. J. Child (PC—Wentworth), J. Root (PC—Wellington North), W. G. Beesh (PC—Toronto York South), J. F. Edwards (PC—Perth), P. Manley (L—Stormont), G. T. Gordon (L—Brantford) and T. D. Thomas (CCF—Ontario).

ONTARIO MAN DIES

URANIUM CITY, Sask. (CP)—George Follis, 52, of Owen Sound, died of asphyxiation here Sunday. Death was termed accidental. Police said Follis had been drinking heavily and had an upset stomach. He was a diamond driller for several companies in this northwestern Saskatchewan uranium mining area.

H-BOMB COULD DESTROY CANADA, SAYS PHYSICIST.

A hydrogen bomb large enough to destroy all of Canada or United States, precisely as an island in the Pacific was blasted completely off the face of the earth, could be built now, says a scientist who holds some of the basic fusion patents, the authority for this frightening assertion is Dr. Franco D. Rasetti, professor of physicists at Johns Hopkins University, to whom the U.S. government last year awarded $300,000 for basic patents covering both fusion and fission devices. — Central Press Canadian.

Farmer Fined For Allowing 18 Cattle to Die

WINGHAM (CP)—Bruce Scott, 36-year-old bachelor farmer in East Wawanosh township, Monday was fined $100 and costs for allowing 18 cattle to die of starvation in a barn stocked with grain. He was convicted of cruelty to animals.

Value of the cattle was estimated at $2,000. Scott said he was caring for his father who was in hospital and for six of his own.

Scott said he was also busy looking after his own farm. Earlier he told police he was holding the cattle for a better market.

Witnesses said the cattle and a team of horses were allowed to run together in the barn which had no stalls or managers. They said quantities of oats and hay were stored in the upper part of the barn, beyond the reach of the animals.

Dr. K. N. MacKenzie, Wingham veterinarian, said he examined one of the 18 dead animals and found it died of malnutrition.

No Radio-Active Material Has Fallen on Canada

OTTAWA (CP)—Test explosions of atomic and hydrogen bombs have caused no dangerously radioactive material to fall in Canada.

Defence Minister Claxton informed the Commons Monday that the defence research board has kept a close watch on radioactive particles falling on Canadian soil following test explosions in the Pacific.

On another question, Health Minister Martin said there has been no decision by the government on carrying out a test evacuation of a Canadian city as a civil defence exercise.

He was replying to a question by Claude Ellis (CCF — Regina), who referred to a press report Saturday that Canadian civil defence authorities may carry out such an exercise in the light of the destructive power of hydrogen bombs.

Eight Arrested After Narcotic Raid Is Made

WASHINGTON (AP)—Narcotics commissioner Harry J. Anslinger announced today the seizure in San Francisco of "millions of dollars" worth of heroin which he said was smuggled in from Communist China.

Eight persons were arrested in the raid Sunday.

The commissioner said the illicit heroin seized was brought to the United States for the most part by merchant seamen who got it at a gambling emporium operated in Hong Kong by a man Anslinger said is named Judah Isaac Ezra, 50.

WAS JAILED, DEPORTED

Anslinger said in an announcement from his headquarters at the treasury that Ezra was formerly "a large trafficker in narcotics on the (U. S.) west coast," and that he had been sentenced in 1933 to 15 years in prison for a narcotics violation.

Anslinger said Ezra was deported at the end of his prison term. He said it is expected that Ezra will be prosecuted in San Francisco.

Anslinger did not say whether Ezra had been arrested yet. Treasury aides said an indictment against Ezra will be sought in San Francisco and that it is expected he will be returned to the U. S. through extradition proceedings.

Anslinger said federal narcotics agents had seized, or purchased as evidence, six pounds of pure heroin "worth millions of dollars in the illicit narcotics market."

He said "the source of the heroin was . . . Communist China."

British Stage Veterans Say Talent, Bankroll Musts for Budding Stars

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Tips for the young Canadian who wants to make good theatre in Britain: Make sure you have real talent, bring along an ample bankroll and don't count too much on your Canadian contacts.

That's the word from seasoned British stars, the heads of the big drama schools and Canadians who have gone through the mill in this stage-conscious country.

Since the Second World War, hundreds of Can. d i a n s have crossed the Atlantic to pick up acting tricks. Some stay to see their names in bright lights, others go home to take jobs in Canada's growing theatre, some never make the grade.

MUST BE GOOD

Generally, the experts agree that experience in Britain will sharpen Canadian talent. But—and this is a recurrent theme—theatrical facts of life are as real as ever. This is the view of Canada's Lonely manager Patrick Ide of London's famous Old Vic Theatre.

"Real talent is scarce. The theatre world is crowded with people. You've got to be good to make a living."

Ide presides over the mecca of classic drama where such stars as Britain's Richard Burton and Canada's Barbara Kelly got a week than earn fabulous salaries in Hollywood. It is also the budding talent for a career-bound Canadian is a neutral corner.

His advice, backed by Alec Guinness, the British actor who led the Stratford, Ont., Shakespearean festival to a bumper first season last year. Guinness says the "fatalities are many" for a Canadian to expect to play only North American vision in Britain.

"There are comparatively few such opportunities and a part which a Canadian accent is rare," Guinness said in an interview. "It's best to learn to act as well as speak it."

Guinness declined to give more general advice on the ground that "I don't want to dismiss any part of Canadian life with a flight-hearted comment." Each case must be judged individually.

BRIGHT PROSPECTS

Of his stay in Canada, Guinness commented:

"I was enormously impressed by Canadian talent. The standard of theatre is going to arise in Canada."

He was particularly impressed by the acting of Richard Easton, 30, of Montreal, and Timothy Findley, 23, of Toronto. On a recommendation from Guinness, the two young Canadians came to London for a three-month course at the Old Vic school of speech and drama.

Easton and Findley now have small parts in Guinness' new play, "The Prisoner," and a year's contract with a prominent theatre management.

A veteran Canadian actor with experience on both continents, Alexander Knox of Strathroy and London, Ont., plumps for London as the best place for ambitious young Canadians. There are, for one thing, "three times as many theatres here as in New York."

ON CORONATION PLAY

Knox came back to the Old Vic last year to play Cardinal Wolsey in Coronation production of "Henry VIII." He says he has often blamed his lucky stars he could play both English and American roles.

"During the depression years, I played English roles in the United States and American roles in Britain. Needless to say, it helped finances."

How about money? Most Canadians stress that it's safer to bring your own pocket to cover a few expenses. "We had it figured we could live fairly comfortably for a year and do some entertaining without working," said Bernard Braden of Vancouver, the actor and his wife, Barbara Kelly, also of Vancouver, were a success from the start.

Canadian lacking a solid financial background, on the other hand, are content if they have enough to live, living expenses.

Some have proved that, by saving in Canada and really scrimping in Britain, it can be done. Britain's 50,000,000 population is pressed into tiny islands offers plenty of scope for entertainers.

Magruder Named UN Command Staff Chief

TOKYO (AP)—Maj.-Gen. Carter B. Magruder has been named chief of staff of the Far East and United Nations command, the United States Army said Monday.

Magruder succeeds Lt.-Gen. William K. Harrison, former UN commander who negotiated the armistice who has been named commander of U.S. Army forces in the Caribbean.

RUSS RELEASE FISHERMEN

TOKYO (AP)—Twelve Japanese fishermen said today their Russian captors had questioned them for 13 days about American forces stationed on the northernmost Japanese main island of Hokkaido. Released Sunday, they were crews of two fishing boats captured by Soviet patrol ships March 23.

Even Conservative Papers Criticize Churchill's Charge

By HAL COOPER

LONDON (AP) — Even Conservative newspapers criticized Prime Minister Churchill today for his charge that Clement Attlee's Labor government threw away Britain's wartime exchange of atomic secrets with the United States.

The normally independent but usually pro-Conservative Times, says Monday House of Commons debate on the hydrogen bomb "degenerated into a sterile, angry and pitiful party wrangle — and the responsibility was the prime minister's."

The Liberal, middle-of-the-road News Chronicle says the showing of the 79-year-old government chief in the House may foreshadow his early resignation from office, something many observers have predicted will happen this year.

"The bitter partisan fight in the wake of Sir Winston's charge generally obscured the action of the House, which on a division voted call on Churchill to take "immediate initiative" in seeking a face-to-face contact with Premier Malenkov and President Eisenhower. But the opposition did not challenge the Conservatives' stand that the timing of such an approach is inept.

HOUSE IN UPROAR

There is no doubt but what Mr. Churchill put the House in an uproar with his charge that it was the "responsibility or misfortune" of Attlee's 1945-51 government that a hitherto-secret 1943 agreement for British-U.S. atomic co-operation is no longer in effect.

Under the accord, reached at their Quebec conference in August, 1943, Churchill and the late President Roosevelt set up the British-U.S. agency for development of the science and agreed that neither would use atomic weapons against a third power without the other's consent.

Attlee, seething with anger and backed by a continuous Labor chorus for Churchill to "withdraw!" hotly replied that the wartime agreement had been terminated by the U.S. Congress' adoption in 1946 of the McMahon Act, which forbids sharing of atomic secrets with foreign governments.

LEARNED TOO LATE

Churchill snapped back that the act's author, the late senator Brien McMahon (Dem., Conn.), had told him later that the atomic secrets law would not have been written had he known of the secret agreement. Attlee, Churchill implied, should have let McMahon know about the agreement.

That, Attlee replied, was the fault of the U.S. government, not of his.

The Conservative Daily Telegraph calls it a "pity" that Churchill "should have tried to fix the blame on Mr. Attlee."

The Daily Sketch, a Conservative paper, takes another critical tack, asserting that the nation's public will regret that the government has given an air of temporarily the experiments which many scientists fear may eventually endanger humanity itself."

CHURCHILL CRITICIZED

The Daily Mirror, which has Labor leanings and has been asserting loudly that Churchill is too old for office, described the charge as "the first notable victim of the horror bomb."

The Mirror says he "floundered" through the debate — "it was like watching a great noble oak weakened by time, swaying in the blast of the bomb."

"The great debate on the hydrogen bomb became the tragedy of Churchill," The Daily Herald, organ of the Labor party, says, asserting that the prime minister "dealt what may prove a deadly blow to his own prestige."

The Daily Express, independent paper owned by Churchill's friend and Conservative party member, Lord Beaverbrook, and Lord Rothermere's anti-Conservative Daily Mail were alone today in printing an all-out editorial defense of the prime minister's tactics.

French Plea for More Aid Will Be Promptly Answered

PARIS (AP) — France has urgently requested more assistance for the war in Indo-China from the United States, the French foreign ministry announced today.

The request was especially for planes and aviation materiel, the announcement said.

(In Washington, officials made it clear they would quickly grant any new French request for additional military equipment for the Indo-China war.

(They said that sending such additional supplies would be almost automatic under an understanding reached with French Premier Joseph Laniel and Foreign Minister Georges Bidault when they were in Washington last month.

(Some 75 B-26 fighter-bombers promised to French forces in Indo-China during Laniel's visit already have been delivered. Officials of the French embassy in Washington said they knew nothing about the new specific request but that it would not surprise them if local commanders in Indo-China had specified military assistance.)

A ministry spokesman said the announcement was made in confirmation of previous information.

The request "is not exactly new," he continued, as it was presented in Washington several days ago.

The ministry had nothing further to add to this bare announcement.

PLEDGED 25 BOMBERS

Lean Brown Sunday March 28 announced a pledge of emergency aid under which 25 more American B-26 fighter-bombers would be sent to Indo-China for French use, along with ammunition and other supplies.

The planes were to be provided on a temporary loan basis for use in keeping up round-the-clock air attacks at the Communist-held Vietminh besieging the French under the fortress of Dien Phu.

There has been no announcement yet that the planes and emergency supplies have been sent.

Announcement of the aid request came on the heels of reports that the U. S. has called for a five-power declaration warning Communist China against intervention in the Indo-China war.

Fifty elephants are being specially trained to kneel before the Queen.

The ancient capital of Kandy has planned a lavish parade featuring 100 elephants and Singhalese dancers.

McCarthy Says H-Bomb Research Delayed Months

Replies to Criticism Of CBS Commentator

NEW YORK (AP)—Senator McCarthy (Rep.-Wis.) says research on the United States hydrogen bomb was deliberately stalled for 18 months in the face of reports that Russia was "feverishly" pushing a similar project.

"If there were no Communists in our government, why did we delay?" The Wisconsin Republican senator asked Tuesday night in a telecast billed as a reply to earlier criticism by CBS commentator Edward R. Murrow.

The H-bomb reference was interjected into an attack in which McCarthy termed Murrow "the leader and the cleverest of the jackal pack which is always found at the throat of anyone who dares to expose Communists and traitors."

"Who caused it?" McCarthy demanded of the alleged H-bomb delay. "Was it loyal Americans or was it traitors in our government?"

"Our nation may well die because of that treasonable delay."

McCarthy's statement was called "absolutely ridiculous" by Representative Melvin Price (Dem., Ill.), a member of the joint congressional committee on atomic energy.

"He doesn't know what he's talking about," Price said in Washington. "He shows complete ignorance."

Price added that there may have been some delay in getting the H-bomb project started, but "certainly not for the reasons" McCarthy indicated.

Eisenhower Says He Knows Nothing Of H-Bomb Delay

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower said today he knows nothing about an H-bomb delay in hydrogen bomb development as charged by Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep. Wis.). The president also said he always has regarded Commander Edward R. Murrow, assailed by McCarthy, as a friend.

Eisenhower's remarks were made at a White House press conference. He also said he did not think the United States has no need to develop a hydrogen bomb bigger than the one it already has.

Senator Joseph McCarthy said in a telecast speech Tuesday night that research on the U. S. H-bomb was deliberately stalled for 18 months despite information that Russia was pushing a similar project. He asked if this delay would have been possible if there had been Communists in the atomic energy commission.

Former president Truman said today in Kansas City that there was "no delay" in development of the hydrogen bomb.

Tornado Warning Issued For Southwestern Ontario

TORONTO (CP)—The Dominion weather office today issued a warning of a risk of tornadoes in western Ontario late this afternoon.

The weather office at Malton, in a "severe weather warning" issued at noon, said:

"Severe thunderstorms are expected throughout southwestern Ontario this afternoon and evening. There is a risk of isolated tornado activity between 3 p.m. and 8 p.m. in western Ontario west of a line through Parry Sound-Barrie-Port Hamilton."

Weather officials said there was "disturbance" in Minnesota and that cold air was moving down over Ontario from the north.

TORNADO IN 1946

A dispatch from Carroll, Iowa, said a tornado which passed over the freight train east of there late Tuesday plucked a single car from the middle of the train and dropped it on the right-of-way. Tornadic winds were reported in Michigan.

The Malton weather office and the U.S. weather bureau in Detroit said unconfirmed reports told of a tornado being sighted in the Battle Creek and Grand Rapids area of Michigan today. The report placed the twister 10 miles northwest of Battle Creek and said it was moving northeast. There was no immediate report of damage.

A number of serious tornadoes have hit Southwestern Ontario in the last eight years. Most serious was one which struck the Windsor area on June 17, 1946, killing 18 persons and doing crop damage estimated at $1,000,000.

OTHER RECENT BLASTS

Five persons were killed in a tornado which struck Sarnia and the other southwestern Ontario area on May 21, 1953 and did damage of some $4,000,000. Tornadic winds added to the damage.

Other tornado reported in Ontario since the Windsor Tornado of 1946 included one person killed in Dunnville, Ontario, on August 4th, 1947 and a tornado which caused some $500,000 damage at Smiths Falls in August, 1948.

Tornadic winds and thunderstorms described as tornadic and baby cyclones hit Chatham and Sutton in July, 1952.

Arabs Repel Two Israeli Night Attacks

Jewish Army Official Says Border Violated

JERUSALEM (AP) — National guardsmen and Arab Legion troops repelled two Israeli attacks on a Jordan village Tuesday night after fierce exchanges with automatic fire and hand grenades, a Jordan military spokesman said today.

Maj. Mohammed Izhaq, senior military delegate to the mixed armistice commission, said the attackers withdrew leaving bloodstains on the ground.

He said the first attack was made by a band of about 100 Israelis who crossed the armistice demarcation line and opened fire from the outskirts of the village of Husan, about six kilometers southwest of Bethlehem.

National guardsmen returned the fire but were outnumbered and retreated into the village for reinforcements.

Jordan formed a strong complaint with the UN armistice commission. A team of UN observers and Arab legion officers left Jerusalem for Husan to investigate. Israel is boycotting the commission.

In the Israeli section of this divided city, a military spokesman Tuesday charged Jordanians, Egyptians and Syrians with carrying out separate new border attacks.

Guarding Peace Primary Task Of West Allies

HALIFAX (CP)—Defence Minister Brooke Claxton said today the most vital task facing the Western alliance is the safeguarding of peace because of the development of weapons of "gigantic destructive power."

Mr. Claxton spoke at a ceremony marking the formal delivery to France of four new Canadian minesweepers under the mutual aid program. The warships were taken over by French crews.

"The minister said the defence contribution of each member-state in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization is determined by the fullest possible objective and collective security.

Canadian Ambassador Hubert Guerin listened intently as Mr. Claxton said:

"The development of new weapons of gigantic destructive power has made it our paramount duty to do whatever must be done to preserve peace.

"That is the object of NATO.

"Building up the strength of NATO is beyond question or doubt been one of the factors that has guarded for us five years, without a major war," Mr. Claxton said, "but peace has been precarious.

He reminded that "the great expenditures that have had to be made have not been the price of ensuring peace."

Quit Worrying About H-Bomb, Cobalt Bomb New Horror Champion

NEW YORK (CP) — The New York Times says today that the most dreadful weapon of all"—the cobalt bomb—can be successfully built, utilizing the method that has revolutionized production of the hydrogen bomb.

An article by William L. Laurence, the paper's atomic science expert, said the weapon could produce "a deadly radio-active cloud 320 times more poisonous than radium."

"The cloud can travel with the prevailing winds over distances of thousands of miles, destroying all life in its path. The bomb could be exploded from a ship in the Pacific, for example, hundreds, even thousands of miles from the coast and the cloud would travel with the wind toward the United States west coast and the rest of the North American continent."

Laurence says the cobalt bomb would be a hydrogen bomb of the kind tested by the United States in the Pacific last month. The principal difference is in the material of the shell surrounding the active ingredients.

Instead of a shell of steel which becomes only mildly radioactive when it turns into a cloud of vapor, a shell of cobalt encases the fission and fusion ingredients. On being vaporized in the explosion it is transformed into a deadly radio-active cloud.

The article says it is this type of bomb of which Albert Einstein said in 1950: "If successful, radioactive poisoning of the atmosphere and hence annihilation of any life on earth, will have been brought within the range of technical possibilities."

"The successful tests at Eniwetok in March have thus brought Professor Einstein's prophecy into the realm of fact," the article notes.

Reductions Made In Some Levies On Consumer Goods

Income Tax, The Big Bite From Earnings, Unchanged

By JOHN LeBLANC
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadians can look to another year of paying just about the same federal taxes.

Income tax—the big bite from earnings—is unchanged. Taxes on some household and other consumer goods, with electrical appliances at the head of the list, are down.

But the reductions in Finance Minister Abbott's 1954-55 budget add up to less than one per cent of the national tax bill. And how much of the savings will go to the buyer of tax-cut goods is problematical.

It was his 10th and last budget.

Mr. Abbott's main tax-cutting effort was to clean off the last of the electrical appliances—not including radios and TV sets—that have been under a special 15-per-cent excise tax.

Exempted from this tax, also, were a variety of articles including furs, firearms, golf and fishing equipment, cameras and traveling gear.

Such household articles as electrical stoves, washers and refrigerators had been exempted from the special excise tax in earlier budgets.

Despite appeals for reduction of the tax in other directions, Mr. Abbott left the list of articles subject to excise taxes unchanged on other tobacco articles and liquors.

The special 15-per-cent tax was cut on a variety of other articles to 10 per cent.

These include automobile tires and tubes, clocks, watches, fountain pens, glass and china ware, toilet preparations, some smokers' supplies, matches, soft drinks and confectionery.

All the special excise tax cuts—which account, for most of the reduction in taxation—take hold on the manufacturing end. What the buyer gets out of this depends on how the cuts are passed along through the distributing chain.

No one can tell that for sure now. It hangs on competitive and other factors.

Overall, though, what Mr. Abbott has skimmed away from the tax bill is estimated by him to be worth to the taxpayer $36,000,000 in the fiscal year that ends next March 31 and $40,000,000 for a full year after that.

Japanese Doctor Has 'No Optimism' For Recovery of Men Burned by Ash

By JIM BECKER

TOKYO (AP)—A Japanese doctor today said he has "no optimism" for the recovery of some of the 22 Japanese fishermen burned by radioactive ash from the March 1 H-bomb blast in the Pacific.

Dr. Kazuo Miyashi said "the next week will tell" whether the men will live. He did not say how many are dangerously ill, but previously two of the 23 men died as a result of radiation.

Miyashi, chief physician at Tokyo University Hospital where the fishermen are being treated, and their fate hinges on how seriously the radio-activity affects their bone marrow, producer of infection-fighting white blood corpuscles.

Some of the fishermen are running a fever as a result of fresh infections which have broken down the radio-activity from their systems, the doctor said.

All of the men are suffering from various degrees of radiation sickness caused by their exposure to radio-active ash which showered their boat, the Lucky Dragon, after the H-bomb blast. The crew said the boat was about 80 miles from Bikini when it was hit.

United States scientists have expressed belief that of the 23 stricken fishermen only the Japanese doctor has stirred widespread excitement here, and Japanese lined up for blocks to see the motion pictures.

U.S. doctors have not examined the burned fishermen. The Japanese foreign office said U.S. specialists had turned down an offer of a 30-minute examination. The American said the 30 minutes would not permit a complete examination.

Cheese Faults, Manufacturing Conditions Discussed By Cheesemakers at Conference

Cheese faults and manufacturing conditions tending to lower the quality of finished products were under discussion at the annual spring conference of the Eastern Ont. Cheese Improvement Association held here Tuesday afternoon and evening.

There was a big turnout of makers and following a spirited discussion period on cheese defects and their cause, several were heard to comment the conference was one of the best spring meetings ever held.

Openings in cheese was one point discussed, George Pollard, cheese factory instructor, felt that making cheese in a shorter time was one answer to overcoming openings. Dr. Bain, chief instructor, said one of the causes could be moulds.

Soft ends and cracked rinds were also subjects that came up for discussion. Mr. Bain said that proper turning of cheese would help prevent soft ends, proper humidity in the curing room would eliminate many of the cracked rinds, according to one maker.

QUESTIONS ASKED.

Makers wanted to know whether or not 94 and 93 score cheese could be graded as first by the cheese exchange; whether clarifiers were called for under the Cheese Factory Improvement Act and whether the Canada dye was compulsory for cheese intended for overseas shipment. They were told that clarifiers were called for as a safeguard against mould but not in the case of small factories. Sir Adam Beck cheese was quoted as saying that the stamped cheese has little bearing on the identification of Canadian cheese at retail level.

Faulty boxes and bandages were also mentioned. The general opinion was that it was the maker's responsibility to return to the manufacturers all shipments of boxes and bandages, which proved to be faulty.

Ken Lockhart, director of dairying, compared the factory's cheese production with that of a decade ago. He said there were 252 factories operating in Ontario last year.

It was unable to estimate what this year's Ontario cheese make would be. There were more cows in the province but it was not known whether the extra milk would find its way into cheese. Generally speaking cheese factories would have a bigger make but factory storage facilities would be limited if there was any sizeable increase in the cheese make.

TEA EXTENDED.

Mr. Lackner noted the program under the Cheese Factory Improvement Act had been largely completed last year, but the term had been extended to 1956 for some factories.

He stressed the need for top quality milk, saying that while payment for milk on a quality basis sounded good in theory, it required a great deal of field work and a lot of testing.

D. M. Beatty, inspector grading services, department of agriculture, Ottawa, spoke of the department's work on re-grading and noted it had been necessary to downgrade cheese with soft ends. He said that standardization of boxes and bandages was necessary and urged that inferior boxes and bandages be returned to the maker.

PAY FOR QUALITY.

Fred Hart, representing the Ontario Cheese Producers, urged payment for milk on a quality basis, and told what the association was doing with respect to studies on boxing, weighing, grading and waxing of cheese.

At the evening session chief instructors J. M. Bain and J. F. Robinson, and chief dairy grader Hook Gillan addressed the meeting. Association president Bert Jones presided, while G. E. Clarke, dairy instructor, Harrowsmith, led the discussion period.

Q.V. Pupils Pay Tribute To Fred Clarke

Pupils of Queen Victoria Public School received exercises in the school's auditorium Wednesday morning in memory of 12-year-old Freddy Clarke, whose funeral was scheduled for Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. Fairman, in paying tribute to Freddy, said that he was a good student with a cheerful disposition.

"He was one of those loyal types you couldn't help but like," said Mr. Fairman. "He was a pleasant little tyke who took part in everything at the school. He was always such a good loser."

Freddy was a member of the school band.

Freddy's classmates represented the school at the funeral as flower bearers.

The school flag has been at half staff for the last three days as a tribute to Freddy from his schoolmates.

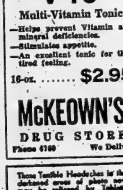
Y Classes Change Dates

At the April meeting of the Physical Education Committee of the Y.M.C.A., held Monday evening, the committee, chaired by N. A. Beach, decided to change the girls' and ladies classes meeting now on Wednesdays to Thursday, with the Thursday classes for boys and men changing to Wednesday. The committee believes that this change will facilitate a greater number of young men and business men who would wish to avail themselves of the facilities on Wednesday afternoons, when the city stores are closed.

The committee also discussed the forthcoming District Conference of the Y.M.C.A., Belleville Conference which will be held in Belleville on April 30th and May 1st, at which time Mr. Fairman will take part in the two-day conference.



Newsmen Drool As They Watch Smelt Running

Smelt - hungry newspapermen drooled early today when thousands of the tasty fish began their daily way up the Moira river to spawning grounds.

As the scribes looked out of newsroom windows overlooking the river, the smelt rippled the water, some of them leaping clear in a mad upstream dash.

Little mushrooms of foam speckled the water as the smelt churned their way. The run was first noticed in the vicinity of 7.30 and continued until well past mid-morning.

Lawyer Claims Disputed Land Belongs to Woman in Trenton

TRENTON (Special) — The Chamber of Commerce's move to smooth differences between the town council and parks board went out the window last night when a letter written by lawyer R. E. Nourse, Q.C., of Picton, for Mrs. S. L. Clindinin of Trenton, left doubt in the minds of council whether the parks board owned a piece of property north of the retaining wall in Fraser Park.

All of the land held by the parks board in that vicinity has been under fire from town council since the first of the year. The 1953 council deeded the property to parks secretary, O. G. Alyea, who in turn deeded it to the parks board in perpetuity.

The letter from Mr. Nourse claims that a piece of land in dispute belongs to Mrs. Clindinin.

PLANS TO BUILD FENCE.

It suggests that Mrs. Clindinin be allowed a fence around it. The fence would run along the northern boundary of the road to the government dock from Albert street.

The letter mentioned that Mrs. Clindinin's action had been inspired by the recent press of squabbling between council and the parks board which information supplied by a member of this year's council.

The proposed fence would cut up the piece of land now used for parking cars and would considerably the space available for parking. Earlier in the evening councillor Claude Graham suggested marking off the land that space would be provided for 50 cars instead of 25 cars parked in a haphazard fashion.

A few days ago the Chamber of Commerce met in an effort to settle the argument between council and the parks board. The parks board agreed to the meeting, but the result was left for council to decide.

NO DECISION MADE.

Town solicitor H. Ramsay Park was not decided whether Mrs. Clindinin owns the property she claims. He received a telephone conversation with her lawyer. He said that Mr. Nourse was not clear about the ownership. He pointed out that Mr. Nourse had informed the parks board that Mrs. Clindinin proposed to build a fence down to the northern limits of the road if she did. Councillor Gerald Weaver informed council that some of the original property owners had signed off but that Mrs. Clindinin did not. It was his opinion that Mrs. Clindinin's claims hinged on the definition of the high water mark.

RECEIVED IN GOOD FAITH.

Councillor N. J. McNair advised passing the matter on to the parks board. Mayor Ross Burtt noted that council was confronted with a different proposition. "Can the town sell property they don't own?" he asked. Mr. Alyea received it in good faith and I think that he would show the same faith in helping to see the matter straightened out."

Town engineer Reid Clark offered advice. "It all depends on the description of the property. Most of the deeds read so many feet south of the Dundas Street line more or less."

It is apparent that the property designated as lot "L" ran down to the edge of the water. At the time the transformation of the slip took place, part of it was covered with fill to permit a road allowance. It is understood that reclaimed land belongs to the owners' of the water lots because further confusion in the discussion.

NOTHING TOWN CAN DO.

Councillor Robert Smithrim held that council should not enter the argument at the present time. "If she's (Mrs. Clindinin) going to put a fence up there's nothing the town can do," he asserted.

Chairman of the Parks Board Dr. J. W. Farley was present in the audience. Noting that he was out of order he replied to Mr. Smithrim's remarks.

"If you are interested in the town I think you'd assist in retaining this property as open space. If you are not then I think the people should be notified of your attitude. You have an engineer and a lawyer to assist in determining the rightful owner." He pointed out that the Parks Board did not intend putting up a tent down by the waterfront to maintain ownership.

RAISE A SERIOUS

Dr. Farley insisted that if Council was not interested in retaining the land above Fraser Park for parking then the Parks Board would not prevent parking in the remainder of the area. "You are quoting my remarks" asked Mr. Smithrim. Dr. Farley indicated that he was.

Councillor Graham observed that the new development was away over his head. "I think we should give Buster Alyea back his money," he said.

Councillor James MacDonald referred to Mr. Nourse's letter. He reviewed the progress that had been made in clarifying the situation. "Since that time some councillor has been talking to Mrs. Clindinin and advised her to take this action," he declared.

Councillor Weaver blamed his colleagues for trying to settle things juggled up. He insisted that council had never had any agreement with the Parks Board. He asked town clerk D. W. Larry to read a letter which explained that a department in the government at Toronto had no knowledge of any town land being conveyed to an individual but only to the Parks Board.

Councillor Reg. Armstrong observed that it seemed strange that Mrs. Clindinin should suggest proceedings "to have more trouble after the controversy had been appearing in the newspapers."

MAYOR DISLIKES INFERENCE

Mayor Burtt took a definite dislike to the inference that one of his councillors had been advising Mrs. Clindinin. He brought light on a telephone conversation with a woman who did not give her name. Mr. Burtt figured he could be the councillor the Nourse letter referred to. He insinuated that the woman with no names given expressed her intention during the talk. Describing pieces of the conversation the mayor said the voice signed off by asking: "Do you know who's speaking?" "I have a very good idea," was the reply the mayor said he gave before the woman hung up. (In a conversation with this reporter today Mrs. Clindinin confirmed the above conversation with Mayor Burtt.)

Councillor Smithrim said the whole situation stemmed back to the action of the 1953 council. He described this action as "precipitous". "In my opinion," he said, "there is only one person who can convey land in perpetuity. It is a person who has paid well for the property. In this case the property is conservatively estimated to be worth $15,000. It was deeded by the town for the whole consideration of $1. And I don't know if that was ever paid or not," he added. Continuing, he said: "For myself I'd like to see an end to this once and for all. I would like to see council meet with the Parks Board to see if we can't get this straightened out. He suggested council and the Parks Board act like sensible business men. He claimed the controversy was making Trenton the laughing stock of the area.

It was decided to first establish if Mrs. Clindinin really owned the property referred to in Mr. Nourse's letter. The investigation was handed over to town solicitor Park.

GRAIN STOCKS DOWN

FORT WILLIAM (CP) — Stocks of grain stored in Lakehead elevators during week ended March 31 increased by nearly 200,000 bushels over the previous week, the board of grain commissioners reports. Grain stocks at the week's end were 81,938,974 compared with 81,739,041 the week previous.

County Councillors Discuss Variety of Issues at Session

The April session of Hastings county council convened this morning at Shire Hall with Warden Fred G. Mitchell welcoming members.

During the session the county tax rate will be set for 1954. Equalization of the assessment for the various townships will be laid over until the August session. The session will be for three days.

Bill 56 of the Ontario Legislature which would take away from counties the authority to incorporate villages and give it to the Ontario Municipal Board was briefly discussed by council members. It was noted, however, that the bill would now have been dealt with as the session at Queen's Park was now concluded.

Reeve Theodore Tryon of Bancroft could not see where the Ontario Municipal Board could do any better job in respect to incorporating villages than could county councillors. He said councils would be in better position to know actual conditions.

However, he could not see that it made any difference.

Reeve Anderson of Faraday saw in the bill just another bit of authority being taken away from county council. "I don't like it," he said. "It is just not fair. "If bits of authority keep being taken away soon we may not have any county council."

County concurred in a Middlesex county resolution petitioning the Ontario government to introduce legislation to relieve the municipalities of responsibility in case of accidents resulting from icy road conditions.

CONCUR IN RESOLUTION

Concurrence was also given in a resolution opposing any amendments to present legislation which would give the Ontario Municipal Board greater authority in annexation proceedings.

Council showed considerable interest in a Simcoe county resolution petitioning the provincial government to substantially increase government rates toward the upkeep of Children's Aid Society wards, the money to be paid to the county instead of the municipalities.

Council also concurred in a second part of the same resolution calling for county gifts to Children's Aid Societies to be established by the province whether the gift was given direct or through a community campaign.

A Grey county resolution calling for surplus food in Canada to be distributed among needy and starving nations saw concurrence by council, although councillors pointed out the motion was very similar to a resolution passed by Hastings county council last year.

Reeve Harry Morrow of Sidney noted the similarity to the Hastings county motion but pointed out that the immediate action asked might interfere with world trade agreements, that had to be honored. The resolution called for distribution of the surplus food at a price needy nations could afford to pay, or if they could pay nothing then the food should be considered a gift.

Reeve Irwin McCoy of Marmora and Lake said the resolution should be amended to read sale of surplus food in exchange for goods needy countries might have to offer. He said it was not good policy to give people anything if they had anything to offer in return.

HAD GOOD POINTS

Reeve Bill Davis felt the resolution had its good points and was possibly better than that passed by Hastings county. He recommended concurrence.

Reeve Ritchie Wells of Marmore village, said what Reeve McCoy had said had a lot of merit. "Experience has shown that when goods are given free, you can kiss it goodbye," he said. "Free gifts do nothing for a nation's morale."

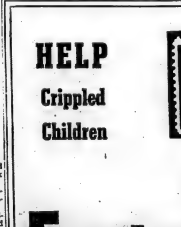
Reeve Davis contended, however, that if the matter was turned over to the federal government it would be handling in such a way that if the nations receiving the surplus goods had goods to offer in exchange this would be worked out.

"I would rather see surplus food given to a starving nation than see it spoil," commented Reeve Tryon. "We can all remember when Canadian wheat was burned because we had not storage."

Pay increase, for members of county council will come up for discussion later in the session when the matter is considered under by-laws.

A recommendation from the finance committee called for members' pay to be increased to $10 per day for council session and to $8 per day for committee work, plus 10 cents per mile mileage. Present rate of pay is $8 for council and $7 for committee work with five cents mileage.

Reeve Russell West as chairman of the finance committee, said the recommendation was not passed unanimously by his committee. He said he had opposed the motion because he did not think that was the proper time to increase wages "especially when things are so uncertain."



The same attitude was taken by Reeves Earl Sager and T. C. Graham.

Reeve T. Tryon of Bancroft said council pay was low, noting that pay of House of Commons members and that of members of the Senate had been increased.

"I agree there is a certain amount of honor in serving as a councillor, but I don't approve of working solely for honor," he said. "I have to pay 100 cents on the dollar and I expect others to do the same."

"I don't think the reeve of Bancroft means just what he said," returned Reeve Sager, "I'd like to see the day when county councillors come to council for what they get out of it."

The question was referred to by-law without further discussion.

NEED A NEW LOOK AT APPEASEMENT

"Appeasement" is a word which has an ugly sound to our ears.

That, of course, is because we associate it with the Munich conference between Chamberlain and Hitler.

It is possible to argue that the course Chamberlain took, if humiliating, was still expedient.

But that is beside the point. The generally accepted view is that the Munich agreement merely encouraged Hitler to make increasing demands for "living space" and thus helped to make the Second Great War inevitable.

Accepting this view, some of the inferences being drawn from this lesson of history still appear somewhat far-fetched.

For instance, a contemporary says that "nations which try to avoid war get it; and not only get it, but go into it disastrously unprepared."

If this were the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, it would follow that the way to avoid war is to avoid trying to avoid it, producing a state of diplomatic manoeuvres at least as jumbled and unintelligent as the situation quoted.

If "appeasement" has an ugly ring to us today, it ought not to be because Chamberlain sought peace at Munich but because he sought it at the price of breaking a pledge to the Czechs. Not the willingness to pay a price for peace, but the willingness to pay any price is what we should avoid.

QUICK DIVIDEND

Those April showers, which are supposed to bring forth May flowers, have started.

The snow blows all winter and we long for the day when it will disappear.

And after the winter has it vanished, than the rains come and we wonder whether we have not been too harsh in our judgment of blizzards.

Water splashes into the still uncollected debris of the winter months and turns it to muck... Shoes only recently released from confinement in overshoes yield reluctantly to the assaults of the goopy substance underfoot. Water seeps in and wanders about between chilly toes, signalling every new foray with a triumphant "squish." Rain-drops form on the brims of winter-beaten hats, then drip with deadly accuracy into the yawning gap between the blizzard-battered overcoat and the blizzard-bent back of the wayfarer.

And then, suddenly, the eye lights up, the back straightens, the toes wiggle excitatively and expel the invading water and the shoe spurns the muck which seeks to encase it.

Here is a sudden dividend from the first showers of April, a bigger bonus than the largest bunch of May flowers. Freshly, but unsatisfactorily, on lawn and on field, Spring has spread her banners. There is, yes there most certainly is, a faint tinge of green.

ONE REASON FOR THE DEATH PENALTY

A joint committee of the House of Commons and the Senate is studying proposed revisions of the criminal code.

One matter under consideration is the advisability of abolishing the death sentence for murder.

Several organizations have presented briefs to the committee. Among them was the Canadian Welfare Council. The Council favors the eventual abolition of the death sentence. A press release summarizing the main points in the Council contains the following statement:

"Since there is no evidence that the death penalty deters (potential murderers) there can be no justification for its continued use."

There not only can be a justification for such a penalty but to many people the reason for its imposition will seem unanswerable.

The murderer who is imprisoned may not stay in prison. He may escape, or he may be set free. A man who has killed once may kill again. The murderer who is executed does not kill again.

HYDROGEN AGAIN

It is, of course, pure coincidence that hydrogen should have been responsible for a terrific explosion at a HEPC generating station at Toronto just at the time when the whole world is worrying about the H-bomb.

The Toronto blast, apparently, was of an entirely different type from that which occurs when atoms are fused in a thermonuclear reaction.

But hydrogen seems to be an element destined to cause mass trouble.

It was hydrogen which sent so many pioneers of the air to flaming deaths, until helium was substituted for it in the gas bags of lighter-than-air craft.

One might be tempted to suggest outlawing the element entirely.

But without it there would be no water.

SELF

If you can put yourself aside,
And for the moment just forget
The profit or the touch of pride
Or e'en the added weight of debt,
And for another smooth the way,
You will have lived a glorious day!

If you can give what you may need:
Because another needs it more,
And never your advantage heed
Or count the cost of giving o'er,
That conquest over self shall be
Your greatest earthly victory.

If you can learn to think in terms
Of service rather than of gain,
Can grasp the teaching which affirms
That worldly pomp and pride are in vain,
Then you shall find beyond all doubt
Peace lies within and not without.

If to your neighbors you can be
All you would have them be to you;
Can shut your eyes to self, yet see
How much for them your life is worth while,
You'll find in many a grateful smile
Proof that your toil has been

Mr. W. S. Churchill of Toronto was in town today.

Mr. Charles Marakas has left to visit friends in Greece.

Work has been commenced to get the fire service in condition on the armouries lawn.

A new baseball league is to be formed including Belleville, Madoc, Marmora, Tweed and Stirling.

Dr. George Stoble is spending a few days in New York City.

The Canadian National softball teams, the Express and the Mails, played a match at the armouries which resulted in a score of 13 to 11 in favor of the Royals. The following composed the teams: Express: Meagher, Smith, McKenna, Bowler, Murray, Kellar, Keon, Knott and Lloyd. Royals: Young, Hagerman, Williams, A. Weir, V. Weir, Edgecombe, Hall, Newton and Cher for the Royals with A. Newton, McMinn, A. Weir, Hall and Cher behind the bat and they were opposed by Cap. Smith, pitcher, and A. Knott, catcher, for the Express team.

The city council has decided to engage a competent civil engineer and the matter is now in the hands of the executive committee.

The second annual banquet in connection with the Y.M.C.A. into the opening of the new building was held in the spacious gymnasium. Speeches were made by Mr. Bailey, Mr. Sinclair, Mr. O'Flynn, Mr. Clarke, Mr. Magrane, Rev. Mr. Colling-Smith and Rev. Dr. Baker.

Baseball is here again. Yesterday afternoon saw the first game of the season here when two teams of the high school, "I. A." and "I. B" met in a fast pillough one-sided game, the former team winning by a score of 5 to 1. Rose pitched a good game for the winners. The following composed the teams: "I. A.": F. Ross, W. Ross, C. The Lion, "the old boy's" mission finds favor with all citizens, now it is up to a strong organization to get things on foot if over successfully. There is no reason why this city should not have a grand reunion, one which will leave a bright spot in the memory of everyone connected with it—but there is no time to lose.

Mission practice will be held at the C.M.B.A. Hall this evening; a real good show is on the way also.

A farmer who was in the city today said he drove over over many miles of country road, says that the worst piece of road he struck was on the Front, between the upper bridge and Bridge street. Something should be done about this.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

HAVE A HOBBY!

I am sure that I have been happier for nearly half my life because I have had several hobbies to engage my interest at odd times. The collecting of etchings (my love at first blush), books (my love of fine literature), Stamps, (especially air mails). These three, and each offering an intriguing occupation and search.

Etchings early appealed to me because of their intimate characteristics. Some of them seem to have been etched from the heart. My favorite was Alphonse Legros, the French-English artist. This collection gave me great joy over the years, and I gained an additional joy in presenting it to The National Gallery of Art, in Washington, several years ago. It is one of the finest in the world, given in memory of my mother.

Loving books as I do, the collecting of rare books—those of writers whose work especially appealed to my taste—has given me great pleasure and me added to my knowledge of many more writers than I would have learned otherwise. Anyone can be a successful collector of books at small cost, selecting only those to one's liking. But I have an interesting collection of postage stamps from all over the world, in mint state, with the pictures of authors upon them. I have gathered more about the world's authors, through this hobby, than if I had read dozens of books. Only the genuine authors of countries get their likeness upon their stamps. And these air mail stamps have appealed to me because of their poetic suggestion. The artistry is a miracle in flight.

Any hobby, however, can be an important one to anyone. And the pleasure and knowledge gained is a positive investment. Picture-taking with a camera is an excellent hobby. But any hobby that gives pleasure is an important one. I am sure that my hobbies have added years of happiness to me, and will do the same for anyone else who will do likewise.

New White Man's Burden

(Barclay's Bank Review).

It used to be fashionable to refer to the white man's burden, a phrase generally employed in order to that consoling sense of duty that made Britishers in steamy and remote corners of the Empire resolutely put away the bottle and change for dinner.

Or it may have been something else.

But it was certainly generally conceded that there was a burden and that all white men met of Lowestoft shouldered it.

Today things are very different. In many eastern countries the white man is thankful enough to get away in his shirt and, where he remains, he strives to blend with his indigenous surroundings.

However fast or fat are the burden, disappears, another takes its place and the latest variety is made in America. It is the new specter of persons, bearing on high and low alike and, indeed, it affects men of all colors; it is, in fact, the printed word.

It bears heavily on those remaining outposts of civilization where the burden is still proudly shouldered. Directives go out and reports are called for.

Camping beside a cactus, which alone seems at home in the desert, the squatting Arab is required by what it is hoped will prove to be a final effort, must be heavy going enough. But distance does in fact ease this particular trouble, and it is the cities that the full force of the scourge is felt.

It will not be stamped notice that in recent years almost every business which finds in these democratic days includes everyone from the humblest clerk to the senior executive—has affected a brief case.

At first this appeared to be merely a snobbish way of carrying sandwiches, but with the virtual abolition of lunching that theory became untenable.

In fact these little bags are chockful with—pill—articles, books, reports, papers, magazines, press clippings and so on. And most of them refer directly to the unfortunate victim's life. They are writings that he should, nay, must read if he is "to get on."

There is, of course, far, far more that must be read than can possibly be read, and so it goes into the brief case and is shuttled to and from between home and office.

As there are only twenty-four hours in the day and as no one pair of human eyes can remain open all the time, there is really no solution, to be discriminating. That, however, is a counsel of perfection, and in the case of those cases merely get stuffed the fuller.

A refinement to the torture is that, for example, the head of the department marks an article to be read by Mr. Smith, D. and leaves a place for them to initial and pass on.

These simply cannot be ignored, for a Superior may initiate a discussion on it without a question.

The whole business has become a form of Russian Roulette on an indudicious sandwich meal: it is one of the latest and truest strains of modern life that can all too quickly provide ulcers the size of dinner plates.

Which is why it is such a pleasure sometimes to read nonsense.

Ghost Writer Not So Good

(Des Moines Register-Tribune)

Tenzing, co-climber of Mount Everest to the top with Hillary, has become an eloquent pidgin English when a magazine correspondent took down his words in an interview last Summer.

This winter a statement full of 25-rupee words appeared over his autographed signature in the press of India, hailed as a drive for a "Sherpa Climbers Benevolent Fund" to help mountain-climbing fellow tribesmen.

We don't blame Tenzing for not getting a good writer for such an occasion, but it's a pity the writer didn't make a little more of the authentic Tenzing.

Compare these extracts:

Tenzing: [illegible] stenographic transcript of his spoken words:

"Every place my home . . . Lamas at Thyangboche my friends. Like God they are there on top and they make worship to mountain. I go there to pray. I go there to worship. I go there to ask for help. I go there to say thanks. I go there to make worship close to Buddha."

Ghost-written Tenzing this why:

"Mountaineering has begun to come down to the level of sport. The conquest of Everest has appealed to the imagination and spirit of adventure in the people all over India . . .

"Climbers cannot read or write, and when he draws his name he sometimes loses count of the loops and the like. . . . Once I was assigned it once "Tuning" and once "Dancing" to make several languages, he is a highly-skilled mountaineer, and as a pal-kid so simple as the well-heeled westerners who climb mountains for sport, or to plant a flag there, or because the mountains are there".

Tired Golfers Can Now Ride

(Chicago Daily News)

What looks like the greatest boon to sportsmen since the invention of the fish market is being shown at the Sports and Outdoor Show at the International Amphitheatre. It is a small electric carriage which will transport two golfers and 36 holes on a single charging of its battery.

One of the great drawbacks to the game of golf, apparently, has been the necessity of walking around the course. Another is the requirement for swinging at a ball. Maybe the next step would be to mount on the golfer-car [illegible] and have the sports computer, guaranteed to drop the ball within six inches of the cup.

Another solution might be to eliminate the first 18 holes entirely. Golfers, then, if he still feels ambitious, he can always lie down till the feeling goes away.

Why We Are As We Are

(Gait Reporter)

"All the world's a stage," the great bard wrote. At this season, it seems so, indeed. The legitimate theatrical season has been at its height for a stiff period, followed by amateur and professional fields. And watching, we can't help but think about life, as Shakespeare indicated we could.

"And all the men and women merely players," the playwright continued. We're not thinking of the drama or the musical program, we see the meaning of that line more clearly than we can in the confusing panorama of life. Everybody has to play a part, there are "and all the categories be-tween." The author and the leader, the writer and the director and the stage hands who work behind the scenes.

Here are men and women cast by heredity into a part, as a result of their own seeking and preparation, partly because of circumstances, partly because of them. The roles will fit in life, similarly, come to us in part because of our own seeking. Chance figures in it. But sometimes the choice of one's particular duties is likely to be the deciding factor.

Even our characters are as much the product of other people's thinking as our own. We are cast by our parents, by our teachers, by the roles in which others cast us. If they see us as comedians, we are likely to live up to that reputation more and more, even though it is not what we want, being a farcical, serious and sorrowful men. The man who is always thought of as a "heavy" may well become more and more grim and aloof with the passing years.

In life, we develop our roles slowly, almost without realizing it. Many of us never accept the parts we are playing as our proper characters, but we go on, of necessity, living them.

But the stage we see the scheme complete. And in seeing it, we can come to a better understanding of ourselves and our roles in the world.

Lumberjack Heavy Eater

(Windsor Star).

A professor who studied the lumberjack's eating habits has provided us with statistics which put other caloric intakes to shame. He's nothing for him to down a bush to handle 8,000 daily calories with ease, in comparison with 2,500 for the average city man.

This is in the best tradition of the tall tale. The lumberjack as a surprise to those who know nothing about him and rate as rest in lumber camps. A camp's table, in fact, is one of the few things in which one of its competitive position. Good men go where the food is good, and cooks are hard to equal.

Naturally it costs a lot to keep a lumberjack eating in the style to which he's accustomed. The survey shows that this food varied between $450 to $900 per man annually, in contrast to the Canadian average of $247.

The average year man, who must have some of the general proportions of Paul Bunyan ought to be something to be said for feeding time; and at the business end of an axe or saw as well.

ALL IN ONE SAVES TIME AND BOTHER.

Would it be harmful, asks a Nevada, reader—of course they can read in Nevada—to take iodin ration, calcium and the vitamin B12 pills each tablet all of the same time?

Well, now, let's see. Let's see, first time I have taken one or two days in the week along with a bite of whatever I can snatch from the refrigerator as I sneak out through the rear patio on my way to the bowling green.

Dr. Brady

The query reminds me of the conference on the R & E running through Canandaigua, when my brother-in-law was an R & E conductor. This chap was pretty well nourished and no nonsense about it. At a favorite eating place while the other fellows fussed over their food, eating now this and afterward that, in the peculiar way some people have, this one simply put everything together in one dish—eggs, bacon, bread, pie, gravy—whipped it up and spooned it in while he read his paper.

After all, the fellow said, it's all going into the stomach so what's the dif whether you take it piecemeal or slop, as Jackie Gleason calls it?

One who may be taking two or more medicines can better combine them in one dose unless his or her physician approves of it.

But the iodin ration, calcicaps, and B12 folic acid are not medicine. They're food or nutritional elements which one should get from a correct diet but who follows a correct diet in these days of what Yankee Wisecrex considers refined food?

Somehow the naive notion that this or that vitamin, especially if you get it in expensive "shots" gives you "pep". You'll get more pep from bacon and eggs for breakfast or an extra pint of milk for lunch than any such "shot" can give you. This is not to imply that a fast hook is the only reason for giving vitamins by injection. It is conceivable, though I can't at the moment think of a good example, that in certain serious digestive disorders the patient's capacity to assimilate vitamins is impaired.

Ten or fifteen years ago many drugs including the condaquin of this column, were peddled by doctors in enormous doses of vitamin D had some mysterious reputation which upon release from disability (call it "arthritis," rheumatism or what you will). We learned from sad experience that this hope was vain.

Someone has spoken of the humorous faith and the marvelous outlook of the physician. There is a place for the educated in every generation. They make a contribution to society which no other force would remain stationary. But the physician of the future will have to turn the course of history upon usually to have something to say with what men know but with what they can, and show everything else, with what they are. Book learning often seems to engender a false pride in the man which precludes the operation of wisdom. In such men the heart and the mind are wonderful of the common man!

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

BOOK LEARNING AND WISDOM

We live at a time when people put great stock in education, and well they may, for more new truths have been discovered in the last century than in the whole previous history of the human race.

Yet it is amazing to note how often the course of history has been changed by men who have had very little education. Our Lord Himself produced scarcely the equivalent of a grade-school education. All His disciples appear to have been uneducated men. Charlemagne could not write his name. Washington had a few years of school and under home tutors. Lincoln spent less than a year in school.

In the smoking compartment on the train yesterday, everybody was bewailing the passing of the family practitioner from modern city life. One of us was a druggist, two were travelling men, one a lawyer and one a carpenter.

"The young fellows now," explained the druggist, "are all specialists. What we need today is a new Sir William Osler to tell us where the coming profession is inspire the young men to return to the general practice of medicine."

The two travelling men related how impossible it was to get specialists they had recently with doctors who would not even go to consult specialists, specialists who wanted to take the patients to them.

The lawyer attempted to sum the situation up, saying that it was an age dominated by commercialism, and one had to right to consult specialists, specialists who could fit us out with anything in our cars.

But the farmer put us all right. "We still have general practitioners in the country," he said, "young ones and old ones. But even the old ones know about the modern advances in medical science. And they know that only a few miles away, in a neighboring big town or city, over good high-

Abbott Predicts Upswing Late in Year Will Offset Present Economic Slowdown

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott predicts that a slowdown in Canada's economic surge will be righted this year, and he does not think drastic government action is needed.

In his budget speech to the Commons Tuesday night, he said the record national production of 1953 should at least be equalled, with an upswing late in the year more than compensating for current declines in some industries.

He expressed a government reluctance to boost tariffs for the protection of Canadian industry now and to embark on public works for short-term relief of unemployment.

"I do not feel," he said, "that drastic measures by government are appropriate to the present economic situation. . . ."

The minister announced Monday an estimated 1953-54 budget surplus of $10,107,000, based on revenues of $4,240,000,000 and expenditures of $4,389,979,000.

Mr. Abbott estimated the 1953 gross national product—market value of all goods and services produced in the year—at $24,345,000,000, up $1,100,000,000 from 1952.

EXPORT OUTLOOK UNCERTAIN

He expressed some uncertainty about the export trade outlook. Though the grain export prospects are good by normal standards, much depended on markets, in the United States for other exports.

Mr. Abbott, in the part of his speech devoted to a general review of Canadian affairs in relation to international matters, said Canada cannot yet afford to relax on defence.

The free world must "continue to improve its defensive position in order to negotiate from strength."

In world trade, there had been progress towards free trade and payments, but it still fell short. Major currencies were still inconvertible and trade was widespread restrictions and discrimination.

While there was a slackening in the pace of economic advancement at home, Mr. Abbott said, Canadians should not feel unduly concerned.

"Indeed," he said, "in the dynamic kind of economy we have here in Canada an occasional hesitation in its forward movement may well be one of the consequences of the buoyant character of our economic growth.

"Most of the elements which supported this growth in national product in 1953 are still present, and I believe that the forces of long-term expansion will soon reassert themselves.

ADJUSTMENTS BEING MADE

"That some readjustments in production, in costs and in pricing policies are necessary and are indeed going on is clear.

At present, there was more unemployment than the government would like to see, and there were declines in certain industries.

Factors responsible included stiffer import and export competition, lower farm prices and smaller farm production.

While imports were higher and exports lower, Mr. Abbott would not agree that Canada is a high-cost producing country.

The protection of Canadian industry had changed in other countries now was disappearing as other areas recovered their war-ravaged productive capacities.

"Some of our industries," Mr. Abbott said, "are finding that they have not watched their costs as carefully as they should."

AGAINST HIGH TARIFFS

As a result, he said, he had received many requests for tariff increases or other forms of protection in the last few months and in any case since he became finance minister eight years ago.

But the government, he said, favors reducing obstacles to trade and must move in this direction if it expects others to do the same.

Apart from probable expenditures for national defence, consultations the government had in effect a series of payments which should prevent what he termed the "present readjustments" from becoming "more generalized and self-aggravating."

The present adjustments were taking place at a time when activity was higher than ever before Canada had been accustomed to in the past.

"Government intervention or expenditure," he said, "is not a cure for the problem of certain industries where supply has temporarily outrun demand, at home or abroad, or where costs and prices have got out of line."

The basic solution for these industries was to produce more efficiently and at lower costs and levels, with new and better products. Many industries were doing just that.

RED LEADER RESIGNS

LONDON (AP)—Moscow radio announced Tuesday that Y. Tsedenbal, Outer Mongolian premier and Communist party chief, has resigned his leadership of the party. Outer Mongolia is a Soviet satellite state. All the Soviet satellite countries recently adjusting their leadership to conform to the Moscow post-Stalin setup.

Fiscal Highlights

OTTAWA (CP)—Highlights of the fiscal portion of Finance Minister Abbott's budget speech:

National production in 1954 should exceed the 1953 record of $24,345,000,000.

An economic upswing in the second half of the year should outweigh declines now evident in some industries.

No drastic government measures needed to step up the economy or absorb unemployed.

Government reluctant about raising tariffs to protect industry, which must sharpen efficiency.

Outlook for export trade uncertain; grain exports good by normal standards; much depends on U.S.

Prospects for international economic cooperation favorable.

Canada cannot afford to relax in defence preparations.

Tobacco Growers Are Disappointed

OTTAWA (CP) — A spokesman for Ontario's tobacco growers hoped of another tax cut on cigarets, said Tuesday night that the growers are disappointed but not disheartened by Finance Minister Abbott's 1954-55 budget.

Fred C. Cunningham, chairman of the Ontario Flue-cured Tobacco Growers' Association, was commenting on Mr. Abbott's tax-cutting proposals which by-passed requests for reductions on cigarets.

"In his last two budgets Mr. Abbott has taken two long steps in the direction of realistic tobacco taxation and we believe the results justified another step in the same direction this year," Mr. Cunningham said in a statement.

BREATHER YEAR

"However, perhaps the federal government is entitled to this breather because there can be no doubt that the increased federal revenues from the tax reductions already made will make it fully apparent that a tobacco cut this year will substantially increase Ottawa's revenue from our crop."

Mr. Cunningham said cigarets continue to be the most heavily taxed of all consumer goods. Despite reductions in the last two years, taxation forces said it takes about 60 per cent of the retail selling price on a package of cigarets.

Budget at Glance

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Finance Minister Abbott presents his budget speech predicting tax cuts of $40,000,000 a year.

Main change is repeal of 15-per cent special excise tax on wide list of goods and its reduction to 10 per cent in some other cases.

Personal and corporation income tax rates unchanged.

Surplus of $5,000,000 predicted for 1954-55.

Only tax changes effective immediately.

Smoking Accessories Excise Tax is Reduced

OTTAWA (CP) — Smokers received slight attention, but pipelers were almost entirely overlooked in Tuesday's budget.

Current taxes on cigar, cigarets, cigars and cut tobacco were not touched, there was a change in method in taxing beer.

However, Finance Minister Abbott, in a speech known to take a social drink, reduced the excise tax on some smoking accessories to 10 per cent from 15. These include cigarette lighters, pipe and cigar and cigaret holders, cigaret rolling machines and matches.

The import toll on beer, and kindred beverages, such as ale and stout, was cut five cents a gallon, to 36 cents from 40.

DENIES MISSIONARY RIGHTS

NEW DELHI (AP)—Home Minister K. N. Katju Tuesday said American and other foreign missionaries have no right to try to convert Indians to Christianity. Katju told Parliament that the propagation of Christianity in India should be left to Indian Christians. There are several million Christians in India. The predominant religion is Hindu but minority groups have freedom of worship.

U.K. Budget Gets Lukewarm Paper Reception

LONDON (Reuters) — Today's British newspapers in general have a lukewarm reception for the government's new budget.

R. A. Butler, chancellor of the exchequer, surprised the country Tuesday when he presented a budget for the coming year containing the lowest taxation changes in living memory.

Although today's editorials express both criticism and enthusiasm, there is an undercurrent of opinion that Butler's unspectacular budget was necessary.

The Times remarks: "It is a business budget for the citizen, but what more could Mr. Butler do?

"Twelve months of great progress and achievement lie behind, but in this particular stage there is no scope for anything except devoting a minimum amount of attention to the economy. The economy at its two weakest points—its supplies of labor, trade and, above all, raising the still-inadequate level of industrial re-equipment."

The Manchester Guardian calls the budget "colorless," adding: "The economy may be in balance but today as one can say how it may be affected later in the year by the course of the American trade decline."

A COMPLETE FLOP

The Daily Herald, a Labor organ, says the budget was not a complete flop among Tories who had been hoping for predictions of income tax as well as concessions which would make them popular with the electorate.

Some other editorial comments: The Independent Daily Express: "In every home this morning this Tuesday budget will bring depression. It will also bring depression to the Tories.

"When Mr. Butler is a-bustle their chancellor stands before them empty-handed."

The Conservative Daily Mail: "It is surely a tribute to the soundness of the chancellor's policies in previous years that he is able to carry on now with no violent fluctuations in taxes, prices or allowances."

The pro-Labor Daily Mirror: "What is the upshot of it all? That Britain did well last year but that she must do better in 1954.

"The fact is that it is not all up to our sleeves and get down to work. The chancellor prophesies a hard year ahead. Britain can accept the challenge."

$1,000 Ceiling On Duty-Free Imports Lifted

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian servicemen, posted abroad for a year or more, may bring back as new goods as they wish without paying duty.

Finance Minister Abbott Tuesday night lifted the $1,000 ceiling on duty-free imports for servicemen, granting them the same privileges extended for many years to other employees of the Canadian government serving abroad.

Mr. Abbott also had decided to write into the tariff structure the free entry of a maximum of $25 in gifts sent by Canadian servicemen abroad to friends and relatives in Canada. The exemption was provided by order-in-council in December, 1951.

Canadian, British Budgets Alike

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian and British budgets, both presented Tuesday, had in common the basic expectation that this is not the time either for tax increases or reductions.

Both budgets announced small reductions in a tax that which scarcely will be noticed. Both budgets reflected their governments' hope that the current year will not bring an economic depression. Britons called their's a "carry-on" budget. Canadian observers described Finance Minister Abbott's presentation as "stand-pat" budget and "steady-as-she-goes."

Both British and Canadian budgets stressed the fact that the future would be influenced by United States policies.

Macdonnell Has Prayer For Cabinet Members

OTTAWA (CP)—J. M. Macdonnell (PC, Toronto Rosedale) critic Tuesday night suggested a prayer be said by the government members in the light of Finance Minister Abbott's budget speech to the Commons.

Mr. Macdonnell described the budget as a "do-nothing stand-pat" policy and said the cabinet might adopt a prayer as its slogan.

"Lord, if it be possible, help us to be worthy in some measure of the high esteem in which we hold ourselves."

Immediate Price Slashes For Electrical Appliances, Furs, Cameras Are Forecast

TORONTO (CP)—Immediate or early reduction in the prices of electrical appliances, furs and cameras and lesser cuts on a considerable list of items are predicted following Tuesday night's budget.

However, while smiles spread through businesses which got a piece of the modest $40,000,000 tax cut and which will be able to hang reduced price tags in front of customers, some critical comment was heard elsewhere.

The Canadian Manufacturers' Association, in a statement from its president, J. D. Woods, of Brockville, said it was disappointed that there was no reduction in personal and corporation tax rates from present "unsound levels."

It welcomed tax relief given, and some other budget elements, but commented: "The overall impression of "the discriminatory excise tax" remains still unjust.

The association regretted, too, that the government "has not found it favorable upon any requests for necessary tariff safeguards at this session, and expressed opposition from abroad is causing unemployment in some Canadian industries."

LABOR CRITICAL

Lack of income tax reductions also brought consternation from labor circles which felt such cuts would be more popular than excise cuts to stimulate purchasing and reduce unemployment.

Reaction at getting relief were, naturally, more enthusiastic. Manufacturers of appliances, and in the 10-per-cent sales tax on musical instruments, and in the highly fighting equipment, though some felt the sales tax should be taken off completely in municipal use.

In Montreal, George S. Mooney, general manager of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities, described the budget as "on the right direction—but only a step." In Edmonton Mayor William Hawrelak forecast a saving of at least $200,000 a year for Edmonton.

Stanley Dubeau, president of the Canadian Retail Furriers' Association, said the abolition of the 15-percent excise tax on furs would help industry "to recuperate and mediately and added:

"There is no doubt that it will help business."

B. Napier Simpson, general manager of the Canadian Electrical Manufacturers' Association, said the same cut on electrical appliances would assist materially."

HIDDEN TAX

The amount of the tax on such items as toasters and irons might not seem large, but it was one of the hidden items which made the Canadian price level out of line with American prices, and its removal should cut down Canadian shopping across the border. The excise tax on stoves, refrigerators and washing machines has been removed some time ago.

Camera dealers said the 15-percent excise tax removal would make Canadian prices competitive with Americans and probably would result in more than a 15-per-cent reduction in retail level. One dealer cited a likely $33 cut on a $200 camera and $4.50 on one selling at $45.50.

POP CUT OUT

On items, such as jewelry, which got a tax cut from 15 per cent to 10 per cent, room for reductions in retail prices will be more limited on, say, a diamond ring, but probably non-existent for soft drinks.

While excise taxes are applied at the manufacturers' level and are not necessarily passed on to the customer at the retail counter, it is believed that today's competition for the customer's dollar will virtually force immediate reductions, even, in some cases so great as to the retailer has already paid tax.

WESTERN REACTION

In Vancouver, Major W. Owen Wenny, city purchasing agent, estimated the city will save $10,000 this year on purchases of electrical equipment alone.

In Victoria, Premier W. A. C. Bennett called budget "all right, nothing budget."

In Regina, Liberal co-operate with the policies of development as presented by British Columbia last night, "should lead to further development of Canada and go a long way to bolster federal revenues," he said.

In December B. C. asked the federal government to participate with it in a joint investment program on certain projects in the province.

Next 12 Months Important For Progress in International Economic Affairs—Abbott

OTTAWA (CP)—Events shaping up make the next 12 months important for progress in international economic cooperation, says Finance Minister Abbott.

In his budget speech Tuesday night Mr. Abbott said:

"The next year many attitudes of many countries, their improved trade and payments position, and the financial progress towards domestic economic stability have combined to create a more favorable climate for advance than at any time since the end of the war."

GROWING IMPATIENCE

"There is a growing impatience with the existing system of direct trade controls and discriminations and with the inevitable waste of the serious economic damage which results from the perpetuation of such policies."

"To a greater extent than at any time since the end of the war, overseas countries are showing a willingness to revise and liberalize in their trade policy in order to deal with their exchange problems in a fundamental way.

ACTION TAKEN

Earlier this year finance ministers of the Commonwealth had met in Sydney, Australia, and had reached agreement on a series of proposals for currency convertibility and freer trade.

United States, the Randall commission on foreign economic policy had identified in a report which favored a "reasonably promising basis for action by the United States in a co-operative movement towards a sounder system of trade and payments."

The International Monetary Fund had made changes in its rules and practices to ensure effective support of a major move to convertibility. In Western Europe "powerful new voices have recently been raised" in favor of an early move to convertibility and multilateral trade."

Mr. Abbott expressed the hope that the United States in the field of trade will continue to provide effective leadership at this critical time." Canada was prepared to play an appropriate part to bring about a freer world system of trade and payments.

He warned against "growing protectionist pressures in many countries, including Canada."

Tariff Cuts to Aid Mines, Railroads and Steel Firms

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott Tuesday night announced about $1,000,000 a year in tariff cuts to assist mining, railroad and steel industries.

The reductions affect about two dozen products, and the changes are changed on about 50 other items to "remove uncertainty, assist sales and relieve administrative difficulties."

Steel companies will benefit by reduction of 2½ per cent from 5 per cent on duties on imports of fire brick, refractory cement and refractory blast and other types of furnaces.

Steel companies use several tons of refractory material of fire bricks each year and previously had to pay a 15-per-cent duty. Now they will be able to obtain a rebate from the revenue department on the entire tax.

The 22½-per-cent duty on materials and parts used in the construction and repair of railway rolling stock is eliminated. The CNR spends about $60,000 a year on these materials. The 22½-per-cent tariff remains in force for testing rail flaws is also eliminated.

RAIL TARIFF SUSPENDED

For the next two years the duty is suspended on imported tie plates for motor rail cars which the CPR is using for certain runs in Ontario and Quebec.

Other tariff changes:

4. Jute fabric used by nurserymen in wrapping roots of plants and trees will be admitted free from all countries. The present 15% rate is cut to five per cent from 22½ per cent from most other countries.

5. Tariff on devices for control of sterilizing solutions used in bleaching rod mills in the beverage industries is reduced to 13½ per cent from 25%.

Municipalities Helped Little By New Budget

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian municipalities received a measure of tax relief in Finance Minister Abbott's budget.

It repealed the 10-per-cent sales tax on certain equipment purchased by municipalities for road building, road cleaning or fighting fires.

The action followed representations from municipalities and opposition parties in the Commons that the tax applied on purchases by municipalities exempt from the sales tax.

To be exempt from the tax the equipment must be valued at more than $1,000 and cannot be resold. Automobiles or trucks are not included.

12 HIKERS KILLED

SEOUL (AP)—A truck loaded with young hikers careened over a 200-foot embankment to death, police reported today. Twenty others were injured in the crash 30 miles north of Pusan port.

Taxes Used To Finance Pensions Not Increased

OTTAWA (CP)—Taxes used to finance pensions of $40 a month to all Canadians 70 and over will not be increased by the present budget, although the pension fund is expected to continue to run in the red.

In his budget speech Tuesday night, Finance Minister Abbott said the fund had a deficit of approximately $30,000,000 in 1953-54, a surplus of $68,000,000 in 1952-53, and one of $45,000,000 in 1951-52. A deficit of $30,000,000 is anticipated for 1954-55.

The pension fund receives its revenue from a two-per-cent levy on personal incomes, a two-per-cent tax on corporation profits and a two-per-cent sales tax.

...NEWMAN—WOODS

TWEED.—On Saturday afternoon, April 3rd, at three o'clock in the United Church parsonage, Betty Woods, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Woods, became the bride of Mr. Wells Newman, Trenton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Newman of Island, New Brunswick. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. W. E. Pace.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in her waltz-length gown of white nylon. She wore a halo encircled with seed pearls, and carried a bouquet of red Bettertina roses.

Mrs. Sidney Lambert, aunt of the bride, was matron of honour, gowned in medium blue taffeta, with matching accessories and pink rose corsage.

The bridegroom was attended by an uncle of the bride, Mr. Sidney Lambert.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where the bride's mother received the guests gowned in blue crepe with matching accessories. Her corsage was of sweetpeas.

The bride's table was beautifully decorated with pink and white streamers centred by a three-tier wedding cake.

Those who served were, Miss Mary Lou Woodcox and Miss Marion Green of Tweed.

Out-of-town guests were present from Belleville and Trenton.

For the honeymoon trip to the home of the bridegroom's parents in New Brunswick, the bride chose a navy blue suit with matching accessories.

On their return, the happy young couple will reside in Trenton where the groom is a member of the R.C.A.F.

...LITTLE—HEASMAN

STIRLING.—The home of Mr. and Mrs. George Heasman, Stirling, R.R. 4, was the scene of a pretty wedding at high noon on Saturday, April 3, when their eldest daughter, Catherine Louise, became the bride of David William Little, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. Little, Belleville. Rev. A. E. Baker officiated with the wedding party grouped in front of the fireplace. Spring blooms were used as decoration in the living room.

Mrs. A. E. Baker, A.T.C.L., furnished appropriate wedding music and Miss Joanne Heasman, sister of the bride, sang before the ceremony, "Hear Our Humble Prayer", and during the signing of the register, "O Perfect Love."

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore dusky pink taffeta with a baby orchid bandeau and a corsage of orchids.

Miss Joyce Cranston, Harold, Ontario, was bridesmaid, wearing blue taffeta with a bandeau of yellow roses and matching corsage.

Mr. Elmer Graham, Belleville, attended the bridegroom.

The bride's mother received her guests wearing navy crepe with corsage of white carnations and bridesmaid. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother in navy with corsage of yellow roses.

Stirring Address on "Citizenship" Given at Collegiate H-S Assoc.

The April meeting of BCIVS Home and School Association was held in the school library on Monday. Mrs. W. R. H. Gander acted as chairman.

A short session devoted to necessary business preceded the main part of the program, a speech by Mr. Malcolm Robb, Q.C., on "Citizenship".

"The concept of citizenship," according to Mr. Robb, "has changed over the course of the past century and even over the past twenty years. A hundred years ago, the duties of citizenship involved, primarily, survival against the elements. Now, they are chiefly concerned with avoidance of war.

"We do not wish war, but, in the practise of good citizenship, it is not sufficient to merely think wishfully; we must do something about it. Had we, as citizens, done anything during the past we should not now be in the position in which we find ourselves.

WHAT TO DO?

"What should we do?" Mr. Robb pointed out that China, R.C. Asia, France, Italy and other countries in like position are starving and despairing. Communism seems the only system offering them any tangible relief.

"We in Canada and the United States are not being realistic about the problem. From the end of World War II it was realized that communism would engulf fascism and that Russia was intent on conquering the world for communism.

"Since no vigorous, prosperous power ever succumbs to communism, the answer to the problem of combatting the communist threat is clear: We must raise the standards of living in those countries which might fall into Russia's ambit. To accomplish this, we must trade with them. We must sell them our huge exportable surplus and in return purchase their goods. We can not bring this about unless we remove our tariff barriers wholesale or by five per cent or 95 per cent.

WAR—PROSPERITY

"For example, Japan is now in the same position as it was in the '30's. Japan wanted the Korean war to continue because it brought them a measure of prosperity. Trade would cease at the end of the war, and conditions would be worse than in the depression years because Japan has not now China with which to trade.

"Similarly, Germany is now producing 25 per cent more than she was in 1938. Are we, because we refuse to trade with them, to turn them over to another Hitler?

"The Canadian Government has recently announced that a new trade treaty with Japan has placed that country in the most favored nations category instead of under the general tariff. But, a condition provides there must be no disruption of industry in Canada through trade with Japan. This condition is ridiculous because there must be disruption of trade if tariffs are reduced. We should look at the larger picture in which, by getting rid of our high priced goods, we can increase the purchasing power of our farmers, papermakers and other manufacturers."

CITIZENS RESPONSIBLE

Labelling the government of the country, of whatever party, as profligate, stupid, weak, corrupt, and supine, Mr. Robb laid the responsibility directly on the shoulders of Canadian citizens, they failed to elect good men in the first place, and failed further to protest against their lax misrule.

"Psychiatrists and psychologists have of late years proclaimed that the only cure for the condition the world is in is a return to religion. If we practise Christianity sincerely and without hypocrisy, there would be no problem. To serve others is Christianity and basically, is good citizenship.

CITIZEN'S DUTY PLAIN

To recapitulate, the duty of a citizen is just as simple and plain as that of a soldier. We must better conditions throughout the world. To do this we must increase trade by lowering tariff barriers. We must elect politicians who are honest and who refuse to yield to pressure groups. We must cease being hero worshippers and hypocrites. In other words, the good citizen must learn, in the words of Sir Winston Churchill, "to conquer his worst enemy—himself."

Mr. J. Musgrove thanked Mr. Robb for his inspiring address.

A short question period followed.

After adjournment coffee was served in the cafeteria.

During the evening, a bake sale was held and the delicious array of cakes and pies was soon purchased.

Kilmat Power Film Shown At H-S Association

The regular meeting of the Queen Elizabeth Home and School Association was held recently in the school auditorium with Mrs. J. Godwin, president, in the chair. Mr. F. E. Moore presided at the piano.

After the reading of the minutes by Mrs. W. Knudsen, recording secretary, some small items of business were completed. Mrs. Godwin read an invitation from the Madoc Home and School Association for members of the Queen Elizabeth to join with them in hearing Dr. Hazel Laycock, who is to be guest speaker at their April meeting.

The president brought to the attention of the meeting the Ontario Home and School convention to be held in Toronto on April 20-21st.

Mr. E. L. Stephanson proposed a motion that a delegation be sent to the convention, which was seconded by Mr. F. E. Moore. Mrs. Godwin and Mr. Frank Benson agreed to be present.

After closing the business meeting, Mrs. Godwin introduced Mr. Keith Cowan, of engineering department of the city of Belleville. Mr. Cowan had obtained, through the courtesy of Ballantynes, the movie of the Kilmat Power Development at Kemano, B.C. Mr. Cowan, in introducing the movie, stated it was conclusively self-explanatory, as was, indeed, evident throughout the picture. The members were treated to an excellent picture in not graphically descriptive and beautifully filmed, replete with British Columbia's gorgeous scenery.

Mrs. Eric Whitfield graciously thanked Mr. Cowan for his interest in presenting the movie and mentioned that she had been particularly pleased to view it as her husband and son had repeatedly mentioned its interest.

After the meeting was closed the members gathered around the attractive table for coffee and cookies, served by Mrs. L. J. Seymour and her competent committee.

75 Shell Dealers With Wives Attend Dinner

Seventy-five Shell dealers throughout this area and their staffs gathered at the Queensway Hotel, Trenton, last night for their annual dealers' meeting.

Mr. W. C. Harvey, Belleville district manager for Shell, introduced Mr. C. A. Dixon, Toronto division retail sales manager, who conducted the business portion of the meeting.

Using many interesting props and sound effects all the way from cracking pistols to the boom of a jet plane breaking the sound barrier, Mr. C. A. Dixon reviewed last year's sales and outlined the company's 1954 advertising and sales program.

He stressed to the dealers the necessity of continuing to give excellent service to customers and of maintaining clean service stations, particularly rest rooms. Another important feature of the program was a film concerning Shell Premium Gasoline with TCP, the Company's new gasoline which was introduced last year.

Lapel pins and framed plaques were presented to three dealers in recognition of their long and valued association with the Company. The following received 25 year diamond lapel pins and plaques:

Mr. J. J. Stewart, Norwood, Ont.; Mr. E. W. Jones, Tweed, Ont.; Mr. E. Caruthers was recognized on completion of 15 years' service as a Shell dealer.

Present at the meeting from Shell's Toronto division office were: E. Hill, division lubber representative.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

REALLY ARE, OR IS SHE MERELY DREAMING?

Something that it's well to learn just as early in life as possible is to look at things the way they are, not dream dreams about how you want them to be, and dream so hard you actually believe it.

Take, for instance, the young woman—30 years old, she is, too, old enough to know better—who is trying to dream up a romance where it seems quite unlikely any exists.

"When I was in high school," she says, "I went with a boy whom I loved very much, and who I think loved me, too. When I moved away from town, we broke up because of a girl who told tales, and we both lost our tempers.

"It has now been about a year and a half since we broke up, and during that time I have met many boys and dated quite a few. I've even gone steady with one boy. But I always thinking about that boy. He is now going with another girl, but my friends all say he still loves me."

He's "going with another girl," but she brushes aside the reality for the dream that he "still loves" her. What other dreams is she putting in the place of reality?

"I have returned several times to the small town where I used to live," she goes on, "and when I meet this boy on the highway, he waves."

Anybody see anything in this to show he still "loves" her? I don't. If she had said that as soon as he caught sight of her, he raced over to talk with her, one might see it as a hopeful sign. But a mere wave of the hand? No.

KEEP STARING

Then: "The last time I was down, we happened to be at the same dance and our tables were close together," she continues. "The way he was sitting, his back toward me, and he managed to shuffle around so he could see me, and when I talked to other boys, he blushed and kept his head low. Also, when I went out to dance, he didn't take his eyes off me. All my friends noticed it and later spoke to me about it. Even the girl he was with kept staring at me, and sometimes when he was staring at me, she turned his face."

Did he ask her to dance? No, she says, explaining this by saying that he had his date, and she had hers, and that he and the boy are with were "rivals," whatever that may mean. Rivals for her affection, perhaps—another dream?

Then there is more to the effect that all her friends told her this chap still loves her and, of course, it all ends with the inevitable question: "How could I go about it to let him know I still care for him without it being too forward?"

Well, I advise this young woman to do nothing whatever, at this point, in the way of trying to "let him know I still care."

I don't mean she should take an attitude that would suggest she still cherishes a grudge against him for the quarrel that broke up their friendship. Obviously she doesn't, and doesn't want him to think so. So, by all means, let her give him a friendly greeting when she sees him, and a smile that will make him understand she has no hard feelings whatever toward him.

But beyond that, let her wait for him to lead the way toward the renewal of their friendship if there is to be any. Let her stop trying to manufacture a romance out of what she thinks about the way he ever was and what her friends tell her. The more she sees things as they really are, and doesn't let herself into thinking she sees what she may not be there at all, the less likely she is to end up with a heartache.

Special-Purpose Menu

By Mary Moore

For the past two months my front door mat has had about as much traffic over it as the corner of 5th Avenue and 42nd Street, in New York, and my food budget, as a consequence, has been knocked into a cocked hat.

Steps had to be taken.

It's all very well for my kids to phone and say "Herbie's coming—let's have steak" or "I'm bringing Jane. Could we have one of Barb's broilers?" or "Mum, I invited Kaye for lunch. He likes strawberry shortcake." Having a reputation as a cook is not all that it is cracked up to be.

I'm sure hundreds of you are often in the same fix. You want to serve meals that are memorable and part of the entertainment.

You can serve four hungry young or old folk on 3-4 lb. hamburg if you want to follow this menu.

Frozen Orange Juice Cocktail
Spaghetti and Hamburg
Cabbage and Carrot Salad
Coffee
Lemon Jelly Roll

There is a brand of frozen orange juice concentrate selling for 2 6-oz. tins for 35c that we think compares equally with the 3 for 39c brand. When it is diluted as directed on the can it serves four generously for 3 1-4c per glass.

SPAGHETTI AND HAMBURG

To 1 1-2 quarts boiling salted water add 4 oz. spaghetti without breaking it and cook until soft. Drain, but reserve 1-2 cup of the spaghetti water. Add this 1-2 cup water to the drained spaghetti and 2 cups canned tomatoes, 1 cup grated cheese or finely chopped process cheese. In a frying pan saute 1 large sliced onion and 1 cup finely chopped celery in 4 tablespoons fat for 2 minutes, then add 3-4 lb. broken up hamburg meat and stir until meat is cooked and delicately browned. Add this frying-pan mixture to the spaghetti with 1-2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce and salt and pepper to taste. Gently stir over low heat until heated through and bubbling. Serve in centre of large platter, and if desired pass extra finely grated cheese.

CABBAGE AND CARROT SALAD

Use new cabbage and new carrots for this—there's much cabbage as carrot and shred the cabbage with your sharpest knife as finely as possible. The carrot should be shredded on your finest shredder. Add Thick French dressing or mayonnaise to moisten this just before serving.

LEMON JELLY ROLL

Before you start the batter line a pan 15 1-2 by 10 1-2 inches with foil, and butter it. Set the oven at 375 deg. Fahr. In large bowl beat three large eggs until they are thick (about 10 minutes) and begin to add 1 cup sugar gradually. This mixture should be very thick. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla and five level tablespoons cold water and beat for 1-2 minute. Sift flour and measure 1 cup —all-purpose or cake, it doesn't matter—and sift it with 1 teaspoon baking powder and 1-4 teaspoon salt. Stir just until smooth. Turn into prepared pan. Put in oven with heat coming only from the bottom and with rack on which cake bakes about 1-3 way from bottom of oven. Bake exactly 15 minutes. Have ready a clean tea towel sprinkled with icing sugar. When cake is done immediately turn it upside down on towel, tear off foil and spread (at once with lemon filling (or jam or jelly) and roll up, beginning at short end. Wrap in the tea towel to make it hold its shape until cool.

LEMON FILLING

In a saucepan mix together 3-4 cup sugar, 3 tablespoons cornstarch, 1-3 teaspoon salt, and when mixed stir in 2-3 cup boiling water, 6 tablespoons lemon juice and stir constantly until thick, then 1 minute longer over low heat. Remove from heat and add 1 1-2 tablespoons butter and chill so that this is ready and cold at the exact moment when you are ready to spread the cake. It must be made before you start the batter and if necessary chilled by standing it in bowl containing ice water.

Fashion Flashes

Flattery is the happy theme of many of the newest Spring hats; some of which effect a nice balance between the tiny and the large hat. Made with side width is a half in bright blue shantung straw, with clusters of pink and blue silk hyacinths massed in front and shading the brow.

The flowers that bloom on this year's silk and cotton prints are most neat and precise, but have a wealth of rich coloring. A beauty of a dress, cut on princess lines, with crisply flaring skirt and round collar, is of white silk surah brightly patterned with garlands of little roses, in rich shades of pink and apricot, with green leaves.

Still carrying on in its successful fashion is the separate skirt and top costume. A new one sees a circular cotton skirt in a handsome scroll tapestry print, green on green, worn with a moss green jersey top with deep cuffless V neckline and short sleeves.

Wonderful for important daytime occasions and for theatre wear is a nutty tailored suit of white lace over palest blue satin.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

A QUESTION OF INITIALS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it still customary for an engaged girl, who is assembling her trousseau, to use the initial or initials of her maiden name, or of her future name, in monogramming her linens and silverware?

E.R.

The choice is a question of the bride-to-be's preference. . . . not of rule.

Today many brides-to-be. . . a should say, the majority. . . follow the modern, practical custom of having their silver and linen marked to include the married initial. They decide, and quite sensibly, that since these items are to be a part of the new household, they should be marked with the initial of the new name. Then there will be unity of marking between linens and, particularly, silver acquired after marriage with those in the pre-marriage trousseau.

If three initials are used, they are the initials of the bride's maiden name plus the initial of her married name. For example, E.R.H. . . for Elizabeth Robbins Hill. Hill the groom's surname. If only one initial is to be used, it is the initial of the groom's surname.

It must of course be added, in this question of silver-and-linen marking, that some brides-to-be, of sure and conservative taste, adhere to the time-honored tradition of having their linens and silver marked with the initials of their maiden name.

CONCERNING NAMES ON PLACE CARDS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When place cards are used, is it ever permissible to use initials (as in the case of a very long first name) or must the name always be written out in full. — M.

When it is a formal occasion the first name is not written on place cards. Only the title and surname. Mr. Adams. . . Mrs. Thompson. . . Miss Williams.

First names are written on place cards only on very informal occasions, such as birthday parties, often holiday parties, sometimes astern buffet suppers. And on such occasions only first names are written on the place cards. . . no title, no surname.

NOT CORRECT

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Recently I have received two wedding invitations with the inside envelopes left addressed to "Mr. and Mrs." I have never heard any mention of such a faux pas in your column, and I am wondering". Isn't it correct to write the titles and surnames on the inside envelope: Mr. and Mrs. Smith? —W.

It is not correct, ever, to leave the inside envelope blank. I am "wondering" too why anyone would want to do this, when writing the name on the inside envelope gives it that "personalized" and gracious salutation. Yes, it is correct to write the title and surname on the inside envelope: Mr. and Mrs. Smith.

FOR ALMOST INSTANT PAIN RELIEF

Reds Call Labor Pains Just 'Unpleasant' Feelings

By BILL ROSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW (CP) — Russian doctors say labor pains are just "unpleasant sensations" and use what they call the "psycho-prophylactic method" to distract attention from the "unpleasantness" when pain hits.

Here, as elsewhere in Europe, delivery is a communal affair.

In maternity clinic No. 12, a modern four-story brick establishment in the ritzy Sherbakov ward of Moscow, the main delivery room has six accouchement tables separated halfway along by a glass panel.

Dr. Maria Mikhailovna Repina, the clinic's 51-year-old director, said there have been times when babies were being delivered on all six at once.

CAESAREAN OPERATION

Deliveries which require caesarean section are removed to another operating theatre. There the caesarean is performed under local anaesthetic.

Dr. Repina said Russian scientists consider general anaesthetics harmful to the baby, and spinals dangerous for the mother.

Explaining the "psycho-prophylactic," Dr. Repina said women hear too much from their mothers and grandmothers about pain in childbirth.

"When we speak to them about the coming event we do not mention pain. We speak only of 'unpleasant feelings.' We explain how it happens. We tell them childbirth is just a physiological process.

"We tell them in detail about the organism, how it functions, the process of delivery and why it causes their unpleasant feelings."

When the "unpleasant feelings" strike, the patients are directed into certain massaging exercises to distract their minds, and told to do deep breathing.

PRIDE A FACTOR

Pride probably plays a part—women may not want to break down in the presence of others the same boat who remain calm.

I did meet one subsequently who apparently had had a terrific fight with the director herself and had unavailingly demanded relief. She was full of apologies. But the director said in an amused aside that that was probably to make sure she and her baby weren't discriminated against for a poor performance.

During delivery, where it is a case of the life of the mother or of the baby, the mother's is protected first.

"We hope," said Dr. Repina, "that we are succeeding and that future generations will learn from their mothers and grandmothers that childbirth is just a natural process."

We asked one girl when she'd be back for her next baby.

"Oh, not for a couple of years anyway if I have anything to do with it," she replied with a grin.

"People are people. It doesn't matter whether they're Russians, Canadians or Chinese. Having babies just isn't fun."

Beauty

DRY SKIN A COMMON AFFLICTION

To hear some women talk you would think that there are no normal complexions—just those that are too dry or too oily. The "dry" are justified in registering their grievances for an arid epidermal surface will not make friends with powder. It rebels against soap—even the blandest. There are times when it is drawn sensitive and sore.

In a dry climate conditions are worse of course. Houses and offices that are over-heated in the winter can also affect the skin—not only the face but on the entire body urface. In that event, there must be a change in the diet. The sebaceous glands will respond, become normal in their functioning, if more fatty elements are consumed—especially butter, rich cream and olive oil. Sometimes the skin is dry it is thirsty. Five or six glasses of water taken between meals may prove the solution to the problem.

Local treatment consists of the free use of lubricants. The dry skin will lap them up as a kitten laps up milk. Make-up must be removed with an oil or thin cream. Several applications are necessary, each one being removed with tissues. If some remains on the flesh, it may be used with a casting discomfort. Fluff up a suds in the hand bowl, dip in a heavy wash cloth, press lightly over the face. No rubbing, no friction because this might prove irritating when lather is present. The water should not be too hot since hot water is drying. It should be just warm enough to fluff up a suds.

Rinse with tepid water. Wrap the hands in a soft towel, start patting at the neck, working upward and outward. This manner of drying the face is a sort of treatment in itself, stimulating the blood streams, toning the fibers. Try it. You will find that the flesh will glow afterward.

The next step is the use of a heavy massage cream. Spread it on with upward strokes, being careful not to force the flesh up around the eyes. Do circles over the cheeks and forehead. Finish with light hammering movements. The cream should remain on over night.

athletes in training build strength with MILK

Milk rates high with athletes in training. It's an abundant and economical source of highly important food elements: protein that builds, sustains and repairs body tissues; calcium, the tooth and bone builder; Vitamin A; and thiamine for healthy nerves.

Eat protein foods for physical vigour

Sports College has made repeated tests on the value of protein for physically active people. We find that athletes getting adequate amounts of milk and other dairy foods 1) feel more like practicing 2) encounter fewer and briefer periods of staleness that slow down training 3) perform better in action.

Women's Activities

JOHNSTOWN W.A.

The Women's Association of Johnstown met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Stickle on Thursday with 13 members attending.

An auction of old Easter bonnets was held, brought by each member. Mrs. C. Curtis was auctioneer and did a creditable job. There was much merriment when these hats were taken out of the bags and put on the ladies' heads. As it was April Fools Day some of the ladies put balloons in the bags instead of hats and the ladies getting them had to wear them through the meeting as a hat. Mrs. B. Ketcheson of Trenton won the prize for having the smartest hat. Mrs. G. McLean and Mrs. A. Meyers (who got the balloons) won a prize for the latest creation.

The meeting was opened in the usual manner. The Scripture reading was found in Matthew 26 read by Mrs. Clapp. A reading "The Seven Words", was given by Mrs. E. Stickle, followed by "Crosses" by Mrs. A. Meyers.

A letter was read from King Street Church W.M.S. association inviting Johnstown ladies to their Women's Missionary Society, Easter meeting. It was moved that all bills be paid. Mrs. C. Curtis is to entertain the W.A. in May and Mrs. McLean and Mrs. W. S. Harry are to be responsible for the May program.

The birthday box was passed around and there were three birthdays in April. The hats were all collected then and presented to Mrs. Puttenham for her group sale held at the town hall in Trenton some time later. It was decided to have a sale of home cooking on the market, the Saturday before Easter and that CJBQ announce it over the air as "Around the Bay."

Mrs. E. Bush and Mrs. C. Curtis favored with a duet "The Stranger of Galilee". A reading was given, "After the Darkness, the Dawn" by Mrs. Puttenham. After the meeting closed refreshments were served by the hostess and her conveners.

British Planes Collected Data On H-Bombs

LONDON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons Tuesday that a British plane made a flight in the vicinity of the recent American hydrogen bomb experiments in the Pacific to collect scientific data.

Churchill, replying to a question, said no British technical observers watched the explosions, but the United States authorities did agree that Britain should have certain facilities for collecting scientific data bearing on their effects.

"An aircraft of the RAF made a flight in the vicinity of the explosion on March 1 some hours after it occurred. A similar flight was also made on March 27."

Two Canberra jet bombers assigned to the duty were lost in transit to the American base in the Pacific but this was in no way due to the risks of the special mission which they were to have undertaken, he added.

CCF Proposes Compensation For All Sickness

TORONTO (CP)—The CCF provincial council said Tues., a provincial sickness and accident benefit plan, a province-wide hospital insurance program and a consumers' bureau are proposed in a new draft of a CCF program for Ontario.

The council has approved the program for submission to the CCF's annual convention to be held here May 22-24.

The proposed sickness and accident benefit plan would give all wage and salary earners benefits, on the same scale as those now provided under the Workmen's Compensation Act, for the loss of income resulting from sickness and accident not covered by workmen's compensation. The plan, financed by employer and employee contributions, would be open to farmers and other self-employed persons on a voluntary basis.

The hospital insurance in the proposal would be similar to that in effect in Saskatchewan. It would be financed partly by premiums paid on an individual or family basis and partly by provincial grants. It would provide "full hospital services for as long as required."

The proposed consumers' bureau would publish "independent expert information" on the quality of products placed on the market in Ontario so that consumers would be in a position to know if they were getting value for their money. It would have authority to prohibit fraudulent and misleading advertising.

AUTO FUND

The draft program also proposed an automobile accident fund "to which all motorists will contribute and out of which compensation will automatically be paid to every accident victim."

The program said the present unsatisfied judgment fund has not proved satisfactory because payments are inadequate, insured motorists are required to contribute to cover liabilities of the uninsured, and because nothing has been done about "the exorbitant rates charged by private insurance companies."

Subjects covered in the 7,000-word draft program, virtually a new party platform drawn up since the choice of Donald C. MacDonald as the party's new provincial leader, also include federal-provincial relations, provincial-municipal relations, mineral resources, lands and forests, agriculture, labor, education, housing, health services, welfare services, penal reform, civil rights, recreation and the arts, public administration and electoral reform.

Preliminary Hearing Starts This Week on Highway Irregularities at Fort William

FORT WILLIAM (CP)—The preliminary hearing of five former Ontario highways department employees on charges of fraud and conspiracy resulting from the discovery of irregularities in road-building contracts is scheduled to start here this week.

Arthur M. Mills, 6, of Fort Arthur, former division engineer at Fort William, was remanded last month until Thursday on charges of authorizing payment for work not done and of misrepresenting the amount of work actually performed under highway contracts.

Four others are due to appear at the preliminary hearing Friday. Charged with conspiring to defraud the government are Thomas Ayres, 68, of Guelph; Douglas Cutting, 41, and Donald Gandier, 30, of Fort William, and G. W. Turner, 29, of Cochrane.

Gandier, Cutting and Turner are former clerks. Ayres was formerly superintendent of the department's asphalt plant at Jellicoe in this district.

The arrest of the five men was announced here Jan. 15. Provincial police said they arrested Mills, Cutting and Gandier in Fort William. Ayres was taken into custody at Bracebridge, 120 miles north of Toronto, and Turner, at Sudbury.

WARRANTS ISSUED

Warrants for the five were issued after a departmental investigation which Highways Minister Doucett said showed irregularities. Published reports at the time said the investigation disclosed payroll padding and other irregularities.

Six days after the arrests, Mr. Doucett announced the appointment of J. D. Woods and Gordon Limited, Toronto management consultants, to conduct an "unlimited investigation" of the department.

The federal government Jan. 22 stopped payments on 14 contracts involving $10,500,000 of federal and provincial money in trans-Canada highway construction in the Fort William district.

Since then, there have been several further developments as the inquiry into departmental activities spread across the province.

Donat Dubeau, patrol chief of the Ottawa division, was suspended Feb. 10 for alleged irregularities involving use of departmental materials in the construction of two homes. Four days later, D. S. PATterson, divisional engineer at Huntsville, was suspended.

FIRMS' BOOKS SEIZED

Mr. Doucett announced in the Ontario legislature March 8 that he books of six contracting firms involved in highway construction at Fort William had been seized.

Ten days later, Mr. Doucett announced the seizure of the books of three more contracting firms which had been doing work in the northwestern Ontario district and the suspension of the former chief engineer, C. H. Nelson, "for failure to co-operate with the provincial auditor and other officials in charge of the investigation now under way."

Mr. Nelson returned to Toronto from Florida last week.

Premier Frost announced in the legislature that a select committee of the legislature will investigate alleged irregularities in the department. Kelso Roberts, Progressive Conservative member for Toronto-St. Patrick, was named Monday as head of the 11-member committee.

ONLY 12 CHEAT TUBE

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto's subway carried 1,800,000 persons in its first week of operation — and only 12 of them tried to cheat. TTC officials said today a dozen phoney tokens have turned up in the turnstiles.

Abbott Had His Eye on the Girls When He Started Chopping Taxes

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott had his eye on the girls in his budget.

At least he talked like a man getting married.

First off, he hacked the excise tax to 10 from 15 per cent on diamond rings. Other jewelry, too, even imitation stuff.

Then he repealed the excise tax altogether on furs and began playing about in the household appliance field.

Away went the excise tax on chafing dishes, floor polishers, coffee makers, curling irons, dish washers, food choppers and grinders, kettles, toaster and juice squeezers.

Just a note of caution, though, girls.

The taxes eliminated or reduced by Mr. Abbott are applied by the manufacturer. You'll have to wait for the dealers to pass on those tax cuts.

Mr. Abbott also threw away the tax on wool on jewel cases and handbags, dressing and toilet cases, shopping bags and vacuum cleaners, hair dryers and waffle irons. The tax is gone on trunks and suitcases.

Mr. Abbott, in casting his eye at the girls, may have cast a somewhat critical eye.

The excise tax is cut to 10 per cent on toilet articles and cosmetics for "cleansing, deodorizing, beautifying, preserving or restoring the human body."

That goes for men, too, of course. The list includes, as well as bleaches and perfumes, shaving soaps and creams.

CCF Motion To Cut Sentence For Sedition Fails

OTTAWA (CP)—The CCF has tried unsuccessfully to cut the maximum sentence for sedition to five from 14 years.

The attempt was defeated by 80 to 9 Tuesday during clause-by-clause study of the new Criminal Code, previously, given approval in principle. The Progressive Conservative and Social Credit groups in the Commons sided with the government to defeat the CCF amendment.

The current maximum penalty for sedition—teaching overthrow of the government by force—is seven years, increased from two years in 1951. Under the new Criminal Code, it will be 14 years.

The CCF argued that the definition was ambiguous and could be interpreted differently by different judges and juries.

Clarie Gillis (CCF—Cape Breton South) said it would be possible to convict for sedition when the accused involved was only criticizing.

NEED FORUMS

Stanley Knowles (CC — Winnipeg North Centre) said that what was needed was not "coercive" legislation but Canadian Hyde Parks where persons could say anything in complete freedom as in London's Hyde Park.

Justice Minister Garson said there is no reason to say that under Canada law there is not the same freedom of speech as in Britain.

At another point, the minister said the crown must prove in sedition cases there is intent to incite to violence. Sedition was not "too dissimilar" from treason, for which the maximum penalty will also be 14 years under the new code.

Hydro Employees Of Lindsay May Go on Strike

LINDSAY (CP) — Another strike by Lindsay hydro employees appears possible following the rejection of a settlement offer, made by the Lindsay hydro commission.

Strike action was threatened for Thursday morning in a letter forwarded to Mayor Bert Hicks by the Public Service Employees Union.

The men were offered a 12½-per-cent wage increase along with other benefits March 25 following examination of union proposals. Union demands for a 40-hour week and the inclusion of a foreman as a member of the bargaining unit were rejected.

A separate two-year contract that would take the foreman to his retirement age was offered by the commission.

Differences also arose on hours of work and pay for sub-station operators. The union is seeking a 37½-hour week and wage adjustments in line with increases granted to workers last September and in line with the general 12½-per-cent increase offered last month.

Workers walked off jobs last December leaving Lindsay without electrical maintenance for almost a week. One section of the town was blacked out for more than 3 hours when a transformer blew and workers refused to repair it or let it be repaired.

Abbott Rejects Quebec Demand On Income Taxes

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Quebec taxpayers are faced with the highest income tax rates in Canada.

In his budget speech Finance Minister Abbott rejected a Quebec government demand that a provincial income tax be deducted at source from the federal income tax.

The Quebec tax, effective last Jan. 1, amounts to 15 per cent of the federal tax. Mr. Abbott said that under terms of 1947 legislation the Quebec taxpayer can only claim a deduction of up to five per cent of the federal tax.

This means that some 300,000 Quebec taxpayers will pay 10 per cent more income tax than the residents of other provinces.

For instance, the Quebec resident who formerly paid $100 in federal tax now will pay $95 to the federal government and $15 to Quebec.

Quebec taxpayers, caught in the centre of a federal-provincial controversy, will pay their provincial government between $22,000,000 and $25,000,000 in income tax according. The Quebec government has said the money will be used for health services and education.

MOOT ELECTION

Mr. Abbott's announcement brought no immediate reaction from Premier Duplessis or his cabinet. A source close to the Quebec government said the announcement is a disappointment.

Ottawa's stand, said the source, may be the issue of a provincial general election, "perhaps early next year." Mr. Duplessis' Union Nationale government, re-elected in 1952, normally would go to the polls in 1956.

Mr. Abbott challenged the Quebec government's claim that the Canadian constitution concedes to provinces priority in direct taxation.

Mr. Abbott said that if the federal government acceded to the Quebec request for full deduction of the provincial income tax it would be difficult later to refuse requests for higher deductions.

"If a province had the unrestricted constitutional priority in the field of direct taxation, then nothing short of the right to reduce federal tax by 100 per cent would be the stopping point.

"This would imply that a provincial government without imposing any additional burden on its own taxpayers could secure to its own treasury the full amount of taxation agreement with the federal government.

Mr. Abbott referred to the fact that Quebec is the only province that has not signed a taxation agreement with the federal government. The door to the negotiation of such an agreement was left open.

Nine provinces have given the federal government practically exclusive use of the personal income, corporation and inheritance tax fields. In return they receive payments based on population and the value of gross national production.

Premier Duplessis has refused an agreement on the grounds it would destroy the province's autonomy.

15 PE RCENT OF UAW IDLE

PITTSBURGH (AP) — David J. McDonald, president of the CIO United Steelworkers Union, said about 15 per cent of the union's 1,250,000 members now are idle. He estimated about 189,000 steel-workers are out, of work in the United States and another 7,700 have been laid off in Canada.

Conservatives Not Pleased, Reduction in Taxes So Small 'You Could Put It in Eye'

OTTAWA (CP)—The opposition's financial critic says Finance Minister Abbott's announcement of a $40,000,000 tax reduction gives his party no pleasure.

"What have we to be pleased about?" asked J. M. Macdonnell, Toronto Greenwood, who spoke after Mr. Abbott read his 1954-55 budget to the Commons Tuesday night.

"You could put the reduction in your eye."

Mr. Macdonnell, referring to Abbott's statement in the past year was his last of 13 budgets, described it as the minister's "swan song."

He said he congratulates Mr. Abbott for whatever he did in the past that was right and forgives him for what he did wrong.

"All the same, whatever course he follows he has the good will of us all," Mr. Macdonnell added.

He hoped the swan song reference would not be taken literally because he understood it meant the "end of the bird."

The budget was the old, old story. The government spent $5,000,000,000 in the last fiscal year, and he doubted Canada could afford to do so—after budgeting for expenditure of $4,000,000,000.

The difference was taken out of another pocket, he said, referring to the old age security pension fund.

Referring to the 30 seconds of applause accorded by government supporters when Mr. Abbott's speech, Mr. Macdonnell said he has "never heard so little applause so much by so many."

The government believed nothing it does can be wrong, he said, adding:

"Well, Mr. Speaker, did you ever see a more—shall we say—self-pleased lot of men?"

Mr. Macdonnell said the government is taking an average of $369 in taxes from every Canadian. The $10,000,000 surplus in 1953-54 amounted to only 66 cents for each of them.

The budget speech had provided nothing to help the unemployed. Mr. Abbott had said there was no need to take the situation seriously and there was no sign of government economy.

"We've got nothing but a lot of fair words."

Three Generators At Niagara Falls Out of Order

TORONTO (CP)—Three Ontario Hydro generators at Niagara Falls went out of order Tuesday, sapping another 30,000 kilowatts from the system that has been hit by two $500,000 explosions in the last week.

Minor mechanical failures were blamed for the shutdown of the three generators at the old Toronto hydro plant at Niagara Falls. It is expected the units will be back in operation today.

The explosions in the Richard D. Hearn steam plant at Toronto forced closing of the plant. The 400,000 kilowatts lost in the system as a result is being made up by increased supplies from United States sources.

Father and Son Killed Soon After Mother Buried

PICKERING (CP) — A 26-year-old father and his six-year-old son were killed in a traffic accident late Tuesday a few hours after the father buried his wife.

Killed were Beverley Bailey of Toronto and his son, William. A daughter, Carol, 5, was taken to hospital.

Corporal Jack Scott of the provincial police said the late Mrs. Bailey, 29, had been ill and also died on the way to hospital. Her body, thrown clear, was taken to hospital where her condition was described as fatal.

Finance Minister No Help To Canadians on Big Items Such As Cars, TV Sets, Radios

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott had a little bit of cheer for everybody.

But before anybody starts cheering, there may be a catch. The taxes which Mr. Abbott eliminated or reduced are applied generally at the manufacturers' level. But there is no way of knowing whether they will reach the consumer.

Mr. Abbott's largesse may not have been expansive, but at least it was passed around to take in nearly every Canadian, including the bubble-gum set.

Mr. Abbott even cast a kindly tax glance at people who run potash or salt mines, making railway signal systems or use tear gas or impregnated jute fabric.

He aimed to leave more change in pocketbooks—for the next year at least—by eliminating the 15-per-cent excise tax altogether on a variety of consumer goods and cutting it to 10 per cent on a variety of others.

Mr. Abbott wasn't any help on the big items such as cars, television sets, radios and phonographs.

But he did a lot better when he got to the small things, especially household appliances.

The camera fiend, the golfer and the fisherman should benefit. So should people who are going on a trip and need a trunk or suit case.

For the kids, he made similar reductions in the excise tax on soft drinks, candy and gum. However, the effect of the cuts at the manufacturers' level is hardly likely to be felt by the consumer.

Mr. Abbott also might have been thinking of the late spring. The mercury went down to five degrees here Sunday and the sales tax went down to nothing on oil and gas burners, coal crushers and stokers.

Manitoba Farmers Oiling Machinery for Early Start

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Spring is barely on the calendar but already Manitoba farmers are oiling up their seeding machinery in readiness for early planting.

Indications are that Manitoba growers will be the first to go into action. Elsewhere in Canada planting probably won't be as early, and much before mid-April, weather permitting.

A Canadian Press survey today shows large areas of southern Manitoba ready for seeding after one of the mildest winters on record. The last remnants of winter's light snowfalls began to melt from the fields in February.

WHEAT OR BARLEY

In Alberta, farmers are in a quandary over whether to plant wheat, which may overflows the province's granaries, or barley which has dropped 20 cents a bushel since August.

Agricultural officials say if seeding starts by May 24, the Alberta farmer will probably sow wheat; if later, he may plant barley or other earlier-maturing crops. Saskatchewan, ordinarily Canada's biggest wheat-producing province, may also sow more coarse grains this year.

Except for small, isolated sections of the country, good moisture conditions are reported from Newfoundland to British Columbia after an average-to-mild winter with abundant snow and rain.

British Columbia, where good soil conditions are reported after a winter of plentiful snow and rain, is looking forward to a fine fruit and vegetable season.

In Saskatchewan, seeding conditions are good after an unusual winter of extreme temperatures. A 80 per cent cut in rye acreage is expected while there may be a swing to coarse grains because of the large amount of stored wheat.

Expected acreage will be about the same as last year: Wheat, 16,000,000; oats 2,781,000; barley, 2,745,000; and flax, 350,000.

MID-APRIL TARGET

In southern and central Ontario, farmers hope to load up their seed drills around the middle of April. The principal crops, with last year's acreage figures: Oats, 1,700,000; barley, 202,000; fall wheat, 650,000; husking and fodder corn, 387,000.

Specialized crops are tobacco, soybeans and sugar beets.

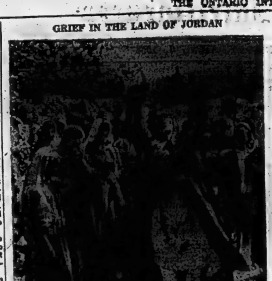
The Quebec department of agriculture is apprehensive because of dry soil conditions in 1953. However, future weather conditions may improve the prospects.

Seeding is expected to start in early May. Quebec's main field crops are oats, mixed grains, potatoes, fodder corn, sugar beets, dry beans, dry peas and lame hay. A total of 3,522,283 acres were sown to these crops in 1953.

Planting will probably start around mid-May in the Maritimes after an average to mild winter.

Prince Edward Island, famous for its potatoes, is expected to produce fewer spuds this year and more garden crops and grain. Moisture conditions are good and farmers are looking forward to early seeding.

New Brunswick growers also plan to cut down their potato acreage due to the weak market for the 1953 crop. Acreage in potatoes last year was 48,000.



In Newfoundland, an increase in hog production, poultry and dairy farming is anticipated. Acreage sown to oats, the big grain crop, wheat, hay and potatoes is expected to be about the same as last year.

BABY KILLED IN FIRE

TORONTO (CP) — A seven-month-old baby died Monday night in a fire touched off by an explosion that rocked her parents' home in suburban Vaughan township. Mrs. Edward Goddard had stepped out to talk to her husband at a service station a few blocks away. She saw the fire rigs race up the street and learned her only child, Deborah, had died in the fire. It was believed an exploding oil stove caused the blaze.

Would Be Happy If Eisenhower Visited London

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill said Tuesday he would be "delighted" to welcome President Eisenhower to London for talks on the hydrogen bomb and other problems.

But he added he didn't think the president could leave the United States right now.

Answering a Labor MP's question in the House of Commons, Churchill said: "I have more than once expressed hope that such a visit would be possible. I do not think, however, he would feel he could leave his heavy duties at the present time."

DODDS KIDNEY PILLS

Arthur Lewis had asked Churchill to invite Eisenhower to London for talks on world problems, including the H-bomb, and to help resolve "differences of opinion that might stand in the way of an approach to Premier Malenkov for calling Big Four talks."

Churchill said: "It goes without saying that we should be delighted to welcome President Eisenhower."

The government Monday accepted a Labor party call for British initiative in seeking a Churchill-Eisenhower-Malenkov meeting.

Churchill himself proposed such a meeting last May. United States

Municipal Grants in County Increased Over Last Year

PICTON — Grants to municipalities in Prince Edward County this season of the new provincial basis, per capita grant, will total $26,976.60, according to a letter read at town council Monday night from Norris Whitney, M.P.P., Prince Edward-Lennox. This represents an increase of $31,546.37, over the 1953 grants which covered only police and fire protection.

Improvement of the building at present used as a fire hall, so that some revenue could be derived from it, was suggested by Mayor H. J. McFarland and former councillor L. B. Calnan. The mayor offered to donate lumber and materials. A committee will be named to investigate.

A report from the Finance committee recomanded that there be no increase in salaries of the town treasurer, tax collector or assessor.

Fire Victim's Daughter Has Home Damaged

PICTON. — On March 25, the home of William McGiffen was destroyed by fire and Mr. McGiffen lost his life. On Sunday, fire almost completely destroyed the home of his daughter, Mrs. Carl McConnell, next door. Mr. and Mrs. McConnell were absent at the time. Neighbors saw smoke issuing from the home and gave the alarm. The interior of the house was charred and what furniture could be salvaged was water soaked. When the fire was all over, the family dog staggered from the house. It was soon revived. It had sought shelter beneath a bed. It is believed an iron had been left plugged in the socket, causing the outbreak, the eighth fire call in seven days.

Canning Prices For Peas, Corn Are Unchanged

PICTON — It was announced yesterday that prices to be paid for corn and peas have been agreed upon by canners and growers, through the Ontario Marketing Board. The prices are unchanged from last year, with $98.50 per ton for peas and $22.00 per ton for corn. Price to be paid for tomatoes is still being negotiated and is expected to be decided this week.

Growers of tomato plants have held off seeding until the acreage is known and the final decision on prices has been causing them, as well as farmers, much concern.

District Deputy Grand Master Pays Visit

Howard Sabine, District Deputy Grand Master for Prince Edward District, was tendered a reception on the occasion of his official visit to Prince Edward Lodge, No. 18, A.F. and A.M. The Marmora Lodge of Canada in the Province of Ontario, told of the 100th anniversary of its founding to be marked this summer. He referred to the obligation of Masons to recognize the supremacy of God in all aspects of life. "If we give Him the pre-eminence in our lives which we should we will find the great and beneficial power of Masonry and its religious basis," he said.

Wor. Bro. Carl Reid, W.M., was toastmaster. Toast to the Grand Lodge was proposed by Wor. Bro.

Spring Session Of Legislature Is Prorogued

TORONTO (CP)—The legislature concluded its spring session Tuesday, a session marked by a heavy program of legislation in varied fields of welfare, education, labor, agriculture and industry.

Prorogation came at 6:18 p.m., a day short of a full eight weeks, when Lieutenant - Governor Louis Breithaupt gave royal assent to 143 bills and read a 1,900-word speech which noted the legislature's accomplishments.

Among the major pieces of legislation passed:

1. Granting of full voting privileges in provincial elections to 33,000 Ontario Indians.

2. Redistribution of the 90-seat House—the first since 1933—which added eight new seats.

3. Establishment of a fuel board to handle the distribution of natural gas from Alberta.

4. Establishment of a milk industry commission to stabilize the dairy industry.

5. Formation of a telephone authority to consolidate and expand rural telephone services.

6. Consolidation of education and welfare legislation as well as providing for further expansion in both fields.

7. Increased mental health and old age assistance programs.

8. Establishment of a new provincial parks policy.

9. Shortening of conciliation procedure in labor disputes.

SELECT COMMITTEES

From the government came the promise of implementing the recommendations contained in the report of the select committee on reform institutions which called for sweeping administrative changes. Reports were also received from select committees on lake levels, cemeteries, election laws, Indian affairs and the companies' act.

A white paper on Ontario forests was also received which outlined the province's future policy on reforestation and assistance to the ailing lumber industry.

Out of the session three other select committees which will meet between sessions.

Kelso Roberts (PC—Toronto St. Patrick) was named chairman of the select committee to investigate alleged irregularities in the highways department, a subject often brought to the fore by the opposition.

W. M. Nickle (PC — Kingston) will head a select committee in the study of highway safety and Robert MacAulay (PC — Toronto Riverdale) will head a committee to consider the establishment of a central registry for conditional sales.

THREE DEATHS

The session was marked by the death of three government members. They were W. B. Harvey (PC—Nipissing), C. G. McCubbin (PC—Leeds) and J. D. Nault (PC—Russell).

House standing at prorogation: Progressive Conservatives 77, Liberals 6, CCF 2, Liberal-Labor 1, Labor-Progressive 1, vacant 3. Total 90.

The speech read by the lieutenant-governor noted the Fair Accommodation Practices act—"One of several measures that has been adopted in this legislature in the last 10 years to make Ontario a home of free men, where the peoples of different racial origins and religious faiths may live and work in harmony. By these acts, you have declared your opposition to discrimination."

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

(NOTE—Jim McKenzie, eastern Ontario bowling champion, who represented this district at the Maison Bowling Classic, and was eliminated in the semi-finals, is the guest columnist today. Jim wrote the following story at this department's request. Jim states he actually finished fourth with a total prize winnings of $300. He did not state this fact in a boastful manner but rather on the chance it might stimulate more interest locally in future tournaments.)

This is the story of the Molson's Classic Five Pin Singles Championship held at the Sportsmen's Show in Toronto from March 12th to March 20th.

The rest of this story has a plot which resembles that old nursery rhyme, "Ten Little Indians," or perhaps more so, the book by the same name, written by Agatha Christie. It is a story of elimination.

The characters—John Patterson (St. Catharine); Gene Legault (Ottawa-Cornwall); Jack Pritchard (Toronto West); Chuck Heath (Oshawa); Bill Cameron (Orillia-Barrie); N. Bertrand (Northern Ontario); Jack Matachuk (London); Forrest Richards (Windsor); Bill Hoult (Toronto East); Stan Batterby (Hamilton); Hal Rebbel (Kitchener); Jim McKenzie (Belleville.)

Competition started Friday afternoon and each man rolled five games. Saturday another five games and on the total pinfall of these ten games, Friday's and Saturday's, the four lowest were eliminated.

And then there were eight.

Starting from scratch again on Monday, five more games were bowled and a like number on Tuesday. From this ten game total, four more were eliminated.

And then there were six.

Wednesday, the remaining six bowled five games and two were eliminated.

And then there were four.

That night the four survivors were invited to the Royal York Hotel and there the draw was made for match play, which was to begin on Friday. By some miracle I was still among the living, along with Bill Hoult of Toronto, a terrific spoolball thrower; Forrest Richards of Windsor, who had remained in the first four all week. Richards, incidentally, was the only regional champion who was a repeater, representing the Windsor region for the second year in a row. Also remaining was Stan Batterby, of Hamilton, who along with Bill Hoult had performed the "impossible" trick of sparing up a headpin in the tournament. This put mortality like Richards and myself at a distinct disadvantage. We have trouble making spares in the conventional manner at times. When the draw was made, Richards was pitted against Bill Hoult and Batterby against myself.

Friday we bowled four games in the afternoon and at that point Bill Hoult was down around 175 pins to Richards, who really caught fire at the right time and was rolling along at the rate of 282 per game. I was down 99 pins to Batterby at this stage but still had hopes of catching him in the final four games to be bowled after supper. Bill Hoult and I (along with Ernie Luck of Deseronto's Lucky Strike Bowling Alley) had supper together and discussed our chances of overtaking our opponents. Bill must have got more out of the discussion than I did for he overtook Richards and then eased him by a mere 20 pins on the eight game total. The best I could do was to get within 30 pins of Batterby at one stage but he is a great competitor and had enough left to pull away again. In the seventh game I punched five headpins and this punched my return ticket to Belleville.

And then there were two.

Saturday, Stan Batterby and Bill Hoult met in a terrific ten game duel which was very close during the first five games. After suppertime Batterby gave it everything he had, and he had plenty, and ended up with a ten game average of 269. Bill Hoult, having his first off night of the week, rolled 253 for his ten games. The winner's purse was estimated at $2,000.

And then there was one.

Stan Batterby, winner of the Molson's Classic for 1954, and Ontario singles champion. Stan plays the western champ in Windsor in April and I'm putting my money on him. I repeat, he's a great competitor.

Thomas Ryan, inventor of the five-pin game away back when the century was just beginning, donated a prize for the high single rolled in the tournament and I was lucky enough to roll a 361, which somehow withstood the onslaught of Friday and Saturday.

BASEBALL

The Central Ontario Baseball League got away to a start last night with final arrangements made for a four-team loop composed of Oshawa, Peterborough, Kingston and Belleville. The loop will play a 36-game schedule with the top three teams battling in a round robin series in the playoffs. The schedule will end August 16th. The meeting was an enthusiastic one and several pre-season wrinkles were ironed out. The Waterlown, N.Y., club notified the executive it would not enter a team this year due to lack of patronage. The Belleville Baseball Association in holding an open meeting tomorrow night in the city hall starting at eight o'clock and all interested in baseball are urged to attend.

Canadiens' Stars Score Three In Savage Minute Offensive; Rocket Jets 2 in 31 Seconds

By W. R. Wheatley
Canadian Press Staff Writer

DETROIT (CP)—A 56-second onslaught by resurgent Rocket Richard and Dickie Moore swept Montreal Canadiens back into the thick of this rugged Stanley Cup series Tuesday night.

It was a 3-1 win for Canadiens over Detroit Red Wings in the second game, 3rd both clubs headed for Montreal today with the series even and the home-ice advantage, if any, now in the hands of the aroused Canadiens.

It may have been a drastic shakeup in line formations that sparked Canadiens or it may have been Detroit's disastrous lapse in penalties. In any event, Canadiens were the opportunists this time, as the Red Wings were in their 3-1 win Sunday, and Richard came back from a slump with a two-goal outburst. Dickie Moore also supplied the first in the two-paid fire of power play and led the passes to Richard for the next two.

The rest of the Wings Tuesday night ran up against a team that realized it had to win if it wasn't to be liberated with sudden defeat in the best-of-seven cup final.

FOUGHT COURAGEOUSLY

The Wings fought courageously after being 4-0 and 5-2 deficit but they lacked the smoothness of play they showed Sunday and the end appeared more fatigued than the Canadiens.

Alex Delvecchio scored Detroit's lone goal, and it was a tough break for goalie Jacques Plante who might have had a shutout. Delvecchio shot for the goalmouth from deep in the left corner early in the second period while Canadiens were in their short, limited of traveling to a Red Wing, as the players battled about in front of Plante, the puck slapped sharply on the stick of Butch Bouchard, Montreal defenceman, and before Plante could move, the puck had shot into the net.

The first two Montreal goals came when the Red Wings were given two short minute penalties, and they were down one man when Richard banged in the last Montreal tally.

In the two games of this series not a goal has been scored while both teams were at full strength. Sunday Detroit tallied on the while Montreal was a man short and once while the Red Wings themselves had a one-man deficit. Canadiens goal came when Detroit was a man short.

The win leaves Canadiens in this hopeful position—three of the next four games, if the series goes to seven games, are on Montreal ice, and throughout the regular National Hockey League season Detroit won only one game in seven in Montreal, that by a 1-0 count.

TWO IN BOX

Gordie Howe, Detroit's ace scorer, and Tony Leswick were in the penalty box when Canadiens broke loose. Howe had been chased by referee Red Storey for high-sticking Richard and Leswick for slashing Jean Beliveau.

The shakeup in lines that coach Dick Irvin had mulled over since Sunday came at the start of the game. Richard played on a line with Paul Masnick and Eddie Mazur, instead of with Ken Mosdell and Bert Olmstead.

Mosdell was shifted to a formation of Glen Mackay and Lorne Davis, and at times with Olmstead and Floyd Curry. There were other shuffles but Mosdell's line was Olmstead was used at times in a penalty killing role.

Two fresh players were sent into the game—Mackay and defenceman Jim Macpherson. Minor injuries to Paul Meger and Dollard St. Laurent brought about the replacements.

Four Teams Enter C.O.B.L.

The Central Ontario Baseball League will operate as a four-team loop with old familiar names this year, it was decided at an executive meeting held here last night.

Belleville, Peterborough, Oshawa and Kingston will battle it out in a revival for former year's rivalry. The Watertown, N.Y., organization sent word it would not enter a team for this year due to "lack of patronage."

The league officially opens on May 24 with Oshawa the guests of Belleville in an afternoon game starting at 3 o'clock, said Kingston visiting Peterborough also in an afternoon tilt.

The teams will play a 36-game schedule with the top three playing off for championship honors in a round robin series. The schedule closes on August 16.

The entry fee was set at $100 returnable to the clubs still in the league at the end of the schedule. Operational expenses of the loop will be deducted from the fees.

All four teams unanimously favored a split in gate which ten per cent of the gross of each game will be paid. The money will be divided equally among the teams finishing the schedule. Playoff games will contribute to the pool.

The league adhered to a constitutional rule that each team will supply an umpire with the visiting official working behind the plate. Umpires fees were set at a flat rate of $7.50 per game.

Efforts will be made to bring Jackie Price, the Cleveland Indians "clown prince" to the circuit sometime during the season.

Yankees Raceway Cancels Stakes

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP) — President William H. Cane of Yonkers Raceway said Tuesday that the harness track has cancelled its two $25,000 stakes and several other stakes because of a three months delay in the award of its dates.

The delay was caused by an investigation of the sport by a New York state commission.

The $25,000 events wiped out are the Yonkers Derby for pacers in August and the Gotham Trot for October, both 1½-mile races. Early closing stakes, including the U.S. Harness Writers Pace, normally held in the spring, also were abandoned.

Cane said many eligible stars for the major events had been stated elsewhere and he felt it was not fair to bid against the other tracks.

Yonkers Raceway, which opens its season Monday night, was awarded its dates March 25, three months later than in previous years.

UPSET WIN FOR OXFORD IN THAMES CLASSIC

Oxford's lighter oarsmen proved superior rough-water sailors on the choppy, windswept Thames River and won the 100th renewal of their crew racing classic against Cambridge by four and one-half lengths. Here, as the crews neared the Hammersmith bridge, the Oxford team (right) is leaging. The upset win was Oxford's 45th during the century of competition. Cambridge has won 54 times and one race was a dead heat. (Central Press Canadian.)

Bromwich Albion, North End To Battle in Cup Final May 1

By JEFF RYAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—The Cup final, climax of Britain's soccer season, comes at Wembley Stadium May 1 when West Bromwich Albion and Preston North End clash before 100,000 fans.

Every season, from September to May, more than 600 football clubs compete in the sudden-death, knockout competition which stimulates soccer interest to Cup fever pitch but about the time the stimulus of scheduled league action is wearing thin.

The Cup final began in 1871 when the Football Association members of that time decided to establish a challenge cup. That year, only 15 teams played for a fine silver trophy, now regarded as football's most coveted prize.

RUGGED PIONEERS

There were no referees in the old days, mostly because rules varied so much from one part of the country to the other that it was impossible to generalize. Squabbles were ironed out after a gentlemanly conference between opposing captains.

Gradually football—and the FA Cup games—developed popularity and public will today packs crowds gather yearly at Wembley on Cup day.

When the final was first held at Wembley in 1923 a mob of 200,000 and 250,000 fans stormed the barriers, creating a chaos by overflowing the pitch. Order was restored after an hour's hard work by police.

Greatest sensation connected with the Cup final came in 1895 when the trophy, on view in a jeweler's window, was stolen. Despite police investigations and a reward of £10—good money in those palmier days—the cup was never seen again.

The present one is after the style of an antique votive urn, weighs 175 ounces; is 19 inches high and stands on an ebony plinth bearing the names of all previous winners.

PRECIOUS TICKETS

The Cup is usually presented by a member of the royal family. In 1953 it will be the Queen Mother. In 1953 the Queen presented the trophy and the Duke of Edinburgh handed out team medals. Sir Winston Churchill in 1951 was the first prime minister to officiate.

Tickets for the final are precious. Seats which normally cost £1 can be sold for as much as £15 by speculators prepared to run the risk. Soccer fans from all over the world apply for tickets. Every year there is a stampede for admission and usually somebody gets hurt in the crush.

Radio and television broadcasting rights also accumulate large sums. This year the BBC paid out £21,500 for television rights alone.

A percentage of the profits is split between both teams playing the Cup final. Thus, win or lose, it's a money-making proposition as well as an honor to be a finalist.

Chuck Davey Tries Comeback Against Dreyer

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—Chuck Davey, the educated southpaw from Lansing, Mich., renews his campaign for another crack at the welterweight boxing title when he meets Gerald Dreyer of South Africa in a 10-round fight tonight at Oakland Auditorium.

The contest will be nationally televised.

Davey has been hptailed as a mild favorite to beat the former British Empire champion. In 45 bouts, Davey has scored 26 knockouts. Dreyer has won 18 times by kayo. Each has lost four times.

American League Adds Umpires

CHICAGO (AP) — Three new umpires have been added to the American League staff, rounding out its full complement of 24 hitters.

League president Will-Harridge announced Tuesday the purchase of Nestor Chylak from the International League. Al Kunz from the Pacific Coast League and Frank Umont from the American Association. Chylak and Runge worked a full schedule of major league games last season.

They replace Grover Cross, whose option to the American Association was assigned; Jim Duffy, previously optioned to the International League, and Pat Pawlowski, who resigned last November.

St. Boniface Nips Fort William

FORT WILLIAM (CP) — After blowing a three-goal lead to drop behind 4-3 at one stage, St. Boniface Canadiens staged a last-period comeback Tuesday night that produced four goals during the last nine minutes of play and brought them a 7-4 victory over Fort William Canadiens.

The outcome also kept Saints' hopes alive in the best-of-seven eastern Canada junior hockey finals, the seventh game of which is scheduled for Thursday night. Fort William leads three games to two and one tie game.

St. Boniface goalscorers were Bruce Carbonneau and Ab MacDonald, who each counted twice, Al Johnson, Barry Beatty and Ed Dudych.

Peggy Geora counted twice for Fort William. Other marksmen were Stan Baluik, Lou Marcon, Vic Marks and Walter Bradley.

The move follows a public outcry over the death of four horses in last month's national. They fell at some of the 30 jumps on the gruelling, 4½-mile course at Aintree.

Sport in Brief

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)—The world champion New York Yankees received a triple scare Tuesday when first baseman Eddie Robinson went to hospital with a kidney attack and infielder Gil McDougald and pitcher Allie Reynolds were hit by balls in practice.

Everything turned out all right, however, though Robinson and McDougald spent a short time in the hospital.

Both were discharged after x-rays and treatment and permitted to continue the northward journey with the team. Reynolds suffered a knee injury but didn't require medical attention.

Robinson complained of kidney pains when the Yankees arrived here from Charlotte, N.C., and was sent to the hospital. The trouble was diagnosed as a kidney stone. He obtained relief a couple of hours after being admitted.

McDougald was hit on the back of the head by a pitch in batting practice and suffered a concussion. X-rays showed no damage had been done.

Reynolds was hurt while pitching batting practice. A liner from the bat of catcher Charley Silvera struck him on the left knee.

AT THE McCARTHY.—

Within the first seconds of his first film — "Trouble In Store" opening Thursday at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre—Norman Wisdom establishes himself as one of the greatest comedians the screen has ever known!

The agile, wistful, happy little clown has taken to the medium of films without losing a fraction of the amazing personality which has brought him stage fame. Here is the same Wisdom that millions have learned to love . . . the "little man" who blends true pathos with moments of inspired madness.

"Trouble In Store" brings him the star part of a humble employee in a department store. His two great ambitions in life are to become a window-dresser . . . and to marry the music department assistant, Lana Morris.

The "Trouble" is that disaster has a habit of crowding Norman's most well-meant efforts to be helpful. If he helps a shopper to carry her heavy bags, you can safely bet that she will turn out to be a heavily-laden shoplifter! Wisdom is superb, weaving an absolute spell of pantomime which will have his audiences rooting for him throughout his adventures, and roaring with helpless laughter at his rubber-boned antics.

Jerry Desmonde proves himself once more the master "straight man" with an excellent portrayal of pomposity as the new store chief, Miss Morris, delightful in her romantic sequences, maintains the gay atmosphere of the production, and there are first-rate performances from such topline artists as Margaret Rutherford, Moira Lister, Derrick Sherd and Meg Jenkins.

An hilarious success which will undoubtedly raise Wisdom to international screen stardom and bracket his name with Chaplin. "Trouble In Store" never flags for a moment. It has been directed with uncanny timing by John Paddy Carstairs, a director whose true element is humour. And from the side-splitting opening sequence to the last seconds of the crazy gang fight in the top department this is a film which sets new laughter standards for British studios.

DRIVE-IN THEATRE

"Against All Flags"

Errol Flynn and two seamen pose as British navy deserters to blow up the fortifications of an 18th century pirate stronghold. Suspecting they are spies, Anthony Quinn, the pirate leader, demands their death, but Maureen O'Hara, femme buccaneer, is attracted to Flynn and insists they be given a trial. Ordered to sea with Quinn, Flynn is on hand for the capture of the private ship of the Mogul of India, aboard which is Alice Kelley, the Mogul's daughter. Arises that Alice's death would mean the slaughter of every Englishman in India. Flynn conceals her identity and completes a map of the pirates' fortifications. Using Alice as a hostage, Quinn sails safely past a blockading British warship, but Flynn and a band of seamen capture the Quinn ship, and he and Maureen plan their future together.

Your Individual Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 8, 1954

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Important problems today may be financial ones. They need extra scrutiny for flaws. Handled properly and without excitability, you can counteract wrong trends, however.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Planetary aspects much the reverse of Aries sign. Many new opportunities and ways of capitalizing on your wares and ideas, will be available, but it will be up to you to take advantage of them.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — You may seem to get along better with familiar matters, but new and strange, tasks which must be done can bring greater (and easier) gains if tackled determinedly. Suffer ill assigns.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — Here's a day promoting a variety of worthy interests: those that benefit family, business, etc., but all unselfish aims. Day promises new vigor, brighter outlook.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — You can get along if you watch finances and hold your counsel, act reasonably and think logically. Don't start what you cannot finish or don't believe in. You have the knowhow; use it.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—Emphasize dignity and courage and you can capitalize on the prevailing situation. Fall in line with only the best; put slacker-ism effort and results will be gratifying.

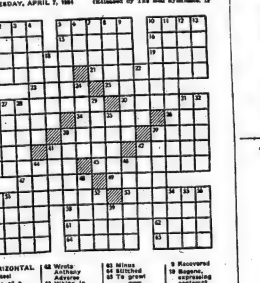
September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Benefic rays abound in your chart. Good vibrations for work, industrial co-operation, teaching new recruits in business or profession. Personal affairs can advance to some extent.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Influences aren't entirely of the best. You will need to be choosy, mindful of "little" pitfalls. Persuasion can be used by you or others—let's hope it's high-minded!

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — A reminder that some matters are overdue? Then get after them promptly, without further delay or misgivings, if you had such. The difficult merely needs extra patience, faith.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—There are many ways you can go about things, and often one can be right, so don't criticize the other fellow till you are sure. Friendliness, good will needed now.

January 22 to February 19 (Aquarius) — Neither think too lengthily before answering, thereby losing advantages, nor be too hasty and wish you had said it differently. There' that old "happy medium" urged again. Rely on it.



February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—The big things will usually be found in their right place if we have kept faith in the important little things." A grand start also needs a like finish.

YOU-BORN TODAY are versatile, talented and ambitious. But do you always live up to your best? Or do you fall prey to distractions and downright diffidening feeling of "insecurity," not being "appreciated"? We are all tempted, at times, but it' is mostly an existing temptation that we succeed in strengthening out will and assets. Over-sensitiveness blinds you to judgment, ambition. Build your leadership qualities; be careful in companionships. Birthdate of: Albert I, King of the Belgians, World War I.

REDUCTIONS

GOODS IN STORES

Canada is only seven days beyond the start of the current fiscal year, and the $4,000,000 difference apparently is accounted for by the fact that much of the goods involved already is on merchants shelves with the special excise duty paid.

The special excise reductions were estimated as accounting for $33,000,000 of the tax saving in the current fiscal year; the other $3,000,000 came from the elimination of the general 10-per-cent sales tax on a restricted group of articles.

One main item in these way heavy equipment bought by municipalities, such as road graders and fire-fighting gear.

Progressive Conservatives in the Commons had been fighting for such a concession during the last year.

But that party's financial critic—J. M. Macdonnell—was unenthusiastic in the tax proposals in a brief comment delivered after Mr. Abbott presented his 16,500-word forecast of the tax outlook, Tuesday night in the Commons.

"You could put the reductions in your eye," he said.

Mr. Abbott budgeted for a $4,000,000 surplus, a miniscule amount in the light of forecast budget revenues of $4,464,000,000 and spending of $4,460,000,000. He admitted it could be a deficit of around $130,000,000—which would be his first—if the Canadian economy did not later this year pick up enough steam to overtake a slowdown in the rate of progress of the last few months.

MORE RECORDS SET

His budget income—an all-time high—compared with an estimated figure of $4,460,086,000 as the actual spending for 1953-54, the previous high in spending figure was above the 1953-54 peacetime high of $4,389,179,000 but below the all-time peak of $5,322,060,000 in the 1943-44 war year.

The surplus compares with one of $10,107,000 on the known actual accounts of the 1953-54 year that ended last March 31 and with a record post-war top of $1,050,000 in 1947-48.

Apart from chipping at the commodity taxes, Mr. Abbott made some concessions on income tax.

On personal income tax, the maximum allowable as deductible from taxable income for the payments made into a superannuation fund was increased to $1,500 from $900.

Present tax abatements allowed to petroleum, natural gas and mining companies on exploration costs were extended through 1957.

McCARTHY SAYS

HAVE NO COMMENT

Both the U.S. atomic energy commission and Representative W. Sterling Cole (Rep. N.Y.), chairman of the congressional atomic energy committee, declined comment.

The H-bomb statement was a by-product of McCarthy's reply to charges by Murrow that he has misused his authority as a Senate investigator.

Murrow attacked McCarthy March 9, and offered to turn his 30-minute "See It Now" show over to the senator so he might reply. The answer was filmed during the week-end and televised while McCarthy was in Arizona.

Although the film was kept secret until shortly before air time, Murrow, through sources he declined to divulge, obtained knowledge of the charges and drew up a reply which was released at the time of the telecast.

CBS said first listener reaction, via telephone calls and telegrams, was "overwhelmingly" in favor of Murrow.

The charges and answers included:

McCarthy: That Murrow "as far back as 20 years ago was engaged in propaganda for Communist causes." The March 9 attack "followed implicitly the Communist line laid down in the last six months" by various Communist publications.

IMPUGN LOYALTY

Murrow: "McCarthy's reckless and unfounded attempt to impugn my loyalty is just one more example of his typical tactic of attempting to tie up to communism anyone who disagrees with him."

McCarthy: Owen Lattimore, now under indictment for alleged perjury before the Senate internal security sub-committee, said in a book: "I owe a very special debt to men I have never met—I must mention at least Edward R. Murrow."

Murrow: Lattimore made this reference only after paying tribute to our "courageous and radio reporters—for reporting which was "clearly based upon the ancient principle that I (Lattimore) was innocent until proved guilty."

McCarthy: "Harold Laski admittedly the greatest Communist propagandist of our time in England" dedicated a book to Murrow:

Murrow: Laski "was a friend of mine. . . . He was a Socialist. I am not." Laski made the dedication in tribute to Murrow's broadcasts from England during the war.

COMFORT ENEMY

McCarthy noted that in the March 9 broadcast Murrow said "the actions of the junior senator from Wisconsin have given considerable comfort to the enemy."

"That is the language of our state's top treason-catcher strong language," McCarthy said.

"If I am giving comfort to our enemies, I want to be in the Senate.

"If, on the other hand, Mr. Murrow is giving comfort to our enemies, he ought not to be brought into the homes of millions of Americans by the Columbia broadcasting System.

The Columbia Broadcasting System turned an advance statement praising Murrow for his "passionate devotion to his country and to the fundamental principles upon which it was built. . . ."

Diefenbaker Says Party Put Brake On Government

OTTAWA (CP) — John Diefenbaker contends that the Progressive Conservatives put the brake on the government which stopped "any probability of early recognition" by Canada of the Chinese Communist government.

The progressive Conservative spokesman in the Commons on external affairs said in a speech prepared for delivery on the CBC's free-time political broadcast series "The Nation's Business":

"I believe that the government found it necessary to change its views on the question of recognition of China because of the strong opposition taken by the Progressive Conservative party and supported as it is by widespread public opinion.

"I believe that the stand taken put a brake on the government which stopped any probability of early recognition being granted to Communist China."

Mr. Diefenbaker is member of the Commons for Prince Albert.

Service Station Buys Three Bear Cubs to Show

CAMPBELLFORD (CP) — Farmer Kenneth Mack says he's sorry but the bearcubs have been sold.

Two weeks ago Mr. Mack found three cute, cuddly cubs in a stump. His picture appeared in newspapers with the caption: "Anyone want a bear cub?"

"I got about 5 telephone calls and letters from all over Canada," Mr. Mack said Tuesday night. "They are penned from Cochrane in northern Ontario, about 250 miles away. I have sold 'em all."

The latest request came from Mrs. Kathleen Geisinger of Letchbridge, Alta., who says she has a nice big backyard and a big house in the country where a cub could live.

"But now they're gone. I sold them as show bears to a service station and nursery near here."

The 200-pound cubs, now about a month old, will weigh about 500 pounds when they grow up, Mr. Mack says.

Dulles to Confer In London, Paris On Indo-China

Will Hold Talks Next Week On His 'United Action' Plea

LONDON (Reuters)—U. S. State Secretary Dulles will fly to London for talks next week on the crisis about Indo-China and the forthcoming Geneva conference, it was reliably learned here today.

Dulles' visit will be a direct follow-up of his appeal last week for "united action" to prevent Southeast Asia falling under Communist domination.

He will arrive in London on Monday and spend two days in talks with the British government. He will then fly to Paris for talks with the government there returning to Washington at the week-end.

Britain answered Dulles' call for united action by asking for further consultations before a decision was taken.

The French cabinet is also reported to have doubts about the proposal.

MEASURES SUGGESTED

Among the measures for "united action" suggested by Dulles was a declaration by the interested powers warning Communist China against further intervention in the war in Indo-China, likewise the U.S. these nations would include Britain, France, Australia and New Zealand.

Dulles argued that the heavy increase in Chinese aid to the rebels in Indo-China in their assault on the beleaguered French fortress of Dien Bien Phu justified the urgent demonstration of western unity. The battle for the fortress is regarded in the three western capitals as a deliberate attempt by the Communists to strengthen their bargaining position at the Geneva conference, opening on April 26.

Emergency Flare At Washout Saves Train

NORTH BAY (CP) — A train carrying 150 passengers and crew stopped in the flickering light of an emergency flare at midnight. 200 yards from a washout and a disastrous plunge into Trout lake.

The Ontario Northland Railway train, only four miles out of North Bay, was hailed as water and rocks cascaded down a slope and washed away earth from beneath a 75-foot-long piece of track.

Had the crowded train roared on into the night it probably would have been buried feet deep under the slope, across a highway and into the lake.

Bush pilot George Coleman and two companions were credited with averting a tragedy. Coleman, who runs a tourist camp at the lake, set up flares from his emergency gear flying 50 the train rounded a bend leading to the washout.

The passengers and crew were unaware that heavy rains, one of the worst in years, rumbled through a three-mile slope from the North Bay airport had left a long stretch of rail unsupported in the air. ONR officials said Coleman's quick-thinking saved the lives of many persons.

TELEPHONE OUT

Coleman said he was sitting in the living room of his lodge when he heard rocks crashing into a gully 100 yards away. He walked along the track and met Orville Quirt and Peter Prested. A short distance ahead they found the washout.

Prested ran to his home to telephone railway officials to have danger lights put up, but the rain had knocked out the telephone lines. Coleman then picked up his emergency kit.

"I had a hard time getting the flares lit," he said. "It finally caught and I put it between the rails."

THE WEATHER

TORONTO. (CP) — Synopsis: Cool air preceded by severe thunderstorms swept across southern Ontario Wednesday night. Strong northwest winds and considerable cloudiness will be general across the province today with some snowflurries likely to the south of Lake Huron and Georgian Bay this afternoon. With skies clearing and winds becoming light this evening, temperatures will be near below freezing tonight in southern regions and below zero in northern Ontario.

ADMINISTRATION OF RIOT ACT IS DIFFICULT

Garson Says Abuses Due to Human Failure

OTTAWA (CP)—Justice Minister Garson says fair administration of the riot act must continue to rely on the common sense and responsible attitudes of police officials.

He made the statement Wednesday in the Commons in reply to CCF proposals that safeguards be placed around the reading of the riot act to suppress public disorders. The CCF said the riot act should not be used to break union strikes or provoke violence.

Mr. Garson said all abuses of the riot act in Canada have occurred because of human failure. Officials dealing with the problem had not the judgment, backbone, courage or knowledge to meet the emergency facing them.

No law could provide for those qualities and a person who read the act was protected only if he acted on reasonable and probable grounds and in good faith. If he acted otherwise, the legal protection for acts of violence or other illegal acts.

ADMINISTRATION DIFFICULT

Legal administration of the riot act is a difficult problem for public officials. He must take the responsibility if they neglected to suppress riots. If they exceeded responsibilities in reading the act without reasonable grounds they also were responsible and could be charged with any illegal acts, such as assault.

The official involved was in an unhappy position, but that was part of his job.

The House approved two government-sponsored amendments to sections in the revised Criminal Code dealing with unlawful assemblies and riots. The changes incorporate present Criminal Code provisions into the new law.

They allow 30 minutes for a crowd to disperse after the reading of the riot act and permit police officers to use force only where there is reason to fear dispersal order.

Under the law persons who do not disperse after the riot act has been read or who forcibly prevent the reading are liable to a maximum penalty of life imprisonment.

A peace officer is liable to a two-year sentence if he uses more force than is necessary to suppress a riot "without reasonable excuse."

MANNED-WIRE

Clarie Gillis (CCF—Cape Breton South) said municipalities should have some discretion whether the riot act should be invoked.

The Conservative leader in the Nova Scotia coal mines, Mr. Gillis said he has seen his own provincial government in three times call cavalry run citizens into their homes. He suggested the act should read the Louisville, Que., textile strike in 1952, peace officers invoked the act in the middle of the night when all was quiet.

Police officers were sent from Montreal to Cornwall during the Canadian Seamen's Union strike several years ago in cause a riot which could be blamed on seamen conducting a legal strike.

Rains, Lightning and Thunder, Remnants of Tornado, Roll Over Most of the Province

TORONTO (CP) — More than $60,000 damage from fires caused by lightning was reported overnight in the wake of an intense electrical storm which lashed southern Ontario.

Accompanied by heavy rains, lightning, hail and high winds, the storm blew itself out early today. It was the tail end of a tornado that tore across Michigan. Winds reached about 35 miles an hour, with gusts to 50.

The biggest loss was a $50,000 fire which destroyed a summer home at Hawkestone near Orillia. But lightning caused fires which burned destroyed a farmhouse near Orillia, caused a $2,000 loss of farm equipment near Brockville and burned out barns here and there in the southern part of the province.

Some telegraph and telephone communications were disrupted.

The Toronto weather office warned early Wednesday that a tornado was brewing in the United States and may head into Ontario. However, at 6 p.m. the storm had died and the tornado watch was gone and storms would take its place.

TWISTERS IN U.S.

In the U.S., at least five twisters ripped into parts of Illinois, Wisconsin and Michigan. One person was killed and a dozen were injured in Illinois. Several were hurt when a small tornado dipped into Swartz Creek, Mich., 75 miles west of Detroit.

This was the twister that headed into Canada.

The weather bureau said colder air would push in behind the storms. However, temperatures in most of the province's southern areas would run around 40 and 50 degrees above zero.

The storm struck a wide area in southwestern Ontario. Near Glencoe, lightning started a fire in a barn owned by Earl Hill, Alvinston. The building was destroyed. Another barn was destroyed near Drumbo. About 75 head of cattle were saved.

The storm was also blamed for a half-hour power interruption at Tecumseh. Lightning struck a condenser in the transmitter of London's radio station CFPL-AM-TV, and put it off the air for an hour.

The tornado warning threw a scare into many residents. Pupils of seven public schools in the Woodstock area were sent home an hour early. Workers in some other areas were dismissed.

FIRES STARTED

The electrical storm was blamed for a $50,000 fire that levelled a summer home at Hawkestone, 12 miles south of Orillia, Wednesday night. Lost in the blaze were antique items.

The owners of the large home, Evelyn and Bertram Atkins of Toronto, were not in it at the time.

Also associated with the storm was a $2,000 loss of farm equipment in Powell's home at Sadowa, 20 miles east of Orillia. Mr. Powell was aroused at the fire that burned out one end of the house. Powell suffered severe burns when he was forced to be tore planks off the wall in an effort to halt the spread of the flames.

BELIEVES U.S. ON EDGE OF WAR IN INDO-CHINA

McCarran Thinks Aid Will Involve Troops

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two senators today spoke with the sounding of United States naval and air units into the Indo-Chinese fighting as a possibility, and one said "I look to me as if we are on the edge of war there."

Senator Pat McCarran (Dem., Nev.), who made that estimate in an interview, said: "If we should send in naval and air forces now, it would only bring the Chinese Communists in here and then I don't see how we could avoid sending troops."

The comment followed renewed pressure by President Eisenhower and State Secretary Dulles of the administration's determination that Indo-China must not fall to the Communists and hesitancy abroad pending clarification of the American stand.

Disquiet from London and Paris indicate British and French leaders might consider the time inopportune, and want more details on the "united action" Dulles has advocated.

HOW FAR TO GO

All sides seem to agree that if and when decisions are reached and some public statement is made an announcement of determination will rest teeth. The question is what kind of teeth.

Should the policy decisions be reached on the land forces, air forces, ground forces or some combination of these?

Eisenhower's crystal at his press conference Wednesday to spell out probable action if the Chinese Communists move in force into Indo-China caused some special concern at the prospect of limited counteraction is in the making.

Senator Knowland (Rep., Calif.), said he sees no need to use U.S. troops in Indo-China, but added in an interview:

"In case of a crisis there, we should have the air power and undoubtedly air power. I don't think anybody is or we are doing now contemplates employing American manpower in Asia, but quite frankly it calls for air and naval power."

Given Two Years On Theft Charge

KAPUSKASING (CP) — Gabriel Gauthier, 21, son of the postmaster at Moonbeam, was sentenced Wednesday to two years in Guelph penitentiary after he admitted stealing $1,000 in government funds on new cars, gambling, liquor and other personal items.

Gauthier pleaded guilty to charge of theft by conversion and falsifying records while he was employed at the Moonbeam post office, 75 miles southeast of Timmins. He was sentenced to two years on each count, the terms to run concurrently.

Increased Aid to Municipalities Main Plank in Liberal Policy

TORONTO (CP)—A draft policy statement for the Liberal party in Ontario, released today, calls for increased financial aid to municipalities and reduction in the voting age to 18 from 21.

The 88-point statement, prepared by the party's coordinating committee on policy headed by Colin Campbell of Toronto, will be submitted for study at the party's leadership convention which began its two-day session this morning.

The recommendations cover a wide range of subjects—agriculture, civil service, education, health and welfare, highways, municipal affairs, natural resources and recreation.

On municipal affairs, the statement recommends the party follow policies "which will offer a greater degree of local autonomies . . . which are now suffering from excessive pressures to meet adequately the functions delegated to them, and from unsatisfactory relationships with the provincial and provincial agencies, particularly the Ontario municipal board."

RECOMMENDATIONS

Other recommendations were:

Transferring of the full cost of municipal services in the provincial government, extension and development of a stable and adequate system of grants-in-aid and other measures;

Inquiry into provincial-municipal relations and the appointment of a permanent committee of the legislature on municipal affairs;

Revision and amendment of the Assessment Act to provide for uniformity and equity in the assessment of property.

Revamping of the Ontario municipal board, with the present functions broken down and many of them transferred to the department of municipal affairs;

Abolition of nuisance taxes and transfer of the profits of the province's liquor control board, after provision for adequate reserves, to the provincial revenue fund to reduce the amount required to be raised by taxation;

Greater financial assistance on a provincial basis to urban and rural school boards and increased aid to secondary education;

Restoration of local autonomy in the management of the schools to the local boards;

Vancouver-Bound North Star Crashes At Moose Jaw

Both Planes Disintegrate, Strewing Bodies Around

MOOSE JAW, Sask. (CP) — A Trans-Canada Air Lines North Star — bound from Montreal and Toronto to Vancouver — collided in the air today with an air force training plane and crashed in flames.

First reports said almost 30 persons were killed and that 16 bodies had been recovered.

The accident occurred at 10:15 a.m., MST, over northeastern Moose Jaw. Both planes disintegrated as they hit the ground.

The four-engined North Star, fly-ing the Winnipeg-Calgary leg of its trip, was in collision with a single-engined Harvard trainer flying from the RCAF's training school outside Moose Jaw.

Today's crash was the third major accident for Trans-Canada since 1941. The 6 that year 12 persons were killed at Armstrong in northwestern Ontario. Fifteen were killed April 29, 1941, in a crash near Vancouver.

Twenty-seven persons, including the crew, were believed aboard. Two persons were reported in the Harvard.

One of the aircraft crashed on golf course, strewing bodies over a wide area. The other crashed into northeastern Moose Jaw. Two houses were reported burning.

It was not known if anyone on the ground was injured.

Survey for New Radar System Well Advanced

OTTAWA (CP)—Survey work on a new defence system in the Canadian north is "already well advanced," Canada and the United States said today in a joint statement.

While there was no direct mention of the name of the project, defence department sources said the statement referred to the "Mid-dle Canada" radar system developed at McGill University which can be operated much more cheaply and with fewer personnel than conventional radar systems.

The joint announcement reviewed Canadian-United States co-operation in early warning defence, including strategic aircraft and discussed the difficulties of establishing the new system.

It would "extend over thousands of miles and its survey will involve the examination of a great number of possible sites," the statement said.

"Much of the ground is inaccessible except by tractor train and helicopter. In many areas, extreme temperatures are encountered for several months of the year. Many technical problems, including the transportation of the aerial, but with electronic devices, have had to be overcome."

Location of the McGill Fence is a closely-guarded secret.

The last time the announcement disclosed that the U.S. is extending the early-warning barrier across the northeastern and northwestern seaward approaches to the continent.

People Cured of TB May Live Longer Than if They Never Had Disease

By FRANK CAREY

CHICAGO (AP)—Having tuberculosis, and being cured of it, may actually mean a longer life for a person than if he never suffered TB, an insurance doctor reports.

Dr. Harry E. Ungerleider of New York says this is one of the indications from one of the most detailed insurance studies ever made of life expectancy among people previously having physical impairments.

The physician, of the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States, told the American College of Physicians in a paper prepared for today that the record analysis involved studies of the histories of 725,000 insurance risks and 18,000 deaths in some 132 "impairment" classifications.

He said the findings are based on the experience of 27 insurance companies, representing 70 per cent of the ordinary insurance in force in the United States and Canada.

Concerning tuberculosis, the doctor said the survey showed that a person receives five years after his TB has been "arrested," the chance of death is no greater than it would be for the average person who never had it.

"And 10 years after arrest, mortality becomes appreciably less than normal," he said. "It appears that the discipline accompanying rest and his disease puts dividends to the tuberculosis individual in training him to safeguard his health in the future."

Regarding diseases of the heart, the study gave additional ground for "a much more optimistic outlook" for persons who have suffered coronary attacks, one of the major forms of heart ailment.

Bop on Head, Name Fission Fanny As He Lets Go for Radio-Active Egg

By RON EVANS

Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Henrietta, a white Leghorn hen, gained farm-yard fame when she produced Britain's first radio-active egg. But all she got for her pains was a bop on the head and the nickname "Fission Fanny."

Yet in her lay down eggs," explained one scientist, "and then we hit her over the head and examine them for radio-active examination."

It was not by chance that Henrietta turned out an egg to set the geiger counters buzzing. The whole operation was planned in advance by atomic energy experts.

First Dr. J. C. Catch loaded some simple green algae, the slimy scum found on the top of ponds, on a highly radio-active substance called carbon 14. Dr. John Humphrey then fed the algae to Henrietta in a bread pill.

Then the scientists plan to feed the "hot" egg to rabbits and other animals, in the hope they can trace the mechanism by which animals and humans build radio-active bones.

The British chicken-and-egg experiments are the latest in a series carried out several years ago at the University of Cambridge's Strangeways Laboratory among the radio-active materials produced by Canadian scientists at the atomic energy plant at Chalk River, Ont.

The British experiments were explained to a group of correspondents who visited the government's agricultural centre at Amersham, Buckinghamshire, Wednesday. Guinea pigs, rats and rabbits were used in early experiments at Amersham.

Sunday Services Proposed For Ontario Hospitals

TORONTO (CP)—Sunday services in Ontario hospitals are proposed by Dr. Ernest Rogers, Ontario minister of health.

Dr. Rogers told the Ontario Hospital Association convention here Wednesday that he would like to see Sunday services in hospitals "if we can get the right kind of people to conduct them."

He said he would like to see the services conducted by "people who are not afraid to talk about God."

Emergency Flare At Washout Saves Train

NORTH BAY (CP) — A train carrying 150 passengers and crew stopped in the flickering light of an emergency flare at midnight, 200 yards from a washout and a disastrous plunge into Trout lake.

The Ontario Northland Railway train, only four miles out of North Bay, was hailed as water and rocks cascaded down a slope and washed away earth from beneath a 75-foot-long piece of track.

Had the crowded train roared on into the night it probably would have been buried feet deep under the slope, across a highway and into the lake.

Bush pilot George Coleman and two companions were credited with averting a tragedy. Coleman, who runs a tourist camp at the lake, set up flares from his emergency kit flying 50 the train rounded a bend leading to the washout.

The passengers and crew were unaware that heavy rains, one of the worst in years, rumbled through a three-mile slope from the North Bay airport had left a long stretch of rail unsupported in the air. ONR officials said Coleman's quick-thinking saved the lives of many persons.

TELEPHONE OUT

Coleman said he was sitting in the living room of his lodge when he heard rocks crashing into a gully 100 yards away. He walked along the track and met Orville Quirt and Peter Prested. A short distance ahead they found the washout.

Prested ran to his home to telephone railway officials to have danger lights put up, but the rain had knocked out the telephone lines. Coleman then picked up his emergency kit.

"I had a hard time getting the flares lit," he said. "It finally caught and I put it between the rails."

THE WEATHER

TORONTO. (CP) — Synopsis: Cool air preceded by severe thunderstorms swept across southern Ontario Wednesday night. Strong northwest winds and considerable cloudiness will be general across the province today with some snowflurries likely to the south of Lake Huron and Georgian Bay this afternoon. With skies clearing and winds becoming light this evening, temperatures will be near below freezing tonight in southern regions and below zero in northern Ontario.

B.C.I. Student In Second Place District Finals

Miss Ruth Watson, grade 13 student at the Belleville Collegiate, won second prize in the district finals of the annual provincial oratorical contest sponsored by the Lions Club, which was held in Peterborough recently.

Miss Watson, who placed second in the zone contest at Napanee, spoke on "New Canadians" at the Peterborough contest pointing out that Canada has been indebted to successive generations of new Canadians from the time of the earliest French settlers until the present.

Miss Watson, who finished one percentage point behind the winner, was awarded a trophy and a cash prize for second place. She was sponsored in the contest by the Belleville Lions Club.

At the last meeting of the Belleville Lions Club, the officers elected for 1954 were installed by international counsellor, Ross Burke, of the Kingston Lions Club.

Ground Observer Corps Will Be Organized Here

James M. O'Bryan of Belleville has been appointed regional supervisor for the ground observer corps in this area the R.C.A.F. announced today. Mr. O'Bryan, who will act in a voluntary capacity will be responsible for the organization of aircraft spotter posts at locations situated at Belleville, Frankford, Hoard's Station and Halloway.

The ground observer corps, commenced operation in many strategic areas of Canada last summer. The purpose of the corps is to supplement Canada's radar screen. However, during the past few months volunteers of the corps have been highly instrumental in reporting the assisting aircraft in distress and in some instances aircraft in flight which later crashed. This resulted in aircraft that crashed in the isolated areas of Canada being found in a matter of hours rather than days. Lengthy searches involve numerous search aircraft which are costly to operate let alone the thousands of hours used, sometimes fruitlessly.

CIVILIAN VOLUNTEERS

The corps is manned by the principle of observation posts spaced approximately eight miles apart and connected to the area central correlation centre or filter centre. The corps volunteers plot the courses of aircraft and pass all information to an associated radio station or search and rescue unit. All observation posts are manned by civilian volunteers who are trained by R.C.A.F. officers. For the time being, flying training will not be activated on a 24-hour basis, they will be started only during a period of a live training exercise or during an alert, such as an aircraft lost in the area. The filter centre for this area is to be located at Belleville.

Mr. O'Bryan, associated with the Northern Electric Co. and an active member of the Air Force Association, has accepted the important task of organizing observation posts in this area and expresses the hope that residents both men or women, will devote some of their free time to the air defence of Canada.

Anyone wishing further information may contact Mr. O'Bryan at 288 George Street, or write directly to Detachment Commander, 54 Corps Headquarters Corps Detachment, 50 Building, George Street, Peterborough, Ont.

Police said that about $8 had been stolen from the theatre, while a $900 cash register containing about $40 was taken from the men's station. The cash register has been recovered.

Investigation into the break-ins was conducted by Police Chief John Rankin, of Madoc, assisted by Sgt. R. H. Deverause, of the Ontario Provincial Police at Belleville. The two arrested men will appear in magistrate's court at Madoc next week.

An invitation was brought forward by the president from St. Thomas' Men's Club that the club join them for supper at their regular meeting April 22. Quite a few members planned to attend.

At his conclusion he was thanked for a fine talk by Geo. Mills, who also moved that the club attend as a group the special Holy Week service on Tuesday, April 13.

After games refreshments were served.

Senior Citizens Hold Meeting

The monthly meeting of the Senior Citizens' Club of Belleville was held in the Kiwanis Centre last evening, with some 90 members being present for a splendid evening's entertainment.

A short business meeting was held under the chairmanship of L. H. Field, who first reported for the executive. He stated a euchre tournament will be played during the next three meetings with prizes for high and other scores to be presented at the June gathering.

Mr. W. A. Van Tassel, a member of the Recreation commission, was a visitor and in a few addresd congratulated the club on its remarkable growth in so short a time, and wished the members every success.

"Refreshments Through the Years" was screened by the Cosmetic Counter Girls of the club. This film shows the development of the manufacture of soft drinks from the "three and a half-d" days up to the present time, and also its concern in the bottling. The members of the club all being more than "three score years and ten" thoroughly back memories of happy days of long ago, and the pictures entertaining to those days were heard afterwards. The thanks of the club were expressed by Mr. Field to Mr. Don Charlton, and he was asked to convey the thanks also to the management of the Coca-Cola Company.

Last Rites Held For Fred Clarke

Boyhood chums, Scouts, Cubs, and athletes, together with a cross section of the city paid sorrowing tribute to the memory of Frederick (Freddy) Clarke, beloved son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Clarke, 40 Hillcrest Avenue, at impressive funeral rites conducted in the chapel of the Bellville Burial Company Funeral Home on Wednesday afternoon.

The services in the chapel and at the grave were in charge of Archdeacon, the Ven. J. B. Creeggan, rector of St. Thomas' Church, assisted by the Rev. J. W. Robinson, rector of St. Thomas' Church, and the Rev. Canon F. H. Smith, curate of Christ Church.

Freddy passed away in Syracuse, N.Y., hospital on Sunday, April 4, as a result of injuries sustained in the motor accident in city three weeks ago.

Throughout his last respects before the flower-banked casket in the chapel prior to the service, the honorary pall bearers were close friends of Freddy. During the prior service the casket bore a large number of fellow school pupils, Scouts, Cubs and members of the Bell-Air Softball club which he was a member, passed through the chapel in hushed, reverent farewell.

IMPRESSIVE SERVICE

The chapel was crowded to capacity long before Archdeacon Creegan intoned the opening of the impressive Anglican funeral service. Many Scouts outside. A group of uniformed Scouts and Cubs of the Belleville First Troop and Pack, of St. Thomas Church under Scouter Austen Gonin and Cubmaster Gordon Lane formed a cordon in the chapel.

Following the service the Scouts and Cubs, with the honorary pallbearers and a large number of the Scouts, formed a guard of honor from the chapel to the funeral coach. Scout and Cub arms were raised in reverent final salute as the casket passed through the lines.

A large number followed the long funeral cortege to the Belleville cemetery where Freddy was laid to final rest on a greening slope overlooking the Bay of Quinte.

The honorary bearers, all chums of Freddy, were: Larry McFee, Bert Kingston, Garry Tremaine, Bob Worley, Lou Bailey, David Whitefield and David Smith.

The active bearers were: Earl Bush, Mike Ploech, J. Baker, Jim MacDonald, Don Bush and Glenn Young.

Naturalists Enjoy Slides Showing Rockies

The regular monthly meeting of the Quinte Field Naturalists was held at the Queen Elizabeth School on Monday evening.

Miss Fay Young, acting secretary, read a witty and interesting letter from the Brantford Field Naturalist Club on how to keep a club alive and active.

The treasurer's report on the sale of tickets for the Audubon lecture series was very encouraging.

The president, Miss Lillian Hart, gave a brief report on the annual meeting of the Ontario Field Naturalists held at the Ontario Museum, Toronto, in March.

Miss Doris Lloyd gave a humorous account of life at Camp Billie Bear, near Huntsville, where one may go for two weeks to study birds and the flora and fauna of the district. Fee for camp will be paid at Bark Lake near Ironsides.

Colored slides showed many of the beauty spots of the Rockies, Mrs. Bromley Smith of the Dominion Parasite Laboratory, has spent several summers in the Rocky Mountain area of British Columbia, studying means of preventing the spread of the spruce bud worm, called St. John's wort and sometimes goat's beard.

The colored slides showed many of the beauty spots of the Rockies, Bromley Smith of the Dominion Parasite Laboratory, has spent several summers in the Rocky Mountain area of British Columbia, studying means of preventing the spread of the spruce bud worm, called St. John's wort and sometimes goat's beard.

Mrs. Smith showed slides of Jasper National Park, Mount Robson, Yoho Park, Lake Louise, Banff, Glacier Park, Grand Coulee Dam and Lake Louise, Banff, Glacier Park, Grand Coulee Dam and acres and acres of St. John's wort.

This weed has spread over 4,000,000 acres of forest in the northwestern States. It is spreading quite rapidly into British Columbia and is encroaching on the orchards of the Penticton and Kelowna areas.

Spraying has been found an expensive and not too effective method of control. Two beetles, the Chrysolina Gemellata and the Chrysolina Hyperici which feed exclusively on St. John's wort have been introduced in British Columbia. Dr. Smith, in cooperation with a number of others is engaged in the propagation of the decrease of plant life as the beetle population increases. Pictures showed the full grown appearance of the weed after the beetles had stripped off all their leaves. It is to be hoped that the beetles will prove an adequate means of ridding the country of this weed.

Miss Joy Nichols thanked the speaker on behalf of the group.

Refreshments were served by Miss Down and her group.

Ten Public, H.S. Teachers Leave in June

TRENTON (Special) — V. P. Carswell, secretary of the Board of Education and supervising principal of public schools, feels that the resignation of 10 public and high school teachers is not as serious as it appears on the surface. He explains that a number of them would have resigned anyway. "Some of them intended leaving to go to other places," he said.

According to Mr. Carswell five or six of those who quit were dissatisfied with the salaries they received. However, this is not entirely exactly normal but it is not that abnormal to create widespread controversy."

Mr. Carswell explained why the post office at Commodore and Mrs. W. W. Brown of Station Street, Trenton, were excluded from the B. or E. meeting the other night. The meeting was for high and public school teachers a family group. He maintains that the meeting was held because only Board members should not be made public. "The Board went into a committee to discuss salaries and individual teachers' qualifications. That is normal procedure," Mr. Carswell said.

At the meeting the secretary read out the names of the teachers who have resigned. Public school staff included: John F'ivey, Valerie and Virginia Thomson, Miss Marjorie Hayes, Miss Jane Lawler, Miss Louise Bradford, Mrs. Elaine Graham, Robert Bedford and Miss Shirley Fox. High school teacher Miss Betty Jean Hall resigned to accept a position at Seven Islands.

Mr. Carswell offered a solution for holding satisfactory teachers and attracting new ones. He suggested the Board to study the possibility of offering teachers more fringe benefits.

Govt. Will Pay $500 an Acre For Large Tract

TRENTON (Special) — Mayor Ross Burit and his council are well pleased over the price the Town of Trenton received from the Provincial government for the land at the north end of Sidney Street. It understood that the piece will be the location of the clover-leaf routing traffic from the new Provincial highway into Trenton.

The Highway Department offered the town $150 an acre for the land. The town asked $900 an acre. On Tuesday night council unanimously accepted the government's new offer of $500 an acre.

In the letter accompanying the offer the writer pointed out that the government considered the tract valuable to the town as industrial land. Hence the reason for the increase in the offer.

British Guiana Capital Tense Following Riot

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (Reuters) — Police strengthened their patrols in an atmosphere of mounting tension in this British colony today after 30 demonstrators had been injured in fist fights with a barrage of clubs and bottles in a riot Wednesday night.

Waves of gas finally broke up the demonstration outside the headquarters of the People's Progressive Party and even Mrs. Janet Jagan, wife of the colony's deposed premier, out of the building.

Six persons were arrested for attacking police in the bottle-throwing fracas. Among them is a detest rally against the arrest of expremier Cheddi Jagan. They included Rudy Luck, lawyer who unsuccessfully defended Mrs. Jagan last December when she was charged and found guilty of holding an illegal political meeting.

Police closed the party headquarters and three a cordon of armed police with bayonets around it.

ILLEGAL MEETING

Fifteen other persons were arrested Wednesday for holding an illegal mass meeting near Government House, Assemblies of more than five persons are banned under emergency regulations in force since Jagan's government was deposed by Britain last year for allegedly trying to set up a Communist state in the South American colony.

Latest move in the colonial government's campaign against agitation by the party which Jagan ran was arrested Monday for holding an illegal procession. He had first been hailed out of jail after a previous arrest for leaving Georgetown in violation of official orders.

The demonstration Wednesday night began at a protest against a magistrate's refusal to grant bail to Jagan and five other party leaders arrested on the second charge Wednesday.

French Wipe Out Reds' Trenches At Dien Bien Phu

By LARRY ALLEN

HANOI (AP) — French union troops, fanning out over a wide area around Dien Bien Phu today, destroyed a long string of enemy trenches being built for a fresh assault on the northwest Indochina bastion.

Sixty rebels were killed in the operations,the French said.

A French communique said the garrison defenders had an "easy night" Wednesday as the Communist-led Vietminh drill did not repeat their direct infantry assaults on the fortress plain. The rebels halted their second round of such frontal charges Monday after six days of murderous French gunfire and hand-to-hand combat.

But the Vietminh troops kept up their feverish digging of new trenches and winding trenches within 600 feet of the barbed-wire masses guarding the heart of the French union stronghold 175 miles west of Hanoi.

Thunderstorms and rain meanwhile have increased in frequency, heralding the approach by the end of the month of the monsoons, the big seasonal rains which annually halt large-scale operations. Time obviously is growing short for the rebels in their try for a big victory before the Geneva Far East conference, scheduled to start April 26.

As the main Vietminh force rested up today in the hills around Dien Bien Phu, long lines of trucks and coolies still followed the roads and trails from Communist China with ammunition, other war material and rice for the rebel forces.

French fighters and American-supplied B-26 bombers kept up their constant attacks on the supply lines, but some of the convoys certainly were getting through.

In Saigon, the French high command claimed today that its operations along the coast of Viet Nam have cost the Vietminh 1,443 killed, wounded or captured.

Churchill Feels Quebec Pact Covered H-Bomb

By PHILIP CLARKE

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons today that in his opinion his secret wartime atomic agreement with President Roosevelt would have applied "to the hydrogen bomb also."

Churchill's statement made in reply to Labor questions, was counter to an official White House view that the 1943 Quebec pact would not apply to the H-bomb.

Former Labor foreign minister Herbert Morrison brought Labor cries of "oh" by asserting that Churchill's agreement with President Roosevelt was "essentially of a personal character" and that the prime minister had never even told his cabinet about the pact.

Morrison himself was a member of Churchill's wartime coalition cabinet.

Churchill said he would not publish all secret agreements with other countries made by his government during the Second World War unless it was in the public interest "and the consent of the other parties concerned has when necessary been obtained in each case."

The Quebec pact included an agreement that neither the U. S. nor Britain would use the atomic bomb against a third party without mutual consent.

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — The Dominion Natural Gas Company today announced a $650,000 expansion program which will result in an additional natural gas supply for this area. The program will include eight miles of new eight-inch pipeline.

Hydro Workers Out on Strike At Lindsay

LINDSA Y(CP)—Thirteen hydro workers went on strike today in a contract dispute with the Lindsay Hydro Commission.

The men, members of the National Union of Public Service Employees (CIO), operate the electrical system in this town of 10,000 about 70 miles northeast of Toronto.

They set a strike deadline for 7:30 a. m. today. When the deadline arrived they established a picket line outside the commission's main office.

Hydro service to the town continued without interruption. Officials said the system is on automatic controls which will keep it in operation indefinitely unless a breakdown occurs.

The same group of workers staged a short strike last December. At that time, too, automatic controls maintained service. Toward the end of the December strike, a transformer failure blacked out a section of the town and the union men picketed the pole carrying the transformer.

The commission and the union have been unable to agree on a closed shop and for inclusion of a new contract. The commission has approved a five-cent-a-head levy on cattle to finance a Canadian meat council.

Will Question Suspect Held On Slaying of Canadian Nurse

NEW YORK (CP) — Police brought out the file today on the February slaying of a Canadian nurse in a west-side Manhattan hotel and prepared to question a suspect arrested in Baltimore early Wednesday after a night-club shooting.

Police said a comparison of fingerprints taken from a man arrested for shooting and wounding a policeman and a waitress after a row in the Baltimore night club linked him with the knife slaying of 40-year-old Norma Rennie, formerly of Guelph, Ont.

Miss Rennie was found stabbed to death in the hotel bedroom several days after she had died. A maid found her nude body after investigating a "do not disturb" sign which had hung on the door for several days.

The man arrested in Baltimore was identified as Anthony Paul Karcinski, 43 - year - old textile worker from Lexington, Mass. There was no immediate word on whether he would be brought to here.

FACES CHARGES

He faces charges in connection with the shooting of patrolman Walter Tracy, 42, and Mrs. Roy S. Lucas following the fight here. Mrs. Lucas is in critical condition.

The fight started in the night club where Mrs. Lucas was a waitress. She and her husband called police and Karcinski fired five times while being put into the patrol wagon, hitting Mrs. Lucas and the patrolman.

After investigation of the slaying of Miss Rennie, New York police had issued a 13-state alarm naming an Anthony Karcinski who had registered at the hotel a week before the Rennie slaying and had lived in a room next to hers.

An eight-inch blood-encrusted bread knife was found in the bathroom. Aside from the blood there were no other signs of a disturbance.

The man who registered as Karcinski was last seen at the hotel two days before the nurse's body was discovered. Police found a pair of shoes and a suit in his room, but no luggage was left.

A SIGNIFICANT CONTROVERSY

Britain has a new political controversy.

It centres around a 1943 agreement between Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt with respect to atomic energy.

For Britons it is likely to be a highly intriguing discussion, because it involves the past record of the Labor Party. Churchill maintains that Clement Attlee, when he was Prime Minister, should have reminded U.S. authorities of the existence of this Quebec agreement. Such action, he maintains, would likely have prevented the passage of the McMahon Act, a 1947 measure preventing the exchange of U.S. atomic secrets. Attlee argues that it was not his duty, but the duty of the U.S. administration, to inform U.S. legislators of the existence of such an agreement.

Canadians will not be so keenly interested in the point in dispute between Churchill and Attlee, for it is, after all, primarily a matter of domestic politics. This makes it possible to consider some much more important implications of this controversy, and to grasp its true significance not merely as an isolated incident but as typical of a situation which exists and which is likely to continue to exist for many years to come.

The 1943 agreement between Churchill and Roosevelt was, of course, a secret one. Since the nations which these statesmen represented were at war, and since the agreement was concerned with their plans for the production and use of atomic bombs, it was impossible to disclose the existence of the accord even to the elected representatives of the people.

As far as the general public is concerned, this secrecy was maintained until Tuesday of this week, when Churchill disclosed the existence of the agreement during debate in the British House of Commons, after first having asked and received permission from President Eisenhower to make the second public disclosure.

From the debate in the House, it is evident that Attlee had known of the agreement earlier. He was, of course, a member of the Churchill cabinet during the war. It is doubtful, however, whether all members of the British House were aware of the existence of the agreement during that period when Churchill believes Attlee should have reminded U.S. authorities of the agreement. And, of course, the existence of the agreement is known to have been kept secret from at least most of the members of the Congress when the Quebec agreement to Senator McMahon and the latter had stated that "if we had seen this agreement there would have been no McMahon Act."

Elected representatives are responsible for the governing of United States, and almost certainly their counterparts responsible for the governing of Britain, were this not likely in ignorance, not only during war-time but also after the war, of pertinent information.

If this were an isolated instance, or if the maintenance of such secrecy applied only to agreements reached during war, the situation would not be so serious.

But the very nature of many of the problems facing democratic governments today is such that the maintenance of secrecy is almost as important as it would be if the countries were at war. A secret which is known to several hundred people, even if these people are the elected representatives of the people, is not secret at all. It is certain to leak out, if not to the general public, at least to the trained espionage agents of foreign powers.

Most of us are aware that it is difficult for a democracy to function as a true democracy during wartime. The forms of democratic government may be preserved but, by mutual agreement, the principles on which true democracy is dependent are largely ignored. They have to be. It is a necessity if the nation is to survive.

We now find, however, that in the days of the cold war and the hydrogen bomb, secret agreements and administrative control free from the public scrutiny of parliament are continued necessities.

How, then, have we been able to preserve our democratic government?

The answer is that we have not—that in many realms in every democratic country the executive is operating with something resembling freedom from the necessity of obtaining approval for its actions from the elected representatives of the people.

Insofar as this is a necessity it is a situation which must be endured.

Insofar as it is merely a convenience, for the government, to operate free from criticism, it must be fought.

Incidentally, what imperative needs of national safety made it necessary to keep the Churchill-Roosevelt agreement on atomic energy secret from 1943 until 1954?

POETRY

You never can tell, for there's no way to know,
What sort of a garb hides the soul of a poet.
For not all the poems are written at night
By the carefree fellows whose job is to write,
And not all the poetry's told us in rhyme;
It's something that's felt a good deal of the time.

It flows out of men in all manner of ways,
In the hours they build and the gardens they raise,
In the books they are fond of, the letters they keep,
The way that they look at their babies asleep,
And I'm sure you would find to your good cost deep within him,
The poorest of man has some poetry in him.

He was planting some shrubs, and he worked by the day.
The best he could earn was a laborer's pay,
And I saw he had stepped from the plan we'd made known
And placed a shrub to some whim of his own.
He had disobeyed orders. I asked him why
And stood back and waited to hear his reply.

He couldn't find words which he could express,
He leaned on his spade and he looked at his shoes,
Then he said: "This one shrub was so lovely and fair
I felt God loved it, and so I put it just there."
So I left that bush there, standing out all alone,
For the soul of a poet had made itself known.

LOOKING BACKWARDS
GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

25 YEARS AGO
APRIL 5, 1934.
THE OLDEST BUILDING IN BELLEVILLE.

Mr. W. J. Mikel writes to the Ontario Intelligencer as follows: "In view of the Centennial Celebration here in June it may be of interest to ascertain which is the oldest building now standing in Belleville. In the erection of the centre part of the court house was commenced in 1837 and completed in 1838. Funds were provided for the erection of a market building in 1834 and it is likely that the building now occupied as a police court building on the west side of the Market square was the building erected pursuant to that arrangement. It may, therefore, be taken for granted that the building at present occupied by the police department, the public health department and the ambulance was erected about 1837 which is at this time 97 years ago. It was used as the village hall, also for public entertainments and the lower part as a market. Later the upstairs was used as an armoury for the 1.Company of the 49th Battalion. The brick store house of Thomas Holland on the west side of Pinnacle Street is another old building that was acquired from the Crown on the 19th of December, 1818, by William Rose for the purpose of a Methodist Church. The first building erected upon the lot being of frame. Some years later the back of which is not ascertained, the frame building was removed and the present brick building erected in its place. It was sold by the Methodist congregation to the Masonic fraternity for a Masonic Temple on the 9th of July, 1867, and sold by the Masonic fraternity to the Grand Union Railway Company for a depot in 1872. This may be the oldest of the three buildings mentioned. I would be glad to receive information that would indicate the oldest private dwelling in Belleville."

THE PACKSACK
By GREGORY CLARK

At a recent dog show, after the sporting breeds had been judged, to which the hounds took part, the hounds were brought forth in their own group.

There were, in the final lineup, Irish wolf hounds, Norwegian elkhounds, bloodhounds, foxhounds, dachshunds of two varieties, the smooth and long haired, a lonely fox hound and last of all and loneliest of all, a beagle.

They made a fine array. Here on show were the strains of all the hunting companions of man from the ancient past. Strangest of all, of course, was the Afghan with his silky long hair combed in fantastic fashion in long strands off its high-domed narrow head, somewhat reminiscent of the poodle, and also with a slight resemblance to a decayed movie star of the old silent movies who had spent too long at the beauty parlor in order to attend a party. The Irish Wolf hound, as big as a yearling calf, won the prize. It was proper that it did. Once it was the slayer of elk, and since nobody hunted wolves in Ireland since Brian Boru, nobody but the Irish wolf hound should look like except some fanciful dog who took upon dogs as live stock.

There in the parade were the caterpillar-legged dachshunds looking stingy; the bloodhound gloomy and clumsy, with not even an escaped female slave to chase an elk hound who never will see an elk; the Basenji African dog, the foxhound whose dogs are numbered all over the world.

But last of all the glorious, tidy little beagle, fourteen inches high at the shoulder, clean as a whistle, bland but wise of eye, tough as rawhide, pretty as a picture, fire-less as the wind—and heaven. He came last.

But all over America, he remains the one great multiplying, prospering hunting dog, the family guide-dog-and-philosopher present in the hound show whose business is flourishing, and he goes on day by day, the year round, regardless of shows.

It was hardly comic to see him in competition with pictures of memory's wall.

Letters to the Editor

Fair Board Secretary Discusses Grandstand

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

In a recent issue of your paper reporting the proceedings of city council I noticed the following heading, "Grandstand cost $10,000 more than expected."

I would like to take this opportunity to give some of the facts regarding this new grandstand at the fair grounds.

In 1951 the Agricultural Society realized the accommodation at the fair grounds was inadequate, and looked into the possibilities for the erection of a new structure. The agricultural society realized that if a new grandstand was to be built it was going to require an assist largely in the financing, as it would not be reasonable to expect the corporation to shoulder the total cost. The old grandstand was condemned by the city building inspector at this point which made the necessity of a new one even more imperative.

In surveying the possibilities of government grants the society was informed the Dominion government would pay one-third of the cost, the Provincial government would match the Dominion grant and the society would be responsible for the balance.

It should be pointed out that these grants were only available for agricultural society.

The society immediately had plans drawn by an architect and asked for an estimate of the cost which was received in the fall of 1952. The society immediately entered into an agreement with the government of Canada for an expenditure of $60,000. It is possible this will seem a large sum, but it must be pointed out this was two years previous to the building contracts was started owing to the restrictions on steel.

In the summer of 1952, tenders were called and accepted in the neighborhood of $75,000 for the steel. Owing still to restrictions and scarcity of steel the actual contract on the grandstand did not start until the spring of 1953.

On December 22, 1952, an order in council was passed changing the provisions of agreements on capital expenditure to a maximum of one-third of the cost thus applied to the provincial government's grant was also limited to amounts receivable from grants at $40,000.

It would like to point out here that under the first agreement the grant was spread over a period of ten years, and under the new agreement the $40,000 would be paid upon completion. This amount we have been told by the Dept. of Agriculture will be forthcoming shortly which will cut the structure loss in half.

If under the original agreement we had asked for $75,000 to be paid over a period of ten years the corporation would have had to contribute $45,000 to the full amount of the cost.

The interest on $40,000 calculated at 3½ per cent over a period of ten years would be approximately $14,000. This is the amount we have been asked to pay when the matter is summed up this grandstand is not costing the city of Belleville any more than if it had financed the whole $60,000 over a ten year period.

The parks board and the city of Belleville even have installed a modern baseball dugouts were built that there would be no government grants on these. They were reported to have cost $3,000, but the actual cost was $4,500.00.

Another item that I believe should be mentioned is that the architect's fees did not cost the city of Belleville a cent. The $2,580 was paid entirely by the agricultural society and the cheque has already been given to the city treasurer.

The agricultural society in the past year has made its profit to Belleville to receive from the city $51,580 of capital expenditure broken down as follows: $40,000 grandstand; architect fees paid by the society, $3,580; paving of the midway area at the fair grounds which makes an excellent road from the front of the grounds to the grandstand $8,000; with a cost to the corporation of $8,000 spread over a 10 year period.

It should be noted also that all these capital improvements are vested in the corporation. At the present time there is no equity in them except paying $150 per year. This is due to be increased at fair time.

I would not like to leave the impression that the society is objecting to this rental. This is a reasonable cost for the parks and does not take into consideration expenses to prepare the grounds for the fair, and there always has been the utmost co-operation between the two bodies.

I trust this will clear up some misunderstood questions regarding this matter.

Secretary, Belleville Agricultural Society.

Asks Some Questions On Foley Parking Lot

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

The Ontario Municipal Board has ruled that the proposal to acquire the Foley property for downtown parking must be referred to the taxpayers. It would seem that a full report on this matter is long overdue.

The city engineer has staff and facilities to prepare an adequate report. It is not sufficient to state that increased parking is necessary and can be developed for $11,000 per car. The taxpayer would like to have the complete cost to date—How many cars can be parked on the east bank of the river? Who owns this land? What is the total downtown parking capacity? What percentage increase will the Foley property provide? On what basis is the Foley property valued. Are there any other proposals for increased parking? Is there any proposal to charge downtown parking to general taxes?

Familiar Look To Inca Child

(New York Times)

Usually nothing but a conundrum to the world at large, a little girl across five centuries to touch intimately and immediately the life of a living man. Only a piece of art fashioned through the most sophisticated artifice can create that kind of universal experience which is at once both shocking and unmasking all the time. The Associated Press picture of the little girl in the Cuban Andes also has the line and feel of universal experience. The child's face, her hands, her hair, her shoulder.

The figure could so easily be that of an American girl, safe in the warmth of her playroom, fallen asleep in front of television after supper-time. Or, again, it could be the familiar face of the heroine of every child orphaned in a London air raid, budding into itself for the first time in a strange city. This peculiarly human attitude recurs repeatedly in the faces of every kind or another from the world.

Scientists feel that important discoveries may come from the find, and the great pity is that it was preserved human form from such a distant age. For like hymns, each new discovery that a child chilled and likely hungry and tired is the same the world and calendar around.

Wolf Bounty Law's History

(Hamilton Spectator).

The amendment of the Wolf and Bear Bounty Act introduced in the Ontario Legislature to-day may recall, for those who know their history, some of the early legislation on Canada's first parliament.

Lands and Forests Minister Gemmell wants the existing legislation eased to allow trappers and hunters to produce the head and ear of a wolf to claim the bounty instead of the full carcass as at present. If this is approved the law will be more attractive and the wages for other workers, or into the expansion without which no industry cannot survive. The investor, the "salaried" capitalist is what is left—perhaps three or four cents out of each dollar; takes all the risk for crumbs from the table.

There is a cap i3-all, the Government, with its income tax, takes away a lot of the crumbs.

TODAY'S TALK
By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

DOG ETERNAL

Much has been written about the "animal link" between animal life and man, but I wish to talk about the existing link between man and God, and name that link as man's greatest friend—the dog. This wonderful beast is the most understanding body of life outside of man.

"Faithful unto death" may well be the epitaph upon the tombstone of any good dog. As a companion, the average dog can put most of us to shame. Look at your friend in the face. Honesty is written all over it, and those eyes gleam with an exploring questioning. What would he say if he could only speak? His wry bark is his answer to a thousand riddles.

The great of this earth have felt the necessity for a dog to calm and cheer their days. Little is said of Lincoln's dog, but he had one. It gave him solace during dark and cheerless days and nights. E. V. Lucas had a dog which he named as John had taught his disciples. While he was on earth he spoke on the Mount of Transfiguration, the fathers of our Lord's countenance was altered, and his face became luminous and resplendent with heavenly light.

This was what prayer meant to him. He tried to pass on to his disciples a sense of the importance and privilege of prayer. He made it plain that prayer must always be sincere, that it must be uttered with as much ease as one can muster up. It must be unselfish, continuous, passionate.

Prayer has certain unyielding requirements. When these requirements are met, things begin to happen. Prayer works.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY
DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

NATURE OF PRAYER

Prayer is real. It works.

Jesus was the Son of God and the only perfect human being that ever lived. His moral power was necessary. How much more, therefore, do we need prayer.

Prayer was one of the chief themes of our Lord's teaching. He seemed to regard prayer as more essential to his spiritual life than food was to his physical life. The harder he worked, the more he prayed. The night before he chose the twelve apostles, he spent the entire night in prayer. On one occasion his disciples were so evidently impressed by the form and power of his prayer that they besought him to teach them to pray.

Capitalists Get Crumbs

(Ottawa Journal)

In 1953 the Canadian Pacific Railway's gross earnings were $403 millions.

Who got this money?

Of each dollar, 54 cents went to the railway's workers, 28 cents went to the materials and supplies, six cents went for taxes, six cents went for depreciation and amortization Pacific statement gives the true picture. And it is a picture which is typical of most of the Canadian Pacific but of all our big corporations. We want more of whose earnings goes to workers or to buy materials and supplies that in turn provide jobs and wages for other workers, or into the expansion without which no industry cannot survive. The investor, the "salaried" capitalist is what is left—perhaps three or four cents out of each dollar; takes all the risk for crumbs from the table.

There is a cap i3-all, the Government, with its income tax, takes away a lot of the crumbs.

Motorized Doors Next

(Halifax Chronicle-Herald)

A United States firm is reported to be planning the introduction this year in motorized revolving doors, thus bringing one step nearer the ideal automatic door of modern man.

The next step in the mass assembly of parts for office staff will presumably be the provision of a conveyor-belt to snatch every letter at the grip of the revolving door and carry them, falsely and instantly, sorting-ing, to their appointed places, where a mechanical girl will see to it that they disembark at the correct time and place.

Then, at the very view of employees arriving for the day's work, this is probably a good thing. The worker will come to his task fresh and sparkling in the early morning not fatigued by the herculean labor of having had to push open a door.

No Official Word Received On Madoc-Foxboro Road County Council Members Told

Hastings county council has received no official word from the Ontario Department regarding what action the provincial government may take with respect to the Madoc-Foxboro road.

Reeve Elmer Wood of Hungerford township as chairman of the county roads and bridges committee reported to council today that it was hoped some definite word would have been received in time for the April session. However, no word had been received and the county would have to spend money on the road this year.

Last year the Ontario Highways department was requested by council to take over the Madoc road and rebuild it as a provincial highway but Highways Minister George Doucett, however, stated that this could not be done unless the county was willing to assume maintenance of one of the existing provincial highways.

The last word received by the county was to the effect that the highways minister would come to Belleville and go over the roads and make some decision.

Mr. Wood reported that all county roads are in fairly good condition following the winter season. To date $28,000 has been spent on roads this year. This was up considerably from the same date last year. It is expected the road budget would be cut this year.

Purchase of a new sander for use on the Madoc road had put dividends with few people regarding ice having been received since its purchase.

Reeve Irwin McCoy of Marmora and Lake wanted to know if the county machine had any plans for any hard surfacing on the county road leading from Lazar Corners to Marmora.

CARRIES HEAVY TRAFFIC

He said this road carries heavy traffic and was in very poor condition. Holes in the road approaching Marmora were very rough he said.

Reeve Ritchie Wells, of Marmora village, said the same request. He claimed that this road had been "sidetracked" by the roads committee and much criticism had been received.

To a question by Reeve Geo. Montgomery, of Frankford, regarding the Frankford-Foxboro road, Mr. Wood replied that it was expected this road would be completed this year.

Sheriff T. W. Solmes reported on the duties of the county sheriff's office. Introducing a resolution from Grey county was read, asking that the county sheriff's office be turned back to the county and the sheriff was asked for a report.

Mr. Solmes said the sheriff's office and the registrars office in Hastings were combined. He said there would be no actual profits from the sheriff's office. He was thanked by council.

The report of the finance committee was given by Chairman Reeve Russell Reed, of Stirling. He noted that a new court reporter, Mr. Peter Robertson, had been hired to replace Roger White at a salary of $4,000 per year.

A photostat machine had been purchased for the registry office at a cost of $700, and a printing machine had been bought at a cost of $350. "These two machines would speed up office work and cut down on storage space," he said.

Certain repairs were necessary at the court house and the committee had recommended that stoping the cost of living bonus was said to have been a misunderstanding. He said that the department had no idea that the bonus would be discontinued.

The salary question was one to two months brought before council by the sheriff. The other matter was a request for provision for seats for the public benches at the county court room.

WANTS NEW JURY ROOM

Jury seats at the court house were said to be "disgraceful". Some were badly worn and springs were showing through. Oak chairs, possibly with cushions were recommended.

The new jury seats were recommended by members of the Grand Jury in their report at the spring assizes.

Reeve Ritchie Wells of Marmora, wanted to know if there were any "pickings" which jail guards got which would increase their pay above their regular salaries.

Mr. Solmes replied that occasionally some of the guards would be given guard duty, while prisoners were in progress. "This might occur twice a year for some of the employees," he said.

Both the matter of salaries and provision of jury seats was left over for later discussion.

The sheriff was also asked to give council an idea of what the duties of his office were. The request was made during the reading of a resolution from Grey county asking that all profits from the sheriff's office be turned over to the county. Mr. Solmes said he would give a fuller report to the question.

Sheriff Requests Cost-of-Living Bonus for Guards

For the second time this year salaries of guards at the Hastings county jail came up for discussion yesterday at the April session of county council, with Sheriff T. W. Solmes asking that consideration be given to returning the cost of living bonus discontinued at the January session.

At the January session of council salaries of jail employees were increased but at the same time payment of a cost of living bonus was cut off.

Mr. Solmes said that while a few employees received more money, some of the guards actually had their pay cut.

Mr. Solmes noted that in raising jail guard salaries council had done as was recommended by the jail committee but stopping the cost of living bonus was said to have been a misunderstanding. He said that the department had no idea that the bonus would be discontinued.

The salary question was one of two matters brought before council by the sheriff. The other matter was a request for provision for seats for the public benches at the county court room.

The sheriff was also asked to give council an idea of what the duties of his office were. The request was made during the reading of a resolution from Grey county asking that all profits from the sheriff's office be turned over to the county. Mr. Solmes said he would give a fuller report to the question.

Hastings TB and Health Assoc. Now All-County Organization

For the first time since its inception eleven years ago, the Hastings County Tuberculosis and Health Association is now an all-county organization.

This was decided at the annual meeting held last night in the Stella Club. Previously the county was divided into two distinct bodies. Representatives of the North Hastings Association stated their organization had decided to merge with that of the southern section so that better results could be obtained.

Neil Hallam is the first president of the county body, after serving last year as head of the southern organization. Past president is Norman Garbutt, and vice-presidents, Frank Lang and John Saylor. Ben Yanover was re-named to the treasurership and Mrs. Nina Gault to the secretarial position.

Representatives of county organizations named last night are: Belleville, Harry Rollins, Art Bridge and Jim Gill; Trenton, John Saylor, Ted Parker; Deseronto, Harry Hanley; Tweed, S. S. Anderson; Madoc, Jack Baker; Marmora, Lovelace Anderson; D. Dalrymple; Frankford, Ray Scott; Bancroft, Ernie Thomas and James Brown; Stirling, Clarke Rollins.

In order to expand the work of the organization in the sale of Christmas seals, the association has decided to have organizational representation in the various county communities instead of individuals as heretofore.

It was pointed out that services clubs would provide a ready media for the work, and efforts along these lines will be considered.

Various reports were heard and a number of brief addresses relative to the work and objectives of the association.

President Hallam formally welcomed the representatives who came from all parts of the county adding a request for endorsation of the association.

REHABILITATION URGED

Past President Garbutt urged the co-operation of all in the rehabilitation of patients, and made a request that all organizations act as member units in assisting to eradicate and control T.B. and to carry out surveys when needed.

He explained the benefits to be derived in the respective communities in carrying out such projects.

Mrs. Gault told the meeting that 5,000 letters containing seals had been mailed out last year with 2,147 returned with money. The funds realized amounted to $2,602.60, some $600 short of the previous year, when "with 14,220 taxpayers in the county," she said "there is lots of scope for improvement."

Art Bridge, speaking on social service and rehabilitation, said a patient's peace of mind was important to his recovery. He stated that the association had provided food, fuel and clothing for families where necessary and last year each patient in South Hastings had been presented with a ten-dollar bill.

Education through pamphlets had been successful, he pointed out, recommending the same system be used this year. It would not only increase the seals sale but make more people conscious of what T.B. is.

Carlton Saylor spoke at some length on case-finding and pre-employment prevention. He paid tribute to the fine work being done by Dr. Brearley and the government clinic, also that of the mobile clinic.

"Pre-employment examinations are necessary," he said, "especially in the case of food handlers, dish-washers, etc."

Dr. A. Breula, city medical officer of health, said that T.B. was not as prevalent as 40 ago, but the rate is a lot less today. "Case-finding is the most important and there is none better to do this than the mobile unit," he said, where one person has been affected examination on a regular intervals or other members should be carried out."

HANDLERS CARRY CARDS

Dr. Breulis said food-handlers should carry cards showing they have been examined and periodical inspections of these cards are carried out.

His office carries out examination of 600 secondary school students in Belleville, he said, where only six per cent were found positive, but none has been found active in the past three years. He has no jurisdiction over secondary school students, who come from the outlying districts.

George Whitman, city welfare officer, urged all to use the professional services.

In his capacity he said he tried to help with case-finding work. He illustrated a recent case where a man had contracted the disease and as a result the family of six children and the father was broken up. The cost to the taxpayers in this case would be nearly $3,600 a year for the next 16 years.

In conclusion, President Hallam urged all to get behind the seals sale so that this year its proceeds could be doubled, or possibly tripled.

At the close the meeting the representatives enjoyed a tasty turkey dinner served by the Shrine Club ladies. Mrs. George Woodhouse and her capable assistants.

Members Talk About Egg Prices In Venezuela

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The price of Nova Scotia eggs in Venezuela was argued in the Nova Scotia legislature Wednesday. The price was never mentioned.

Agriculture Minister A. W. Mackenzie tangled with E. D. Haliburton, Progressive Conservative member for Kings and the opposition's farm critic, over the possibility of selling eggs to the South American country.

Mr. Haliburton said Venezuela buyers will pay more than those in central Canada and the United States.

"They won't," said Mr. Mackenzie, "That isn't the picture at all."

"Well, now it is," replied Mr. Haliburton.

Mr. Mackenzie repeated his first statement.

"There's no use talking," said Mr. Haliburton. "Mr. Mackenzie doesn't have an open mind on this at all."

Mr. Mackenzie said the question had been studied and that the figures were in his office to prove that the price was four cents a dozen in Venezuela than it was in Montreal.

They exchanged a few more comments and the discussion ended—for the moment.

NO ECONOMIC REPORT

In St. John's, Premier Joseph Smallwood told the legislature there will be no report on the economic development department's activities this year.

In Edmonton, Social Credit Premier E. C. Manning said he thinks the proposed $275 million pipeline to carry Alberta's proposed natural gas gathering system to Montreal is "grossly exaggerated."

He made the statement while the bill to incorporate a company for the gathering and transmission system was given first reading.

Mr. Manning said the proposed company will not be decided upon by the government or public. The closest he would be where utility companies getting gas to communities buy the gas from the gathering system.

Spread of Prices on Food Creates Discussion in Council

Hastings county councillors are a bit concerned over the spread of prices on food items from the time they leave the producers' hands until they are sold over the retail counters.

This was indicated yesterday when councillors entered into a lively discussion after a resolution from Grey county was read calling for an investigation into the spread of food prices. Councillors concurred in the resolution.

Reeve Earl Sager of Madoc township said the majority of people knew where the responsibility of the price increase lay.

"The reason is that anybody, who has anything to do with food, or thinks he has anything to do with it, after it leaves the producers' hands receives two years, while on the other hand the farmer has to sell his product the moment he gets what he can get," he said.

He went on to say that it was the consumer who benefited most from farm surpluses. He explained it was unfair that farmers should have to bear the full brunt of showing the world's surpluses.

Reeve Chas. Brennan of Deseronto thought that an inquiry into prices spreads on items of food would bring forth a lot of good information, which could be used by farm organizations in fighting matters.

Reeve T. C. Graham of Tweed, could see the point of a government investigation, however, "Here we go again asking the government to do something, which the producer could do himself," he said. "If farm groups are organized they could investigate themselves and get the truth."

REEVE ANDERSON AGREES.

Reeve John Anderson of Faraday agreed that farm organizations could do the investigation but hoped legislation whether they would have access to needed information.

Another aspect brought out by Reeve Bill Davis of McClure, Wicklow and Bangor was that farm organizations would have no authority to take action once the inquiry was completed.

"If the investigation was made by the government some form of action could be taken than if it was done by farm organizations," he said.

Councillors also concurred in a resolution from Grey county calling for government assistance in the clearing of rocks but idle land which if left go will would soon lose its fertility.

Reeve Bernard Hunt of Hungerford township declared the resolution was a "worthwhile request" and if carried out would be of considerable help to farmers in bringing idle land more productive.

Major Snowdon of the Salvation Army in Toronto appeared before council expressing his personal thanks for financial support given by county councils. He said that the report of Hastings county had meant much to the work of the Army. He went into more detail on the social work carried on by the Salvation Army. Ex-Warden Lee Gills introduced Major Snowdon to council and Mr. Humphrey of the Belleville branch of the Salvation Army was also present with the delegation.

After some discussion councillors concurred in similar resolutions from Perth and Wellington counties, asking for legislation which would relieve the municipality of responsibilities in accidents as result of icy road conditions.

CRITICAL OF MOTORISTS.

Reeve Davis felt something should be done to relieve municipalities of responsibility as a result of carelessness of motorists apparently did not want to drive safely and in accordance with road conditions. "It is time that the motoring public was awakened to the fact that they have a responsibility," he said.

Recent judgments against municipalities following motor accidents resulting from roads was said to be the reason for the resolutions.

A delegation from the Parkdale Veterans' Association in Thurlow township appeared before council asking for the sum of $500 toward their recreational centre. The R.C.A.F. unit contained approximately 90 houses north of College street in the extreme southern corner of Thurlow.

It was shown that already about $1,300 had been raised in developing the six acre park area and the program for the hall called for an additional expenditure of about $1,600. The matter was referred to ways and means.

The county finance committee will decide how much assistance will be spent on perennials and other flowers for the courthouse grounds. A request for $100 for this purpose was read by council.

Reeve Sager and Theodore Tryon noted that this association was now getting to be of real value to the rural municipalities as it had sufficient weight to obtain action from resolutions.

Two Newspapers Closed Down Due to Strike

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. (AP)—The American Newspaper Guild (CIO) went on strike today against Wilkes-Barre's two daily newspapers, The Record and the Times-Leader-Evening News. Both papers are owned by Wilkes-Barre Publishing Co.

Picket lines were set up around the newspaper office this morning, and officials of other unions said their members would not cross.

Robert W. Johnson, vice-president of the company, said unresolved issues in the negotiations involve wages, arbitration and vacation. The present wage scale ranges up to $102.50 a week.

Johnson said the guild had asked for a wage increase of $6 to $7. He said the company had offered $1.75 a week.

The two papers were shut down for 6½ months—from Sept. 1938 to March 1939—in a previous guild strike.

Mayor on Spot

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Mayor Norman Graham, who campaigned on a "cleanup" program, was requested Wednesday by city councillors to look into the sanitation department for recent remarks or the city will ask Municipal Affairs Minister Dunbar to intervene.

City council decided to issue the ultimatum at a special meeting. The mayor was not present.

The mayor's remarks were made Monday night in debate over purchase of garbage vans. He is quoted as saying the sanitation department "is rotten and it stinks."

"Odor of Ointment" "Loneliness of Jesus" Topic at W.M.S.

The afternoon and evening sessions of the W.M.S. of Bridge Street United Church held its Easter thank-offering meeting in the Sunday School rooms on Tuesday evening. The meeting was preceded by a pot-luck supper.

Miss Grace Tucker's group was in charge of the program. Miss Tucker led the worship service on the theme "What Does Easter Mean to You?" Mrs. Orfield, Mrs. Musgrove, Mrs. Marshall, Mrs. Seldon and Miss Norma Arkles assisted in this service.

Mrs. R. W. T. Middleton brought to the gathering a very thoughtful Easter message. As her subject she spoke on "Odor of Ointment" and "Loneliness of Jesus."

Mrs. Middleton took the group back to the time when Mary and Martha entertained Jesus. She contrasted the love of the two women for Him and compared them to the Marys and Marthas of today. She stated that Easter is a gladsome time, because the tragedy of the crucifixion was turned to triumph due to the resurrection.

Theatre Guild Presentation Enjoyed by Large Audience

BY LINTON READ.

A capacity audience last night attested to the confident anticipation of Belleville Theatre Guild supporters and local drama group presented Kaufman and Hart's "You Can't Take It With You." The confidence was not misplaced; it was a good show. A dispelling factor of this nature demands great things of its director and players if it is to satisfy, and obviously few, if any of the audience rose after the last curtain without a feeling that they had been well entertained for two fun-filled hours.

The story itself provides a great vehicle for wide-scale caricature. It revolves around the incredibly uninhibited Sycamore family whose philosophy, according to Grandpa that "you can't take it with you" presents many complications to the love affair of the son "rational" daughter and the son of the family's employer. The unexpected visit of the fiance and his parents to the Sycamore establishment presents a farcial situation at its best.

It is doubtful that Belleville has ever seen a setting more perfectly executed than the one for this play. Mrs. Mould and her assistants have done a really marvellous job in creating exactly the right kind of living room. The hartistic pot-pourri-like bodge-podge of snakes, printing presses, and xylophones, establishes at once the situation and tone of the play.

WELL BE IMPROVED.

It is unfortunate that the sound effects were at times disappointingly inaudible. Despite technical difficulties, are great, but the play demands much more of a timing device than it got last night; happily these are mechanical problems that will be ironed out for the second performance.

It is a pleasure to report that as a criticism to say that there was no real "star" of the show; every member of the cast was a "character"; every member filled his role so well that the collective effort reflected the caste laudable sense of team work and the keen direction by Ron Rose.

The nineteen actors ran, pirouetted, cavorted, limped, staggered, talked, bellowed, exploded and generally filled every stage with remarkable abandon. If for the first few minutes the play lacked the necessary verve, vitality and speed that it demands, this deficiency was soon swept away as that essential rapport, confidence and enthusiasm began obviously to flow into the actors' spirits.

The love scene of the two young people, embarrassed by their own emotional awakening was beautifully done and in some ways the highlight of the show. However Act II was thoroughly enjoyable as the first to last, as all the cast threw themselves completely into the story.

EXCELS IN PART

Betty Sadler, as Penelope, the mother with multifarious but credulous talents was delightful throughout the production. Her opening was painfully weak but once she was into the swing of things her high-strung exuberance and unqualified friendliness brought much warmth and excitement into the action. At times she alone saved the play's becoming tragic rather than farcical in tempo.

The would be danseuse, Essie, as portrayed by Janet Robertson, made a sterling contribution to the generally confused and confusing antics of the Sycamore family. Her entrances and exits were a source of constant amusement, and her lines were spoken with an admirable naturalness.

Joe McKay, as Paul, the father, and Bill Kellett, as Ed, the son-in-law, were given the least colorful roles in the play; whether they did all possible with their parts is debatable. They, too, however, warmed up considerably as the play progressed and in Acts II and III displayed the ebullience we would naturally expect from members of this unusual family.

The calm, philosophical, equanimited, dryly humorous old Grandpa was the kind of character audiences cannot help loving. Bert Simpson, naturally suited to such a part, made a fine job of it. He should look a little more his seventy-five years, but little slips such as that are overlooked in evaluating his sincere and sympathetic interpretation given to the character by Mr. Simpson.

Natural attractiveness, artistic unfolding, and above all, good acting ability combined to enable Doris Hoops to present a convincing Alice. Occasionally she spoke too fast or too low but on the whole her work was well done.

Opposite Miss Chipps was Murray Irwin as Tony, the McLean, Geoffry Roulet, Ronny Pedder and Gary May.

Mr. Ted Burch led in a rousing sing-song with Mrs. Badgley at the piano.

The evening was then turned over to a variety of games with Mr. Stuart Bull in charge. Some of the games were "Ring Toss", "Darts", "Checkers", "Bean Bag", "Ring Toss", "Darts", "Checkers", "Bean Bag", Refreshments were served.

Special Evening Service Held For 'Five Oaks'

On Sunday evening a special service was held in Bridge Street United Church for the Ivanhoe Pastoral charge in the interest of "Five Oaks" the "Christian Workers Centre" of the Five Central Conferences of the United Church of Canada.

The service opened with a song service of familiar hymns under the direction of Mr. Gaynor Rendall.

A splendid worship service on gaining young recruits for Christian Service was conducted by Mrs. George Wood, and included the Lord's Prayer, Scripture Lesson, Meditation and a prayer by Rev. J. E. Glover.

Miss Marilyn Fitchett, guest soloist, sang "Beautiful Land on High."

Mr. Glover, minister of the charge, introduced Miss Doris V. Twiddy, who delivered the special message of the evening.

Miss Twiddy, who took a six weeks course during the winter at Five Oaks, near Paris, Ontario, at the Christian Workers' Centre, spoke on the "Highlights of Experience" shared there. This message drew a vivid picture of the Workers' Centre before the congregation and left a deep impression and a desire on the more people to become a witness for the Master and to serve the Lord Jesus Christ.

Due to misfortune, films which had been planned to show in connection with the message of the evening had to be cancelled.

Special order of service, bearing on its cover the lay-out plan of Five Oaks and special offering envelopes were used and were in charge of Mr. Melville McIlroy and Mr. John Rollies.

SPECIAL MUSIC.

Special music for the service was under the direction of Mrs. Keith Bray. Other hymns used during the evening were: "Beneath the Cross of Jesus" and "Make Me a Captive Lord."

A small cross centered the communion table, which had been made during the six weeks' course at Five Oaks by one of the boys, who is now of the Anglican Faith, and was presented as a gift showing the great love Jesus had for all.

Surrounding the Cross were numerous pictures taken during the course, and a beautiful bouquet of flowers placed by a member of Beulah congregation formed a lovely setting for the service.

Mr. Glover pronounced the benediction which brought a helpful and profitable evening to a close.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

HIS WIFE OBJECTS TO HIS HOBBY

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a man of 28 who has been married almost a year.

Since I was seven years old, I have been interested in model-building. Sometimes I make a ship model or a car model, but most of all I enjoy building model airplanes. I believe that this type of hobby is an asset to an individual by developing patience and imagination and skill.

My problem, however, is that my wife takes another view of the matter. If I even take a look at a model building kit in a store when she is with me, she will say something like: "You're not going to build that!" Or "When are you going to grow up!" She herself has no hobby nor any creative imagination, and she spends three-quarters of her time either griping, complaining or lying in bed sleeping.

What do you think I could do about this problem? — G.B.C.

Dear G.B.C.:

Do you think that perhaps the trouble here might lie in the possibility that your wife may feel that you neglect her in favor of your hobby? How many evenings do you spend working on your models, and do you devote a reasonable number of other evenings to taking your wife out or having good times with friends at home?

I fully agree with you that it is fine to have such a hobby as yours, and I certainly believe in the wisdom of everybody having a hobby. But if you spend a disproportionate amount of time on yours, burying yourself in it night after night and making an effort to spend time with your wife, it's not surprising that she takes the attitude she does.

Think this over and see if perhaps she may not have some reason to feel neglected. Then try organize your leisure time and set a reasonable part of it aside for social activities you and your wife can enjoy together and with friends. Also, if you were to go at it as though you were really interested in her having fun, too, you might even persuade her to take up a hobby herself. Then you could have some very companionable evenings working together on your individual hobbies.

Again, a hobby is fine and extremely valuable—if not overdone. Make sure you're not overdoing yours.

SHALL SHE ASK HIM TO HER PROM?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a senior in high school, and the big problem of all of us girls who are going to graduate this June is The Prom.

I met a boy a few months ago and we have been quite friendly, but that's all. Last Sunday I asked him if the boys are having a Prom and he said yes. I asked him if he was going to it and he said no.

My problem is that I want to ask him to go to my Prom, but I don't know how. The time is drawing near for the bids to start going out, so I would appreciate any advice you could give me.

J.E.R.

Dear J.E.R.:

Wouldn't the best way to ask this boy to your Prom just to send him a "bid" when all the other girls are sending out theirs? Or do you feel it necessary that you say something about it to him first, so that you can get an idea whether or not he would accept the invitation?

If the latter is the case, then, if you are too shy to come right out and say something like: "If it should happen that you're invited to our Prom, would you accept the invitation?", drop him a little note and ask him that way. The chances are he would feel flattered that you cared to ask him and would be happy to accept.
